Riverland council progressing on mission toward 'financial sustainability'...

BALANCING BBC'S BOOKS

BERRI Barmera Council's mission to rein in its spending and ensure its "financial sustainability" has gained further momentum.

Just weeks after the council announced it had cut a list of programs from its initial 2024/25 budget, in order to reduce its projected deficit and avoid rate rises, an internal audit process has acknowledged Berri Barmera's new focus, put in place since the appointment of CEO Tim Pfeiffer in late 2023.

"The controls of the council were improved after the appointment of new management which took place at the end of 2023..." the council's Audit and Risk Committee said at its recent meeting.

The committee also acknowledged the current administration's "recent successful efforts to address the financial management issues, internal controls and the financial sustainability of council".

Locals caught for August road offences

NUMEROUS motorists were caught driving under the influence in the Riverland during weekend traffic stops.

On Sunday 4 August, Murray Mallee Police stopped a 24-year-old man driving on Derrick Street, Berri.

The man from Berri was submitted to a drug test, which allegedly tested positive.

The driver was issued with a three-month instant loss of licence and may be summonsed to attend Berri Magistrates Court pending a forensic analysis.

On Sunday 4 August, Police stopped a 51-year-old man driving on Cooper Street, Berri.

The Loveday man was submitted to a drug test, which allegedly tested positive for illicit substances.

The driver was issued with a three-month instant loss of licence and may be summonsed to attend Berri Magistrates Court pending a forensic analysis.

Loxton fire correction:

A DETAIL within a story inside last week’s edition of The Murray Pioneer was incorrect.

The page 2 story ‘Saturday night fire destroys Loxton shed’ stated the fire was put out by local CFS crews.

In fact, it was MFS crews that put the fire out.

Car convoy cuts through Renmark

THE annual Rotary Club of Dubbo South’s Destination Outback car trek will be passing through Renmark this Thursday to raise money for the Royal Flying Doctor Service.

With lunch provided by Renmark Rotary Club at Bert Dix Park, Riverlanders are encouraged to join the club as vehicles begin to roll from 11.30am.

Kindy Care trial starts in Riverland

A STATE-first trial of after preschool care started in two Riverland preschools last week.

Delivered by Department of Education staff, Loxton Preschool Centre and Renmark North Preschool will trial the initiative of Kindy Care to help support families who need care for their children outside of regular preschool hours of 9am to 3pm.

“Kindy Care will help relieve pressure on working families and provide their children with continuity of care outside of the regular preschool hours,” Minister for Education, Training and Skills Blair Boyer said.

“This an exciting reform that will lead the nation. It builds upon our existing investment into improving government preschool facilities and out of hours care, providing families with greater options and a higher quality of education and care.

“The Royal Commission into Early Education and Care highlighted the need for government preschools to provide care options that meet the changing needs of working families.

“We want to make it easier for families, who are already facing considerable cost-of-living demands, to access affordable quality care for their children. Supporting people to actively participate in the workforce is a key ambition of these reforms and will have many wide-reaching benefits.”

Kindy Care trails will continue into 2025 and provide feedback to determine a broader rollout, with Glossop Community Preschool set to deliver the initiative next year with third party providers.

Bashers go for the Gold Cost

MADISON EASTMOND

A CONVOY of 72 vehicles took off from the Renmark starting line on Saturday morning for the 36th annual SA Variety Bash.

Traveling more than 3000kms, the eight-day journey through rural Australia to the Gold Cost is aimed at raising $1.5m for children in need.

“The Bash remains our flagship fundraiser, which helps us meet the ever-expanding demand of our grants for SA kids in need, their families, other children’s charities, schools, hospitals and community groups,” Variety SA CEO Mark McGill said.

“In the past year alone, Variety SA has positively impacted the lives of over 88,000 children in South Australia through 244 grants totalling $6.23m.”

Representing the Riverland, the Lyrup team

— Joe Romeo and Sindy Lloyd, with Matthew and Lisa Lloyd — were a “mix of nerves and excitement” for the journey ahead on Saturday morning.

With their Holden Commodore station wagon transformed into the Scooby Doo Mystery Machine Bash Car, all the team had left to do were last minute preparations of “making sure there are enough toys on board to give out to the children and that the car is ready to go”.

“We just can’t wait to see the kid’s smiling faces when we roll into towns,” Lisa said.

“We’re also excited to meet the other teams and make the kind of friendships for life they’ve all told us about — they say once you’re in the Variety Bash, you are family forever.”

Though entering in as rookies for this year’s Bash, the team finished 15th out of the convoy in raising $34,826, earning them the award of a Silver Door Panel — an honour given to cars that raise more than $22,000.

“We just want to say a huge thank you to the wider community for getting behind us and supporting us — it’s amazing what they have done for us,” Ms Lloyd said.

Renmark Mayor Peter Hunter said he “sincerely thanks the volunteers who make sure the event is so successful”.

“Here in front of us today we have so many people give up their time and themselves to raise money for other people — particularly sick children, disabled, and those not able to do what we can normally do,” he said.

“It wouldn’t happen without volunteers.”

An original Lameroo and Pinnaroo man, OV1 Bash Chair Lynton Pahl, said he couldn’t wait for the Variety cars to take off from the start line.

“This is Bash number 28 for me and seeing smiles accompanying a bit of mud or sand is always something I look forward to,” he said.

“Plus, any challenge for city drivers is always good fun too.”

“I hope everyone has a great time and gets out and supports the local teams.”

Riverland crush lowest for over a decade

“The red crush (700,000 tonnes) has fallen more than the white average (804,854 tonnes) since 2021 and both warm inland and cool/temperate regions have seen a significant drop in the red crush, but despite the lower crush, red stock levels are still well above ideal,” Ms Hathaway said. Market update worries the wine industry

SEBASTIAN CALDERON

RIVERLAND grape growers and wine industry continue to feel economic pressures according to recent figures published by Wine Australia.

A market update meeting hosted by Wine Australia and Riverland Wine, held last week at the Barmera Club, was aimed at providing international sales figures, plus updates on new market opportunities and marketing strategies.

Wine Australia senior analyst Sandy Hathaway said “three out of the last five Australian vintages have been below average in size”.

“The red crush (700,000 tonnes) has fallen more than the white average (804,854 tonnes) since 2021 and both warm inland and cool/temperate regions have seen a significant drop in the red crush, but despite the lower crush, red stock levels are still well above ideal,” Ms Hathaway said.

Red grape prices have declined significantly and the Riverland crush is at its lowest point for over a decade (400,000 tonnes) compared to the estimated 10-year average of 467,597 tonnes.

Riverland red prices have been in decline from a high of $700 per tonne on 2020 to an all-time low estimate of $200 per tonne.

Whites have stayed constant with an average price of $380 to $550 per tonne.

According to recent data, revenue per hectare of Riverland shiraz has also declined, from almost $15,000 per hectare in 2021, to an average of $3500 per hectare in 2024.

Wine Australia market insights manager Peter Bailey said “Riverland chardonnay, Riverland cabernet Sauvignon and Riverland merlot revenue per hectare has been declining with a slight improvement in 2024”.

“One of the causes are the long-term decline in global wine consumption per capita and a growth in premium wines more than offset by steady decline in commercial wines,” Mr Bailey said.

“The premiumisation trend is stronger in the domestic market than the international market, while global wine production has exceeded consumption for the past 20 years,” Ms Hathaway said.

“Premium wine re-entering mainland China increased the overall export value in 2023-24, but volume of exports are at its lowest since 2003-04, and today’s exports to mainland China is still a small fraction of the historical peaks achieved to the market,” Mr Bailey said.

Positive results for mobile phone ban in schools

SIGNIFICANT improvements in student behaviour and positive interactions are among results from a ban on phones in schools, including schools in the Riverland.

A recent report from the Department of Education, the mobile phone ban at public secondary schools has generated a 63 per cent decline in critical incidents that involved social media between terms 1 and 2 of 2024, compared to the same period in 2023.

Included in the decrease is cyber bullying, circulation of explicit issues, derogatory content and other concerning online behaviours.

Premier Peter Malinauskas said “as the community grapples more widely with the issue of damage caused by social media platforms, the State Government has taken decisive action to protect young people in school hours to ensure the appropriate use of devices”.

“We knew this was the right thing to do and one year on, the evidence is in, children are playing with each other, not on their phones,” Mr Malinauskas said.

The past 18 months also highlighted a decrease in matters reported of students refusing to comply with the policy or their overall behaviour with mobile phones, including kicking or punching.

Principals reported immediate progress and changes in student behaviour, especially around extracurricular activities or clubs to be available in break times.

Data showed a:

- 54 per cent decrease in student behaviour issues during terms one and two of 2024.
- 44 per cent fewer policy compliance issues during terms one and two of 2024.

THE YEARS GO BY

BY PETER AND CARLA MAGAREY

Election plans already?

IT’S tough being made to watch on from the sidelines.

Ask any athlete about having to watch their teammates from the bench or stands due to being injured and the common answers are that it’s a painful and frustrating experience.

It would stand to reason that politicians whose party is in opposition to government – at both state and federal levels – would have similar feelings about being unable to exert their desired influence across their respective electorates.

While the opposition political parties are 100 per cent a necessity for a democratic society such as ours to function properly and fairly, they are unable to shape the state, or nation, to the traditions of their political stances.

Having been in opposition since 2022, our local political figures – who fall into the Liberal Party side of the chamber – too seem to be becoming restless in the side of opposition, and while we could be up to 12 months away from heading to the Federal poll booths, are already making their plans and proposals clear should the Liberal Party regain government.

As was seen in last week’s edition of The Murray Pioneer, expanding support for the wine industry has been an early commitment from the Barker MP, and national opposition spokesperson for trade.

This is support that is clearly still needed among the local wine sector, as evidenced by some sentiments – that the oversupply of red wine is predicted to be a continued burden for numerous years – of last week’s Riverland Wine meetings, and yesterdays Finlaysons Wine Roadshow in Renmark.

Make no mistake, those running from the opposition know exactly which cracks to try and widen that will relate to their bases of voters, both in regional areas and metropolitan centres.

The next election may be even further away at the State Government level, however the relatively unexpected decision from David Speirs to stand down as SA Liberal Party leader throws and early curveball into the party’s preparations.

Vincent Tarzia now takes the spotlight as challenger for the Premier’s chair, and with time to become as recognisable across the state as in his local stomping ground of Norwood.

It has only been within the last month that Mr Tarzia was given a tour of the Riverland and a rundown of the current key issues in the region – from our Chaffey MP – and any approach involving a balancing of country and metropolitan priorities will no doubt be favoured in rural areas, where Liberal Party votes are undoubtedly going to be at their strongest.

There’s still a long way to go, but as we start the next election races, has one side been quicker from the block?

Loxton Olympians Grant (left) and Zachery Schubert have both achieved success representing Australia at the peak of their sport. Grant, son of Bruce and Glanys, was born in 1980 and played hockey as a striker. He was named World Young Hockey Player for 2003, and between 2003 and 2010, represented Australia in nine international events. These included two Olympics, winning a gold medal (Athens, 2004), and bronze (Beijing, 2008), and gold medals at the Commonwealth Games (Melbourne, 2006) and the World Cup (New Delhi, 2010). Zach says that his cousin Grant was a role model for him, inspiring an Olympic dream and talking about training and attitude. Zach, son of Tim and Julie, was born in 1995. He played beach volleyball, representing Australia at the 2024 Paris Olympics. He and his teammate did well in qualifying matches and, though losing a knockout game against USA, creditably ‘held their own’. Bruce and Tim are two brothers of five sons and a daughter to Vic and Nita, from Paruna, south of Loxton. Vic was one of 15 children, many of whom did well in various sports. Interestingly Zach now specialises in crickets. Not the sport, but in developing a local industry growing crickets and other insects as renewable sources of protein for human consumption. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Opinions expressed in Letters to the Editor are those of the writers, and not those of the Murray Pioneer.

A political scam?

A SCAM: Where a payment of a fee for a proposal or idea does not give you a return or a result on that investment.

Last Thursday I attended one of the information meetings regarding the coming vintage and future of the wine grape industry.

Simply put:
- There is a decline in consumption of alcoholic beverages.
- The wine industry is experiencing a steeper decline than other alcoholic beverages.

- Wine grape production exceeds demand on a world market and Australia’s is greater than other countries.
- Wine stock levels, particularly red, exceed market requirements.

- Wine-per-litre prices are below a sustainable production level. Reds more so than whites.
- China will not be the market it previously was. Early sales, mainly premium wines, are a restocking phenomenon. There is a very high reduction of wine consumption in China, particularly the commercial bracket.

None of this would be news to any diligent grape grower.

On a Riverland perspective, Riverland Wine has received its fair share of flack regarding a perceived inaction for grower assistance.

Riverland Wine is dedicated, feels the same emotional issues as us, and has some good proposals, but is being stifled by government inaction and ignorance.

Apologies for my little outburst but it comes through frustration and anger in the way the community I have been involved in for 65 years is being treated and ignored.

The Riverland Wine Industry Blueprint has put forward some initiatives that could assist in grape grower viability.

This paper was endorsed by the SA Government, with a government minister being a part of its structure and initiatives.

The government knew that financial assistance would be required to implement the proposals put forward in the paper. The government also presented the blueprint to the grape grower with no financial support available.

