The wine warning

HUGH SCHUITEMAKER

RIVERLAND wine grape growers have been advised by their peak representative body, and senior local politicians, that realistic expectations and business decisions are required before the next vintage.

Riverland Wine today released a statement asking members to "carefully consider their business models and make balanced, financially viable decisions heading into vintage 2026".

Riverland Wine general manager Alex Cannon-Leyson said "time is running out for many regional wine businesses and action is needed now".

"With the expectation that water prices and other input costs will also increase during the growing season ahead, the immediate future looks very challenging for many of the local growers and wine businesses," Ms Cannon-Leyson said.

"Riverland Wine cannot provide advice on case-by-case situations, but we can help collate information and present measured and unbiased facts, allowing growers and wineries to make balanced business deci-

"With wine consumption in regular decline and wine stocks in oversupply globally, it's time for growers, winemakers and the community to start considering how they can make positive and lasting change for the region.

"If you are a grape grower, start by talking to the wineries that buy your grapes and then consider talking to other key business stakeholders - like your irrigation trust or water broker, service providers, fertiliser and chemical suppliers and potentially seek professional financial advice. If you are a winery, consider engaging with your grower base as soon as practically possible, to provide clear direction on price and demand."

Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone said financial uncertainty surrounding grape growing and wine production was pressuring many Riverland families.

"As I drive around the region taking note of the impacts of drought, the wine grape sector is slowly making some very-sobering decisions, "Mr Whetstone

"For those that are prepared to continue, pruning has started, but many growing families are still weighing up their options. Riverland Wine has made some informed observations, (and) I urge growers to weigh up their options to plan for the season ahead.

'My conversations with wineries, marketing experts, industry professionals is quite consistent to what many already know. My ask is, when making a tough decision, be prepared, be informed and do it with family doing the same thing and expect a different result, you're kidding yourself."

Riverland-based MLC, and opposition spokesperson for regional South Australia, Nicola Centofanti said further support measures were needed for the state's wine industry to overcome current challenges.

"Riverland Wine is right to encourage informed and rational decision-making, but let's be clear: growers are being forced to make impossible decisions," Dr Centofanti said.

"Input costs - fertiliser, chemicals, energy, and water - are all rising, and are being fuelled by... policy settings, whether it's energy policy that drives up power bills, biosecurity costshifting, or water policy that lacks any certainty or long-term direction for irrigators.

"These aren't just numbers on a balance sheet. They're livelihoods, they're family businesses, they're regional communities and they deserve better.

"Growers and winemakers need urgent support and a serious strategy to manage structural oversupply, market access challenges, and the cost-of-doingbusiness crisis gripping our regions."

Ms Cannon-Leyson said Riverlanders choosing to support local wineries were also benefitting the wider industry.

"If you reside in the Riverland, and are not directly impacted by the wine industry, you can still support the sector by drinking locally grown Riverland wines," she said.

Riverland Wine will be hosting an Industry Insights event on Thursday July 24, at the Berri Hotel, aiming to provide regional industry insights to members, directly from key industry stakeholders - enabling them to make informed business decisions for Vintage 2026.

Frost warning issued Victorian driver caught 70km/h over for the Riverland

A WARNING has been issued for Riverlanders to be cautious of frost conditions in the region this week.

Temperatures are set to continue falling during this week, with the Riverland expecting below zero numbers across the region.

The Bureau of Meteorology (BOM) issued a frost warning for numerous regions across the state, including the Riverland, warning residents of temperatures falling down to -2C between Tuesday and Sunday.

The BOM said that temperatures at ground level can be lower than those recorded by standard weather stations, especially in calm conditions with clear skies.

At about 11.40am on Friday June 27, police detected a Holden sedan driving on Murtho Road, at 172km/h in a 100km/h zone. Police stopped the car and spoke with the driver, a 30-year-old woman, from

The driver also returned a positive oral fluid sample, received an expiation notice for excessive speed, was issued with a six-month loss of licence, and may be summonsed to appear in the Berri court at a later date pending forensic analysis.

