THE user-friendly $2.68m Retirement Village Community Centre at the Loxton Retirement Village was officially opened yesterday by Loxton Waikerie Mayor Leon Stasinowsky and Barker MP Tony Pasin.

The project has seen construction of a multi-function room, semi-commercial kitchen, toilets, cinema, storage facilities and an outdoor entertaining area.

Mr Stasinowsky said village residents now have a state-of-the-art facility to enjoy.

"They can enjoy the comforts of just meeting here," he said.

"The sky's the limit as to what they can do and they don't have to travel very far (because) it's right next to the village, which is something I think they will really enjoy."

The $2.68m project received $1.2m from the Coalition's Building Better Regions Fund, while the remaining funds were sourced from the village's capital reserve. Construction began in 2021.

Mr Pasin, who helped open the centre on behalf of the federal government, said the project would benefit older adults and retirees who are residents of the Loxton Retirement Village.

"The facility will create a greater sense of community for older residents in Loxton, promoting social interaction and wellbeing," he said. "The Building Better Regions Fund is just about that – building better, stronger regional communities now and into the future." The village is also in the process of building eight new units, with the slab already down for the first two.

A WAIKERIE cruise operator could lose up to $2000 a week in spring if River Murray levels continue to remain high.

Owner/managers of Rivergum Cruises, James and Sandra Schober, said passengers would have to wade through about a metre of water to access the ramp to the floating pontoon before boarding their boat.

The couple have postponed their cruises for at least the next six weeks and Mrs Schober said it was difficult to estimate how much they would lose financially.

"We might only be doing one cruise a week in the winter months," she said. "Come September, October and November, normally we would do at least two or three a cruises week.

"If we are not cruising then, we might be losing $1500 to $2000 a week." Mrs. Schoher said while the cruises were Mrs Schober said while the cruises were in recess she would continue to promote her business, but admitted the uncertainty was difficult.

"We want to still keep that rapport happening, to let people know, 'we will need you'," she said.

Mrs Schober said the business would reopen once river levels subside, but admitted it was difficult to gauge when the river's flow and levels will drop.

"It depends on how much snow melts upstream interstate at the end of winter," he said

"Or how much rain will fall on the plains." The Department of Environment and Water said River Murray flows into SA last week reached about 53,000ML a day and were expected to fall to 50,000ML a day by this Friday.

Mr Schober said in 2016 when the river level was higher he installed a bridge from the river bank to enable passengers to access the boat.

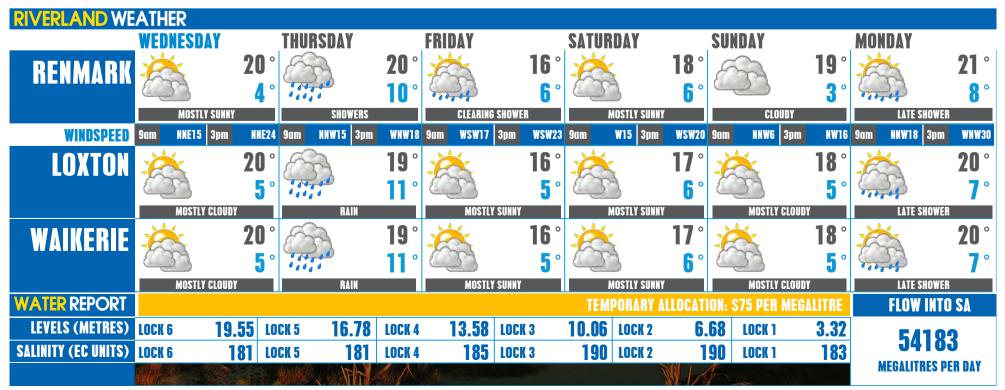

"During that year, the level went up three metres," he said. "At the moment it is only a metre."

Mr Schober said he may use the bridge again in October if the flows and the level of the river continue to flood the boat ramp.

The couple said they were fortunate they had other business ventures to focus on while the cruises were in recess. Mrs Schober said her husband would be able to focus on his carpentry and they also had loquats to harvest on their fruit property in October.

'Energetic' Ella's mayoral bid to grow Berri Barmera... Changing cnanging of the guard?

JOSH BRINE

BREAKING Berri Barmera out of decades of population stagnation and injecting new energy into the district are among the goals for Barmera's Ella Winnall, who has announced her bid to become the council's next mayor.

Ms Winnall, 31, who was elected as a councillor in 2018 and is in her third year as deputy mayor, said she made the decision to run against 16-year incumbent Peter Hunt so she could "give back" and support the community's future.

"Throughout my time as councillor and deputy mayor, I've had a growing sense that our community is looking for a new energy at Berri Barmera, for our community to grow and thrive into the future," she said.

"Putting my hand up gives the community that chance of new leadership and a choice in the future they want for Berri Barmera – that's important."

Ms Winnall said residential growth was "critical" for the Berri Barmera district, which has lost almost 800 residents since 2001, as the population in neighbouring councils has grown.

"I've always been passionate about the potential Berri Barmera has to be an even stronger, more vibrant and exciting place to live and work," she said.

"I think it is critical that the council facilitates residential growth opportunities.

"We need to make sure people who are looking to build in Berri Barmera can find land that appeals to them.

"This will help attract and retain the population, support our local businesses, and support our existing ratepayers in sharing the load of rates."

Ms Winnall also pledged to consult more thoroughly with the community on council's decision-making.

"I'll be advocating for efficient, modern and professional practices in council," she said.

"I think it's important that the council really listens to the community and is able to take feedback on board and acts on the wishes of the community.

"This means making sure we ask the community for their thoughts at the right time, in ways that work for them."

Despite her age, Ms Winnall has already accumulated years of experience in local government and community development,

Well-known Barmera 31-year-old, and current Berri Barmera Council deputy mayor, Ella Winnall, has announced she will run for mayor at the upcoming local government elections in November. PHOTO: Deirdre Graham working at both Berri Barmera and Loxton Waikerie councils, before opening her own business as a strategic consultant for community and business clients this year.

Last September, Ms Winnall was also elected a vice-president of the SA Liberal Party.

"Having worked with multiple councils and community organisations, I've been able to see other ways of doing things and bring new ideas to Berri Barmera," she said.

"I appreciate that I am younger than the current serving mayors in the Riverland, but I also have a significant amount of experience in local government (and) leadership roles, as well as community and volunteer service.

"I want the community to choose the best person for the job regardless of age or gender."

Ms Winnall is so far the only candidate to publicly nominate for Berri Barmera Mayor, besides Mr Hunt, who has served in the role since November 2006. "Mayor Hunt has given a lot to Berri Barmera over a lot of years and I understand if he wants to continue, but this decision isn't about Mayor Hunt - it's about what I can offer our community," Ms Winnall said.

"Ultimately it's up to the voters to decide who they think will best represent their vision for our community's future."

Ms Winnall said, after four years as a councillor, the opportunity to become mayor would take her service "to the next level".

"I would love to be able to nominate for both councillor and mayor so that one way or another I can serve the community on council – but that's not an option, so it has been a difficult decision to make," she said.

"I've had to really think about where I can best support the community's needs and I think that's as mayor...

"In whatever role I fulfil in the future my focus will be, as it is now, the betterment of our community."

Long-serving due serve as challenger's inspirations

TWO long-serving Berri Barmera councillors, including one of Australia's longest-serving female mayors, have served as inspiration for mayoral candidate Ella Winnall in her four years as councillor.

Since being elected in 2018, Ms Winnall said she had a "raft of amazing women in leadership to look up to at Berri Barmera".

"Being in the council chamber this term with women like former mayor Cr Margaret Evans and Cr Rhonda Centofanti – both with incredible accomplishments in council – has been inspiring," she said.

"Being a councillor has been really rewarding and I have learnt a lot during my time on council.

"What I enjoy most about local government is how close to the community we are, and how quickly the impact of our decisions can be felt in the community.

"I encourage anyone that's community minded to consider putting their hand up."

Having worked with multiple councils and community organisations, I've been able to see other ways of doing things and bring new ideas to Berri Barmera...

High river floods infrastructure in Loxton Waikerie district

LOXTON Waikerie council is advising residents that various infrastructure sites in the district have been impacted by high river levels and closed to the public.

It said these sites would re-open when deemed safe. The pontoons last week were removed from the boat ramps at Rilli Reserve at Loxton North and Milich Landing at Pyap, but their boat ramps and car parks were still accessible. Council said the Loxton Boat Ramp pontoons were also unusable last week and the Snake Island carpark and footbridge was closed.

In the Waikerie area, various sections of the Hart Lagoon Walking Trail were closed, but some sections were still open to the public.

The Waikerie Riverfront Jetty was covered with water and was also closed to the public. Loxton Waikerie council also last week closed the Qualco Boat Ramp. The council is urging people to be aware of submersible objects and permanent infrastructure along the river fronts and boat ramps in the district, whilst accessing high river areas.

MD Basin storage hits 92 per cent

AS Riverland councils and residents deal with an unusually high river, Flowtracker shows that total water storage in the Murray Darling is at 92 per cent – its highest figure in the past 10 years.

Flowtracker, which tracks the river flow throughout the entire Murray-Darling Basin, also shows how the current August water storage compares to previous years.

"Flow into South Australia has been consistent at around 54,000ML per day over the past week," said Justin Dixon, of Mapping Services Australia, which produces Flowtracker.

Flowtracker also shows that:

☐ Hume Reservoir has increased to 2778GL or 95 per cent capacity.

Dartmouth Reservoir has increased to around 3700GL or 97 per cent capacity.

 Menindee Lakes storage has been increasing over the past month and is now at 1997GL or 115 per cent capacity.
 The Darling River

continues to flow at around 21,500ML per day.

It's flow-time in Renmark

SAFETY concerns posed to locals and tourists by high River Murray flow levels have seen a stretch of Renmark's river front, plus a local RV park, closed to the public.

Renmark Paringa Council on Saturday announced the lower level of the Renmark river-front footpath – between the Renmark Club and Visitor Information Centre – had been temporarily closed due to high river levels and submerged infrastructure.

Council previously announced bookings for Plush's Bend RV Park had also been suspended due to high water levels.

Renmark Paringa Mayor Neil Martinson said the walkway was closed to minimise potential safety risks.

"The pylons are there, but the water might even get past those anyway," Mr Martinson said.

"Obviously the safety of the community is our first priority, and this is to make sure people stay away from that particular area.'

Flowtracker data – updated on Monday - indicated 48,206ML of water was flowing past Renmark each day.

However, Renmark Club chairman Sam Albanese said the venue's outdoor area was unaffected by the high water level.

"I've seen it a few times," Mr Albanese said. "Usually it's the bottom walkway that gets inundated. When stay away from that particular area...

it gets up to around 50,000 or 60,000ML a day coming over the border, that will lift the water level a bit.

"Everybody uses the top walkway instead, so you can still access the club.

"I imagine it's just a safety precaution from council's point of view."

Mr Martinson said current water levels would limit accessibility to and from Plush's Bend. "The access to get into Plush's

Bend has a creek," Mr Martinson said. "With high water coming up council is concerned about people getting stranded in the area, plus water coming up from the river as well.

We've had to close that off until we have a better idea of how much water is coming down, and

The safety of the community is our first priority, and this is to make sure people how long it will last for.

"The boat ramp is the same. It's going to inconvenience people but it's for their own welfare, and to prevent any damage to council's infrastructure that may happen if people are down there.'

Alternative options are available at TM Price Rotary Park, in Renmark, and SS Ellen Park, in Lyrup.

Meanwhile, it is understood the Berri Wharf could become inundated if water levels increase further by approximately 10cm.

BY PETER AND CARLA MAGAREY

EDITORIAL Council election comes alive

IT'S on at Berri Barmera Council...or is it? Councillor Ella Winnall's candidacy is a sudden game-changer for the Berri Barmera mayoral race.

Incumbent Peter Hunt recently indicated his intention to run for a fifth term as mayor, without giving a 100 per cent guarantee.

Clearly, Mr Hunt believes he has more to offer in the role, and broadly speaking he enjoys solid support across the district.

Whether Ms Winnall's confirmed candidacy changes his mind remains to be seen. The two have served alongside each other on council for nearly four years now, with Ms Winnall his deputy mayor for the past three years.

It is often said a good government needs a good opposition, and many would extend that reasoning to council elections.

Mr Hunt was re-elected unopposed in 2014, but saw off challengers either side of that, namely Ralf Nobile in 2018 and Neville McPherson in 2010.

Both came from outside the council tent, a point not lost on Mr Hunt, who voiced his disapproval of that potential path to the mayor's role during the most recent election campaign.

Mr Hunt believes mayors should have some local government background, a viewpoint that many will share, and some will question. Those in the latter category may well be regular council critics who favour a 'disruptor' in the top job. Mr Nobile would almost certainly have filled that role, had he been successful four years ago.

Regardless, Ms Winnall has four years under her belt as an elected member, plus professional experience with the Loxton Waikerie council, where she worked until earlier this year.

Mr Hunt has many more years of local government experience and – should he stand again – would count on locals considering him a familiar and safe pair of hands.

Conversely, Ms Winnall's 'new blood' angle is bound to resonate with some locals, while her different age demographic could work for or against her.

Mr Hunt is among the most wellknown people in the district, and has had interactions with almost all long-term adult residents. However, Ms Winnall has also been an active community member and would hope to win additional votes from younger demographics. Declaring age could influence voters, one way or another, may be an unfashionable statement, but it remains true.

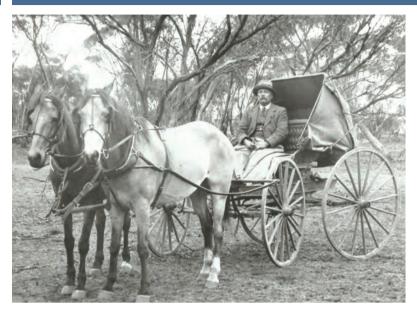

It is worth noting that local government elections are more democratic than state or federal elections, where voting is compulsory. Those who vote in council elections do so because they care, not because they face fines for failing to show up.

A wildcard in the Berri Barmera race would be the presence of a third candidate, a possibility that cannot be ruled out.

Ms Winnall's campaign launch included a point about striving to ensure more land is available for residential growth across Berri Barmera.

It is a strong and sensible start to her policy platform, paving the way for a fascinating few months ahead.

The best advice to voters at all council elections in the coming months is to listen to the candidates, assess what they are saying, make your judgments on their previous histories, and vote accordingly.