Government continues to – via levies and taxes – take money from the grape grower, who should expect some kind of return on those funds.

Those taxes include a considerable financial gain from the compounding tax on every bottle of wine sold.

I believe the State Government has used this blueprint as a scam, and has used hard-working, dedicated locals to instigate it.

So, give/sell us a proposal, take our funds, and we get no return. Does that equal a scam?

One of the main proposals of the blueprint is a stimulus or incentive to transition from the current wine industry practices, either varieties or crops. If you inquire, there is nothing available.

The government has put up $50,000 for mental health, enough to cover a clinician for three months.

The government has also put up $250,000 to look into alternatives. I believe administration will use all that.

The grower requires assistance now. The grower is into a new vintage, operating at below-cost returns, facing the prospect of putting grapes on the ground or mothballing the crop, creating more debt and trying to hold a family together.

Some indicative cost figures included $18,000/ha to mothball vines and $600/tonne to break even. This includes growers’ time at basic wage.

Governments tell us it all takes time.

Well, it didn’t take long to spend $30 million on duplicating an AFL standard oval at Lyndoch when one was just finished at Tanunda.

It took only three months after being elected to change the position of the new Women’s and Children’s Hospital at a cost of hundreds of millions of dollars, then sneaking the budget costs into the SAPOL and emergency services budget to cover some of the moving costs.

I believe this jeopardises the effectiveness of our law enforcement and ambulances.

It took only months after being elected for hundreds of millions of dollars to change the design of the Southern Expressway T2D roadway.

I believe the Liberal Party focuses on the big end of town and those wineries, who I understand are doing it tough also.

But the root of the problem is at the supply end: the grower.

Supply needs to be reduced to bring everything back in balance. It is the supply/grower end that is being ignored and neglected.

Articles in The Murray Pioneer and other media, along with inquiries for assistance, have significantly reduced.

Is it complacency, a feeling of hopelessness, or just giving up? I hope it is not a case of isolation and seclusion as that is an indication of depression and if that is the case the government has a far bigger issue than a floundering wine industry.

Responsible for lake’s history?

WHAT has been achieved by covering the mussel middens around Lake Bonney?

In my opinion it is a total disaster, with sand bags holding the covering down breaking up and blowing into the lake and the foreign material that filled the bags being scattered everywhere.

Mussel middens are a part of Aboriginal history and are numerous along the Murray and its flood plains. These shells are evident on at least 90 per cent of the shores of Lake Bonney.

Mussel shells on middens at Pike River have been carbon dated at 30,000 years.

One would expect they would be of similar age at Lake Bonney; that is 25,000 years older than the Egyptian pyramids.

Soil erosion and floods that have occurred for thousands of years have exposed and covered these middens and this will keep happening for thousands of years to come.

Now that the lake has been protected from four-wheel-drive vehicles chopping up the dunes where middens are evident, explanatory signs should be erected explaining to the public what middens are, how the mussels were cooked, and any other information about the 30,000 years of occupation.

Whose responsibility is it to fix this?

Need to keep regions connected

THE State and Federal governments must ensure flight services across regional South Australia are maintained, following news Rex Airlines has entered voluntary administration.

Around 2.5 million people fly with the regional airline every year, and it plays a vital role in connecting remote and regional areas to major cities.

Rex also provides regional South Australians access to essential services such as health-care and education, which might not be readily available locally.

Rex employs around 1500 people nationwide, and there are concerns hundreds of jobs could be axed.

While only flights between capital cities have been affected at this stage, there are fears for the future of Rex’s regional operations.

Labor must come up with a plan to ensure routes currently serviced by Rex in South Australia continue if the airline fails.

Rex Airlines is a lifeline for many South Australian regional communities, providing crucial access to services, so the uncertainty surrounding its future is deeply concerning.

While regional flights are still operating – for now – those who rely on these services are worried the airline is on the brink of collapse.

Rex provides services between Adelaide and Port

Lincoln, Mount Gambier, Broken Hill, Ceduna and Coober Pedy, and plays a key role in the social and economic wellbeing of these regions.

For these communities to lose connectivity would be catastrophic, so we cannot allow regional South Australia to be cut off.

Regular, reliable flights are not only vital for our economy but the health and wellbeing of our regions.

Many regional health services are reliant on professionals flying into centres such as Mount Gambier.

It's also important we don't end up with a monopoly on these services, to keep prices competitive for consumers, especially during the cost-of-living crisis.

State and federal Labor need to ensure these services continue for the maintenance of vital health services and for the broader South Australian economy.

The possibility of Rex Airlines ceasing operations is alarming.

This week's developments with Rex Airlines going into administration are of significant concern, especially for our community members who rely on flying to access services such as healthcare from Port Lincoln and Ceduna.

Although at this stage Rex is saying that all regional planes are still flying as scheduled, we are truly concerned what the long-term arrangements are going to look like for our communities, and are urging both the State and Federal governments to seriously consider steps they can take to ensure that Rex doesn't fail, because the ramifications would be disastrous for regional South Australia.

Control necessary to co-exist?

FOR millennia huge herds of caribou have migrated across vast areas of land situated in far-northern parts of planet Earth.

These once enormous herds of caribou are depleting at an alarming rate.

It is a disturbing fact that what is taking place in the far-northern parts of the planet in relation to caribou populations, is also happening to wild animals across the world. As human populations explode, wild animal numbers are, almost without exception, in extremely serious decline.

To date it seems to be clear that there is no chance of humans being able to migrate to another planet, similar to Earth. A sobering fact.

I have no idea how this could be accomplished, but surely it is time for humans to give serious and realistic consideration to controlling human population growth, which could not only assist humans in many obvious ways but also perhaps allow both humans and our wonderful wild animals to co-exist.

It takes all of us to battle cancer

CANCER Council's much loved and most iconic national fundraiser, Daffodil Day, will take place on Thursday 22 August.

Now in its 38th year, this celebrated event urges Australians to buy a bunch of daffodils to support life-changing cancer research.

Daffodil Day has long been a beacon of hope for people affected by cancer, symbolising resilience, hope and the promise of a brighter future. Daffodil Day raises vital funds and awareness about the importance of ongoing cancer research and support for individuals and families impacted by cancer.

This year's goal is to raise more than $2.6m across Australia. Beautiful daffodils are on sale at Cancer Council pop-up stalls around the country on Daffodil Day and donations can be made online.

With almost one in two people heartbreakingly impacted by cancer during their lifetime, it is essential we continue to invest in life-saving cancer research.

For all cancer takes, we encourage everyone to give all they can this Daffodil Day. Thanks to our amazing supporters, we've made huge strides in cancer prevention, screening and treatment over the past 38 years – but there's still a long way to go.

Each year Daffodil Day brings our community together to make a real impact. With every dollar raised, we move closer to breakthroughs in cancer treatment and prevention.

We encourage everyone to join us in this life-saving cause. Your support means we can continue to fund critical cancer research and provide vital resources to people with cancer right now. It takes all of us.

Australians can support Daffodil Day in a number of ways throughout August, donate online, host a Daffodil Day fundraiser at work, buy an exclusive artist-designed eCard, complete a physical challenge such as the Daffodil Dip and much more.

More than 40,000 fundraisers got behind Daffodil Day in 2023, raising more than $2.5m and taking us one step closer to a cancer-free future.

To donate or find your nearest daffodil stall, visit the website (daffodilday.com.au).

MAYOR ON FRONT FOOT: Berri Barmera Council's recent record proves it is "doing a good job" and is attuned to its ratepayers, Mayor Peter Hunt has declared. In a wide-ranging interview appearing in today's Murray Pioneer, Mr Hunt says the council's decision to freeze its rate in the dollar figure in 2014/15, plus its successive years of nil deficits underline its competence.

Creditors anxious

The burning question: Will the RFC liquidator sell the Berri Ltd shares?
Only an Adelaide accountant knows and he's not saying.
Riverland Fruit Cooperative creditors are anxiously awaiting news on whether the partial sale of Berri Ltd will move them closer to recovering a $3 million debt. The failed co-operative still holds 197,754 shares in the juice giant, which last week announced it had sold a 50% stake to South East Asian brewing giant San Miguel. Berri was valued at $335 million in the deal.

The yarn bombing in Barwell Avenue, in Barmera, is just spectacular. It is a phenomenal effort by our local knitting and crocheting artists, who must have spent months creating this amazing exhibition of colourful textiles.

I think Berri's mental health clinic is way undermanned. People in need of help have to wait hours. Not good enough in my view.

Lyrup is a lovely village. The Lyrup Club serves very good meals. The Lyrup Flats are a good campground, and the Riverland Superdogs host visiting teams most fortnights. Are these not good enough reasons to get on with fixing the Lyrup Road?

IAN F

I think the Lyrup Road repairs should be redesigned and a share ought to be covered by Renmark Paringa Council, as it is a major bottleneck for the River Murray in a flood. All the water threatening Berri is held back by the dam that is created by this road – limiting flow to a narrow channel, or spillway, at the ferry crossing at Lyrup. If more water could get through this area during a high-water event, Renmark would not be so threatened.

Great to see our politicians doing surveys regarding, what I think are, our pitiful country roads. Have you driven from Berri to Renmark? Well you could start there. It's time for action now. You don't need to be too smart to see what roads need attention. Action, not surveys.

Berri super students

MADISON EASTMOND

TWO Berri Regional Secondary College students have been acknowledged for volunteering hundreds of hours toward the community last week.

Year 11 students Lily Rothe and Felix Harvey were part of the five South Australian students invited to travel to Adelaide last week and receive recognition from Minister for Human Services Nat Cook and Volunteering SA&NT chief executive officer Hamilton Calder for pitching the most community service hours through a new volunteer pilot program.

Funded by the Department of Human Services and supported by the Department for Education with Volunteering SA&NT and the Student Volunteer Army (SVA) New Zealand, the SVA Service Award program is an online platform that allows students to log their volunteer hours and celebrate milestones by achieving bronze, silver, and gold badges.

The initiative began following the Christchurch earthquakes in 2010 in an effort to mobilise students to help with recovery efforts and has now been trialled across six South Australian Secondary schools.

“We’re thrilled with the results of the pilot,” Volunteering SA&NT chief executive officer Hamilton Calder said.

“Ultimately, we’d love to see the platform used in schools across the state.

“The future of volunteering is in good hands when you see how many hours these students have given back to their communities.

“We’ve had some wonderful feedback from students. They say the app is easy to use and they appreciate the recognition it provides them for their efforts.”

Submitting 18-months worth of donated and ongoing time she had spent at local sporting clubs, the school community, Cottage Homes, and Lions Club to the Volunteering SA&NT platform, Ms Rothe was able to pitch 303 hours of volunteering.

“I have been volunteering since I was in Year 5,” Ms Rothe said.

“I really love volunteering because it makes me feel like I am giving back to the community, and also like I am part of it too.

“I help in local sports with coaching Berri Swimming Club’s junior Dolphins.

“I also help out at the school with events and the canteen — I really like to work with food so I volunteer with the Lion’s Club barbeques too.”

Ms Rothe said she owes her passion for community service to her family.

“They have always been really supportive of me,” she said.

“My mum is the reason I volunteer — she always puts her hand up for everything,

“She really inspires me and always asks me to come along with her.”

Through the Riverland South Australian Aboriginal Secondary Training Academy, Mr Harvey lodged 58 hours of volunteer service.

“Myself and other students helped with the Salvation Army last year, and this year I have participated with a group to aid in flood recovery,” he said.

“I also do martial arts, and beforehand I volunteer in assisting the junior class.”

Though Mr Harvey said that he felt proud his efforts had been acknowledged, he “didn’t volunteer for recognition”.

“I learned so much from volunteering — I was happy enough with that,” he said.

“I just want to keep donating my spare time where I can.”

Minister for Human Services Nat Cook said it was “great to meet those students who have gone above and beyond in giving back to their communities this week.

“The (platform) has proven to be a great tool to support and encourage young people to seek out volunteering opportunities and to use those opportunities as a foundation for whatever comes next, whether it be employment or further study.”

Completing a Certificate II in Hospitality, Mr Harvey said he wants to continue to provide for and interact with the community by becoming a barista and opening a café. Ms Rothe said giving back was too at the top of her future priorities, planning and preparing to study medicine at University.

“Like volunteering, it will let me help the community,” Ms Rothe said.

Council’s ‘financial sustainability’ mission...

Balancing BBC’s books

BERRI Barmera Council’s mission to rein in its spending and ensure its “financial sustainability” has gained further momentum.

Just weeks after the council announced it had cut a list of programs from its initial 2024/25 budget, in order to reduce its projected deficit and avoid rate rises, an internal audit process has acknowledged Berri Barmera’s new focus, put in place since the appointment of CEO Tim Pfeiffer in late 2023.

“The controls of the council were improved after the appointment of new management which took place at the end of 2023...” the council’s Audit and Risk Committee said at its recent meeting.

The committee also acknowledged the current administration’s “recent successful efforts to address the financial management issues, internal controls and the financial sustainability of council”.

The council’s annual business plan for 2024/25 forecast an operating surplus of just $21,700, after planned “operating savings” of over $450,000.

Mayor Ella Winnall said the audit committee’s comments reflected “a lot of work to get things back on track”.

“We still have a lot of work to do, but it’s great to see the work of the administration has been recognised by the audit committee and in particular from independent members,” Mayor Winnall said.