On Friday June 20, police stopped a Holden ute on Campbell Terrace, at Waikerie.

The driver, a 36-yearold Waikerie man returned a positive oral fluid analysis, while further checks revealed he was also driving disqualified.

He was reported for driving disqualified and will be summonsed to appear in court at a later date, pending further forensic analysis. .

Strong growth on the way iii

Renmark Paringa Council recently endorsed its Growth Strategy, setting a clear direction for how to support growth and housing development over the next 15 to 30 years.

Central to the strategy is addressing the housing crisis by unlocking land for residential development, ensuring the region can meet the growing demand for homes.

Renmark Paringa Council chief executive officer Tony Siviour said the strategy provides a clear pathway for sustainable growth.

"Council's Growth Strategy will help to unlock much-needed land and helps us meet the strong and growing desire from people to live in our beautiful region," Mr Siviour

"It ensures we're planning not just for housing, but for the infrastructure and services that support a great quality of life."

The strategy identifies several key growth areas across the district and outlines how development will be supported by upgraded infrastructure, in partnership with develop-

It also highlights the importance of the Jane Eliza project, which will help meet rising demand for compliant houseboat moorings and riverfront facilities, strengthening both tourism and the local economy.

"We know there's strong interest in moving to our region, and this strategy makes sure we're ready for that," Mr Siviour said.

"Projects like the Jane Eliza don't just support housing growth – they also strengthen tourism, create jobs, and reinforce our identity as a desirable riverside community."

Prepared over the last 12 months, the Growth Strategy is backed by detailed analysis of land supply, population trends, and community input.

"Council, in conjunction with the community, have shown the leadership to map out the growth potential for our townships, while still being able to protect the rights of landowners to farm," said Mr Siviour.

"It's been in a growth phase for its entirety. It's won multiple awards and it is probably one of the most family-friendly caravan parks in the state."

Renmark Paringa CEO Tony Siviour said visitor activity generated at the caravan park had supported the district's growth.

G'day Group founder, and chief executive officer, Grant Wilckens said improving experiences at "one of the nation's most awarded and best-performing parks" was a goal.

'This is a landmark acquisition of one of Australia's most recognisable and successful holiday parks," Mr Wilckens said.

"We have a clear ambition for Discovery Parks to become the most loved brand in regional tourism, and flagship destinations like Renmark are central to achieving that vision.

"While the park is already highly profitable, we see strong potential to grow year-round visitation through increased marketing, national brand reach and investment in guest experience.

"This is a strategic acquisition that sets the foundation for further growth through targeted investment in iconic destinations that deliver exceptional guest experiences."

Troy gets a Riverland tour

HUGH SCHUITEMAKER

FINDING beneficial compromises between Riverland water resource users and those in other states will be necessary for the future success of the Murray-Darling Basin Plan, according to a top water management figure.

Inspector-General Of Water Compliance Troy Grant last week visited the Riverland as part of a tour through South Australia.

Mr Grant said maintaining a reliable access to water resources during current drought conditions was a concern across South Australia.

"The reliability and security of water is always top of mind when there's difficult weather conditions," Mr Grant said.

"But it's been mostly (about)

Australian Government

critical supply to townships at the moment.

"I've noticed here there's not as much finger-pointing upstream... that was hot when I started in this role, and has certainly dissipated. I think there's far-better communication between north and south, (and) transparency has helped in that regard."

Mr Grant said ongoing collaboration, and recognition of what different regions require, was key to success of the upcoming Murray-Darling Basin Plan review.

"The Basin Plan and accompanying legislation is flawed in design," he said.

"The intention of the plan, and the best efforts of everyone, is basically supported now... there was rigorous protest in the beginning, but I think there's been a general acceptance over the decade and a bit of the plan, that the principles and objectives of the plan are sound enough.