Buggy in the 1920s: Imagine! This photo of yesteryear's common transport shows a buggy and 'pair in harness' in the early 1920s. Horse powered, yes, but only by two and not 180 to 200 horsepower-equivalents generated by an engine in a typical modern family car. Though with four wheels, the buggy lacked four-wheel drive. However, its motive power was very 'green', being fuelled by water, oats and hay - truly organically powered and, in its own way, outdoing modern electric vehicles. To the contrary, the pair needed to be fed and watered twice every day whether in use or not. The buggy lacked the speed and comfort of modern vehicles, though the retractable roof was easily adjusted for maximum flowthrough ventilation for the travellers to enjoy the fresh air and sunshine freely available in the mallee scene depicted. Today it would be fun for a brief ride but imagine travelling in summer's mid-day heat, in autumn's early morning frosty chill, in the driving rain of winter, or the windy days of spring. Here the driver is said to be AJ Andrae in Fred Stanitzki's buggy. It was better than walking, but imagine the differences between yesteryear's buggies and modern motor vehicles. PHOTO: LHC

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

About the lake and our council rates

SINCE the last council elections, when I ran for Berri Barmera mayor, I have kept pretty quiet and let the council take its own course.

This was to see what it did, or didn't do. When you look at management, nothing much has changed.

The front of the Berri Hotel has been adjusted somewhat, but the entry point in front of the Vietnam Veterans is still the same. Isn't this what ratepayers wanted changed?

Recently I drove around Lake Bonney and I was disgusted in what has happened. It's like the lake has been shut off to tourists under the banner of nature.

What Barmera businesses need is a shot in the arm, not a shot in the back.

A forward-thinking person would have a bulldozer level everything, including the dead trees, unless they contain nesting hollows.

Then plant some salt-resistant native trees, put in numerous camping and caravanning locations, two or three more boat ramps for fishing or skiing, and several toilet blocks around the lake.

Donation boxes at camping sites would help with the upkeep.

A full crusher dust walkway the entire perimeter of the lake would be a good idea, until enough money could be raised to bituminize the path. This would open it up to potential marathons around the lake, which would draw in tourism.

This would complement Kym Manning's hard work with the Carp Frenzy. These are potential job-creating and income-earning ideas for Barmera and surrounding small businesses.

But back to the council. I think Berri Barmera real estate prices have gone up by about 10 per cent, and the same with council rates. tioned in this newspaper by readers and ratepayers, expressing their views. Council responded by sending the matter back to staff, for reassessment. But if council staff are making decisions, what are the councillors doing?

This rate increase was ques-

The newest councillors might have an excuse, but the rest have been there long enough. I'm surprised they haven't erected bronze monuments to themselves.

Interest rates could be between 7 and 10 per cent by Christmas 2023.

What would council do about rates then?

The smartest thing to do would be to leave council rates exactly as they are.

Given inflation, this would mean an actual rate reduction without losing any revenue.

The council needs to stick to what it has to do.

That is, to create an environment where our council rates are competitive. This in turn would create investment, which would create jobs.

Having rates much more expensive then Renmark Paringa Council is why Renmark is alive and Berri is dead.

You can't kick a flat footy and expect to score a goal.

Remembering VP Day, 77 years later

I will.

SEVENTY-seven years ago on Monday, war ended in the Pacific, with Japan giving their unconditional surrender to the Allies, officially bringing an end to the Second World War.

Nearly 1 million Australians served during the war and around 40,000 did not return home to their families.

On Victory in the Pacific Day, we pause to commemorate the more than 17,000 Australians who lost their lives in the war against Japan.

We remember our valiant efforts on the Australian home front, in Malaya, Singapore, Papua and New Guinea, Borneo and elsewhere in the south west Pacific across those three years of war.

The war in Europe had ended three months earlier, but Japan fought on until the USA dropped atomic bombs on the cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, and the Soviet Union declared war on Japan.

The threat of invasion seemed very real. It was a time when Australians worked hard and pulled together to defend our country.

This week, I encourage all Australians to remember the courage and sacrifice of those who served during the Second World War.

450GL more leaves little for farmers

RECOVERING an additional 450GL of water would be the equivalent of removing another 19 per cent the higher-reliability water remaining in the consumptive pool for growing food and fibre across the southern Murray-Darling Basin.

The new federal Water Minister Tanya Plibersek has already acknowledged that delivering the extra 450GL promised to South Australia will be difficult.

Our analysis demonstrates the substantial socioeconomic and water market impacts of recovering even more water from what's left to grow food and fibre.

"It also shows the 450's intended outcomes in the Lower Lakes and Coorong are already being met, even in the severe 2019 drought, with the 2100GL already recovered under the Basin Plan.

It highlights the need to change course on the Basin Plan, away from the focus on simplistic volumes of recovery as the only measure of success, towards whether the Plan is delivering what was intended, that is, more robust ecosystem resilience and sustainable diversion limits.

The Murray-Darling Basin Plan has already shifted more than 2100GL of water out of irrigated agriculture, over four Sydney Harbours.

This 2100GL is in addition to the annual average 18,600GL that was not diverted or intercepted under the Plan's 2009 baseline. This water recovery has effectively dropped irrigation, town and industry's share of total pre-Plan inflows from 35 per cent to 28 per cent.

The water minister in her recent State of the Environment report credited this water recovery with saving the Basin rivers in the severe 2019 drought. This is what the Plan is intended to do.

The second review of the 450's Water for the Environment Special Account, which the

"Having rates much more expensive then Renmark Paringa Council is why Renmark is alive and Berri is dead...." - RALF NOBILE minister has promised to table in Parliament this session, is expected to reinforce the findings of the first.

The first review in 2020 found that recovering 450GL would cost at least three times more than the budgeted $1.575bn.

The Productivity Commission in 2018 highlighted the 450GL could be recovered but be unusable due to delivery constraints, such as needing to negotiate voluntary flood easements with thousands of landowners.

Just adding more water does not address the greatest threats to native biodiversity in the Basin's riverine systems, such as European carp accounting for 90 per cent of fish biomass in the rivers.

We are advocating for the 450GL funds to be reinvested into complementary measures, to directly address environmental challenges such as feral species and habitat loss, and improve biodiversity and conservation outcomes.

This can happen alongside a healthy agricultural sector. In fact, irrigation infrastructure operators, irrigation industries and landholders are already working with the state and federal environmental water holders to get more environmental water where it needs to go.

The analysis shows NSW's 212.4GL share of the additional 450GL equates to recovering:

9.9 per cent of total remaining consumptive water (high security and general security) entitlements) in NSW southern valleys; or, 14.3 per cent of total remaining consumptive water in the NSW valleys below the Choke.

Irrigated agriculture has been hit hard by water reforms, and we've got to seriously look after what's left. We need to be working with industry and Basin communities to deliver the Basin Plan's intended environmental outcomes.

The 450GL was meant to have socio-economic neutrality, but it's simply impossible to take such a large amount of water out of communities and not have an impact.

This shouldn't turn into an agriculture vs environment

THE Australian Republican Movement has just conducted a survey through the polling company Essential Media.

It asks the following question: "As you may be aware, elected members of the Australian Parliament are required to make a pledge of allegiance. Who do you think they should be required to pledge to serve and bear allegiance to?"

They claim that 75 per cent of Australians voted that the pledge should be to Australia and the Australian people. This is blatantly wrong.

It would be better to say 75 per cent of republicans, because on closer inspection it appears that only 1075 individuals actually responded.

The Australian Monarchist League has casually internally polled its members, with 1128 immediately responding and all supporting the retention of allegiance to the Queen.

They know full well that when a member of parliament swears or affirms allegiance to the Queen, they are doing so to the Crown, which is integral to the Australian Constitution and which represents all people and not just a section of elitists.

The point is, unless there is widespread polling by an independent pollster, no results can be taken as being indicative of the "Australian people's" wishes.

Even then, there is no poll so final as the referendum itself, so the ARM and Essential Media should stop playing these silly games, and the press should stop promoting them.

More talk about water buybacks and no action. My understanding is there are individuals and corporations who own significant water holdings, but who don't own land, nor have the capacity to use water, and are only in the market to make money from leasing. Water needs to be compulsorily bought back from them.

COUNCIL'S TRASH TALK: Riverland councils remain undecided on a long-term waste management strategy despite discussing their community education strategies at a meeting this week. Council representatives met in Berri on Tuesday to share their ideas about informing locals about their kerbside recycling programs, which begin in December and January. Renmark Paringa Council director of infrastructure and environmental services Paul Day proposed that a regional waste education officer be appointed to co-ordinate the councils' campaign.

INTO THE LION'S DEN: The biggest users of water in the Murray Darling Basin visited the Riverland this week. Nearly 200 rice farmers saw firsthand the impact their water-intensive flood irrigation has on the River Murray. The New South Wales farmers used the visit as an opportunity to learn about the irrigation techniques being implemented by grape growers in the region.

OBJECTIONS from Renmark residents have ended any plans for a modified electronic billboard to be installed in the town.

The Riverland Regional Assessment Panel (RRAP) - at a meeting held on July 28 denied an application from Fitzroy-based company Gawk to modify the electronic billboard located at Lot 91 Eighteenth Street, in Renmark.

The application sought to reduce the sign to a one-sided display, to replace moving advertisements with static imagery, and increase the overall area of the sign by approximately five square-metres.

Gawk director Luke Course said the modifications were proposed in order to reduce any potential negative impacts on the closest residents.

"We were ultimately disappointed at the outcome..." Mr Course said.

"Obviously we were hoping to get this billboard approved, and believed it would have a positive economic impact in Renmark.

"There were a small handful of objections, on the back of which we made some changes to the proposed sign to address their concerns. "We felt the final design was an acceptable outcome." Renmark Paringa Council initially issued development approval for the sign in 2015. An Eighteenth Street resident, who provided one of four submissions during the application's public consultation period, said "the last TV billboard was bright and reflected flashing light into the house, especially at night".

"It was very annoying," the resident wrote. "This is way larger and as a result will be a lot more intrusive.

"I definitely do not wish to be kept awake at night again.

"Please don't allow this to go ahead."

RAP says no to new billboard

However, the development application stated the proposed billboard would have been "manufactured to meet all the relevant standards and requirements applicable in terms of luminance and glare".

"The concerns... in relation to the glare and impact of the existing signage is noted,' the application read.

"The proposed alterations are such that the advertisement will be operated to a much higher standard than the previous sign, with a two-way brightness sensor installed.

"The luminance level will be reduced at night to be only 5 per cent of the daytime level and will comply at all times with the maximum allowable veiling luminance.

"The inclusion of this technology will ensure that the proposal does not impact upon any surrounding properties any more than the streetlights would.

"The digital display will only be located on the southern side facing the approach from Paringa, directed away from residential properties."

Mr Course said Gawk still hoped to contribute toward Renmark's future economic growth.

"While we wish the outcome was different, we respect the decision of the Assessment Panel," he said.

"We are committed to being a part of the Renmark business community in the future, and are already working on some alternative locations for the proposed digital billboard."

Local RSL wins race against time to unveil Bert Whitmore Sculpture... Lasting tribute to a Barmera legend

IT was a race against the clock, but a memorial to the last-surviving member of Australia's famed Light Horsemen was erected and unveiled to his relatives - and dozens of community members in Barmera on the weekend.

The Albert ('Bert') Whitmore Memorial Sculpture stands proudly on the lawned area outside the Barmera RSL Hall, honouring the late soldier, who died 20 years ago after serving with distinction in World War I and going on to become a community and civic leader in Barmera.

The Barmera RSL invested months of planning into both the initiative and the unveiling event, which drew relatives from across Australia – and even abroad.

However, sub-branch president Peter Johnson revealed that completing the sculpture in time for Sunday's presentation, which coincided with Mr Whitmore's birthday (August 14), was a close call.

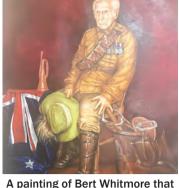

"We were a bit worried whether we were going to get it on time, but it all fell into place," he said.

"We had the plinth done on Monday, and the memorial sculpture put in yesterday (Saturday), just in time.

"But we're very happy with it and Kerry (Henstridge, subbranch secretary) and I worked very hard in the background on it."

After being approved by the sub-branch committee, the sculpture proposal was put to Mr Whitmore's family, who quickly endorsed the idea.

"Bert's family member hangs in the Barmera RSL.

(Barmera man) Peter Schramm got in touch with other people in the family and they gave us permission," Mr Johnson said.

"They were quite proud and honoured that we'd do something like this.'

Mr Schramm - who was among speakers at the official ceremony - plus a long list of Mr Whitmore's descendants were on hand for the unveiling. Riverland-based family members were joined by others from Adelaide and interstate, including Mr Whitmore's great-grandson, Corporal Robert Whitmore, who serves in the Australia Army.

Corp Whitmore flew from an overseas posting to Canberra, then to Adelaide, especially to attend Sunday's event.

"That goes to show Robert honours his great-grandfather greatly," Mr Johnson said.

"And I think his great-grandfather would be proud of Robert for being in the service and carrying on the name."

Barker MP Tony Pasin and Corp Whitmore carried out the official unveiling, after Mr Pasin had given an outline of Bert's military career.

Mr Johnson said the subbranch was adamant Mr Whitmore deserved such a permanent and visual recognition.

"We thought this was the best way to honour Bert for his tremendous effort in World War I and for everything that he did around here for the community," he said.

"He was instrumental in getting the RSL going, plus he was our secretary/treasurer and made an honorary member.

"It was to honour him for everything he did through the wars for this country, including his work out at the Loveday camp. when he re-enlisted for World War II."

The sub-branch started fundraising for the project early this year, and was helped along by some community contributions.

"Santos donated the concrete plinth, MARS Transport Equipment drew (the sculpture design) up, plasma cut it and donated all that to us," Mr Johnson said.

"Carp Frenzy put a donation towards it and the council waived the planning permit fee and helped us along the way."

Solar lighting will be installed around the sculpture in the coming weeks.

"In the evening, as darkness falls, the lights will come on," Mr Johnson said.

"They'll shine through (the structure) and it'll look like he's sitting there with the rising sun."

Berri Barmera Council members, plus Carp Frenzy organiser Kym Manning were among those in attendance on Sunday.