“Obviously the community expect good financial management at council, and it’s been a priority for the elected members in making sure the ratepayers’ money is treated with the utmost respect and delivers good value for the community.”

In a joint overview contained in Berri Barmera’s annual business plan, Mr Pfeiffer and Mayor Winnall said delivering essential services, including flood-recovery efforts, renewing community assets and tackling high-priority projects, “must be achieved in a financially constrained environment, with a modest increase in rates...”.

Among the defunded projects cut from the council’s original 2024/25 budget were the Loveday Internment Camp ($53,877) and the Rally for the Riverland initiative ($50,000).

A total of $453,775 of cuts were outlined and subsequently supported by elected members.

Free meals on wheels for Riverlanders

RIVERLAND recipients of Meals on Wheels received a free meal last Friday to mark the organisations 70th birthday.

Made possible by the support of local businesses, Meals on Wheels delivered 5000 free meals across the state last Friday to mark the milestone.

“We are celebrating seven wonderful decades of delivering nourishing meals to South Australians,” Meals on Wheels SA CEO Sharyn Broer said.

“Meals on Wheels continues to build a lasting legacy of social connection and well-being.

“This is fundamental in keeping older Australians healthy and independent in their own homes, and our volunteer workforce plays a vital role in making this happen.”

A total of 58 meals were delivered by the Berri, Renmark, and Waikerie Meals on Wheels branch courtesy of Ray White Riverland.

“We were honoured to be given the opportunity to support Meals on Wheels,” Ray White Riverland managing director Aaron Willis.

“It’s such a great cause — it was good to not only contribute, but to cover 100 per cent of the costs that day.”

Since being founded in 1954, Meals on Wheels has grown to become the state’s largest volunteer organisation, and evolved to offer group cooking classes, social activities, and intergenerational programs.

“Today is a celebration of service and community, and we thank our supporters, volunteers and businesses who have worked tirelessly to help the Meals on Wheels mission become a reality,” Ms Broer said.

“After 70 years, Meals on Wheels SA is still going strong. We look forward to many more years of improving the lives of South Australians through great food and meaningful connection.”

Renmark Men’s Probus Club monthly update

OUR Meeting on Monday 15 July saw the induction of Gary Seekamp into the Men’s Probus Club of Renmark. Welcome Gary.

Our guest speaker on the day was our own member Brenton Morrell who gave us insight into the operations of the University of the Third Age, and the history of the Morrell family.

Next Meeting is Monday 19 August, at Hotel Renmark Function Room. Guest speaker will be our own member Kevin Schopp, and time permitting our member Allan Maddocks. Mark Bell is looking at Paul Hansen and Peter Haslett for guest speakers for the next couple of months and Olivewood as a possible visitation.

The Men’s Probus Club of Renmark has been operating close on 40 years now and our motto is “Fun, Friendship and Fellowship in Retirement”. This is something that is enjoyed by the more than 40 members of the Renmark club and besides the monthly meeting, at which following normal meeting procedures and a friendly cuppa, the members have the pleasure of listening to very interesting guest speakers.

This meeting takes place at the Hotel Renmark, generally in the Function Room, at 10am on the third Monday of the month.

Also as an added bonus, the club arranges one-day trips visiting various places of interest on a day other than the usual meeting day, and sometimes in conjunction with other Riverland Probus clubs, organises events for the participation of all clubs.

So if this sounds interesting to you and you are retired, then feel free to contact one of our members for further information.

Thought for the day: ‘Do not regret growing old, it is a privilege denied to many’.

Brett's burgers named SA's best

THINKING outside the box with its offerings has seen a Riverland butcher distinguished with major state awards.

Riverland Country Style Meats, based in Renmark, received two gold medals at the recent 2024 Regional and State Sausage King Awards.

Operator Brett Gebhardt said he and wife Sue were particularly proud to again be highlighted for their pies.

"We won two South Australian golds," Mr Gebhardt said.

"One was for our gourmet burgers, where we got first and third in the gourmet section, and then we got first and third for our pies in the value added section.

"The lamb shank pie was first, and the mango chicken pie got third. Sue has retained the glory for her pies, and she's had that for about five years in a row now."

Mr Gebhardt said providing a variety of meat cuts and unique smallgoods was a key to the business's ongoing success.

"People like having different things all the time... so we like to make all different value-added products," he said.

"You have to be diverse and change things up as much as possible."

Mr Gebhardt said he was currently planning new products and flavours for the summer season.

"I don't want to let any cats out of the bag, but especially coming into summer I've got a few ideas up my sleeve," he said.

Spring clean your backyard as part of fight against fruit fly

RIVERLAND residents are being reminded to prepare gardens ready for spring as the region continues the fight against fruit fly.

While no new Queensland fruit fly outbreaks have been declared in the Riverland since early March 2024, with spring just around the corner, the Department of Primary Industries and Regions (PIRSA) is urging residents to clean up their gardens in preparation of the warmer weather.

PIRSA incident controller of the fruit fly emergency Jason Size encouraged Riverland residents to channel their inner gardener and get their hands dirty to protect their garden against fruit fly.

"As we prepare to enter Spring, remember to pick, collect, check, call," he said.

"When out in the garden, make sure to pick your ripe fruit and vegetables as soon as possible and prune your fruit trees so you can pick them more easily next season.

"Check your fruit and vegetables for any blemishes and call the Fruit Fly Hotline on 1300 666 010 if you spot anything in your garden.

"Remember to also collect fallen fruit off the ground and dispose of it correctly by double bagging it in two sealed plastic bags and put it in a general waste bin."

Riverland residents and produce growers are reminded they can search their address on the fruit fly interactive map online (fruitfly.sa.gov.au/outbreak-map) to see how fruit and vegetable movement restrictions affect them depending on where they live, travel, work or go to school. It also provides information on what they need to do within the 1.5km red outbreak area and 15km yellow suspension areas.

The total number of outbreaks in the Riverland remains at 51. Of the Riverland outbreak areas, 28 have been without any detections in the last 12 weeks, with some recording no detections for more than a year.

The end date for all Riverland outbreaks is currently 23 December, however, the outbreak end date depends on no fruit flies being detected in red outbreak or yellow suspension areas for at least 12 weeks.

In order to meet area freedom requirements, fruit fly eradication activities and restrictions on fruit movement in the Riverland are likely to continue beyond the outbreak end date.

Current sterile fly (SIT) releases are occurring at Renmark, Renmark North, Renmark South, Renmark West, Renmark West, Chaffey, Cooltong and Paringa until 2 September.

Riverland students jump (and play) for joy

MADISON EASTMOND

RIVERLAND Special School students from Foundation to Year 12 will now be able to enjoy a gymnastics program which has been revived through grant funding.

The school was awarded $5000 from Credit Union SA's School Impact Program, with the funding to cover the cost of two instructors at the Riverland Gymnastics Academy so students can attend regular sessions for the remaining semester.

"The School Impact Program is something new just launched this year by Credit Union SA," Credit Union SA senior manager brand and business development Joann Skene said.

"We wanted to provide a fairer way for all schools to access funding for important projects that sometimes slip through the cracks of traditional fundraising like school fates or raffle tickets.

"We know it is increasingly hard with cost of living, and we know that will continue. This funding helps to top up schools so they can provide facilities or activities for kids to do at school without having to ask parents put their hands in their pockets."

Providing funding between $2000 to $20,000, the School Impact Program aims to support activities that include:

- ❑ Equipment or facility upgrades on campus.
- ❑ Student experiences such as school camps or excursions.
- ❑ Teacher wellbeing including training, or student support such as lunch or sporting programs.

"We transfer it so (the schools) can start spending it straight away. We don't ask for receipts because we trust that the schools know how to manage funds," Ms Skene said.

"It's basically a quick top up of extra fundraising money that lets the school leadership teams, principals, and curriculum leaders give back where it's needed."

Junior Primary teacher Sarah Gaylard said that Riverland Special School were excited to provide access to a gymnastics program that would run for longer than just a few weeks.

"The school is always grateful for funding that supports students to engage in activities and opportunities," she said.

"When we told them all that they would be doing gymnastics at the end of last term, there were lots of very excited faces.

"They're so glad to be back... as this is something our SRC have consistently highlighted as a key interest of students."

The Riverland Special School was one of 15 South Australian schools that received funding from Credit Union SA.

"We support regional schools exactly the same as metropolitan schools," Ms Skene said.

"When the first round went live in January, we had over 300 applications from schools and over 50 per cent came from the country and regional schools

"Our judging panel, which included a Department for Education executive member, came and sat in and looked at the short-listed applicants and saw where the need would have the greatest impact.

"When we awarded the funding, we were able to give it to 15 of those schools — 10 of the 15 were regional schools which was just fantastic."

Ms Gaylard said the funding has allowed the school to enhance its PE program, and also provide benefits for the children's overall wellbeing.

"It's great for their gross motor development, and development of fundamental movement skills which are things like jumping, balancing, skipping, hopping," she said.

"It's also been a great opportunity for the kids to get into the community.

Big smiles: Flynn, Jaden, and Ruby spend their gymnastic session on the trampoline.

"Well you can just see the smiles on their faces... we're very thankful to Credit Union SA for this funding opportunity."

Ms Skene said Credit Union SA plans for the School Impact Program to provide $1m in funding to South Australian schools across the next 10 years.

"$71,000 was given in that first round," she said.

"Our goal is to deliver $100,000 a year... we would like to give more than $40,000 for the second round so we would well achieve that goal."

Credit Union SA encourage schools to enquire about the second round before applications close on 13

September.

"It is a very simple process," Ms Skene said.

"It takes around 3 to 4 minutes to complete online and it just needs to be a member of school leadership team that applies.

"However, we are appealing to parents or grandparents as a call to action — to those who would really like to help their children's schools to achieve their goals — to encourage their school principal or deputy principal to jump online and checkout our website."

Barmera Theatre Gallery curator Heather Thomas prepares the SALA exhibition for the month of August. PHOTOS: Madison Eastmond

Barmera showcases Riverland art talent

MADISON EASTMOND

THE Barmera Theatre Gallery is showcasing Riverland artists this month to mark the South Australian Living Artists (SALA) Festival.

Part of a state-wide celebration of visual art, the SALA exhibition officially opened last Saturday and runs until 31 August, at the Barmera Memorial Hall Gallery, with walls lined by artwork from across the Riverland.

“The work this year is exceptional. Last year surprised me and this year surprised me as well — it just keeps better and better,” Barmera Theatre Gallery curator Heather Thomas said.

“How these artists capture things just amaze me.”

The hall will also showcase a collection of art from Riverland students and local youth that have taken part in Barmera Theatre Gallery workshops by gallery members Shirley Lord and Ruth Pech.

“The youth are our future, and (the Barmera Theatre Gallery) are really passionate about continuing and passing on these skills,” Ms Thomas said.

Allowing Barmera Theatre Gallery to use the hall and providing support for workshops, Ms Thomas said that the group has had “a lot of council support”.

“We are really thankful,” she said.

“The exhibition probably wouldn’t be able to be showcased for the entire month if the council hadn’t allowed us to use the hall at no cost for the event.”

Berri Barmera Mayor Ella Winnall said council’s involvement was a “small financial contribution which makes such a difference for our local community to participate in state-wide festivals like SALA”.

“Getting out to see the work of local artists on display has been so much fun,” she said.

“I’ve especially loved the yarn bombing of Barmera this year, and saw visitors and locals pouring out of the theatre gallery on the weekend to look at the works in there.

“I think it’s a big thing for our local artists to put their work on display, and they should all be so proud of their work and the contribution it makes.

“Being able to make art and view art is an important part of the fabric of a community and we’re proud as a council to be able to support strengthening that.”

Ms Thomas said she hoped the local community comes to enjoy the talent Riverland artists have on offer this year.

“The best part is just seeing the works up and hearing the great comments on peoples work — it makes it all worthwhile.”

The Barmera Theatre Gallery SALA Exhibition will open from 11.30am to 4.30pm from Wednesday to Friday, and 12.30pm to 3.30pm from Saturday to Sunday.

Love where you live, help make it even better

RENMARK Paringa Council is seeking community input to develop its Community Plan 2024-2034 through a quick survey.

The ‘Love where you live, help make it even better’ survey will ask the community what they love about the Renmark Paringa area, but also ‘What is the most important thing for Renmark Paringa Council to do now to plan for 2034?’

Previous community input from council’s Community Satisfaction Survey and Growth Strategy survey will be considered as part of developing the plan.

The quick survey can be taken on council’s engagement platform ‘Engage RPC’ by scanning the below QR code, or hard copies will be available at the Renmark Public Library and Renmark Paringa Community and Civic Centre.

The survey opens today and will close on Wednesday 4 September.

Once a draft of the plan has been endorsed by elected members, the plan will go out for a legislated 21 days of community consultation.

The Community Plan is a significant strategic document, which will help guide Renmark Paringa Council’s direction over the next 10 years.

Council’s other strategic documents, which inform the Community Plan, will continue to provide the strategic direction for the areas they have been developed for.

Renmark Paringa Council is keen to hear from locals and hopes the community takes the opportunity to have its say and help guide council’s long-term direction.

Pathways Financial Planning SA director and principal financial planner RASHELE DEBNAR has supplied the following advice surrounding investments...

NAVIGATING INVESTMENT STRATEGIES IN A VOLATILE MARKET

IN today's fluctuating economic landscape, maintaining a prudent investment strategy is more crucial than ever.