"Where the difficulty lies is the lack of robustness in the legislation for deterrence and consequence if you break the rules, the lack of visibility and transparency about management decisions that are made, and the lack of measurements in the outcomes achieved from the plan. My concern is until you get those fundamental things properly answered, or enough assurance around those, how can you design plan two? Otherwise you risk making the same mistakes.

"The Basin Plan is a co-operative effort, and the entities cooperating all have different needs and priorities. We're not naïve to recognising that, and understanding there's levels of compromises made to get to a greater-good outcome.'

Renmark Irrigation Trust CEO Rosalie Auricht said Mr Grant's role was vital to ensuring balance among Murray-Darling Basin

"We're appreciative of the oversight the inspector-general has had. It gives confidence to people in our community and across the Basin, there's someone keeping an eye on what's happening" Ms Auricht

"Having that healthy river system is important, and every community requires a healthy water way, for their health, wellbeing and socio-economic outcomes.

"That's been a really big improvement across the Basin.'

Mr Grant said illustrating the necessary co-operation between industry, environmental, government and community groups had been a highlight of the Basin Plan

"Now everyone is reliant on each other," he said.

"The most successful industry can't be successful without a strong environment, community, or strong Indigenous appreciation. It's forced a better integration of the appreciation for the value of those key components of water management.

"People realise they are more reliant on each other than opposed to each other, and that's been a really healthy outcome."

Fair Work breaches identified in Riverland farm labour sector

SEBASTIAN CALDERON

RECENT report found that 92 per cent of audited labour hire firms, including those operating in the Riverland, were non-compliant with legal obligations, including payslips and superannuation contributions.

Part of a nation-wide audit spanning from December 2021 to April 2024, the Fair Work Ombudsman (FWO) highlighted significant non-compliance among labour nire providers in the Riverland, particularly within the citrus and strawberry industries.

Numerous workers at a Riverland strawberry farm reported being paid in cash without receiving payslips, causing the associated labour hire provider to be subsequently issued over $12,500 in fines for multiple breach-

FWO Anna Booth commented that such practices are unfortunately common in the sector, with many providers failing to maintain proper records oThe report also uncovered cases of illegal phoenixing, where hire labour companies dissolve to avoid debts and re-establish under a new entity, perpetuating unlawful practices.

Citrus Australia CEO Nathan Hancock said while the report showed there were still instances where the industry had fallen short, it also demonstrated a marked improvement in some regions, and a willingness among growers to work with the FWO to improve practices and correct mistakes.

"I welcome the ombudsman's announcement saying they will work closely with industry bodies to continue improving compliance," he said.

"We want to continue to improve public perception of the industry through transparent improvements.

The report revealed there is still considerable work to be done in improving the performance of the labour hire sector, which recorded the highest level of noncompliance.

"Citrus Australia and other members of the horticulture sector have long called for a national labour licensing scheme, yet consecutive governments have failed to deliver one," Mr Hancock said.

"The report shows that bad actors in the labour hire sector continue to exploit weak laws and underresourced departments.

"Workers and growers are being taken advantage of, while bad actors pocket the cash and disappear, only to re-emerge under a new name," he said.

"We're keen to work with the ombudsman and any state labour hire regulator to continue improving compliance. There is no room for bad actors in our industry and we don't want to see anyone taken advantage of.

"We will work to educate and support our growers so we can continue to be an industry of trusted employers."

A more detailed interview will be available in next week's Murray Pioneer.

Seven still trying for TV deal

THE Seven Network insists it is still trying to strike a deal with WIN to reinstate its channels to Riverland free-to-air TV screens

Seven West Media yesterday provided an update regarding its negotiations with the WIN Network, after Channel 7 freeto-air broadcasts to Riverland homes were switched off at 11.59pm Monday.

Network Seven said while it was yet to strike a deal that would see WIN keep all channels available locally, it was exploring third parties to break the deadlock.