BERT'S SERVICE TO AUSTRALIA

BORN in Tea Tree Gully, Albert ('Bert') Whitmore joined the Australian Army in 1917, aged just 16. His unit, the 28th reinforcement unit for the 9th Australian Light Horse, landed in Egypt, where it trained before crossing the Suez Canal and meeting the Light Horse near the Gaza Strip. The Light Horse joined the 3rd Brigade for trench warfare near the city of Jericho, before Mr Whitmore's unit moved into the Jordan

Mr Whitmore was taught desert warfare before joining the campaign at Gaza, just west of Beersheba, which his countrymen had just

The 9th Light Horse then liberated Gaza from Turkish and German occupation to open the way to Jerusalem. Mr Whitmore rode into the fray for the successful third battle for Gaza. Riding north along the Mediterranean coast, they occupied Jaffa, Bethlehem and finally

"It was like riding through the Bible," Whitmore told The Australian. Mr Whitmore was struck down with malaria and spent three months in hospital, before rejoining his unit near the Turkish border. Mr Whitmore eventually returned home after the war in 1919 and just four weeks after set-ting foot back in Australia, joined a survey team, establishing a soldier settlement in Barmera.

10 NEWS www.murraypioneer.com.au Wednesday, August 17, 2022 Rose and Garden Festival returns bigger and better

ELYSE ARMANINI

THE upcoming Riverland Rose and Garden Festival is shaping as one of the biggest in the event's 28-year history, according to committee president Richard Fewster.

This year's festival will run from Friday, October 14 to Sunday, October 23 and will feature an opening night dinner at Mallee Estate in Renmark, a gala dinner hosted by Salena Estate's Cucina 837 in Bookpurnong - the first gala dinner held outside of the Renmark district - and 31 open gardens across the region.

"Running for 10 days, the Riverland Rose and Garden Festival is now the largest open gardens event in Australia," Mr Fewster said.

"With the official opening being performed this year by the president of the World Federation of Rose Societies, Ms Henrianne de Briey, the event is sure to attract worldwide recognition and attention.

"What has been most pleasing this year is the increased support from all of the Riverland towns, both in the form of volunteers and businesses.

"The growth of the festival has seen a significant increase in the workload for each of the members of the organising committee who collectively put in many hundreds of hours of voluntary time and energy.

sor for the festival – we are upgrading all of our open garden signs with more robust and larger steel A-frame signs. This will make it easier for visitors to find each of the 31 open gardens featured throughout the Riverland this year."

held on Saturday, October 15 - is also an event of note this year, with the return of a number of interstate stall holders, thanks to the lifting of Covid border restrictions.

2022 Official Program - with details of open gardens, attractions, festival activities and more - will be included for free in next week's Murray Pioneer.

MATES helping fight back against suicide

JOSH BRINE

FACILITATING discussions about mental health in the construction industry and reducing the prevalence of suicide among workers were the goals of a training course organised by a local business last week.

Michael Kregar Building (MKB) conducted a general awareness training course with MATES in Construction for its workers and contractors at the Berri Riverside Holiday Park last Wednesday.

The on-site training is aimed at preventing suicide in the construction industry, with workers currently six times more likely to die by suicide than in an accident and a construction worker dying by suicide in Australia every second day.

MATES field officer Matt Carter, who helped lead the training, said construction was a male-dominated industry and the "stigma around reaching out for issues related to poor mental health" contributed to the high rates of suicide.

"Male stoicism - the idea we're meant to harden up and push through our pain - and that culture is a big factor," he said. "Around commercial construction there's also a transient nature. "Out here in a regional area, people are just going from job to job, so there's that sense of job insecurity as well.

"It's a big part of why we do it in this way. (We) try to make it more relatable and model the idea it's okay to talk... particularly alongside the blokes you work next to. "If we expose more people to these ideas, hopefully we can chip away at breaking that culture down."

Mr Carter said he could see the way workers think about mental health changing, particularly among the younger generation.

"Some people are caught in the old-school mentality that men behave one way and women behave another and that's the way it should be," he said.

"Suicide is not something that is talked about. The stigma around it is very strong and we're all conditioned to turn a blind eye to it.

"But it's shifting and the more young people we expose to this, the more it'll help start that generation off on a better footing."

MKB site safety officer Hugo Kregar thanked MATES in Construction for the training.

"It was excellent to hear presenters from MATES in Construction educate the MKB team and contractors about mental health," he said.

"Many people with poor mental health are involved in the construction industry, so it was great to open the discussion and provide support if needed."

People needing help can contact the MATES helpline on 1300 642 111 or Lifeline on 13 11 14.

Gnats in indoor plants

Fungus gnats are mosquito-like flies that love moist potting soil. Gnats in houseplants are annoying. They are actually small flies about 1/8-inch long that are drawn to moist potting soil and decaying plant material at the base of indoor plants. While they look similar to mosquitoes, they don't bite. Gnats are often confused with the common fruit fly but the two insects are completely different.

Gnats in houseplants typically result when the potting mix contains too much moisture, the best way to prevent gnats from taking over your home is to avoid over-watering in the first place

How to identify gnats in indoor plants

One way to tell if you're about to run into a gnat problem is to look for eggs. Fungus gnats lay eggs in the soil and these eggs become larvae, which feed on fungi in the soil of plants. The fungus gnat larvae are around 1/4-inch long with a shiny black head and an elongated, whitish to transparent body.

Get rid of gnats

If you notice signs of gnats, it's important to take steps to get rid of them right away. Create a DIY gnat trap using vinegar - Place a tablespoon of sugar in a bowl. Add 2-3 drops of sweet-smelling dish soap and a cup of white vinegar to the same bowl. Cover the bowl tightly with cling wrap. Poke several small holes in the cling wrap. Place the bowl close to the house plant and allow it to catch flies overnight.

How to prevent gnats in indoor plants

While getting rid of adult gnats is a great first step, that's often only a short-term fix. More adults will appear from the larvae in the soil. A better approach is to target the larval stage of their life cycle by allowing the soil to dry out Because gnats lay their eggs in the moist soil around plants, reducing excess moisture is a key to getting rid of these nuisances for good.

Avoid over watering - Allow the soil to dry between regular watering - not to the point that your plant begins wilting but enough that the soil isn't continually moist. The eggs and larvae usually die in dry soil.

Choose a pot with good drainage - A pot with good drainage will prevent gnats from laying eggs in the soil and will also protect your indoor plant against common problems such as root rot. Remember to drain any excess water that may have accumulated in saucers.

Waikerie hub a $6m boost

CHRISTINE WEBSTER

WAIKERIE's proposed community hub has been forecast to generate more than $6m for the region's economy

An updated development application was lodged last month with PlanSA by the Waikerie Football Club and SA urban and regional planning firm, Planning Studio.

In its planning assessment report, Planning Studio said the project would accelerate economic growth by injecting a forecast $4.85m into the Loxton Waikerie district's economy during the construction and post construction stages.

The report said an additional $2m in economic benefit would also be generated for the broader community.

It said the Waikerie Riverfront Community Hub would offer a "new modern and quality venue" for sporting groups, conferences, trade fairs and social events.

The Waikerie Football Club's previous development application, submitted in 2020, involved knocking down the existing building and replacing it with new clubrooms.

However, after seeking advice from a consultant, the club decided to explore building the new facility on the riverfront end of the oval.

The project received $1.5m from the Federal Government's Building Better Regions Fund last year.

The state government also provided $1.5m towards the community hub after Loxton Waikerie council provided a loan to the football club, which has also committed funds.

The latest development application proposes constructing a community facility and spectator-viewing structure in association with the use of a portion of land for recreational and community pursuits.

The proposed community hub development still requires building consent for all five stages of the project.

More details about the proposed application can be found at the website (plan.sa.gov.au).

The public have until 11.59pm on Friday to make a representation about the proposed proiect.

High river closes pontoons

HIGH Murray River flows have led to the decommissioning of the Morgan upriver and Swan Reach pontoons.

Mid Murray Council CEO Ben Scales said these measures were still in effect on Friday.

He said Old Murbko Road near Morgan and Old Cadell Road were also closed. Mr Scales said council was providing regular updates to residents and shack owners about the high river flows and levels.

"At the moment it is only a high flow advice given the flow of water over the border into SA," he said.

Mr Scales said if Murray River flows increased from the 50 to 55GL a day that was reached last week, to more than 60GL a day, the SES would issue a flood advice for shack owners. He encouraged river communities to monitor the Department for Environment and Water's Murray River flow updates.

Hive five: Riverland 'will get through'

ALEXANDRA BULL

A VARROA mite incident controller from the Department of Primary Industries and Regions (PIRSA) is confident the Riverland will have enough bee hives for almond pollination this season; despite the varroa mite incursion in New South Wales.

Michael McManus said South Australia is well placed to have enough hives for almond pollination.

"We are not heavily reliant on NSW hives coming in, and most of our almond pollination is usually done by South Australian bees, with some from Victoria and a very small number from Queensland," he said.

"While there might have been some NSW beekeepers that sort of assist in a normal year, they can be absorbed by SA beekeepers or other interstate beekeepers." Mr McManus said PIRSA has put in cross-border arrangements which are consistent with Victorian and Queensland measures.

"Under these arrangements apiarists who need to move bees into SA from Victoria and Queensland need to apply for a permit, and part of that process is the beekeepers need to prove their bees have not been in NSW in the last 12 months," he said.

"They need to follow approved transit routes, particularly for Queensland bees coming through NSW, and they need to test 10 per cent of their hives for varroa mite before entering SA, and provide proof they have done that testing before they come into SA."

Mr McManus is confident with the current restrictions the state government has in place, the Riverland will stay free of varroa mite.

"We have got strong biosecurity arrangements in place, and certainly with no movement coming in from NSW, we are confident we can keep it out based on the current situation," he said.

"It is important beekeepers do their own sampling. We have asked them to send in samples and follow their own biosecurity practices, such as good record keeping and knowing where their hives have been.

"Beekeepers certainly have a role to play, and the government is also supporting this as we are going to be doing hive inspections for beekeepers."

Mr McManus explained that PIRSA will have teams to contact

New varroa rules aimed at SA almond industry

• Murray Pioneer 27/7/22 both almond growers and beekeepers on their property during almond pollination season. "The teams will collect alcohol washes and samples of bees on a risk-based approach. They will be looking at the health of bees during almond pollination and responding to any reports of any issues in terms of hive health."

PIRSA is also doing contingency planning in case of a varroa mite incursion in South Australia.

"It has the potential to have a significant impact depending on the scale of the outbreak," Mr McManus said.

"We would obviously go to our contingency plan and work out what sort the level of destruction, and what surveillance would then be required but it all depends on that scenario. We have certainly been doing the planning for that.

"The state government is taking the varroa mite situation in NSW very seriously, and we are working closely with the Almond Board and beekeepers both within SA and a national context to make sure we don't get it here."

Helping wineries transition to the next generation

HELPING Riverland wineries transition to the next generation of ownership was the goal of a recent annual industry seminar.

Finlaysons Lawyers last week held the 30th anniversary of its Wine Roadshow seminar at the Renmark Club.

Finlaysons Lawyers partner Will Taylor said providing advice surrounding successful succession plans for family-operated wine businesses was a focus of the event.

"There seems to be a lot of (businesses) going through generational change at the moment," Mr Taylor said.

"I'm not quite sure why. It might be because a lot of the baby-boomer generation got into the industry and now they're getting to that age where they are exiting.

"There are some traps in the wills and estates space if you don't know what you're doing.

"In terms of the process to get it done, the hardest thing for a lot of people is actually getting started. They're a bit confronted by the issue and don't quite know how to go about it, so getting those important questions started can be a barrier."

The event also featured presentations by Finlaysons Lawyers partner Nikki Owen, and Australian Grape and Wine chief executive Tony Battaglene.

Mr Taylor said he had experienced both positive and negative periods for the industry during his time participating in the roadshow.

"The interesting thing are the topics, because it's been a roller-coaster ride," he said. "We started right at the beginning of the export boom when things started to go really well.

"Then we had the decade of pain, where we had a massive oversupply of grapes, an exchange rate that was against us, the Global Financial Crisis, and America had fallen out of love with our wine style.

"Then we had a few really good years, then along came the Chinese tariffs, the pandemic, and all the supply chain disruption."

Mr Taylor said the roadshow would "absolutely" return to the region in 2023.

Sweet science for Riverlanders this week

THE Riverland is the place to be for science lovers this week, with the region set to host numerous events as part of National Science Week.

Among the events is the Constellation light presentation at Barmera's Bonney Theatre, running each night throughout August. The two brand-new feature shows, part of a five-installation trail around the state, is a story in song that highlights connected ecosystems with a future sci-fi story of celebration and regeneration, told through the Murray cod.

In Waikerie, Rivergum Cruises is offering science-themed cruises all this month focusing on the cultural history, flora, fauna and geology of the area and exploring innovations in irrigation and salt interception schemes.

Barmera fisherman Kym Manning will discuss his attempts to provide Murray cod with shelter, food and nesting sites, through the more than 100 'fish hotels' he has created in the past decade, as part of a special online event called Fish Hotel Fetish tomorrow, August 18.

The Barmera library has partnered with Barmera Theatre Gallery artists to present a cultural workshop where young people can learn to make and exhibit koi fish kites and botanical prints on August 23, while the SALA Welcome to the Lands of the River exhibition at Barmera's Hawdon Chambers is open from August 1 to September 4.

STEM showcase brings students together

ELYSE ARMANINI

STUDENTS from Berri, Monash, Glossop and Cobdogla primary schools recently came together to present team projects as part of a water-based STEM challenge.

The two-hour Water Warriors Showcase event was held concurrently at Berri Primary School in the STEM building and livestreamed to the event held in the Marnirni-Apinthi building (start-up hub) in Adelaide on Tuesday, August 2.

The Water Warriors program is offered through South Australian company Makers Empire – which produces 3D design software used by children around the world – and SA Water.

Berri Primary School specialist science teacher and STEM co-ordinator Zack Plaquet said the project "introduces children to some of the real-world challenges that SA Water deals with in managing and supplying water to South Australia".

"Students from each school chose real-world water-related problems around them to investigate, then addressed these problems through design thinking processes and 3D design/ printing," Mr Plaquet said.

"It was a very exciting event and the students from all primary schools did an excellent job in their expo presentations. There were many creative and innovative student designs on display."

Moorook Primary School students travelled to Adelaide to be part of the showcase, with seven other primary schools also making the trip from across the state.

Special guests on the day included Berri Barmera Mayor Peter Hunt, Berri Barmera Council representative Rhonda Centofanti, Berri Primary School education director Brenton Chapman, principals, teachers and parents from the schools involved, and SA Water and Makers Empire representatives, who travelled from Adelaide to attend and support the local expo.

Berri Primary School students shared their enthusiasm for the expo:

■ "The expo was fun and getting to meet kids from other schools was awesome as well." – Gracie Gover, 9.