With concerns about inflation, market volatility, and economic uncertainty, investors must focus on principles that stand the test of time.

One key concept is the importance of 'time in the market' versus 'timing the market'.

Trying to predict market highs and lows can be a fool's game. Instead, committing to a long-term investment strategy typically yields better outcomes. Consistent, patient investing allows your portfolio to grow despite short-term market turbulence.

Diversification remains a cornerstone of smart investing. A well-diversified portfolio spreads risk by holding a mix of asset types, such as shares, listed property, and alternative investments for growth, alongside defensive assets like cash, term deposits, and bond funds.

This balance helps mitigate potential losses and aligns with your risk tolerance and investment goals.

Cost efficiency also plays a significant role in investment returns. Lower fees often translate into better net returns over time. Be wary of investments that sound too good to be true – high-return promises are usually linked to high risk. Thorough research is essential to avoid speculative traps.

Dollar-cost averaging is another effective strategy, especially in volatile markets. By investing a fixed amount regularly, you reduce the risk of investing a large sum at an inopportune time. This method smooths out the effects of market fluctuations and builds wealth gradually.

Moreover, holding an adequate emergency fund and cash reserves within your portfolio helps you avoid selling investments at a loss during downturns. Historical market data, from the Great Depression to the Covid-19 pandemic, provides valuable insights into how investments perform through various crises.

If navigating these strategies feels overwhelming, consider seeking financial advice. Today's financial advisors offer diverse approaches and can help tailor strategies to your needs. Don't hesitate to explore different advisors to find one that aligns with your financial goals, personal goals, and comfort level.

Investing wisely requires a blend of patience, knowledge, and strategic planning. By focusing on long-term principles and diversifying effectively, you can navigate today's market with confidence.

OUR TOP TIPS TO SAVE DURING WINTER

DROP THE TEMP AND REDUCE YOUR HEATING BILL

IN Australia's cooler climates, heating can account for nearly half of a household's energy bill. Stay warm without relying solely on your heater by layering up with cosy clothes, beanies, and blankets whenever you can. When you do need to use your heater consider dropping your temperature setting to 18 to 20C. Every degree higher than this can add around 15 per cent to your gas bill.

TAKE THE WEEKEND OFF THIS WINTER

This one is for all the homebodies out there. Pick a cold and grey weekend to put all your lockdown skills into practice for two days of self-care, on the cheap. Have a bath, read a book, binge a season, or two, cook with what's in your cupboard, and stay away from all the commercial temptations of the outside world.

SAVE THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN YOUR SUMMER AND WINTER SPEND

It's not uncommon for our social diaries to be a little quieter during winter – so make the most of this quality time with your couch by setting a serious savings goal. Here's how: look at your bank statements for the most recent summer and compare it to what you spent last winter. See a difference? That should be your savings goal.

SWAP OUT YOUR OLD HEATER FOR A MORE EFFICIENT MODEL

It might be worth changing your heating system by replacing old, inefficient gas heaters with more modern reverse-cycle air conditioning units that save money in the long run. Regularly cleaning your heater filter is essential too, to ensuring the best efficiency and performance. Only heating rooms you use is also a savings winner if your heating system allows.

PREPARE YOUR VEGGIE GARDEN

Growing your own fruit or vegetables can be great way to save money in Australia, with our (mostly) sunny climate and decent rainfall. Winter is the perfect time to design and plan your patch, planters and pots. Ask friends, family members or neighbours with green thumbs to help grow you some plants from seeds or cuttings to help kick start your patch.

INSULATE TO KEEP COSY

Drafty homes aren't just a nuisance – they can mess with your health and crank up those energy bills. But there are loads of easy and budget-friendly DIY fixes you can do. Try using door snakes to block out drafts under doors, use sealants to fill in gaps around wall vents or between floorboards, fit draught seals around windows and doors, and hang curtains or blinds to keep that cosy warmth inside. Good ceiling insulation can reduce your heating bills by up to 20 per cent too.

Helping locals reach their dreams

SINCE opening in 2002, Paul Hutchins Loans Centre has helped many people buy their own home or investment property.

We provide you with the option of many different lenders, and we match the lender to your individual needs.

Just a few of our many successful stories are below. Contact us if we can help you with your home ownership dream.

A nurse came to us looking to purchase a home, and as she had owned a home before, was not eligible for any first home-buyer grants. We had lenders who specialise in lending to health workers and professionals, and we were able to secure her a loan with a 10 per cent deposit. She did not have to pay Lenders Mortgage Insurance, and this saved her over $8000 in fees.

A young couple looking to purchase their first home had a deposit, but it was not the 20 per cent some lenders require. We were able to help them purchase their home using the Regional Home Guarantee Scheme, allowing them to purchase with just 5 per cent deposit and fees.

A medical professional was looking to purchase an investment property, and we were able to offer lenders that have specialist leading policies tailored to people working in the medical area. He was able to get a loan with a 5 per cent deposit and no Lenders Mortgage Insurance, and in this instance, saved more than $15,000.

Recently, we were able to help a couple looking to purchase land and build their first home. Under the new State Government incentives, they paid no stamp duty on the land which saved them $4400 on the land purchase fees, and they were also eligible for the $15,000 First Home Owner Grant. For a house and land cost of $540,000, they only needed to provide $31,720. In comparison, if they purchased an established home for $540,000, they would have needed to contribute $74,589.

A disability support worker was looking to purchase a home and had a Certificate (III) in her profession. She had a minimal deposit, as she had just commenced working in the last six months after finishing her studies. We were able to help her purchase a house with only a 2 per cent deposit. This was done under a Graduate Loan Program for those with a Certificate (III) or above. You also don't need to be working in the profession you have the Certificate (III) in.

Ben’s on board for Magic Breakfast

MAGIC 93.1 will sound a little different from today with the all-new Magic 93.1 Breakfast Show kicking off from 6am. After flying solo for the last few months, Magic Breakfast host Tabby Goodier is excited to introduce newcomer Ben Carpenter to the Riverland. Ben, a Collingwood supporter, has recently moved to the Riverland from Melbourne to take on the Magic Breakfast co-host role with Tabby, and says he is looking forward to the challenge and discovering all the Riverland has to offer. In other exciting news, Magic Breakfast with Tabby & Ben will now be sponsored by Harvey Norman Renmark. As a relatively new business to the region, the Harvey Norman Renmark team were looking for an opportunity to partner with a truly local entity, and when the opportunity to be the major sponsor of the Riverland’s number one breakfast radio show presented itself, they jumped at the chance. The local Harvey Norman Renmark franchisees recognise the importance of living local and the importance of being involved in live and local radio, engaging with their target audience. They are thrilled to throw their support behind Tabby & Ben for Breakfast/ Be listening to Magic Breakfast with Tabby and Ben, weekdays from 6am, thanks to Harvey Norman Renmark.

Riverlanders part of SALA in the Mallee

BRIDGET O'DRISCOLL

RIVERLAND artists Jacqui Mason and Jo Greathead are among participants of an evolving gallery being held in Pinnaroo during the South Australian Living Artists Festival (SALA). Art from around the Mallee and Riverland will be featured in the Tolhurst building at the Eastern end of the main street, and few doors down in the Pinnaroo Hotel dining room and pool room. Titled ‘SALA in the Mallee: A Collaborative (and evolving) Exhibition’ the exhibit’s official display window will be from 17 to 27 August. Organiser Elise Kennedy said an open house event was being planned for the end of the month. “On 23 August we’re going to open up the gallery in the Tolhurst building from, 5pm to 8pm,” Mrs Kennedy said. “It’s free and open to all and we’ll have some refreshments and a space for chats, so please feel welcome to come along and say hi. “We’re building on last year’s pilot, with our aim to bring together artists who currently, or at some point in time, have called Pinnaroo and surrounds their home. “This year’s exhibition is officially titled ‘Collaborative’ and as we’re still getting some things organised, and it’s also ever evolving.” Other artists involved in the event include, Rosita Lloyd, Ruth Chesters, Jesse Richardson, Elise Kennedy and Tyrone Richardson. “Tyrone has been a constant in the Pinnaroo art community for a lot of years, and has been a key figure in helping me get the SALA display going both last year and this year,” Mrs Kennedy said.

When I never understood why

AT certain times when you're a kid, the whole world can seem a mystery. You're going along nicely then something unexpected happens, punctuating your previously innocent, contented existence.

I'd somewhat mastered that 5280 feet was in a mile, and three feet in a yard. The teacher's yard stick, sometimes used for variable purposes, gave the class a constant visual of a yard length.

But someone, somewhere, suddenly decided instead that there'll be 100cm in a metre and 1000m in a kilometre. Bewildering at the least.

To make it worse, while we're all grappling with this stuff, especially our Mums and Dads, we discover that the Americans weren't changing over.

By the way, good on netball for being beligerent: three feet would stay three feet.

But if that uprooting wasn't enough, let's shake it up a bit more. Soon after, it wasn't 103 Fahrenheit in the middle of apricot season, it was only 39 degrees Celsius. Ah, that felt a lot cooler.

Anyway, the Americans didn't do that either and now I'm mad at them.

There were piles of dumbfounding things growing up.

I couldn't understand why the girls in our house had to do the dishes. That involved a lot of objecting.

I never discovered why Loxton had two football teams when it wasn't even the biggest Riverland town. That's a big sacrifice and big contribution.

Why did town kids walk to the drive-in? I felt sorry for them, heading home with blankets wrapped around them late at night once the movie had finished. Where were their parents? How far did they walk?

The Trimper sisters had great voices, but choosing to sing "The things that you're liable to read in the Bible, ain't necessarily so" at the church concert left a child's mind wondering.

Talking about church, why did our pastor accept a call to another congregation? We liked him and I thought he liked us.

Elvis Presley had everything – good looks, fame and adulation, unthinkable wealth, and an angel-sent voice – so why the addiction to drugs? I knew he'd be fine if he just came and stayed with us on the block for a while.

After all that drudgery, some kids didn't get paid by their parents for cutting apricots and that seemed unjust. Fair enough, some families went on big holidays instead, but my preference was for the money.

Soon, months after the world watched the astronauts land on the moon, we heard on the news that lots of Americans thought the landing was just filmed on a movie set. Talk about being on another planet.

Just as I was at peace with gentle-on-my-mind Cat Stevens, Bread, and Simon and Garfunkel, all those peaceful sensibilities were confronted by AC/DC, Black Sabbath, and Led Zeppelin. I actually knew some high school kids who paid money for that.

The longer I waited for Amscol Ice Cream to come back, the more it dawned that it wasn't, and Peters' wasn't even close. Why did good things disappear?

But of all the things that perplexed a young mind, the mystery of the river, our mighty River Murray, lasted the longest.

Do whirlpools actually suck you under? Should we wait longer than half an hour after eating before we go in? Does an ice block count?

How deep is it in the middle and are there dead bodies in there? Could we swim ashore in the middle of a flood?

Sometimes I'm tempted to wonder about how little difference there is between the mind of a child and a grownup. And yet, thankfully, that ability to wonder is one of life's priceless gifts.

Chinese exports driving almond demand

RIVERLAND almond producers are among those economically benefitting from increased overseas exports into China.

Australian almond exports remain on record pace after the first four months of the 2024-25 selling season.

The Almond Board of Australia's (ABA) latest monthly Position Report revealed overall almond sales are up by more than 10 per cent compared to the same time last season, while exports are up by over 14 per cent.

Sales into China have been the major factor. Improved quality and greater availability after what appears to be a record-sized crop has led to increased buyer activity and increased volumes.

Sales compared to last year have more than doubled and remain the engine room of the almond marketing campaign.

Pricing has returned to far more sustainable levels when combined with the lower exchange rate with the US dollar.

Indian sales have been subdued in comparison but remain virtually on par with last year's record volumes, while additional marketing focus on Asia Pacific countries has resulted in increased activity.

For the first time the industry has sold almost 50,000 tonnes in the first four months and is well placed to deliver significantly improved returns to growers.

The pre-season crop estimate for the season was 164,700 tonnes. The ABA is due to announce the season's actual intake next month.

Stronger powers to ensure fair water use

A SENIOR government figure says ensuring water resources are used sustainably across the Murray-Darling Basin, including in the Riverland, is a key priority.

Inspector-General of Water Compliance (IGWC) Troy Grant earlier this month outlined expectations for fair water use across the Murray-Darling Basin.

Mr Grant said sustainable diversion limit compliance assessments for the 2022-23 water year failed to produce "a complete picture".

"I'm checking Basin states are only taking an agreed, environmentally sustainable amount of water from the system to maintain a healthy Basin for all users across agriculture, the environment, First Nations and communities," Mr Grant said.

"Yes, all reported jurisdictions were compliant but I'm not satisfied it's conclusive.

"NSW couldn't be assessed due to unaccredited water resource plans (WRPs).

"Mechanisms like the SDL assessment can't be enforced without WRPs and are central to a successful Basin Plan."

NSW currently operates under a bilateral agreement allowing its SDL models to change yearly, however this will be prohibited when WRPs are in place.

"There were zero WRPs in NSW when I called this out in 2022 and I'm pleased the state is on the right track to uphold its share of water compliance, with 16 of 20 WRPs now accredited and operational," Mr Grant said.

"This means the missing piece of the Basin-wide picture in SDL compliance will start coming to light in my next assessment. Make no mistake, I will hold jurisdictions to account."