"...Seven is seeking the assistance of the Federal Government and the Australian Communications and Media Authority to help resolve this matter as quickly as possible," said Seven West Media managing director, and chief executive officer, Jeff

Mr Howard said Seven West was "disappointed" with the situation.

"Despite our best endeavours, we have been unable to reach a mutually acceptable commercial agreement with the WIN Network to provide access to Seven via aerial transmission in (the) Riverland," he said.

"Seven has not turned off our signal. We continue to provide our content to WIN for broadcast into these markets and WIN has made the decision to switch off the Seven signal to these communities.

While we are disappointed WIN has made this decision, these communities are important to us and they can access Seven's news, sport and entertainment content live, free and on demand on 7plus."

Seven's director of regional news Paul Patrick said providing daily news coverage remained crucial to regional communities.

"7NEWS is an intrinsic part of the communities we operate in, with the only local 6pm bulletins in all our major regional markets," Mr Patrick said.

"From our journalists to our camera operators, and production teams across the country, we are passionate about telling local stories that resonate with our local audiences. We are their voice."

Meanwhile, Barker MP Tony Pasin's petition calling for "Seven West Media to continue their contractual agreement with WIN TV to broadcast into the Limestone Coast and Riverland regions of South Australia free to air" has reached 1843 signatures at the time of writing.

"The reality is that streaming is not an always an option in regional Australia," a statement regarding the petition read.

"I'm standing up for regional television audiences, including the elderly and more vulnerable sections of the community that either do not have the means, or are unable to access fast or affordable internet otherwise."

Mr Pasin's petition can be signed by visiting the website (www.tonypasin.com/save free_to_air_football).

Long-term potential

MADISON EASTMOND

A RIVERLAND ecology site has received more than $400,000 worth of state funding to complete the first stage of a five-point masterplan to secure a sustainable Supporting a $657,280 project, Calperum Station recently received $442,596 from the Thriving Regions Fund to update aging critical infrastructure on the Riverland flood plain, improving facilities for rangers and staff, and participants of state-wide education programs that visit the site.

Providing a learning environment facilitated by ecologists and a dedicated ranger team just outside of Renmark, Calperum Station is comprised of prominently open Mallee bushland and Murray River flood plains, and hosts opportunities for educational and training programs, and nature-based recreational activities.

"Aging infrastructure is one of our biggest barriers to growth at Calperum Station," Calperum Station general manager education and business development Julie Robertson said.

"Our education programs 'Ecology in Action' are programs where a (Calperum Station) educator works with students out in the field that ticks off a whole bunch on a school curriculum — these have been incredibly well received, and are becoming really popular.

"However, though we have put in the work and built our education programs to the point where they're really thriving, hosting bigger groups of participants puts too much strain on the current infrastructure, with the electricity and water supply often failing.

We get such fantastic feedback on every other aspect of a group's stay, so we really just want to upgrade these facilities, provide the best possible experience, and keep sharing everything great we do at Calperum with as many people as we can."

Part of a five-stage master-plan to upgrade the site, the state funding will address a first stage concerning the site's critical infrastructure, including:

☐ Showers and toilets.

☐ Solar energy and water supply to the dormitories and training areas.

☐ Insulation and roof repairs to the training shed.

☐ Kitchen upgrades.

☐ Internet connectivity to the complex.

"Essentially, these upgrades will launch us into growing our programs, or more programs, and make us financially self-sustainable to carry out and fund the rest of the master plan for Calperum," Ms Robertson said.

Minister for Primary Industries and Regional Development Clare Scriven said she was "very pleased to be able to offer funding to nine community projects from across South Australia's regions and see their vision become reality".

"These projects help support a strong local economy by attracting and retaining people, businesses and service providers in our regions, which helps maintain and grow strong, vibrant regional communities," Ms Scriven said.

"The Enabling Infrastructure Program has been extremely successful in supporting infrastructure projects that improve the quality of life in our regions, and the State Government is pleased to continue to support South Australia's regional communities.'