■ "Making our design was really cool because I got to join different 3D shapes on the computer and extend them how I wanted to finish my model." – Jett Broughton, 8.

■ "We've been working on the Water Warriors project for a whole term and my group chose the problem of animals tipping over their water bowls. This is a big problem for me because I have a lot of pets." – Nardia Gilles, 9.

■ "The expo was really fun and it was cool meeting other kids and seeing the projects they designed in Makers Empire as well." – Ivy Campbell, 9.

Students from Berri, Monash, Glossop and Cobdogla primary schools recently joined together at Berri for the Water Warriors Showcase event and joined the concurrent event held in Adelaide via livestream. PHOTOS: supplied

WHEN sitting at the keyboard on a Sunday evening to write Conduct Becoming, I sometimes have a topic or idea ready to, while other times it can be a complete block.

If it's the latter and the inevitable struggle develops, I revert to the sage advice of the editor and write about myself or something I know.

This week it was a plethora of topics, all generated from a busy weekend of travel across the Loxton Waikerie district.

Friday night I was at the final minor round of the Riverland A1 netball season at The Precinct, Loxton. Finals-bound Loxton North was hosting Berri in a game that had no tangible ladder impact, but was all about pride in performance.

A high-quality encounter ensued, goal for goal to the final whistle, when a young Berri team finished a onegoal winner in its last game for 2022.

Home to bed.

Early Saturday morning, off to work at the Berri studio of 5RM for Sports Saturday. The usual two-hour, jam-packed program had some added spice, thanks to Riverland winter sports seasons culminating and heading to play-offs.

Then brunch at home on the way through to the 'match of the day' football broadcast in Waikerie. The home side hosted Loxton, with the winner qualifying for second spot on the ladder and a double chance in finals.

The Magpies were easy winners and the Tigers were subsequently relegated to an elimination final, to be played this Saturday.

Then it was back to Loxton – after collecting my darling wife from home on the way through – to MC the St. Albert's Catholic School 'auction with a difference' fundraiser at the Loxton Club.

What a fantastic, wellorganised event, featuring many volunteers, an entertaining auctioneer, and a generous crowd. It was a huge success, raising an exceptional level of funds for the small, boutique school.

Soon enough it was home to bed, ready to return to Loxton again in the morning.

This time it was to help judge the Junk Art Sculpture competition at Arts on Terrace in the main street. I saw some wonderful exhibits, all crafted with passion, inventiveness, and flare – if you haven't been put it in the calendar.

After a walk among the other attractions in East Terrace, it was off to my sister's for lunch.

This was much more than a normal Sunday lunch, as it was a celebration of her and my brother-in-law's 40th wedding anniversary. Longtime friends gathered to celebrate a wonderful partnership.

The cream was not only on the dessert, but the traditional wedding photo album: memories captured forever, particularly the haircuts.

Any or each of the above are perfect topics for a column, but sometimes too much is barely enough.

So, what's on next weekend?

O Trevor Norton is deputy mayor of the District Council of Loxton

Waikerie and co-host of 5RM Sports Saturday, but has provided the above comment as his own opinion.

Nicola knee-deep in water war of words

THE 'water war of words' between the SA Labor government and the state opposition – including local politician Nicola Centofanti – has continued.

SA Water Minister, Dr Susan Close, claims the release of a new report illustrates the "capitulation" of opposition Leader David Speirs in the face of resistance to SA getting its fair share of River Murray Water.

Dr Close said the report reveals NSW has formally submitted just one of 20 water resource plans, which set out how states are using water across the catchment.

She also said the report shows seven key water-saving projects required for "the sustainability of the Murray-Darling Basin" are at risk of not being completed by the June 30, 2024 deadline to recover an additional 450GL of environmental flows, negotiated under the Basin Plan.

Dr Close said the report casts doubt on claims made by Mr Speirs, the former water minister in the Marshall Liberal Government that was ousted at the March 2022 State Election.

"This report shows that if the other states, particularly NSW, were pulling their weight, the 450GL agreed to by

JUST A PRICK OF THE FINGER: Hepatitis C testing - run by Hepatitis SA and SA Health - took place at pharmacies in Loxton, Berri, Renmark and Barmera last week. all states for the health of the Basin would be on its way," she said.

"David Speirs must explain why his claims that he was achieving the 450GL for South Australia have been disproven by this report."

However, Ms Centofanti – the state opposition spokesperson for water and the River Murray – has defended the Liberals' action when in power.

"The former Liberal government inherited a fractious and dysfunctional relationship with other Basin jurisdictions, making the pathway for environmental water recovery harder than it should have been," she said.

"When we came to government not a single drop of the 450GL had been delivered from interstate because of Labor's previous approach."

Ms Centofanti also repeated her warning that the SA government's approach to environmental water recovery would be focused on reintroducing water buybacks, which several Liberal politicians believe would decimate irrigation-dependent river communities, like the Riverland.

"Minister Close's so-called solution to the Murray-Darling Basin Plan is to install the 'quick fix' of buybacks which we know can devastate regional communities," she said.

"Labor have even claimed we are compromising our free-market principles by opposing buybacks which clearly demonstrates their lack of understanding of water and the market.

"What Labor don't understand is that irrigators and farmers are able to sell their commodity on the free market at any time for the market price.

"The government, by entering into the market to 'buy back' so much water in a short time, will drive up the price for water – distorting the market and leading to perverse outcomes."

However, Ms Centofanti conceded that NSW – where the Liberals are in power – needed to get its house in order.

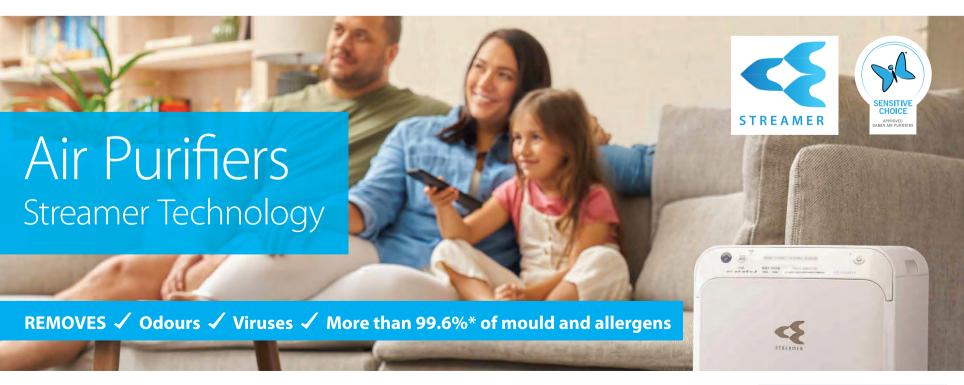

"Basin communities support water resource plans and these communities expect water resource plans to be delivered," she said.

"There is a sense of frustration that this hasn't already occurred in NSW and now is the time for the NSW government to ensure they are working within the Basin's compliance framework, as per the plan."

www.murraypioneer.com.au Wednesday, August 17, 2022 NEWS 15 Council eyes 'unlawful developments'

A RISE in illegal structural developments in the Mid Murray Council district has led to the appointment of a compliance offic-

The council presently has 199 "unlawful developments" listed on its register.

Mid Murray Council CEO Ben Scales said a 50 per cent increase in the rate of development in the area over the past 12 months meant more resources were needed to ensure properties were compliant with the law.

"These things need to be investigated," he said.

CHRISTINE WEBSTER Riverland West reporter christine.webster@murraypi

"Some of them may be compliance, some may have put a development application in place and dealt with the issues."

Mr Scales said having a compliance officer in place would ensure the council could be more proactive in preventing illegal developments from occurring instead of being "reactionary".

He said information from the public played a crucial role in boosting the council's awareness of unlawful developments.

"Neighbours are always willing to share information," he said.

"Community members and the public have previously raised concerns with us."

Mid Murray Mayor Dave Burgess said the size and remoteness of the district made monitoring illegal developments difficult.

He said the number of unlawful developments could be higher than council was aware of.

"Other unique factors include being home to over 2500 shack sites," Mr Burgess said.

He said unlawful developments could pose potential dangers to the community through unsafe building methods or structures failing to meet required standards.

Mr Burgess said they also posed other risks such as harm to the environment, damage to the river bank and the forced removal of native vegetation.

Mr Scales said council worked closely with the Environment Protection Authority (EPA) when considering development applications.

"Subject to what is happening in a new project or build, part of that process is referral to the EPA," he said.

A spokesperson for the EPA said if officers believed environmental harm had occurred, the organisation would provide advice to assist councils in taking action.

"The EPA is also able to issue environment protection orders and clean-up orders, which are legally enforceable, where councils are unable to achieve outcomes," she said.

"These require a person or company to remedy a risk or prevent further environmental harm.'

Helping to lift locals out of the dol-drums

PAUL MITCHELL

SHE admits the concept might be "a bit woo-woo' for some, but Anne-Marie Reeks says her rhythmic drumming sessions offer respite - even inner peace amid a raft of bad news facing the Riverland. "So much of our region and our communities are under stress and pressure at the moment," she says.

"There's a lot of negativity happening in people's lives, with fruit fly, bees, wineries, Covid, and all that stuff.

"It's one disaster after another, but this is something positive and uplifting, although it might not be everyone's cup of tea...'

Armed with years of experience in drumming and drum making, Ms Reeks hosts regular sessions - which she calls her "women's healing rhythms drum circle" - in Berri.

Articulating precisely how the benefits are achieved is perhaps more challenging than attending a session. "Drumming is really good to connect back to yourself - it's like a heartbeat," she says

"We're resonating with who we are, and allowing ourselves to have a bit of fun as well.

"People who've had a tough week with their kids, or whatever, come along for a bit of a break from life, basically.'

Every 90-minute session starts with participants declaring an "intention" and ends with each person summing up their dominant emotion.

"I ask people to share one word of how they're feeling after the drumming time that we've spent together," Ms Reeks says.

"People who want to, which is usually most people, will share one word, always positive.

"It's usually an emotion, like peaceful, or serene, or uplifted, or joyful or grateful, or connected." Group members range in age from 30s to 82 and are getting direction from a true expert. Ms Reeks – who often teams up with local Aboriginal elder, Uncle Barney – travelled to the USA in 2013 for an "intensive sound healing course" and is currently involved with three global drum groups.

"I'm very aware and up to date with current practices and protocols," she said. "And what we have here in the Riverland is right up there, globally, across the world, with everything that's being offered." Exclusively for women and held at Berri's Belmont Hall, on Denny Street, the healing sessions often incorporate the native American medicine wheel and the 5000-year-old Chinese drumming patterns known as I Ching.

Anyone interested in drumming - men, women, workplaces, community groups etc. - is invited to contact Ms Reeks (phone 0498 337 530).

Survey says $120 to fill our fuel tanks, while mortgage rates increase rapidly

A NEW survey into the rising cost of living in Australia shows that 33 per cent of people have reported it costs between $91-$120 to fill their car's tank, with 13 per cent saying it costs between $121-$160.

Around 33 per cent of respondents to the Savvy survey said it costs $61-$90 to fill up their car.

Meanwhile Savvy also that 77 per cent of mortgage holders have experienced some form of rate rise, with 25.7 per cent of those seeing their rates rise above 6 per cent in "a worrying trend of of living". Just over 18 per cent of mortgage holders have experienced repayment rises from 6-10 per cent, 6.26 per cent have had to deal with a rise of 11-20 per cent, while

1.34 per cent have reported increases in excess of 21 per cent.

As for corresponding pay increases, Savvy says 34 per cent of all Australians surveyed said their pay has not changed since 2021, the middle of the pandemic.

Around 26 per cent report a pay rise of between 0-5 per cent, and 7 per cent say it's gone up between 6-10 per cent.

Remember when we used to tell those classic old jokes?

I'M assuming everyone has heard the one about the grasshopper.

He went into a bar, sat down, and the barperson said, "Hey, we've got a drink named after you."

The grasshopper replied, "What... Kevin?'

Jokes infiltrated our teenage years in the '70s, almost on a daily basis. We'd latch onto new ones, such that by lunchtime the latest had circulated throughout the school.

Did we laugh? Yes. Hilariously? Probably not, though that also depended on the joke teller's ability.

Jokes have vanished. I can't remember the last time I heard a new joke, even a poor one.

The reason is Hamish Blake and Kitty Flanagan. My basic theory is that these days we're leaving it to a bunch of comedians to make us laugh.

Perhaps joke-telling sprouted from a particular way of thinking, during times when people made their own entertainment, and joke-telling became a form of that.

Generally, they weren't mean-spirited, though that could be a matter of perspective, especially as I found myself taking offense at the avalanche of blonde jokes.

"A blonde finally finished the puzzle in six months and got excited when she read that it was designed for 2-4 years."

Lodged in our psyche is the Abbott and Costello repartee about the baseballer on first, its genius lasting since the 1930s. Abbott: "Who's on first?"

Costello: "I'm asking you who's on first." Abbott: "That's the man's name."

Costello: "That's who's name?" Abbott: "Yes.'

Then a different humour from the 1950s: "I'll never forget the first time I saw him, standing up on a hill, his hair blowing in the breeze - and he too proud to run and get it."

There were the Irish, Pommy and Aussie ones, making fun at ourselves and others.

Humour at the expense of the Irish in particular, cascaded for years.

"Did you hear about the Irish doctor who

It's survey time for our local kangaroos

ANNUAL data collection surrounding wildlife in the Riverland and other SA areas will be undertaken this week.

The Department of Environment and Water (DEW) will conduct aeriel surveys of kangaroo populations across the Riverland until Friday, August 26.

DEW senior kangaroo ecologist, Dr Amanda McLean. expected recent wet conditions to have increased the numbers of local kangaroos.

"The data collected will be used to estimate kangaroo populations in these areas to support the release of sustainable harvest quotas for the commercial kangaroo industry," Dr McLean said.

"DEW supplements the aerial survey with predictive population models to determine kangaroo harvest quotas for the five harvest regions across the state.

"Surveying indicates that kangaroo populations largely respond to climatic conditions, with populations generally decreasing during droughts and recovering in good conditions.

"This year, we also used thermal imaging cameras in the lower south east where vegetation is particularly dense, so we can get a more accurate detection of animals that may be partially obscured by vegetation.

Further information regarding kangaroo management can be found by visiting the website (www.environment.sa.gov.au/topics/plants-and-animals/abundant-species/ kangaroo-conservation-and-management).

tried to separate the Siamese cat?"

Or, Mick approaches the railway station ticket master. "I'd like a return ticket," he says. "Where to?"

"To here!"