The SDL compliance assessment can be read by visiting the website (www.igwc.gov.au).

Awards recognise student’s ideas in solving local problems

SEBASTIAN CALDERON

CREATING viable solutions and challenging students to think outside the box was one of many key elements included in a Riverland school awards program. Aimed to contribute and enrich communities with new ideas to solve community problems, the IGNITE 2024 awards were run by Loxton High School, its Ignite Committee and run by Future Anything.

IGNITE week was full of learning and real-life challenges that helped students empower their intelligence by creating their own businesses. Each team developed their own projects and presented them to a community mentors panel, which provided constructive feedback, prior to presenting to judges of the committee. Monday 4 July saw the final prize ceremony held in which the winners from the Pitch and Showcase were announced:

- ❑ Showcase People’s Choice Award: Outback Coverage
- ❑ Showcase Runner Up: Connect 3
- ❑ Showcase Winner Award: How Ya Feeling
- ❑ Pitch Encouragement Award: Earth House and Wise Wipes
- ❑ Pitch Runner Up: AI Umpire
- ❑ Pitch Winner Award: Vintfeed
- ❑ Most Viable Community Change: Generations Connect

❑ Most Innovative Community Change Initiative: Limitless Lines Loxton High School business innovation teacher Trish Yandell said “Ignite was such a great success, so many innovative ideas that could really support the local community in our identified areas of agriculture, tourism, health and wellbeing, technology, and sustainability”. “Student’s personal growth over the week was amazing, and we saw some students who struggled to stay engaged in class overcome a range of barriers, including attendance issues, participation and confidence,” Ms Yandell said. Pitch Winner Award recipient Ebony Petch said “it was an amazing experience for everyone as we got to explore problems around the Riverland and create solutions to make this a better place for citizens of all ages.” “For me, I got to dive into the realm of agriculture and viticulture and a problem I found is the excess wine grapes from each vintage with taxes on methane emissions, so I thought about how I could fix both problems with one solution,’ Ms Petch said. Future Anything program manager Jarred Turner said “we have been so fortunate to work with Loxton High School”. “The students applied themselves with a very high level of creativity, teamwork and an openness to feedback; ultimately creating and pitching exciting and innovative ideas,” Mr turner said.

AC Parrott to provide our JPs with police insights

THE Riverland Justices Group are excited to have SAPOL assistant commissioner Ian Parrott as guest speaker at their next dinner meeting, to be held Wednesday 21 August, at The Precinct, on Bookpurnong Terrace, Loxton, at 6pm for a 6.30pm start.

The public are warmly welcomed to attend this meeting, as many will remember AC Parrott when he was senior SAPOL LSA here in the Riverland a few years ago.

He is currently state operations service co-ordinator for most of SA.

Riverland Justices Group chairman Bert Haslam said “we are very privileged to have AC Ian Parrott as our guest speaker, as senior members of our police force are not easy to get, especially in country SA, due to their busy work load”.

AC Parrott has enjoyed a wide variety of policing roles throughout his career, since he commenced with SAPOL in April 1987.

A list of the positions he has filled over the 37 years he has been in the force is truly commendable.

Mr Haslam urged Riverlanders to attend to hear about AC Parrott’s career, which includes being a Fellow of Governor’s Leadership Foundation program. He has also been awarded the South Australian Police Service Medal, a National Service Medal, and National Police Service Medal.

Mr Haslam said “even though this is our AGM, all positions are currently filled, so there won’t be a boring AGM as is usually the case”.

Dinner is ‘buy off the menu’ and The Precinct’s chef Clinton is renowned for his great service. The bar will also be open.

Mr Haslam also said the Justices Group quarterly dinner meetings were a good way for people new to being a JP, and those wishing to become one, to find out what is involved and to meet new people.

Members, non-members, visitors and friends are requested to RSVP to secretary Jacque by phone on 0438 839 691, or email (riverlandjusticesofthepeace@gmail.com) ASAP.

DURING: Schleins Quarries in Loxton donated the crusher dust for the area in front of the bar. The bar facility will be completed ahead of the 15 September meeting.

‘Upgrades and enthusiasm’ with 32 days to go

INDUSTRY support, course upgrades and continued enthusiasm are marking the official countdown to the 2024 Mindarie-Halidon cup meeting.

Just 32 days remain until the event, to be held at the Halidon racecourse on Sunday 15 September.

The Mindarie-Halidon Racing Club’s committee and band of volunteers have been busy doing their annual preparations for the meeting, however this year’s lead-up has also included a substantial renovation at the historic course.

The ageing bar facility has been demolished and replaced with a new $50,000 structure, jointly funded by the club and thoroughbred racing’s state body, Racing SA.

Finishing touches are being put to the structure, which will offer better and “more efficient” conditions for workers, plus an extra shade area and superior services for patrons.

“The new bar will be a welcome race-day addition and an asset for us going forward.

“But we’ve put in a lot of additional work, particularly over the past month, to make sure the course is looking its best for our meeting.”

Mr Redden said both Racing SA and industry participants had already pledged their support for the club, which was devastated by the race-day cancellation of the 2023 meeting due to a freak – and “never-to-be repeated” – on-track irrigation leak.

“Racing SA and their dedicated country racing body, Country Racing SA, have both been amazing,” Mr Redden said.

“They have supported the club incredibly well over the past year, including the final few months leading up to our 2024 meeting.

“Thankfully, the industry participants – trainers, jockeys and so on – have indicated they’re eager to return to Halidon this year to help make our meeting a success.

“I guess when you had a situation like last year, you worry a bit, so we’re grateful and relieved to know those key players are right behind us.

“The final piece in the puzzle will be the attendance of racegoers from across the Mallee, the Riverland and beyond, so we’re rolling out the red carpet and inviting them to come back again this year.

“The committee and all our members and supporters can’t wait to host this year’s meeting on 15 September. We’ve actually got a major working bee on Sunday 25 August, from 10am, with a barbecue lunch supplied, so we’re hoping to get a few workers along on that day to help move things along further.”

Despite the race-day cancellation, a bumper crowd of 2000-plus people rolled up for the 2023 meeting. Mr Redden said the best way to obtain tickets for the 2024 event was to book online via Moshtix.

Just Google ‘Moshtix’ and ‘Mindarie-Halidon races’.

“But some tickets will also be available at the gate,” Mr Redden said.

Gates open at 10am on race day and the event will feature full catering, live music, a jumping castle and the popular Fashions on the Field event.

Local faces at water resource conference

HUGH SCHUITMAKER

LOCAL mayors and a senior irrigation industry figure participated in discussions of how to approach South Australia's future water use at a major conference.

Riverland Irrigation Trust CEO Rosalie Auricht, District Council of Loxton Waikerie (DCLW) Mayor Trevor Norton, and Mid Murray Council Mayor Simone Bailey, were among local attendees at the Securing South Australia's Water Future event – hosted by the Committee for Economic Development of Australia – in Adelaide.

Ms Auricht said discussion of how to decrease reliance on River Murray water resources was a highlight.

"It provided an opportunity to hear from the State Government, public sector leaders and academia highly invested in the water space," Ms Auricht said.

"A key announcement was that SA Water has committed to cap its reliance on the River Murray at the current level.

"This means that water for future growth across the State must be found in other ways. 31GL has already been found in the Adelaide area through better management, reduced evaporation, recycling and reuse of stormwater.

"Two desalination plants are planned to be commissioned for (the) Eyre Peninsula, an area that has had increasing reliance on the River Murray for its water supply.

"Anything that reduces reliance on the River Murray, while supporting state growth, is good news for our Riverland irrigation communities."

An RDA statement on the event said "our region has been working with the SA Government on developing a business case for significant change under the Murray-Darling Basin Plan, which was acknowledged in the keynote speech".

"We look forward to the discussions we have helped to organise between SA Ministers, government agencies, and regional stakeholders," the statement read.

"It is great to see our region coming together to transform the future of water security."

Survey shows sustainability crucial for grain

DATA from a state survey has shown an increasing focus on sustainability among grain growers, including those in the Riverland.

Grain Producers SA (GPSA) last week released results of the 2023 South Australian Grain Industry Environmental Sustainability Survey.

Almost 160 grain producers across the state participated in the 2023, with 64 per cent of respondents agreeing that sustainability is a critical issue. More producers also believe that sustainability will be crucial for market access in the next five years.

GPSA chief executive officer Brad Perry said the results reflected an "ongoing shift in attitudes and actions towards sustainability within the industry".

"The findings from the survey underscore the proactive steps many South Australian grain producers are already taking to improve sustainability on their farm," Mr Perry said.

"From managing pests and weeds effectively to enhancing soil health and maximising energy use, it is clear through the findings from this survey that South Australia's grain producers are leading the way in sustainable farming practices.

"GPSA remains committed to supporting grain producers in their sustainability journey and will continue to advocate for policies and practices that enhance productivity and profitability, while enhancing the sustainability credentials of the South Australian grain industry."

Key highlights from the survey report included:

- ❑ 66 per cent of respondents are getting their sustainability information from agronomists (a significant increase from 31 per cent in 2022).
- ❑ 93 per cent have taken some form of action on environmental sustainability.
- ❑ Those who feel that climate variability has impacted on their property or farming practices rose by 7 per cent and those who don't feel the changing climate is having an effect dropped from 45 per cent in 2022, to 37 per cent in 2023.

- ❑ Those that believe access to genetically modified (GM) crops is important in achieving sustainability increased to 47 per cent, with 24 per cent disagreeing.
- ❑ 20 per cent agree that carbon farming is an important opportunity.
- ❑ 50 per cent reported using weather station networks to plan and manage applications, a significant increase over the 17 per cent who reported using weather station networks in 2022.
- ❑ 54 per cent of respondents reported actions to improve nutrition efficiency.
- ❑ 73 per cent are actively managing wind and soil erosion.

Sally’s equine adventure entertains WAB ladies

HEATHER EVERINGHAM

IN 2022 Sally Black and Les Webb sold their home at Paringa and took to the road with their caravan and two dogs. They had registered their resumes with Aussie House Sitters and had 18 months to fill before their new home at Riverside Renmark was completed. Sally’s considerable experience with horses and cattle gave them broader options.

After visiting Ouyen and Bendigo their first ‘sit’ was at Seymour, north of Melbourne, a beautiful area of trees, hills and wildlife. A stone chateau-style house was their home for six weeks and they were responsible for two horses, sheep, cattle, a cat and a dog. On Sunday mornings they were awakened to an artillery serenade from nearby Puckapunyal Army Camp. They were assured the cows in calf would not be giving birth during their stay, however 10 of 11 pregnant cows dropped their calves.

The next ‘sit’ was a 40-acre property in Bright for three wet weeks where they lived in their van and had to feed two horses, cows, calves and a three-legged dog. The livestock was fed on bread and products from the local bakery and it was a daily duty to feed the rosellas and magpies. There was an opportunity to visit family on the ski slopes of Falls Creek and catch up with friends in the Kiewa Valley. A wet visit was made to Corryong, which has a yearly Man from Snowy River Bush Festival and hosts many regular horse events.

A five-month ‘sit’ was made at Metung, living in a three-room cottage overlooking Lake King. Idyllic views in every direction took in seaside, grazing lands, valleys and mountains. Their charges were six horses, cows and sheep. Sally’s favourites were Tiny, a 24-year-old Clydesdale, and a 34-year-old toothless moulting pony named Zeke.

Shepparton was a four-week ‘sit’ looking after a fat pony named Lolly. Health issues necessitated a return to SA and a five-week stay in Mount Pleasant in an old converted dairy, caring for two dogs, one cat, a 25-year-old horse named Arthur and 25 named sheep. Deer were a consistent problem as they came at nightfall to raid gardens and orchards.

The next ‘sit’ for two weeks at Aldinga Beach was different, caring for 22 exotic colourful birds that lived in the sitting room and talked all night. There was dismay when one escaped and tremendous relief when it returned the next day.

The last ‘sit’ was for six weeks in a new home in Nuriootpa, caring for a schnauzer named Herman. All ‘sits’ came with their own personalised care instructions and Herman’s comprised eight pages of highly detailed care.

Following Sally’s talk the AGM was held and office bearers elected are Heather Everingham (president), Jenny Curtis (vice-president), Sally Black/Jocie Cooper (secretary) Ruth Patton (treasurer), Di Scheiner (raffles) and Elaine Leedham (gifts). The WAB state theme for 2024/25 is Life is for Living, project is Operations Flinders for Girls and country of study is Egypt.

Next meeting is on Tuesday 20 August, at 10am, in the home of Jocie Cooper, in Renmark.

Australian filmmaker Danielle McAlpine Johnson is seeking 1000 rural women to complete a survey as part of the new Australian documentary, Rural Daughters. PHOTOS: supplied

Australian documentary seeks 1000 rural women

THE voices of Riverland women are being sought for a new documentary on Australia’s rural, regional, and remote communities.

Rural Daughters, a feature-length documentary by CheekyMac Productions, will follow the personal journeys of Australian rural women in their efforts to overcome barriers, effect change, and live a successful, purpose-driven life in the regions.

In addition to their stories, a nation-wide 1000 Rural Women Survey has been developed to capture the experiences of rural women on a broad range of topics from national disasters, health and domestic violence, societal attitudes, racial prejudice, tall poppy syndrome, community lie, leadership, and female role models.