The ones that were short and clean were best:

□ "The barman says to the horse, 'Why the long face?'.'

□ "Two people walked into a bar. You would've thought one would've seen it."

Then there were the chicken crossing the road jokes. And the knock-knock ones.

And the dad ones: □ "After dinner, my wife asked me to clear the table. I needed a run-up, but I did

Two cows are grazing in an English field. One says to the other, "This mad cows' disease is a bit of a worry." The second one replies, "Yeah, lucky I'm a tractor."

Jokes that built an expectation, or anticipation, then went absolutely nowhere, were particularly appealing. For example:

"What's green and if it fell out of a tree, would kill you? A billiard table."

I remember telling this with glee dozens of times in my teens and being regularly booed.

The more ridiculous, the better.

Then this one:

There's a knock at the front door and the man answers it.

The snail, with an encyclopaedia under its arm, says, "Hello. We're selling these encyclopaedias, they come in complete sets, would you be interested in buying a set?'

The man, obviously agitated, picks up the snail and throws it against the front fence, closes the door and goes inside. six months later, there's another knock on the door, the man answers it, and the snail says, "What'd vou do that for?"

So many jokes and so little space. But then again, many might be glad of it.

- NOW, AND INTO THE FUTURE -

Rocker Reece loves regional

ALEXANDRA BULL

REECE Mastin started his career on The X Factor in 2011 and 11 years on remains grateful he's still doing what he loves.

The singer and musician, currently amid an Australia-wide anniversary tour, played a sold-out show at the Renmark Hotel earlier this month.

"I did come off a TV show (and) not a lot of people get to stick around for that long," he said.

"I have worked really hard to establish myself as an artist, and it is great that I can come back 10 years down the road, still sell out shows and still get the reception we get now.

"I played in Renmark years ago and it is exciting to be back."

Mastin said he has always enjoyed playing regional shows more than city shows.

"We have had a bunch of sellout shows, which have been awesome, and really after the two years of being in lockdown I think anything was going to be great," he said.

"I think we have 48 shows booked at the moment until the end the year...

"People want to come out, and not just see the show but have a bit of fun and stuff. That's what we are there for...'

Reece, who lives in country Victoria in the Macedon Ranges, said he loves the camaraderie of towns like Renmark.

"You go to the footy every weekend, you can walk into the pub by yourself and you are bound to know someone there," he said.

"I think people are grateful they don't have to trek into those bigger cities (to see a show).

"A lot of the time when people are buying tickets, we can see they are in groups of five or 10, and I think that's the best part. Everybody kind of already knows each other in the room to some degree."

Red noses for a good cause

THE Riverland celebrated Red Nose Day last Friday, August 12, with Waikerie resident Anne Wall continuing to raise awareness on just how important the day truly is.

Mrs Wall, whose son passed away in 1993, has been involved with Red Nose Day in the Riverland since 1994.

"Red Nose Day started in South Australia in 1988 by a group of grieving parents who I guess wanted to find some answers, and formed support groups to support other parents who had lost their children to SIDS," she said.

"It has changed a lot over the years. Initially it was all about SIDS and I guess our focus has expanded a lot over the years to include families who have lost a child including anything from SIDS to stillbirth.

"Red Nose provides support and training to places like childcare centres, health services and maternity services around safe sleep practices."

Long-serving teacher leaves to pursue allied health

CHRISTINE WEBSTER

WAIKERIE Lutheran Primary School recently bid farewell to one of its longest-serving teachers.

Michelle Burns, 45, taught at the school for more than 18 years and left last term to help her mum care for her 72-yearold dad who has a rare form of Parkinson's disease.

The Eudunda-born teacher moved to the Riverland in 1999 to take up her post after graduating with a Bachelor of Education from the University of South Australia in Adelaide.

Mrs Burns' career at the school spanned five different principals and many teachers.

She also did contract work at other schools in the Riverland West after having some time off to have children. Her most recent role was as the school's learning and teaching co-ordinator.

Mrs Burns said it had been "an honour and a privilege," to have taught in such a community-orientated environment.

She said it was exciting to see the school grow and develop over almost two decades.

"I have seen lots of changes, not just building wise, but pedagogy wise," she said.

"It was sad to walk out the door. "But it was time for a change and time to spend more time with my family." Mrs Burns has enrolled in a 12-month allied health assistant course with a focus on occupational therapy.

"Hopefully it will benefit my dad who is not very well at the moment," she said.

Mrs Burns said hopefully the course would better inform her about the type of health services her father will require. She said her other goal was to perform occupational therapy work with children.

"It might benefit me in the future, either in the classroom or working individually with children," Mrs Burns said. "I am not putting teaching out of the big picture yet."

65 years of ABC Riverland

ALEXANDRA BULL

THE ABC Riverland recently celebrated its 65th anniversary, with on-air celebrations marking the special occasion.

Starting out as 5MV 1305, the ABC first went to air in the Riverland on July 31, 1957, and has been a mainstay in the community ever since.

Journalist Matt Stephens said remarkable foresight was displayed 65 years ago.

"Back then it was obviously very different to what we do now," he said.

"But... the powers that be agreed (the) service needed to be set up in the first place." The on-air celebrations were marked by appearances from former ABC employees Sally Sara, Joy Ruston and Bruce Mellett, who shared their own stories from their time at ABC Riverland.

We had Sally Sara who currently hosts The World Today, who started back here in the early '90s. We also had Joy Ruston, who pretty much did every single job there was in the station," Mr Stephens said.

"We also had a chat to Bruce Mellett who has recently just left for the second time. He retired a few years ago back in 2016, and then came back for a brief stint in content making and is heading off again, so it is lovely to catch up with him one last time just to mark the occasion."

rise by 40 cents.

Mr Stephens said he enjoyed becoming more involved with the Riverland community.

"I have lived here for more than 10 years, but it wasn't until I really got into work at the ABC that I was able to dig into the community and meet a lot of people from a lot of different backgrounds..." he said.

"You cannot live somewhere and not be in the community, whether it is from a sporting aspect, or a cultural and artistic avenue. You want to get involved, meet the people, and know the people.

"It has been wonderful over the past seven years to have had that connection to the community."

Mr Stephens said ABC Riverland was pleased with the response from listeners to its 65th anniversary segments.

"We had so many different people telling us their stories, both on the phone and via text, and we love it," he said.

"When we have that interaction from people, it is fantastic. The community really embraced what we were doing and it was wonderful to hear some of the memories and the stories of the names of people who have been through.

"You sort of forget how many people have presented over the time but they have obviously made a lasting impression, which is fantastic."

THE July meeting of the Paringa branch of Women in Agriculture and Business was held at Olivewood Museum in Renmark in the area designated for wedding dresses.

The oldest dresses displayed belonged to Adelaide Robertson, of Chowilla Station (a silk once-flowered gown worn in 1878) and Elizabeth Smith. of Warrakoo Station (green silk worn in 1883).

Members were asked to bring their own wedding memorabilia and there was a varied display of wedding gowns, veils, a cake layer, invitations and many coloured and tinted photos. Stories were shared about traditions, bridal party gifts, flowers, receptions and a granddaughter's question as to what was a "going away dress" which led to memories of honeymoons. There was an interesting mix of fabrics; one member's mother's elegant silk gown from the 1930s featured a remarkably small waist with a multitude of small silk covered buttons on the front.

and principal office bearers remained the same: Jenny Curtis (president), Heather Everingham (vicepresident), Jocie Cooper (secretary) and Ruth Patten (treasurer). A birthday cake was cut to mark the branch's 66th anniversary.

The branch was formed in 1966, with first president Jenny Sanders and secretary Gladys Stoeckel.

Next meeting will be held at Riverside Estate on Tuesday, August 23, at 10.30am, to hear guest speaker Ken Smith. Lunch will be ordered on arrival for midday.

Local wordsmith's spot on bush balladeers CD

A NEW one from the Australian Bush Balladeers Association is The Balladeers Volume 24 and as I always say, compilations are my first choice in music.

Among the 20 tracks it was good to see the Frank Turton-penned song, To Live Before I Die and Give Before I Go, get a run.

Other artists and songs chosen for this one are Tom Chesterfield – Red Belly Black Snake, Jeff Brown – After January Rains, Dianne Lindsay – Just Let Him Be, Phillip Coad – The Ballad Of The Maryborough Mill, Angus Gill -The Easy Way, Kylie Adams Collier - The Willow Weeps For Me, Marcia Armfield – Doug Walters The Cricket Star, Terry Bennetts – The Dinner Tree, Patti Morgan – The Old Cattle Dog, B-Doubles – Tell Me Tonight That You Love Me, Ernie Constance – When There's Water In Lake Eyre, Coad Sisters – Big Red, Lynette Guest & Rodney Walker - Like Rick & Thel, Geoff Williams - Ocean Fever, Ken "Chainsaw" Lindsay – Days Of Old Khancoban, Dawn Brydon – Waiting In Line, Malcolm Doyle – Little Boy Lost, Peter Coad OAM – Long Way Round, Peter Simpson & Charlie Boyter – Slim's Were The Best.

Thirteen of these tracks are either written or co-written by the singer. The CD can be purchased from the singer or through Australian Bush Balladeers Association (PO Box 90, Tamworth, 2340, NSW).

They are $26 each (posted), and you can send a cheque or money order to the above address or go online to bushballadeers.com.au and follow links (as you can pay by the PAYPAL option in this way).

The past few weeks has seen a run of losses in the country music/easylistening music, namely the deaths of Archie Roach, Judith Durham and Olivia Newton- John. Our thoughts are with their families and friends.

Numerous posts from our country music family have shown up on Facebook showing their respect, as so many of our artists have chosen careers in music because of the influence these performers had on them from their early years.

Angus Gill co-wrote his bluegrass album The Scrapbook with American songwriters. He scores a bonus when Jim Lauderdale, his co-writer of Whittling Away, joins him on that track, as does Jerry Salley, one of the co-writers on Let's Have A Drink (To Not Drinking Again).

Released last year, the album is dedicated to his Nan, Lynette Russell, and as Angus said, "flicking through those pictures of me, it'll be only her that I see every time I look in that, more than just a scrapbook".

This album has become addictive for me, partly because of the lyrics, but also the perfection of the musicianship, because I'm also a bluegrass fan. It sure was worth waiting until I caught up with Angus at Tamworth to purchase it.

The first track, Always On The Run, is a perfect choice to lead into the album as it's bright and bubbly. Forget Me Not, a touching song, is very suitable for the final track.

Samson, Caught Between A Rock And A Heartache, Feet Of Clay, Put 'Er There, Still Missing and

Heartquake are the other songs that make up this 11-track album, available on vinyl, CD, or by digital download (angusgill.com.au/shop). Receiving critical acclaim in both Australia and the USA, the album reached #1 on both the ARIA Australian Country Album Chart, and also debuted at #19 on the ARIA Top 50 Albums Charts and the AIR Independent Albums Chart.

When released as singles Whittling Away and Always On The Run both went to #1.

The following are a few quotes from industry personalities:

"Angus is one of the most creative and talented people I've ever worked with. It was an honor to get to write and sing with him. I hope we can do much more down the road." - Jim Lauderdale, a multi-Grammy-winning American singer/songwriter.

"Angus Gill is easily one of the most talented and hardest-working young men in the music business - anywhere." - American Grammy Award winning songwriter and producer, Jerry Salley.

This is not his first solo album, as it follows on from Nomad and Welcome To My Heart, while he also recorded 3 Minute Movies, a collaboration with members of Paul Kelly's band, dubbed Seasons Of Change.

Numerous artists have recorded over 25 of his songs, but his most memorable experience to date was winning the 2022 Bush Ballad Golden Guitar, along with co-writer Manfred Vijars, for The Easy Way.

Angus, 24, is quite a comedian too. I first met him at a TSA awards night at Tamworth some years ago, when he was co-hosting with Clair Hayes.

Interesting insect in spotlight at Loxton

THE role local students are playing in a project to better understand native biodiversity will be showcased at National Science Week event in Loxton this weekend.

Students from years 4, 5 and 6 at Loxton North Primary School are taking part an Australia-wide citizen science project - known as Insect Investigators - that engages primary school students to collect and identify species of bees, wasps, moths and other flying insects.

Dr Erinn Fagan-Jeffries, from the University of Adelaide, said the students captured specimens over a four-week period.

"The students used a Malaise trap to gather insects, monitoring it each week and sending in the samples to the team at Insect Investigators," she said.

"We've sorted the samples and chosen nearly 300 of their specimens to be DNA barcoded, which means sequencing a small section of the insect's genome.

"This will give us an idea of how many different species there might be, and might help us detect new species."

In addition to helping students find out more about local insects, the project will ultimately help ecologists better understand the roles that insects play in our environment.

"We estimate that only around 30 per cent of Australia's insects are formally known to science and have scientific names," Dr Fagan-Jeffries said.

"That means most insects in the country are not identifiable, and we don't know where they live and what they are doing in the environment.

"If together we can help document our biodiversity, we will be able to better understand, protect, and manage our ecosystems."

Dr Fagan-Jeffries will talk about the Insect Investigators project, its pilot study that involved both Ramco and Waikerie primary schools, and its latest results as part of a National Science Week event on Sunday, August 21.

The event will also feature a presentation about the National Malleefowl Recovery Team and its volunteers working locally and across Australia to conserve

Winter Show bodes well for Spectacular

A SUCCESSFUL entrée to the annual Riverland Orchid Spectacular was held in Barmera recently.

The Riverland Orchid Society's Winter Show was staged at the Barmera Primary School, with members displaying 97 orchids in the school hall.

The event preceded the Orchid Spectacular, to be held in the Berri Town Hall on August 27-28.

Winter Show judging was done by two visiting judges.

"The decision for grand champion was so close between two of the champions that the judges asked that 'reserve champion' be reinstated and awarded to the champion paphiopedilum," a spokesperson said.

Grand champion went to 'dendrobium', grown by Stephen and Marianne Lynch of Loveday.

Reserve champion went to Glenys Matthews of Barmera for her 'paphiopedilum unknown'. Mrs Matthews also achieved three first places and six seconds, plus a rosette for 'most points by a first-time exhibitor'.

Organisers were pleased with the interest shown by the public, many of whom travelled from Adelaide, Murray Bridge and Victor Harbor to compete.

The potting demonstrations were popular with patrons, and the trading table was well supported," the spokesperson said.

The spokesperson expected more plants to be on display at the Orchid Spectacular, moving closer to spring.

"Once again there will be potting demonstrations, plant sales, a raffle, full catering and disabled access," the spokesperson said. Inquiries can be made to the society secre-

www.murraypioneer.com.au Wednesday, August 17, 2022 NEWS 27 August 2022 Horoscopes: week 3

ARIES (March 21st - April 20th)

A positive aspect to Jupiter will help you to take events in your stride this week. You will have to take a risk in order to get what you want, but luck will be on your side. Romance. A recent admirer may have their eyes on someone else as well as you. Don't be afraid to ask a few searching questions before you get any more deeply involved.

TAURUS (April 21st - May 21st)

A discussion with a neighbour will help to clear up a disagreement which has been going on for the last few months. This will be the breakthrough that finally settles everything between you. Romance. You should be very closely in touch with your partner's emotions at the moment.

GEMINI (May 22nd - June 21st)

A get-together early in the week will have ramifications which may not be clear for some time. Be careful not to say too much to this person. Romance. A phone call will help to give your confidence a boost. You need to weigh up a lot of different issues at the moment and this new admirer will help to put you back on track.

CANCER (June 22nd - July 23rd)

Domestic chores will take up a lot of your time over the next few days. You have a lot to get through, but your energy levels are high and it shouldn't be too difficult to get everything out of the way. Romance. A very frank approach by a recent admirer will surprise you.

LEO (July 24th - August 23rd)

Don't spend too much money trying to revive a project which has already failed once. You need to focus your thoughts in a different direction entirely. Romance. A platonic relationship may suddenly become much more romantic. A meeting later in the week will be decisive, but it will be a while before you are completely clear about the situation.

VIRGO (August 24th - September 23rd)

You have several projects which you need to finish off: if you are not careful, you will have a lot of loose ends which go nowhere. Romance. Your emotions will be much stronger than usual at the moment. Be careful not to reject someone just because they get one thing wrong.

LIBRA (September 24th - October 23rd)

This might be a good time for getting new ideas off the ground. However be careful later in the week, when a powerful aspect to Saturn could make you quite negative. Romance. Don't be so keen to make a decision that you miss an important detail. A delay now will save you problems later.

SCORPIO (October 24th - November 22nd)

You might have to be a little firmer with someone who has let you down in the past. This person won't get away with it in future if you make your feelings clear now. Romance. Don't confuse your own need for security with a desire to control your partner. A bossy approach will do more harm than good.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23rd - December 21st)

Your friends may seem to be taking you for granted. Pay them less attention for a while and you will find that their attitude changes quite quickly. Romance. Time spent dealing with a personal matter will help you to understand your partner a little better. You will be surprised how much support you get.

CAPRICORN (December 22nd - January 20th)

Don't worry what other people think! You should not be afraid to step out of line and do things your own way for a change. Romance. A favourable aspect to Venus will help to put both of you in a romantic mood this week. A romantic dinner will be worth looking forward to.

AQUARIUS (January 21st - February 19th)

A colleague at work who can only see things from their own point of view won't be able to give you the advice you need. Talk to people who are better able to empathise with you. Romance. A kind gesture from your partner will show you just how much they care about you. At times you may doubt their loyalty, but not this week!

PISCES (February 20th - March 20th)

A few hours spent away from home will give you a chance to reflect on recent events. An idea which seemed to be silly at the time could be the key to getting your life back on track. Romance. Your partner may be behaving a little strangely at the moment. Try to find out what is going on.

Morgan tourism comments 'personal', not council's views

DETAILS of an article published in The Murray Pioneer recently about Mid Murray Council require clarification.

Comments by Morgan resident John Forrester in the article - headlined 'Morgan toilet fix communitydependent' and published on May 4, 2022 - about the council's delay in painting and refurbishing historic railway carriages in Morgan were Mr Forrester's personal views, and not expressed in his role as Likewise, comments made by Mr Forrester about the Mid Murray Heritage and Maritime Committee's establishment to replace the Port of Morgan Heritage and Tourism board and the Mannum Dock Museum board - contained in a story headed 'Fears districtwide tourism body will neglect Morgan' and published on May 11, 2022 - were also his personal views, not those of council.

Waikerie Ladies Probus members told to play the system

KIM Hosking, CEO of Country SA Primary Health (PHN) was guest speaker at Waikerie and District Ladies Probus Club last month.

Kim started his health career as an ambulance officer in 1981 and moved his way up through various systems to his current position.

Spending much of his time in country areas means he is aware of people's health concerns and issues. He reminded members how privileged we are in Australia with our health system, as we're not still struggling to provide fresh water, sewerage and basic care for our citizens – and our economy is in the top 20 per cent of countries despite our small population (while emphasising we can still do better).

The 31 PHNs (including two in SA) are funded by the Commonwealth government to top-up and fill gaps in health services, coordinate mental health support, assist clinicians and contractors in Aboriginal communities, support general practices, provide youth support and Telehealth services, and ensure physiotherapy, occupational therapy and podiatry services are placed where needed.

Country SA PHN has an annual budget of more than $55m and aims to achieve savings in health systems by creating efficiencies in primary health, as people who are well stay out of hospital. Kim is proud of the fact that just 20 per cent of the PHN budget goes in admin and the rest in providing services, making it the most efficient in Australia.

He explained that mental health help has always been needed and that between 2 to 4 per cent of people need regular sessions with a counsellor. He said most people's issues can be managed with one or two

It was two weeks ago I mentioned that SA Country Arts was bringing the film Euphoria to regional SA. It was disappointing for organisers that the event had only a small attendance, given its subject matter is a community concern in regional areas. The two actors were amazing. Barmera with one hand on the title

BARMERA edged closer to securing the league title with a convincing 7-2 win over Loxton last Sunday in round 13 of Riverland open men's soccer.

The all-conquering United side waltzed to victory, thanks largely to four goals from Jacob Trudgian who has been in impressive form of late.

Marty Barber, Josh Pintilie and James Wallace joined him on the scoresheet for the home side, while Jasper Hoffman netted twice for the visitors.

Barmera sits two wins clear of Renmark on top of the table and with just two rounds remaining in the season, Olympic will need a miracle to overcome the table-toppers.

The two sides go head-to-head this Sunday, with Renmark needing to win by a significant margin to keep the dream alive.

Barmera holds the advantage in goal difference by a margin of 25, meaning Renmark will need to overcome that, win its last two games and hope that Barmera loses in the last round against Berri to win the title.

It's a tall task for Ali Altundag's men, but they continued their winning run on Sunday with victory over Berri.

Chris Miller put on a masterclass up front, netting three times to claim best-on-ground honours, while Thomas Pipinis starred for Berri in the loss.

Barmera picked up yet another win in the women's division, conquering Renmark by two goals.

Barmera star Tessie Mitchell scored both and was named best in the victory, with her side just one win away from completing a clean sweep.

Kevin Barber's side has conceded just once this year and scored 71 times on its way to nine straight wins.

Meanwhile, Barmera continued its domination of the under 16s, with a 4-2 win over Loxton, while Renmark overcame Berri by one goal.

Oympic suffered just their second loss of the season in the under 14s when they went down 2-1 to Loxton, but remain comfortably clear of second-placed Berri on top of the table.

Lyrup hosts eightball doubles

WEDNESDAY night saw the Lyrup Club host the Andy Michael Memorial doubles eightball tournament, with 32 pairs in action.

The final saw two clubmates go head-tohead, with Stephen Kruger of Cobby Roos and Peter Kennedy of the Barmera Pelicans taking on Lynette Barker (Lyrup Club) and John Harding (Barmera Pelicans). The match was a thriller that went down to the wire, with Kennedy and Kruger eventually emerging 2-1 victors.

Meanwhile, Matthew Recchia, of Paringa Bushy, and Dane Carroll, of the Monash Rascals, took out the consolation plate prize, edging ahead of Cobdogla duo Daniel Jansen and Aiden Pedersen in the final.

Morgan the 'northern hub' for air rifle

BEN LENNON

THE Morgan Sporting Complex clubrooms have undergone a plethora of changes in recent months, with the Morgan Small Bore Rifle Club setting up shop for good ahead of a busy few years.

The clubrooms were once inhabited by the now-defunct Morgan Cadell Football Club, but 13 years later, the club is home to an air rifle range.

Rifle club secretary David Klemm said the changes would allow the club to become the state's "northern hub" for air rifle action.

'There's one down south at Reynella and one in Adelaide at Wingfield, so we want Morgan to be the northern hub," Mr Klemm said.

"Anyone from Renmark right through to Kapunda or 'Nuri' can come here and learn air rifle, which is an Olympic sport. Previously they would need to head down to Adelaide for that."

The club took its first step towards introducing the sport to the region when it hosted a come and try day recently, in conjunction with the Scouts SA Target Sport Group.

Over 60 people turned out to try their hand at various target sports, with Mr Klemm "over the moon" at the amount of interest shown by visitors.

"The weekend was really geared towards having a bit of all over I had the biggest smile fun and trying out something new," Mr Klemm said.

"The Scouts brought up an inflatable archery range and some laser rifles as well, which were brand new. "With those, you just point and shoot and it's good for training because you can use them anywhere, there's no bullets or lead involved. "We progressed the ones that were old enough on to air rifles from there. "I couldn't believe the response we had.

[•]I was doing the coaching on the air rifles and once I started, I didn't stop, it was that busy.

"When I sat down after it was on my face."

Mr Klemm believes that, with these new facilities, the club will be able to offer an alternative to the mainstream sports for young people in the region.

"There's no football or anything here for the kids, but also there's kids everywhere that maybe don't want to play football or other sports like that," Mr Klemm said.

"Coming up in the new year we're hopeful that Target Rifle SA will bring up their elite squad for some training.

"The Scouts as well definitely want to come back next year, which is great."

Eagles take out top-two darts clash

LAST week's round of Riverland darts saw the competition's top two sides go head-to-head, with Cobby Eagles taking on RC Ones.

Cobby went into the clash as favourites, having occupied the top of the table for most of the season, and was able to claim the victory over RC Ones in a tight affair.

The final scoreline of 13-2 failed to reflect how close the contest was, with nine games going the full three legs.

Eagles' star Ray Stemp picked up the highest peg-out of the night with 140 and managed a high average of 21.41.

His teammate, Darren Parfitt, also put in a strong showing, finishing the night with an average of 20.20.

Meanwhile, Monash Wanderers were able to hold off Expendables to pick up a 13-2 win.

Calib Martin top-scored for the night, registering two maximum 180s.

Riverland events backed for 2022-23

ELYSE ARMANINI and BEN LENNON

TWO annual Riverland events are set to receive $5000 boosts, thanks to a regional tourism funding scheme.

The Riverland Rose and Garden Festival and the Riverland Dinghy Derby will be supported through the 2022-23 Regional Event Fund – managed by the South Australian Tourism Commission (SATC).

Rose and Garden Festival committee president Richard Fewster said while the committee was "disappointed" to miss the $20,000 in funding it applied for, the $5000 grant would be "put to good use".

"Sponsorship is vitally important for the running of the Festival as there are few areas where revenue can be generated to meet the costs of running the event," Mr Fewster said.

"We are lucky that our regular major sponsors have continued their support, with $5000 coming from both Renmark Paringa and Berri Barmera Council and $3000 from the Loxton Waikerie Council, plus $3500 from new sponsor, Neutrog.

"(However), trimming our budget will mean we will not be able to go ahead with our planned upgrading and new street banners in each town, or a more aggressive interstate advertising program."

Riverland Dinghy Club secretary Sue Jenke said the funding would be used to promote the club and the Dinghy Derby.

"Last year we invested in an event information marquee so that we had a visible presence at all race events," Ms Jenke said.

"Just as important as the amount of funding you receive is the information and opening of avenues of speaking to likeminded people.

"The assistance from organisations like Tourism SA... can provide other opportunities to link into other training options."

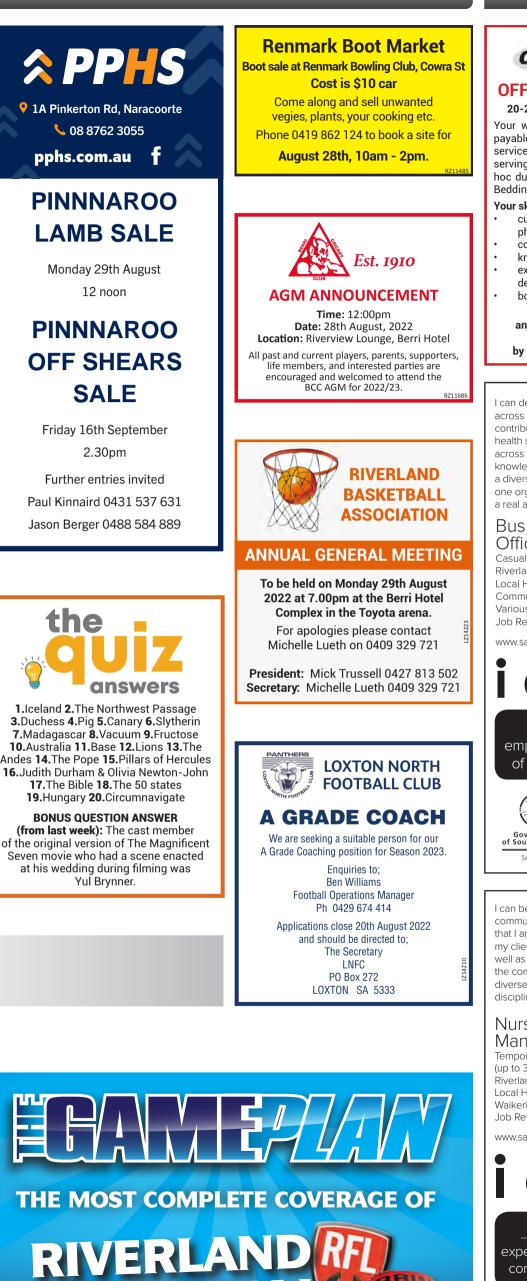

Ms Jenke said the data evaluation of this year's Dash/Derby weekend reflected 9363 beds and just under $1.35m in new state expenditure.

A second round of 2022-23 applications for the Regional Event Fund is now open and closes on Friday, September 30 at 5pm. For more information visit the SATC

THE final round of the RFL Independent home and away season is in the books, with two sides pulling on the boots for the final time this season last Saturday.

Ramco and Paringa, which finished fifth and sixth respectively, both failed to qualify for finals after a testing year, while BSR, Sedan-Cambrai, Wunkar and Brown's Well will all take the field this weekend.

The Swans bowed out for 2022 against Brown's Well at Paruna as part of the third double-header of the season.

Peter Siddall's team fell behind early before pulling the margin back to just eight points at the halfway point of the fixture.