The documentary and survey were born from producer, director, and writer Dannielle McAlpine Johnson, who is from Gippsland, Victoria.

Ms AcAlpine Johnson said she aims to garner more than 1000 survey responses to provide a statistical snapshot of rural women.

“Surveying 1000 rural women is a bold target, but we hope women take this opportunity to tell us about their lives and be a part of a collective voice in the Rural Daughters story,” she said.

“These women are the backbone of rural Australia and we are putting our heart and soul into telling their stories — how they overcome adversity, find purpose, break limitations and lead in their communities in the most unique and innovative ways.”

Commissioned by the Community Enterprise Foundation, the survey has been developed by Federation University’s Collaborative Evaluation and Research Centre together with CheekyMac Productions — both organisations led by rural women.

“Our involvement in this documentary is an opportunity to showcase that a regionally based university can make a difference with regional communities and, in particular, advocate for rural women on issues that matter,” CERC professor Joanne Porter said.

The documentary and survey results are expected to be used to inform policy and develop educational resources in Australian schools.

The survey is available online between August and September at (www.cheeky-mac.com/rural-daughters).

Flinders works to grow the regional allied health workforce

THE Flinders University Caring Futures Institute is looking to uncover what support programs are needed to keep people living and working in rural allied health positions in areas such as the Riverland.

The team will survey regional physios, occupational therapists, speech pathologists and other allied health professionals about how to attract them to the regions, then support them to stay.

“There is a pressing need for more allied health professionals in rural and remote Australia and this will only worsen with our ageing population and an expanding NDIS that allied health professionals pay a key role in,” Rural Allied Health in the College of Nursing and Health Sciences academic lead Allison Dymmott said.

“It costs a lot of money to keep recruiting people to these positions and even once attracted, many people only stay for one to two years and leave.

“What is needed is support programs for career progression, alongside professional and personal support that may prevent people from feeling isolated while living and working in rural communities.

“Our survey is looking to determine what these programs should look like so they can be as effective as possible.”

The online questionnaire is available now, taking around 15 minutes to complete and participants will have the opportunity to enter a draw to win a $250 voucher.

The team is inviting all allied health professionals, supervisors and managers across Australia to take part, from both rural and remote settings.

“We’re hoping to hear from as many people as people, from those who have worked in remote settings to those who may have never ever considered it, all feedback will help us understand how best to assist our regional allied health workforce,” Dr Dymmott said.

The project builds upon Flinders University’s years-long evaluation of the South Australian government’s Allied Health Rural Generalist Pathway, a post graduate work integrated education program designed to enhance early career allied health professionals’ clinical capabilities, and improve service delivery in regional settings.

“Our research demonstrates that with the right support and training, allied health professionals can significantly impact the quality of care in regional and rural communities,” Dr Dymmott said.

“With a relatively small investment, the program can achieve substantial returns in terms of workforce stability and service quality in rural areas as it not only supports individual career development, but also strengthens the entire health service network.

“However, our analysis also identified areas in need of improvement, including participants’ work-life balance and in some cases a lack of managerial support to complete the training.

“This highlights the program must continue to adapt to ensure the regions can attract and retain an allied health workforce and the best way to do that is to listen to the participants themselves.”

Zoetis supports regional mental health through Beyond Blue

WITH a goal of $100,000, Zoetis seeks to raise funds to support the mental health of the Riverland and wider regional South Australian communities.

Partnered with Beyond Blue and donating $5 from each sale of the company’s livestock, pig, and poultry vaccines and drenches, Zoetis hopes to raise $100,000 through the initiative.

“Our partnership with Beyond Blue is more than just financial support,” Zoetis senior vice president Lance Williams said.

“It’s about fostering a culture of hope and resilience, ensuring those facing mental health challenges know they are not alone and that help is available.”

More than 3.4 million people in Australia struggle with anxiety and depression, with Australians living in rural and remote areas disproportionately affected.

A recent study from the National Farmers Federation revealed nearly a third of farmers have reported a decline in their mental health, citing weather-related disasters, financial stress, and inflation and cost pressures as top contributors.

“Country people are resilient and tough, but the many challenges we face can take a toll on our mental health,” Beyond Blue board member Derek Schoen said.

“The repeated extreme weather events we’ve seen at the start of this year have added to these stresses. I would encourage people to not lose hope and to seek support early.”

Mr Williams said the journey to mental health is a collective effort that relies on a foundation of compassion, understanding, and support.

“Every act of kindness, no matter how seemingly small, carries immense significance,” he said.

“Whether it’s a simple check-in with a neighbour, a supportive conversation with a friend, or a compassionate gesture towards a work colleague, these actions contribute to building a community where mental health is prioritised and stigma is dismantled.

“It’s crucial to remember that this journey doesn’t have to be a lonely one. By fostering connections and creating safe spaces for open dialogue, we can collectively normalise conversations about mental health and encourage help-seeking behaviour.

“It’s about recognising that each person’s experience is unique and valid, and that seeking support is a sign of strength, not weakness.”

The Zoetis initiative will run to 31 October.

“The money raised goes directly to the Beyond Blue Support Service to continue helping people living in remote areas,” Mr Williams said.

“To date, thanks to Zoetis’s donation, over 15,500 people have been able to get the support they need through the service. Together we have made strong progress in supporting the mental health and wellbeing of those who live in rural Australia, and we are passionate about helping again this year.”

For more information on the Zoetis initiative, visit the website: (www.zoetis.com.au).

A Hart Lagoon Wetland overview. PHOTOS: supplied

Hart Lagoon from the walking trail.

Environmental benefits to be provided by new wetland

FOLLOWING its revitalisation, a major local wetland will be available for all Riverlanders and visitors to the region.

Under the National Water Grid Fund’s Connections Funding Pathway, the Waikerie Hart Lagoon Wetland will officially reopen 20 August, at 1.30pm, with an event aimed to celebrate everyone involved in the project.

District Council of Loxton Waikerie chief executive officer David Beaton said “The new wetland rehabilitates the old Waikerie effluent ponds and creates a significant environmental asset for the community”.

The new wetland system will receive and treat stormwater runoff from surrounding areas, generating significant environmental benefits and providing the community with new walking trails, bird watching in the bird hide, a nature play area, a new shelter and a board walk.

“The treatment of the water via the wetland and filtration system will mean the stormwater can be converted to Class A water for safe irrigation along the riverfront,” Mr Beaton said.

Other important benefits include:

- ❑ Improved water quality
- ❑ Reduced impact of stormwater on local waterways and ecosystems.
- ❑ Promotion of sustainable water use practices.

- ❑ Local water use for irrigation, firefighting and industrial processes.
- ❑ Reduced demand for potable water.
- ❑ Reduced risk of flooding and erosion.
- ❑ Community protection from the impact of storms and floods.

Neilly Group engineering team at the commissioning of the wetland.

Water storage tanks located at the riverfront. With a capacity of 600 kilolitres. Water treated in the wetland will end up within the tanks for final filtration and UV treatment, prior to its reuse for irrigation and other purposes.

Riverlanders urged to roll up their flanno sleeves to support farming families

FARM angels are calling on Riverlanders to don their best flannelette shirt this August and raise funds for farming families in need.

The Farm Angels fundraiser Flanno for a Farmer will support Australian farmers who have faced natural disaster, mental health struggles, and rising production costs. Funds will go towards essential emotional support, financial assistance, food hampers, care packs, and personalised support.

Farm Angels founder Natasha Johnston said farmers “work tirelessly to put food on our tables, but they often struggle silently with immense challenges, both physically and mentally”.

“By supporting Flanno for a Farmer, Australians have the chance to show their appreciation and give back to farmers in their time of need.”

The frequency and severity of natural disasters, along with other crises and challenges, mean many farmers are at risk of losing their farms, or even their lives.

Statistics show that:

- ❑ Nearly half of Australian farmers have felt depressed.

- ❑ Almost two-thirds of Australian farmers experience anxiety.
- ❑ Close to half of Australian farmers have had thoughts of self-harm or suicide.
- ❑ Close to one-third have attempted self-harm or suicide.
- ❑ One farmer completes suicide every 10 days — this is 59 per cent higher than the rate among non-farmers.

“We need Australians to get their friends, family and workmates together, wear a flanno and raise money to help Farm Angels continue its great work,” Ms Johnston said.

“Every cent raised will enable vital outreach services to farming communities and will ultimately help save lives. Farmers put food on our tables and clothes on our backs – now it’s our turn to give them a hand.”

Flanno for a Farmer is set for Friday 23 August, however, Farm Angels are encouraging Riverlanders to wear a flanno anytime throughout the month.

Riverland Orchid Society Winter Orchid Show report

THE Riverland Orchid Society held its Winter Show recently in the Barmera Primary School. Despite the cold and frosty conditions there was quite a variety of flowering orchids on display. The orchid judges from Adelaide were pleased with the quantity and quality of the exhibits when judging on Friday night. The Grand Champion went to Barmera grower Glenys Matthews for her paphiopedilum Juliet, which was Champion Paphiopedilum. Glenys was also successful with her cymbidiums. Her cym. Maluka 'Pink Baby' was Champion Cymbidium 60-90mm, while her cym. Sarah Jean 'Karen' achieved Champion Cymbidium under 60mm. Reserve Champion and Champion Australian Native went to dendrobium Hilda Poxon, grown by Stephen and Marianne Lynch. They also received Champion

Orchid – Other Genera for their mounted den. Amphion Tisiphone. Champion Laeliinae was given to epidendrum secundum – grown by Trevor Mayfield of Berri – which was also granted Champion Orchid Species. Champion Oncidiinae went to whm. Olympia 'Jacqui', also grown by Trevor Mayfield. Champion Cymbidium Specimen accolades went to cym. Autumn Elf 'Nol', grown by Les

Cain of Berri. Many other exhibitors received prize cards of firsts and seconds for their entries, so it was quite a successful show for all members. Potting and mounting demonstrations were carried out during both days, and the trading table was well patronised. A raffle was conducted with three orchids as prizes. First prize was won by Lynette Harvey. Second prize was won by

Rosemary Gower and third prize was won by Grace Stidiford. Coming up is the Annual Orchid Spectacular in the Berri Town Hall, on Saturday 31 August, from 9.30am to 4pm, and on Sunday 1 September, from 9.30am to 3pm. There will be more beautiful orchids to see and buy, potting demonstrations and full catering. - supplied

Last chance for Riverland youth to have their say

MISSION Australia is calling on Riverland youth to have their say in the Youth Survey 2024 before it closes on 16 August. Annually collecting responses from young people between the ages of 15 and 19 nation-wide, the survey will explore the thoughts, personal concerns, and what young Australians see as important. Mission Australia SA state director Sue Budalich said young people must be listened to and their concerns taken seriously. "In the 2023 Youth Survey, many South Australian young people told us that they've experienced discrimination or unfair treatment," Ms Budalich said. "Young people should be able to freely express themselves and Mission Australia strives to ensure our services are safe and supportive spaces for everyone. The results of the survey are published in November and shared with schools, across the non-profit sector and with all levels of government, to influence and inform policies, services and programs that support and affect young people. In 2023, nearly 1700 young people in South Australia completed the survey, naming the environment (44 per cent), equity and discrimination (33 per cent), and the economy and financial matters (32 per cent) as the issues they believe are most important in Australia. The survey includes questions on mental health and wellbeing, sources of support and community connections, housing and financial situation, climate change, and personal concerns such as body image, bullying, discrimination and stress. Additional focus areas for 2024 are social media use, loneliness and opinions relating to alcohol and drugs. To take part in the survey, visit the website (www.missionaustralia.com.au/youthsurvey).

Probus hears Carol’s mural journey

WAIKERIE and District Probus ladies enjoyed a lunch meeting at the Waikerie Community Club on 23 July.

Carole Walker, Rivmics dance teacher for 44 years and well-known Waikerie identity, was the first guest speaker. Carole explained how seeing the stunning fire station mural at Keith, while travelling, inspired her to believe something similar and as effective could be created in Waikerie.

The local CFS were willing initially. Talented artist Jarrod Loxton was interested. The next step was arranging funding, which turned out to be a long process. Carole approached Rotary for assistance, as council funding is given to incorporated bodies. Rotary were on-board and gave financial assistance too.

After the full funding was finally available, the CFS were approached again as the site of the artwork, but declined. Sue Miller’s wall, on O’Loughlin Street, became the alternative and more visible site. Jarrod designed the artwork, focusing on Waikerie’s significance as a gateway to the Riverland, significant people, and emblems.

Jarrod is based in the Riverland and became a full-time artist in 2023. He is sponsored by Wattyl Paints and projects in Waikerie include the skate park, cliff top walk and tennis court wall. Other examples of his work can be appreciated on his website.

Carole reiterated that you can’t be in a hurry to organise such a venture. When filling in forms for funding have all the details ready beforehand, know the public benefit and include letters of support, costings, and voluntary time available. Conversations with many people viewing the art works has proven that the long haul was worthwhile.

Pastor Julian Bayha, the second guest speaker, was unable to attend through ill health and will be re-booked. Member Ros Simpfendorfer prepared an engaging series of four quizzes: general knowledge, close-up picture identification, what is the next song line, and don’t be tricked logical thinking questions. The small group task was very engaging and slightly competitive. There was even a bit of a singalong when the song quiz answers were revealed.

The special morning tea and lunch were a great success. The club’s next meeting will be back at the Waikerie Bowling Club, on 27 August, at 10am, with Hayley Collins from the Community Sports Centre speaking, followed by Karen Richardson running a sketching exercise making greeting cards. Karen’s previous face-drawing exercise was extremely enjoyable and the new task promises to be as entertaining and worthwhile.

Guests welcome. Pat on 0419 858437, or Chris on 0428 412495, can be contacted for more details.

Boost to local tourism products and experiences

OPERATORS of Riverland environmental tourism businesses can apply for an ongoing funding program.

The $2m allocation is part of the State government’s Experience Nature Tourism Fund.

Created to support new nature-based tourism within the region, the funding initiative is set to deliver $500,000 each year, over four financial years.

A total of 33 innovative experiences and nature tourism products have been supported to date, increasing business presence and attracting a growing number of domestic and international visitors.

Minister for Tourism Zoe Bettison said “We want to share our state’s incredible natural landscapes, rich cultural history and stunning wildlife with domestic and international travellers in a responsible and sustainable way.”

Experiences or products need to be near a national park, reserve, wilderness protection area or marine park.

“This is a great

opportunity for operators wanting to enhance or develop a nature-based tourism offering that will deliver an experience in our natural environment” Ms Bettison said.

Under the previous two rounds, almost $1.6m was awarded to 33 projects. This included accommodation refurbishments, marketing support and advertising or the purchase of equipment for tours and experiences including walking, e-bikes, wellness and photography.

“As we continue to work to grow visitor numbers, I encourage South Australian tourism businesses to consider an application to the Experience Nature Tourism Fund” Ms Bettison Said.

Round three of the South Australian Tourism Commission’s Experience Nature Tourism Fund closes on Friday 16 August.

Applications can be made by the website (www.tourism.sa.gov.au/support/grants-and-funding/experience-nature-tourism-fund).

Exciting mix of participants in leadership program

REGIONAL Development Australia Murraylands and Riverland (RDAMR) has selected 21 candidates to take part in its 2024 Regional Leadership Development Program.

RDAMR project manager, Mandy Tennant, said the “vibrant mix” of participants come from health, community and church groups, local councils, small and family businesses, and the environment and sustainability sectors.

The program began recently with a two-day retreat at the Berri Hotel that was officially opened with a Welcome to Country by Riverland Aboriginal elder Sheryl Giles.

Ms Tennant said Ms Giles set a respectful and inclusive tone for the retreat with her authenticity during her welcoming ceremony.

Aurora Meliora, LeadersHP, and the Australian Rural Leadership Foundation have also partnered with RDAMR to present the training.

“Meeting for the first time, the participants shared stories, experiences, and aspirations, creating an atmosphere of genuine connection,” Ms Tennant said.

Loxton Waikerie councillor and Loxton Chamber of Commerce business and events manager, Sonya Altschwager and Our Town Berri community steward, Julie Ahrens spoke about their leadership experiences during the first day of the workshop.

“They delivered an inspirational talk on leadership, highlighting its transformative power in our communities,” Ms Tennant said.

During the evening dinner, past participants shared their journeys and lessons learned, showcasing the impact of the program.

Dara Frankel from the Department of Primary Industries and Regions SA emphasised the value of community-driven leadership.

“We’d like to thank all the participants for creating a supportive space where everyone felt valued and inspired to grow both personally and professionally,” Ms Tennant said.

“We look forward to the unique connections forming over the eight-day program (rolled out over six months) as we foster the next generation of leaders.”

10 years of certainty for new South Australian construction code

NO further changes to the new National Construction Code (NCC), which includes homes in the Riverland, were among announcements made by the State Government last week.

Following the implementation of new construction standards in South Australia, homebuilders raised concerns about future changes to the NCC that could impact business.

The State Government has committed to maintaining the new standards of the NCC for the next 10 years, aiming to provide a long-term certainty to the industry.

From 1 October, all newly built homes in South Australia need to be seven-star energy efficient and the State Government has worked closely with the housing and construction industry to formulate an effective pathway to ease the transition into the new NCC liveability and accessibility regulations.

Minister for Housing and Urban Development Nick Champion said “the changes to the NCC seek to deliver better living standards to South Australians, with the government acknowledging the need for greener, more accessible homes”.

“As a government, we also realise this is a big change for the building and construction sector, so I have worked closely with industry associations to develop a range of concessions to help ease into the new regulations,” Mr Champion said. The new NCC standards were due to commence nationwide in May 2023, but recognising the current pressures of the industry, including market capacity, supply chain disruptions and workforce shortages, the commencement date was updated to 1 October.

Different housing affordability provisions have been made that include:

- Any development application for a house or apartment that has been lodged prior to 1 October will be considered under NCC 2019.
- Allotments having a frontage of less than, or equal to 10m, or irregular allotments with an area of less than 300m will not be required to comply with Liveable Housing Design provisions.
- An exemption from the Liveable Housing Designs provisions for small buildings less than, or equal to, 60m that are built offsite.

- Workers and tourist accommodation will continue to operate under the energy efficiency provisions of NCC 2019.
- An exemption from installing a toilet on the entry level where there are no habitable rooms located on that level.
- Applications for building rules consent submitted prior to 1 January 2027, on allotments for which a development application for land division had been lodged prior to 1 January 2024 can be considered under NCC 2019.
- A concession on the energy efficiency requirements for lightweight and transportable homes

Greater consideration will be given to accessible designs that allow for South Australians with mobility limitations to transition through life stages in their own homes.

There will be a scheduled review of these regulations after 18 months to ensure that the proper transition methods from NCC 2019 to NCC 2022 are being carried out.

Last hoorah for single-use plastics

BUSINESSES across the Riverland are being encouraged to get themselves ready for the next stage of South Australia’s single-use plastic ban.

Businesses are required to move towards greener alternatives this month and use up existing stock of soon-to-be banned items.

Certified ‘bioplastic’ food and beverage containers will be allowed with certified compostable bags.

Food scraps will have to be put in the green bin, which will be processed into after compost used by SA farmers, growers and the local wine industry.

South Australia has been addressing the real impact associated with single-use plastics and numerous harmful plastic products, being the first state in Australia to implement a ban.

SA now has the largest number of banned items since the current single-use plastic ban was initiated in 2021.

Banned items include:

- Plastic barrier bags for fruit, vegetables, nuts and confectionery.
- Thick plastic bags including supermarket or boutique-style plastic bags and singlet-style takeaway bags.
- Single-use plastic hot and cold beverage containers (including coffee cups) and their lids, including single-use plastic food containers for ready-to-eat takeaway food.
- Expanded polystyrene (EPS) consumer food and beverage containers.
- EPS trays.
- Plastic food bag tags, and plastic confetti and plastic balloon sticks/ties.

The Plastic Free SA Program will deliver free support to local businesses.

Waikerie waltz past depleted Demons

LACHLAN DAND

IN its final home game of the 2024 season, Waikerie gave its supporters plenty to cheer about on the back of a 98-point thumping of Berri in Saturday afternoon's RFL A grade clash.

Waikerie hit the ground running from the opening bounce, taking a four-goal lead in to the opening change.

Waikerie's dominance continued throughout the second quarter with a further three goals unanswered, extending the lead to a commanding 45-point margin.

The Demons hit back during stages of the third quarter, extending their goal tally to three, but the Magpies were able to up the ante, with the margin floating beyond 10 goals.

Midfielder Ben Smith was a class above for the Magpies in an impressive midfield performance, combining well with Harry Glacken and Tasman Wood, who each hit the scoreboard.

Waikerie's onslaught continued in the final quarter with a further seven goals to one, as an even spread of players contributed to the 20-goal total amassed.

Defender turned forward Steven Braun proved a task too tall for a depleted Berri outfit, finishing with three majors alongside Mitch Hahn, Kade Hilton, and fellow key forward Byron Sumner.

Captain Stephen Hausler finished with two goals alongside Glacken, while Lachlan Nitschke made an impactful return to the A grade line-up.

Under significant pressure throughout the day, Brad Rosenzweig played an important defensive role for the Demons, working well with youngster Archie Holtham.

Rory Moroney was able to hit the scoreboard for Berri, as were Peter Safralidis and Martin Sumner, with Patrick Minchella also playing an important role through midfield in a valiant effort.

Berri came into the clash particularly depleted, with several players suffering season ending injuries the previous week against Renmark.

The win all but locks in third spot for Waikerie ahead of its final home and away match against Loxton North at Panther Park this Saturday.

The Magpies will face off against Loxton in an elimination final the following Sunday, and will want to enter the match with winning form.

Berri completes its season this weekend in a home fixture against Loxton, hoping to secure its third win of the season.

Riverlanders ready for the start line:

The start line is officially in sight for the under 12s South Australian Cross-Country team, ahead of a Victorian carnival beginning next week.

Riverlanders competing in the event are Chloe Golding (Waikerie Primary School), Zara Garner (Ramco Primary School), and Mollie Thiele (Loxton Primary School).

Coached by Richard Coote, and managed by Melanie Cant, the championships will be held at the Yarra Glen Racecourse in outer Melbourne.

Rovers send competition a warning sign

LACHLAN DAND

WITH just one round remaining in the Riverland Football League’s home and away season, Renmark is emerging as the competition’s premiership favourite following a 104-point trouncing of Loxton in Saturday afternoon’s A grade contest.

Looking to move one step closer to securing the minor premiership, the Rovers kicked four opening quarter goals following a cagey beginning.

However, after Jesse Will’s goal trimmed the margin to nine points at the mid-way point of the first term, Renmark piled on 10 majors in a row.

Small forward Ajay Hem made the most of his opportunities with two second quarter goals, benefitting from the service of Jaryd Rowe, Josh Vater, and Dan Woolford through the middle of the ground.

Following a scoreless second quarter by Loxton, Renmark leapt out to a 54-point lead, booting five goals before the half.

Tim Woolford was the beneficiary of strong work by the Rovers as his two goals continued the onslaught in the third term, while Matt Woolford continued to find the ball, as the lead inflated to 73 points.

Loxton finally broke its goal-scoring drought in the third quarter, with back-to-back majors from Jesse Will and Ross Romeo, yet Renmark responded with seven goals unanswered.

Star forward Nick Gillard made a scoreboard impact throughout the second half, finishing with three goals, while late inclusion Matt Smith also booted two in the final quarter.

Ruckman Zach Gartery provided the Rovers mid-field first use throughout the entirety of the day, while young forward Rhett Perry stood tall, and finished with three majors.

In a disappointing afternoon for the Tigers, Luke Salmon fought hard in defence, helping Loxton repel against several attacks alongside Stuart Green.

Midfield duo Jacob Evans and Rogan Kennedy fought to win a bulk of contested ball across the afternoon, while Harley Campbell created a presence alongside coach Luke Harder.

The result ends Loxton’s hunt for a third-placed finish ahead of its final round clash against Berri this weekend at RFL HQ, while Renmark remains at the kennel for a qualifying final preview against Barmera-Monash.

On a disappointing note for Renmark, key forward Alex Haynes appeared to have injured his shoulder in the opening minutes of the match, so Rovers fans will be sweating on his availability ahead of their looming finals campaign.

Nathan Zunic reaches out for a strong mark on his way to two goals for the day.

Loxton captain Jesse Will kicked two of his side’s three goals in the heavy defeat.

Swans cause a surprise following no show

ON the back of a disappointing forfeit the previous week against Brown’s Well, Paringa stunned the MVFNL with a shock victory over Ramco on Saturday afternoon.

Despite trailing at the quarter time break, the Swans got the jump on the Roosters in the second term, holding their opponents scoreless, and taking an 11-point advantage in the process.

However, the Roosters responded in significant fashion throughout the third quarter with three goals of their own to cut the lead to three points at the final break.

The final quarter saw Ramco unable to convert its opportunities, booting just one goal from five scoring opportunities, ultimately falling by 11 points.

Adren Herrador and Brock Morey caused havoc up forward for Paringa with three apiece, while Isaac Frahn and skipper Joel Watson each found the foot-ball with ease.

The result sees Ramco’s season come to a grinding halt, with the Roosters now sitting two games out of the top four with just one match remaining.

Elsewhere, Wunkar will officially return to finals football in season 2024 following a 107-point rout of Sedan-Cambrai.

The Bulldogs stunned the reigning premiers with a scintillating opening half, taking a 53-point advantage into the half time interval.

Wunkar continued its assault throughout the third quarter, piling on a further six majors, and keeping the Magpies scoreless in the process.

Sedan-Cambrai did get something out of the fixture in the final quarter, recording goals through both Jacob Grieger and Ben Burgemeister.

Kyle Worsfold stunned in attack for the Bulldogs with four majors, while Jack Obst also made a scoreboard impact with three majors on an afternoon where Wunkar had 11 individual goalkickers.

The fixture was Sedan-

Cambrai’s final one of the season, with the reigning premiers scheduled for the bye in round 17 this weekend.

Meanwhile, BSR continued its winning ways with a 21-point victory over Brown’s Well, further enhancing its premiership credentials.

Despite a scare at times throughout the match, the Redbacks finished the contest with three goals to one to push towards the victory.

Allen Sparks and Max Speyer each kicked two in the important win, while Blake Webster and Cameron Horstmann played key roles.

Harrison Chandler provided a target in attack across the day for the Bombers, booting four goals, while Troy Braun and Levi Francis each made their presence felt.