But, with their finals spot on the line, the Bombers were able to pull away once again in front of a boisterous home crowd.

The home side booted nine second-half goals to secure the points and ensure it would finish the season in fourth place.

Club president James Shannon was instrumental in the victory after putting in a strong performance from the back pocket, while Harrison Chandler did the damage at the other end, booting four goals.

Haimish Sanford and Fraser Peters were able to get their hands on the footy thanks to the strong work of Isaac Frahn in the ruck for the visitors, but the trio failed to drag their side over the line.

Dean Hill and Brock Morey kicked two goals each in the loss, with the former finishing with 43 majors for the season after making the switch from Wunkar earlier in the year.

Meanwhile, Ramco finished its season with a 43-point loss against Sedan-Cambrai.

The reigning premier has struggled with player numbers and availability for much of the year and, despite some promising signs, never truly threatened the top three sides in the competition.

Max Baddack finished off a strong personal season with three goals in the loss, while Sedan-Cambrai's Jack Grace kicked another bag, finishing the day with five majors.

Grace finished the season just five goals shy of BSR's Jake Medhurst in the race for leading goal-kicker honours, but played two games less than the Redback.

Cameron Thompson was named best for the Magpies, who will take on BSR next weekend for a spot in the grand final.

The Redbacks finished off their season in style, securing their undefeated home and away record with a win over Wunkar.

Midfielder Matt Clark shone in difficult conditions, booting two goals in a low-scoring affair that saw BSR emerge victorious by 16 points.

Thomas Dejager battled hard for Wunkar, as did Jack Bobliak and Alex Kelly-O'Sullivan in defence, but the class of the minor premiers showed across the four quarters.

Ruckman Jack Orr was able to give his midfielders first-look at the footy, while James Mapstone curtailed many Wunkar attacks at half-back, while launching plenty of his own.

The season is far from over for the Bulldogs, with Tom Wood's men set to tackle Brown's Well this weekend in a do-or-die semi-final at Cambrai.

Renmark runs riot against Roos

RENMARK has ended its RFL A grade home and away season on a high, comfortably defeating Barmera-Monash by 102 points at the Lakeside last weekend.

Both teams entered the match with little to gain, with neither side able to move up or down the ladder regardless of the result.

Renmark secured the minor premiership the week prior, while Barmera-Monash has been locked in to fifth spot on the table for some time now after a disappointing year.

Corey Gilgen's side has failed to beat anyone outside of Loxton North and the trend continued in emphatic fashion in the side's final game of the year.

Renmark started fast, booting five first-quarter goals to Barmera-Monash's one, before adding another two in the second term to go into half time with a 41-point advantage.

Little changed in the second half, with Renmark kicking a further 13 majors to Barmera's two.

The visitors' midfield established early dominance, with ruckman Zac Gartery able to get his hand on the ball first and feed the experienced Rover midfield.

Tim Woolford was one of the beneficiaries, with the reigning Whillas Medallist able to gather a number of possesions and even make a dent on the scoreboard, booting two majors in the victory.

Ben Drogemuller and Sam Butterworth battled hard in the Barmera engine room, as they have done all year, but Renmark was relentless as it charged towards finals football.

1 Drew Kassulk

Ricky Garrett and Matt Woolford also profited from Gartery's expert work, with Garrett also making a difference up forward, kicking three goals.

The Barmera-Monash backline struggled to repel the Renmark onslaught, with youngster Blake Kassulke offering the most resistance.

In a breakout game, he was named best on a difficult day for Barmera, while Renmark forwards Tim Blight and Grady Obst were included in the best players for Josh Vater's side.

Vater has spoken of his side's need to bring its best form into finals in recent weeks and will be happy with the four-quarter performance from his troops.

The reigning premier will take on Waikerie next week in the second semi-final, with a spot in the grand final guaranteed for the winner.

The Roos, by contrast, will not suit up again in 2022 in both the A grade and reserves competitions, with the latter failing to win a game all season.

Gilgen's group lacks depth, but the good news for supporters is that all three junior teams were able to secure a spot in the finals, with the under 13s particularly impressive, having not dropped a game all season.

Tim Woolford (middle) was named best for Renmark on the weekend, while brothers Matt (left) and Dan featured prominently in the win over Barmera-Monash. PHOTOS: Grant Schwartzkopff

Tim Blight kicked two goals in the side's victory and was named in the best players, after an influential performance up forward.

B GRADE

AFTER losing just two games for the year, Loxton was able to secure top spot in the RFL B grade after defeating Waikerie last weekend.

The Tigers finished the season on 26 points with an impressive percentage of 261.7 and boast a plethora of experienced RFL A graders within their ranks.

Nathan Flight has been a dominant force up forward since coming down from the firsts, kicking 59 goals in his seven B grade appearances.

Snapping at their heels is Berri, with the pair set to do battle in just over a week in the second semifinal.

Renmark and Loxton North will go head-to-head in this Saturday's first semi-final, with the Panthers boasting a home-ground advantage despite finishing lower on the ladder.

Aaron Camplin has had fewer players at his disposal than years gone by and will have to do it the hard way if the Rovers are to retain the premiership.

Waikerie finished the season in fifth spot, with its only wins coming against Barmera-Monash, as the Roos completed the unwanted achievement of going an entire season without a victory.

UNDER 18S

The top junior grade is arguably the most competitive of the bunch, with all four finalists a genuine chance at premiership glory.

Nathan Flight has been unstoppable for the Loxton B grade since dropping down from the A grade earlier in the season, booting 59 goals in just seven games. PHOTO: Grant Schwartzkopff Loxton North finished on top of the table after a strong season, despite losing its last two matches against Waikerie and Berri.

Still, the Panthers will be tough to beat and will be out for revenge when they take on Waikerie in the second semi-final.

The Magpies stormed home to clinch second position, finishing ahead of Berri in third by just two points.

AROUND THE GROUNDS

The Demons will need to defeat Barmera-Monash this Saturday if they are to retain the premiership and the Roos will go into the clash confident, having defeated Berri when the two last met in round 12.

Loxton finished the season in last place, winning just one game for the year, while Renmark missed out on finals in dramatic fashion.

The Rovers occupied a spot in the top four for most of the campaign but lost their last four matches in a row, which saw them slip to fifth position, missing the finals completely.

UNDER 15S

It would take a bold tipster to predict anything but a Berri premiership in the under 15s, but stranger things have happened.

The Demons enter the finals with a stellar home-and-away record, winning 14 out of a possible 15 games.

The side's only loss came all the way back in round eight when it was bested by Loxton by seven points.

Renmark occupies second spot on the ladder, finishing the season with an 11-4 record.

The two sides will meet in the second semi-final, after Berri emerged victorious by 39 points when the two last locked horns.

Barmera-Monash and Loxton will do battle this weekend in the first semi-final, with the pair finishing third and fourth respectively. The loser will bow out for the 2022 season, while the winner will enjoy a week off before facing the loser of Berri and Renmark.

Loxton North can count itself unlucky to not be playing finals, after it finished the season with a

6-9 record, while Waikerie ended the campaign without a win. UNDER 13S

The Barmera-Monash under 13s have been the most dominant force in RFL football this year, mathematically speaking.

The side boasts the best record of all the RFL grades and comfortably holds the best percentage (1567.06 per cent, 1332 for, 85 against).

Still, it all counts for nothing when the side matches up against Renmark in just over a week.

The Rovers have been the second best side in the competition throughout the year, losing just one match outside of their clashes with the Roos.

Waikerie and Loxton North finished the year in third and fourth, with the two clubs locked on 16 points heading into this weekend's first semi-final.

Berri picked up three wins for the season and finished the year in fifth, ahead of the Tigers, who were unable to register a win in 2022.

Harvey's heroes: How the Redbacks went from easybeats to invincibles

WHEN Alan Harvey took over as BSR coach late last year, he inherited a team that hadn't played a finals match in over half a decade.

Fast forward nine months and the Redbacks have finished the 2022 season as minor premiers, with an impeccable record of 15 wins and zero losses.

They now stand just two wins away from achieving the ultimate and only the brave would tip against them on current form.

Harvey, who has spent time coaching at various levels across South Australia, predictably stated that the success of the minor rounds this season has "exceeded all expectations".

"It's not just the playing group but the club in general," he said.

"I go into each new job with a lot of research done on the year before, so from last year's scores compared to this year, there's been a rapid turnaround.

"I'm extremely happy."

When Harvey took over the reins he preached a strong fitness-first stance, which is something he believes has made a "massive difference" throughout the campaign.

"The fitness has been the key for me," he said.

"Talking to opposition coaches over the last few weeks, they're now pointing that out as the difference as well.

"We were struck down with a lot of injuries last year. Matt Clark I think only played three or four games because he was constantly doing calves and hamstrings.

"So, my focus was to get us really fit and I made that statement early on.

"The other thing has been our brand. We always look to attack and then defend sides depending on how they play, so the fitness and the game brand has made the difference."

Along with Harvey came a host of recruits, including mercurial midfielder Cam Horstmann and the ever-reliable Mapstone brothers.

But, Harvey heralded the players that weren't initially penciled in to get a game each week in the early stages as the major improvers of the year.

"The group has improved out of sight," he said.

"There were probably five or six blokes that would lock themselves in to that side at the start of the year but as we've gone on, it's the blokes that maybe aren't as talented but have plenty of heart and motivation that are getting picked before those blokes.

"Chris Giles is one of our older heads and is one that has had a sensational last six or so weeks.

"He was starting on the bench as our rotating backman and now he's actually starting

After missing the finals for over half a decade, BSR will head into the 2022 post-season as heavy favourites, having won every game of the minor round. PHOTO: Grant Schwartzkopff week in and week out.

"Shannon Tanner is another one because we all know he's got the ability and all the rest of it, but he's a really quiet bloke.

"In the last month I've seen him come out of his shell like there's no tomorrow and it's really showing in his footy."

It hasn't been all plain sailing for the Redbacks, with the past month bringing a host of challenges and some close encounters on the field.

"To be totally honest, the last month has been the most challenging of the whole year and even in previous jobs I've had, it's still up there in terms of difficulty," Harvey said.

"It's been tough trying to motivate the boys and get everyone to training and all the rest of it and numbers dropped off a little bit. "They're back up now though with finals and now it's just a new challenge for us." BSR takes on Sedan-Cambrai in the second semi-final this weekend, with a spot in the grand final guaranteed for whichever side comes out on top.

Double chance for the Magpies

BEN LENNON

WAIKERIE has managed to hit form at the right time, running out comfortable winners in one of the most important matches of the RFL A grade season last Saturday.

The 49-point win over Loxton saw the Magpies leapfrog their opponents into second spot, securing the double chance once again as the competition moves into its final four weeks of action.

The Tigers will now have to do it the hard way if they are to break their premiership drought, with an elimination semi-final against Berri this Saturday facing Dillon Millard's men.

The afternoon started with plenty of promise for the Tigers, with the travelling side dominating the early stages despite failing to hit the scoreboard.

Waikerie's back six held firm in the midst of a plethora of Loxton forward entries and the Magpies soon turned defence into attack, with midfielder Brendon Moon opening the scoring for the day with a major.

Millard was left to rue these missed early opportunities, as the Tigers struggled to make a dent in the attacking half for the remainder of the opening term, finishing the quarter with just two behinds.

"It was really just a couple of goals," he said.

"Had we scored a bit more early it might've shifted momentum a bit, so (the loss) had a lot to do with that."

Waikerie was beginning to hit its straps, with coach Shayne Stevens finally able to play his desired starting 18 after a topsy-turvy season on both the injury and availability front.

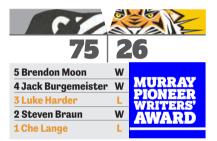

Jack Burgemeister and Dustin Gordon were working well as a forward tandem and provided plenty of options up forward for the midfielders to pick out.

The sides broke even in the second term, before Waikerie edged away in the so-called 'premiership quarter', kicking three goals to Loxton's one.

Still, in a low-scoring contest, the Tigers were far from out of the match but needed to start the final quarter strongly.

However, it was all Waikerie in the early stages of the last quarter and before long, Loxton had conceded defeat, with a number of senior players headed for the bench.

"I think we can put it down to a bit of a down day and obviously there's a few things there for us to look at and get better at as well," Millard said of the loss.

"We just want to start fresh this week and take a couple of things out of it to see if we can get back on top.

"We'll have a look at the tape, see what Waikerie do and then we'll work out what we can do different next time."

Luke Harder and Lachie Evans were named best for the Tigers, with the former playing predominantly through midfield in the contest, as well as spending some time as the main forward target.

Evans gathered a number of disposals on the wing but, along with the Loxton midfield, was unable to create enough scoring chances for his side.

Youngster Harley Campbell came on midway through the first term and added a touch of class for the visitors, rarely missing a target and slotting one of Loxton's three majors for the match.

Stevens will be pleased with his side's resilience in the early stages, with Steven Braun and Stephen Hausler excelling inside the back 50.

Youngster Jack Colbert jumped well throughout the contest in the ruck and was a significant part of Waikerie's midfield dominance.

Tim Bevan celebrated his 200th game in style, putting in a workmanlike shift in the middle of the ground and even sneaking forward to kick two late goals, while the Spencely brothers, Matt and Jake, were busy accumulating touches all day.

The win means Waikerie now has a week to recuperate before taking on familiar foe Renmark for a spot in the grand final, while Loxton's season hangs by a thread ahead of its clash with Berri on Saturday.

But, a win for the Tigers will give them a much-needed rest ahead of a preliminary final showdown against the loser of Waikerie and Renmark.

Panthers end winless streak

BEN LENNON

THE longest winless streak in Riverland footy came to an end last weekend when Loxton North triumphed over Berri in Brett Tschirpig's final game as RFL A grade coach.

Loxton North was approaching the threeyear mark without a victory, with its previous win coming in the first semi-final of 2019 against Barmera-Monash, 1077 days earlier.

The win followed a string of encouraging but ultimately disappointing performances from the Panthers, with the side snatching defeat from the jaws of victory multiple times in the past month.

So, when the home side had the lead at Panther Park at the final change, the North faithful were predictably anxious, as was Tschirpig.

"I was sitting there when there was 15 minutes gone in the last and just thinking 'hurry up'," Tschirpig said.

"We came out at half time and I said to them that you just need to kick the first one and not let them get a run-on, which we were able to do.

"Then, at three quarter time, I just told them to continue to play the kind of footy that we are and to not go back into our shells.

"With about 15 or so gone, the runner went out to say that we need to keep to the boundary and play it smart to hold on and win, which we were able to do."