This weekend’s fixtures are the final ones of the home and away season, with Murrayville set to welcome Paringa across the border, with Brown’s Well taking on Wunkar, and Ramco doing battle with BSR.

Beech’s bag does the damage for Roos

ONE of the best individual performances of the Riverland Football League’s 2024 A grade men’s season was carried out on Saturday afternoon in Barmera-Monash’s 56-point win over Loxton North.

Roos superstar Jono Beech slotted through eight majors in the victory, as his side remains in touch for the minor premiership.

Facing off against a depleted Panthers outfit, just one goal separated the two teams at the opening break, before the floodgates opened throughout the second quarter.

Firing on all cylinders, Barmera-Monash kicked five goals to one, extending the buffer to 30 points at the major break.

The onslaught continued throughout the second half with a further six goals to two in favour of the Roos, putting them in a strong position.

Bonney, Jordyn Freeman and Jake Smith each found the scoreboard.

Barmera-Monash captain Sam Butterworth played an important role alongside the experience of Smith, while young gun Saxton Mitchell also saw a lot of the ball.

Roos playing coach Fraser Sampson spoke highly of his superstar key forward following the victory.

“We are really lucky to have someone of his calibre in the side,” Sampson said.

“He’s obviously a huge offensive weapon, but his leadership and education are also really valuable to us.

“Jake Smith is another one winding back the clock at the moment, and he seems to have strong confidence in his body and he is a crucial cog in our system.

“Obviously it is nice to get back into some winning form, but we still have plenty of parts of our game that we are looking to improve on.”

Panthers young gun Caleb Koehne celebrated his 50th game with a goal, hitting the scoreboard alongside Will Nitschke, Cooper Petch, and Joel Worsfold.

Worsfold fought valiantly across the day, as did the ever-consistent Zac Wooldridge, while Alek Kudra continues to provide exciting moments.

Sampson said his side was expecting a tight battle with Loxton North, despite the Panthers being mathematically ruled out of finals calculations.

“We always expect a strong contest from Loxton North,” he said.

“Even with them lacking some experience on the weekend, they still had some high-quality players we needed to plan for.”

This weekend sees Loxton North finish its season with a clash against the high-flying Magpies at Panther Park, while the Roos face off against Renmark in a qualifying final preview.

“It’s a tricky one to prepare as the result doesn’t change anything in terms of our opponent,” Sampson said.

“However, we certainly want to continue to build on our current form and go into the finals with confidence, so we will only be resting players if they really need it.

“It gives us another opportunity to learn about Renmark and test out the best way to go about trying to beat them.”

AROUND THE GROUNDS:

ROUND 15 was a successful one for every Barmera-Monash outfit, as the club enjoyed a perfect weekend at Panther Park against Loxton North.

The Roos’ B grade affiliate started the game in strong fashion, putting Loxton North to the sword with a six-goal-to-one opening term to set up a 34-point win.

Riley Haigh led the way in attack for Barmera-Monash with four majors, while Brody Scordo and Joe Ricketts each saw a bulk of the football.

Elsewhere, Loxton easily accounted for Renmark, running out 52-point victors, effectively ending the Rovers’ finals hopes.

Luke Pontt impressed the Tigers faithful up front with seven majors, while Ben Wehrmuller also chipped in with two.

Renmark was held goalless in both the first and last quarters, enabling Loxton to set up the victory, on the back of strong performances from Johnathan-Jay Campbell and Brandan Tregeagle.

Elsewhere, Waikerie took full advantage of a depleted Demons outfit, scoring a 41-point win as it continues its finals preparations.

Tyler Edwards-O’Cass and Craig Miller each kicked three for the Magpies, while Stuart Liebich and Reuben Ricciuto finished with two apiece.

Under 18s action saw Barmera-Monash continue its strong form with a 128-point thumping of the Panthers.

Hayden Johns starred up front with seven goals, while Rory Moore kicked four ahead of Wyatt Nuske’s three-goal contribution.

North young gun Cooper Petch fought admirably in the defeat, hitting the scoreboard alongside vice captain Mackenzie Hall in the heavy defeat.

Meanwhile, finals preparations continued for Renmark following a 119-point thumping of the Tigers at the kennel.

Isacc Morgan impressed up front for the Rovers with eight majors, while Jackson Bentley, John Kennedy and Murphy Strachan made their mark on the contest with three each.

Loxton’s only goal of the day came through Kaiden Evans’ third quarter strike, before Renmark continued its onslaught.

The biggest winning margin of the weekend came through the under 15s competition, where Renmark’s 22-goal day saw it record a 146-point win over Loxton.

In an even spread of contributors, Henry Dring led the way up front with five goals, while Noah Martinson kicked four, followed by exciting prospect Sam DePalma’s three-goal display.

In a strong display of team defence, Loxton was forced to wait until the final term before its solitary point was registered, despite valiant efforts from both Bronn Sylvia and Levi Milton.

Crushers climb off the bottom

THE latest round of the Riverland Table Tennis Association saw Crushers emerge off the bottom of the ladder after a thrilling win over A Team.

After finishing the match level on rubbers, the match result was decided after a count of games.

Recent losses saw Crushers leapfrog A Team on percentage, and move through to the top four in the process.

Elsewhere, Short Straws easily accounted for Desperados, continuing its hot streak at the top of the ladder, following Bit Edgy’s bye.

Desperados, who have had the bye still require a win and percentage to play in the qualifying final, and avoid facing an elimination match in the first week of the finals.

Just three rounds remain in the season, with constantly changing ladder positions at stake.

Amelia Koumbarakos starred for Renmark Olympic with four goals in A grade women's soccer action.

Goals galore as Olympic wraps up premiership

ONE of the highest scoring weekends of the Riverland Soccer Association's 2024 season was played out on Sunday, with every match seeing at least three goals.

With the premiership already grasped, Renmark ran riot in the A grade men's competition, putting nine past Loxton.

Three Olympic players found the back of the net twice in what was a stunning performance on home turf.

Elsewhere, an even spread of contributors helped the Pelicans move past Berri, scoring on five occasions.

Jude Bourton was strong through the midfield for Barmera, while Dimitri Kanakaris' playmaking ability play was a highlight once again.

The biggest victory of the weekend came through the A grade women's competition, where a remarkable 17-goal display from Barmera shocked the River Rangers.

Mikayla Rayner led the way in attack for the Pelicans with seven goals, while star forward Matilda Mitchell followed closely behind with six of her own.

Elsewhere, an Amelia Koumbarakos inspired Renmark side dominated Loxton, enjoying an 8-1 victory.

Koumbarakos scored four times for Olympic in the win, while Blossom Kimberley also recorded a brace.

Meanwhile, under 16s action saw Berri run riot against Barmera, picking up a thumping 15-1 victory.

Zach Hronopolous found the net on four occasions for the River Rangers, while Nate Vallelonga also picked up a hat-trick.

Barmera's only goal of the afternoon came through Jack McCracken, in what was a disappointing result overall.

Cass reaches hockey half century

LACHLAN DAND

LOXTON hockey legend Tim Cass is set to celebrate 50 years of Riverland hockey this Saturday night following the Tigers’ clash with Renmark.

The 50-year celebrations coincide with Mr Cass’ 60th birthday, and ahead of the match, said he felt lucky to have played hockey for such a long period of time.

“You never know how long you’re going to keep playing for or how long the body will allow you to,” he said.

“My older brother and sister played so I used to head along to their matches, and I just always wanted to play hockey.

“I went to school in Adelaide for a couple of years and I played in a school team down there for a little bit.

“After that though I came back home and I’ve always played for Loxton in the Riverland from all the way back in 1974.”

Mr Cass has a strong arsenal of memories while playing for the Tigers, including premiership victories throughout his time.

However, he said one of the biggest changes to Riverland hockey throughout his time playing was the introduction of turf pitches.

“Things have changed a lot now with the turf pitches, but there are a lot of good memories along the way,” he said.

“Going to places like Renmark was always fun playing out on the grass fields and then having dinner afterwards was good fun.

“Everyone always wants to play on it because it’s a fantastic surface and it runs so true which changes the game quite a bit so it was great when it came in.

“However, I do feel it has detracted from the clubs a little bit because the club rooms aren’t used as much anymore.

“When we first got our hockey club in Loxton built by the members, we’d have up to 20 to 25 people at training but it’s so different now because we’re training in Berri.

“Playing at state country level was special too, and I always wanted to make the next step and work out what the next best team I could get into was.

“I’ve recently come back from Tasmania with the Australian Masters Championships, and although we didn’t do extremely well results wise, it was good fun to have a hit.”

Association currently plays host to five clubs, including Victorian side Sunraysia.

Four sides make up the A grade competition, while Renmark’s strongest grade is its B grade affiliates.

Mr Cass said the association is in a position to push further ahead, with strong facilities, however, the club is hoping to gain further junior numbers in future years.

“Certain teams do get we need to keep going.

“To get people out and playing, and getting out to schools to introduce it to kids and see if they like it is really important, and get them playing in a team sport.

“Team sport is such an important thing, because it helps with your work and with your life, but things are getting more expensive so it makes things that little bit more difficult.

“Roger Gow and myself have been sponsoring local juniors, and once they’ve had a few training sessions we get them a bag with shin pads, balls, and sticks to get them going.

“It’s all about getting people out there doing something at junior level, and making sure they’re doing exercise which is good for them, and hockey is a great way to get involved in doing so.”

Berri bounce back in A grade hockey

FOLLOWING a disappointing defeat the previous week at the hands of Sunraysia, Berri returned to the A grade men’s hockey winners list after an impressive performance against Loxton on Saturday evening.

Berri slotted three goals past Loxton in the victory, with Jarryd Roberts proving to be the difference in attack with two of his own.

Jordan Burgess patrolled the pitch for the Demons in the impressive performance, as did Liam Russack to help put their side in a commanding position.

Elsewhere, A grade women’s action saw Berri also prove too good for the Tigers in an impressive 2-0 win.

Demons’ goals came through Layla Vallelonga and Jane Menzel, while Ella Rothe and Ashlee Hibberd each put in impressive performances.

The biggest winning margin of the weekend came through the under 18 men’s competition, where a combined Renmark and Loxton outfit scored a sensational six goals against Berri.

The win featured six individual goal scorers, despite valiant efforts from Declan Schmidt and Sebastian Coote.

Tigers tune up ahead of A1 finals series

WITH the Riverland Netball Association’s A1 finals series nearing, Loxton continued a remarkable run, with a 10-goal defeat of Renmark at the Alan Coulter Recreation Centre on Friday night.

After a tight opening half, and with Renmark in the lead at the major break, Loxton put the foot on the gas in significant fashion throughout the third quarter, taking a nine-goal lead in the process.

Although Renmark charged at times throughout the last term, using the link-up play generated by centre Shenae Rucioch, Loxton did enough to hold on to the win.

Playing in a role ahead of the centre pass, young gun Bailey Hahn impressed for the Tigers, feeding the ball to the likes of Mackella Hogan, who notched up 55 goals in the victory.

Elise Foulds starred in the midcourt role yet again, helping generate attack, while Skyla Schulz was also involved in Loxton’s link up play.

Sonja Modlinski provided some headaches for the Tigers defence, leading the way up front for Renmark with 29 goals, while Emma Hancock also fought hard despite the loss.

Loxton’s win ensured it will end the A1 season on top of the ladder, continuing its quest for back-to-back premierships.

Elsewhere, in its last fixture of the home and away season ahead of this week’s bye, Loxton North recorded a 15-point victory against Barmera.

After a tight battle to begin the contest, North quickly shifted into gear in the second term, holding Barmera to just six goals.

From there Loxton North never looked back, limiting Barmera’s ball movement and making it count at the other end.

Shooter Helen Schober notched up 47 goals for North in a strong showing of individual brilliance, while Maddie Groth also scored 12.

This Friday night’s final round of the home and away season sees Berri welcome the high-flying Tigers to the Toyota Arena, while Barmera travels to Renmark in search of a maiden victory in 2024. Both fixtures will begin at 7pm.

Guy casts a spell

KIWI comedian Guy Montgomery's jovial show is in a class of its own. If Taskmaster or Have You Been Paying Attention? tickle your funny bone, this game show will cast a spell.

Originally a Covid-era distraction that saw Montgomery quiz his comedian pals over Zoom and stream the results on YouTube, before graduating to a sellout live comedy format and eventually a hit series on New Zealand television, this Aussie version sees Montgomery test four famous faces each episode on their spelling prowess, aided by assistant Aaron Chen's deadpan silliness.

With an adorably kitsch retro set and the cast's wonderfully OTT, formal get-up, as well as zany and clever rounds deliberately designed to infuriate the contestants, it's great fun from beginning to end. Montgomery's earnest yet absurd take on a classic game show host is delightful to witness, teasing and taunting his guests with double entendres, surreptitious synonyms and trick questions.

Tonight's premiere sees Tom Gleeson, Urzila Carlson, Nazeem Hussain and Danielle Walker attempt to work out how many 'z's are in "pizzazz", before facing a challenge inspired by Australian currency and trying to make their hometowns proud, with the winner returning next week as carryover champ.

Later episodes feature Wil Anderson, Peter Helliard, Steph Tisdell, Tim Minchin, Luke McGregor, Geraldine Hickey and a slew of up-and-coming comedians sure to lighten up your Wednesday evening.