North's veterans starred in the victory, with Joel Worsfold putting in a man-of-thematch performance.

He and fellow star Tyson Kent were able to win the midfield battle and ensure that the Panthers tasted success for the first time this year.

But, the duo was not alone, with a host of youngsters aiding the veterans throughout the contest.

"Getting Codi Voumard back into the side after he was out for the majority of the year was good, because it just gave us another focal point at half forward and he works really hard," Tschirpig said.

"Joel Worsfold's last month and a half has been almost his best form for the year.

"Obviously, Tyson (Kent) missing four weeks or so didn't help us, so it was good to get that bit of speed back.

"The young kids have got a bit of game time under them now, so it all helps. Matthew Hampel went down in the first 10 minutes so we had to shuffle it around and threw Judd (Tschirpig) in the ruck as a 19-year-old and he did a good job.

"We even had Ben Grieger in his last game of A grade footy in the ruck as well, so it was good."

Berri coach Clint Ridgway was full of praise for the home side and admitted that his group "didn't come to play".

"They were definitely on and it was one of those days where we were probably just worried about getting through unscathed," he said.

"We gave a few different blokes a run and left guys like Jason Westley out of the side so they could stay fresh but, we didn't come to play, to be honest.

They played really well and you look across their side, it's probably the best team they've fielded all year.

"Joel (Worsfold) is probably hitting his straps now and that's the first time I've seen them with Grieger in the side, so they looked a different team out there."

Mercurial midfielder Matt Hodge was named best for the Demons, while Tom Jolly and Rory Moroney booted two goals each in the loss.

Although he won't be returning for the 2023 season, Tschirpig is full of hope for North's future and is keen to play his role in ensuring the club moves up the ladder in 2023.

"We've got a recruiting committee as well that I started last year to help," he said.

"We're already onto that and it's working and we're trying to secure anyone coming into town, or figure out if there's someone else we need to get in the future.

"That's all going to be there for whoever comes in to take on the role, so it will be a big help.

"It's just good for the group to get that win and if we've got 12-15 blokes that want to stick around, it's something we can build on over the next few years.

"We've got some good under 18s coming through that will be able to play A grade footy if they put their mind to it, so the club is in a reasonable spot."

Celebrations at the club went well into the night and understandably so, with the win North's first since before the pandemic hit.

"It was really good and honestly it's just a relief for everybody and for myself to be able to get that win in our last game," Tschirpig said.

North recruit Bradman Pfitzner gets a kick away under pressure from Berri's Isaac Woolston.

Coach Tschirpig's son Judd (pictured competing against Berri's Tom Finlay) was thrust into the ruck in the early stages of the match after an injury to Matthew Hampel.

Cut-throat encounter at Panther Park

WHILE the new RFL A grade finals structure has been a talking point in recent weeks, this Saturday the talking stops, as Loxton and Berri lock horns in a do-ordie first semi-final.

Both sides enter the clash off the back of disappointing results, with Loxton going down to Waikerie and Berri losing to Loxton North, both away from home.

The sides have met on three occasions this year, with the Tigers coming out on top twice, but all three fixtures were decided by less than two kicks.

It looks to be an even contest around the ground and Loxton coach Dillon Millard is "looking forward" to the challenge.

"I'm kind of liking that we're going into a do-or-die situation for us," he said.

"Had we won against Waikerie we would've been thinking that we can afford to lose a game, but now we know we have to win, so we need to be on top of our game.

"That's what we're really relying on.

"We want to be our best and we know that Berri is going to come out and it's going to be tight. So, we just need to make sure we get everything we've been working on right and try to play our best footy."

His opposite number Clint Ridgway also expressed his excitement and believes his side "matches up well" against the Loxton outfit that spent most of the season inside the top two.

"Like I've always said, we're pretty confident

UP FOR GRABS: Loxton and Berri will clash in the RFL A grade's do-or-die first semi-final at Loxton North this Saturday. PHOTO: Grant Schwartzkopff against Loxton," Ridgway said.

"It's do-or-die, so we just have to back our game in.

"It's probably going to be interesting on a bigger oval out at Loxton North...

"It's probably a bit different, but I think our matchups are pretty even across the board.

'There's not really any quick forwards and we have a pretty tall defence, especially with Brody Thompson back in the side, it allows (Tom) Finlay to go back after playing in the ruck recently.

"Even up forward we match up pretty well. Dillon Millard is probably their tallest defender and we don't really have a big, tall forward, so it works out well."

Loxton midfielder Will Gutsche has been redhot this year and has been named in the best players in 11 of his 14 outings.

He, alongside veteran Luke Harder and skipper Jesse Will, pose a great threat to Berri, but Ridgway is confident his side has the formula for victory.

"If we can stop Harder then I think we're a good chance, because he's the key to Loxton in our eyes," he said.

"He doesn't spend much time in the midfield against

Mouth-watering Independent semi-finals loom us, he usually gets the whole 50 to himself.

"In the first game we dropped Peter Safralidis in front of him and then the second time we put Evan Penaluna in front of him, so we've always done our best to double-team him and cut off their supply to him as best we can.'

Berri boasts some stars of its own, with midfielders Matt Hodge and Luke Teasdale both producing stellar home and away seasons. Ridgway said Whillas Medallist Safralidis would be the only regular to miss the clash, while Millard remains hopeful of having a full list to choose from.

"We've got a couple of question marks, but we just need to see come the end of the week how guys have pulled up," Millard said.

"But, we're going into the match at roughly full strength."

Sedan-Cambrai co-captain Jack Schultz will play a vital role in his side's 2022 finals campaign. PHOTOS: Grant Schwartzkopff

A PAIR of mouth-watering contests headlines the first week of finals football in the RFL Independents, with two semi-finals to be played at Cambrai on Saturday.

BSR, Sedan-Cambrai, Wunkar and Brown's Well are all set to take the field, with the latter two in action in a do-ordie first semi-final.

True to their name, the Bombers have come from the clouds to storm into the top four and go into the clash having won their last outing against Paringa last Saturday.

Aaron Bullard's side picked up its first win in almost three years in round eight when it defeated Ramco by 139 points.

The Bombers then won three of their next seven matches which, along with two Covidcancelled clashes, was enough to see them leapfrog Paringa and Ramco into the top four.

At the heart of their resurgence has been talismanic half forward Maxwell Fitzgerald, who has been named in the best players in eight of his 13 appearances, booting 37 goals along the way. Complementing him well has been the midfield combination of Digby McNeil and Blake

Wunkar forward Tyson Renshaw.

Edmonds who, alongside ruckman Brian 'Rowdy' Hampel, have been able to control games from the inside.

They pose a major threat to an inconsistent Wunkar side that will be ruing missed opportunities from earlier in the year.

Tom Wood's men have looked like a force to be reckoned with at times, particularly against the lower sides, but have failed to match it with the top two, going down at every attempt against Sedan and BSR.

The Bulldogs even suffered defeat against their opponents this weekend when they were shocked by Brown's Well in round 11.

Still, they possess a number of threats and a strong defensive half.

Skipper John Wiseman has enjoyed an impressive season, as has vice-captain Marc Worsfold.

In Lee Verrall they have arguably the most reliable centre half back in the competition and Tyson Renshaw packs a punch up forward.

That round 11 clash was the last time these two met, with Wunkar surely out for revenge in this elimination semi-final.

The second semi-final sees the competition's top two sides go head-to-head, with BSR taking on Sedan-Cambrai.

The undefeated Redbacks have had a patchy winter, with a number of close calls coming in the back-end of the minor round.

But, coach Alan Harvey believes this is something his troops will be able to draw on throughout the finals.

"The last few weeks, we've only just been getting over the line so I think it's actually got our mindset right coming in to finals," he said.

"We've beaten everyone we can in the minor rounds but it's essentially a new season of footy for us now. We're re-setting. Harvey said the team would be put through "a hard session" of training this week.

"It won't be hard gut-running or anything, more so just to make sure our structures and our game plan is on point and everyone knows what we're working towards," he said.

The Magpies have the most potent forward line in the competition, with Jack Grace, Cameron Thompson and Jackson Le Couteur combining for over 120 goals this campaign.

But, Harvey is confident his team has what it takes to get the win over the "seasoned professionals" of Sedan-Cambrai.

"They've played finals for a few years now and have even been there on the last day a few times, so they know how to get it done," he said.

"We expect them, on their home deck and in front of their home fans, to come out firing.

"I just think we match up on them really well. We seem to get them on the outside, whereas they like playing an inside game. So, if we can keep the ball out wide I'm very confident we can get over the line."

THE Renmark Small Bore Rifle Club hosted a 50-metre shoot last week, with five competitors braving the weather.

As the wind picked up, so too did the form of Brenton Lacey, whose straight-shooting earned him both the off-rifle and handicap honours.

He was closely followed by Mark Cresp, who finished in second place with a score of 199. Rob Ward rounded out the podi-

Waikerie returns to winners' list

WAIKERIE returned to winning Loxton/Renmark side, with the ways after its last-start loss, welcoming back a number of key players for its clash with Berri in Riverland men's A grade hockey last weekend.

Rowan Hope netted a hat-trick in the 7-2 victory, while Daniel and Nathan Schmidt scored twice each in a convincing performance from the ladder-leaders.

Lachlan Stokes was named best for Berri, with the goalkeeper stopping the scoreline from reaching a double-digit differential.

Both of Berri's goals were scored by veteran Dan Shawyer, who was also named in the side's best players for the day.

Meanwhile, the goals were shared as Renmark stormed to victory in its clash with Loxton.

Singles from Nick Hocking, Josh Flemming, Shaun Crouch and Rydan Radloff were enough for Renmark to overcome a determined Loxton outfit.

Dan Schubert and James Haslett hit the scoresheet for Loxton, with the latter named best for his side in the loss.

Berri had more luck in the under 17s, defeating Waikerie by one goal on Friday night, with Kye Stokes on the scoresheet.

The team then had to back up the performance the following day with a match against the combined latter emerging victorious by two goals courtesy of Harrison Cooper and Cody Hennig.

In the women's division, Berri continued to take all before it, with the A grade side putting seven goals past Waikerie.

Amahli Kelly was the star of the show, netting five times in the contest, while Dakota O'Callaghan and Krista Schmidt added singles.

O'Callaghan found the net twice earlier in the day during the under 17s as she helped Berri secure a 4-0 victory over Waikerie.

Renmark, Loxton the teams to beat

WHEN the final round of the Riverland A1 netball home-andaway season ended last Friday, Renmark and Loxton solidified their spots at the top of the table.

Both teams registered convincing wins in the last round of regular season action, with Loxton particularly dominant against Waikerie at Waikerie.

The home side spent the entire season rooted to the bottom of the table in what has been a tough return to A1 action.

But, in its final match for the year, it went toe-to-toe with one of the competition's best and held its own throughout the first quarter.

Youngster Chelsea Helbig showed her ability, putting in a strong showing in the goal circle, while veteran Hannah Lehmann exhibited her class throughout the contest, despite the talented opposition.

The first break saw the home side trailing by just three goals, but Loxton upped the ante in the second term, restricting Waikerie to 10 goals while scoring 19 of its own.

Mackella Hogan dominated the goal circle for Loxton, as she has done for most of the season.

The sharpshooter registered 61 goals in the contest after Loxton continued to control the match following the main break.

Elise Foulds was named as the travelling side's best player after a strong performance, with the win solidifying the team's spot in second place, setting up a clash with Renmark this Friday night.

Renmark was able to overcome a resilient Barmera outfit last week to run out 13-goal winners.

Both sides welcomed back formidable players, with Lauren Collins returning to the Renmark line-up and Tahlia Dillon back from the ankle injury that has plagued her second half of the year.

Collins didn't miss a beat in her return, with her playmaking abilities on full display in the victory.

With just seconds to go in the match, Berri was able to hit the front and managed to slow down the Loxton North attack and claim a memorable win.

Lana Gregoric and Giorgia Whitehead were named best for the victors after a classy display in the goal circle.

Loxton North's Georgia Brown excelled in the centre position and was a major part of her side's attacking output.

Berri finishes the season in fifth place and will rue missed opportunities earlier in the season, with performances in the past fortnight showing it can match it with the competition's best.

Despite the loss, Loxton North will taste finals action this year as it takes on Barmera this Friday night in the first semi-final.

WWW.murraypioneer.com.au Wednesday, August 17, 2022 SPORT 47 Finals time for Riverland netball The A1 finals

AFTER 15 minor rounds, the Riverland Netball Association is set for a bumper finals series, with all grades in action this weekend.

The A1 division headlines Friday night, with two semi-finals set to be played concurrently at The Precinct.

Kicking off at 7pm, Renmark and Loxton will go head-to-head in a battle between the competition's two best sides of the regular season.

Loxton enters the clash with all the momentum and a distinct home-court advantage, but Renmark has been the benchmark of the competition for many years and will go into the clash full of confidence.

Since welcoming Emily Beaton back to the line-up midway through the year, Loxton has barely missed a beat, winning its past eight matches and storming into second place.

Meanwhile, Renmark has endured patchy form of late but the return of Lauren Collins in last week's round will give the reigning premier plenty of confidence heading into Friday evening.

The other court will host a clash between Barmera and Loxton North, with both sides coming off a loss in last week's round.

The return of Tahlia Dillon was not enough for Barmera to overcome a rampant Renmark, while Loxton North went down in dramatic fashion against nonfinalist Berri, losing by just one goal.

Georgia Brown has been the key to the majority of Loxton North wins this year and will again play a vital role in the mid-court for the fourth-placed side.

Barmera will be relying on its mix of youth and experience, with youngsters Paris Lawrie and Dillon leading the charge.

The two matches will be followed by the A2 finals, which sees Berri pitted against Renmark in a top-of-the-table clash and Loxton North and Barmera facing off in an elimination semi-final.

The competition then heads to Renmark on Saturday where the best two teams in each of the junior grades, as well as the B and C grade seniors, will face off in the second semi-finals, before third takes on fourth in each grade on Sunday at Loxton North.

Finals fever

AFTER months of weekly minor round fixtures, the best of the best will don their club colours to go head-to-head in Riverland finals action this weekend.

It all kicks off on Friday night in Riverland A1 netball, with two concurrent games at The Precinct set to shape the rest of the season.

Loxton North takes on Barmera in a do-or-die first semi-final, while Renmark and Loxton face off for a spot in the grand final.

As for footy, all eyes will be on Loxton North, where Berri and Loxton will clash to see which team's season ends and which team moves on to the preliminary final.