With the project set to begin in the next three months, and set to be finished by the end of 2026 — with all works undertaken by local contractors — Ms Robertson said the funding has allowed Calperum to "give back to the economy in big ways".

"It's very exciting — projects supported by this funding are to help regional communities thrive and we really want that to happen," Ms Robertson said.

"This funding will be contributing directly back to the local community through using local business, as well as creating long-term investment by bringing more people to the Riverland.

"I think this is particularly important in a region like ours because we are so reliant on horticulture and viticulture, with many of our industries tied to the river."

Ms Robertson said she and the team at Calperum "could not be more grateful" to receive the financial support throughout the community.

General manager education and business development Julie Robertson said the critical infrastructure upgrades at Calperum Station will include roof repairs and insulation to the site's training shed. PHOTO: Madison

"As a not-for-profit, we don't have much in terms of cash reserves, so (to make up the $214,684 difference) we have received support from our rotary district, as well as the Australian Landscape Trust (ALT)," Ms Robertson said.

The Calperum Advisory Board, ALT Board, volunteers, and local members (Chaffey MP) Tim Whetstone and (Barker MP) Tony Pasin, have also been a great sup-also drafted our masterplan document without charging us a cent, which made all the difference.

"This project would probably not have even got off the ground onto a grant application without the support from the community.

Ms Robertson also wanted to thank the State Government for "seeing the potential of Calperum".

"We are so proud and excited to be given this opportunity with this funding — it's a game-changing for us."

THE YEARS GO BY

BY PETER AND CARLA MAGAREY

Monumental transitions

WHEN highway-side landmarks inside the Riverland come to mind, the giant bucket that fills with water between Renmark and Paringa may be arguably as recognisable as the Big Orange.

Monday's announcement that the beloved Renmark Riverfront Holiday Park had been bought from the BIG4 umbrella by the G'day Group – detailed in today's edition of the Pioneer – certainly seemed to come without little pretence.

With numerous expansions having been completed in recent years, and seemingly endless amounts of visitors filling up cabins, powered and nonpowered sites, and the new 'glamping' tents, one would have thought the Riverfront Holiday Park would be an ongoing guaranteed money maker.

What is undeniable though, and of wider importance to just the park's operators – as agreed upon by Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone – is the tourism value the holiday park holds for the entire Renmark Paringa district.

Take a look around the Hotel Renmark or Renmark Club on a packed-out Friday or Saturday night during the school holidays, with hundreds of orders being taken for the respective kitchens – for what must be an astonishing total weight of schnitzels, chicken nuggets and chips – and it's likely at least half of those families would be staying at the Riverfront Holiday Park for their trip to the Riverland.

That's also without mentioning the amount of trade that is directed toward our local bakeries, cafes, clothing outlets and butchers from those staying at the caravan park.

The Riverfront Holiday Park's legacy has been long intertwined with some key Renmark moments. It's sale by the council in 2005, with the funds used to construct the current Civic Centre on Eighteenth Street, was at the time met with outcry from the community.

As we've learned from the situation regarding the 180 Murray Avenue Open Space – which was previously home to the Westpac bank building and had the potential to be privately developed – sections of the Renmark public can display some trepidation when it comes to council-owned assets being sold off.

Then, during the 2022/23 Murray River flood, the caravan park was perhaps a true reflection of the resiliency and teamwork across the district that was so vital to overcoming challenges that seemed to be arising on a daily basis at times.

The presence of a temporary levy bank, walked upon at a time by Prime Minister Anthony Albanese, for a while drastically changed the atmosphere at the park, which was eerily quiet at times during that period, however, the enthusiasm in which visitors returned to the destination speaks to the commitment to success that has been ongoing behind the scenes.

Those planning visits to Renmark, and locals alike, will be hoping these standards are kept.

The first Loxton Clarion turns 100. The first issue of the first newspaper dedicated to Loxton and district was published on July 2, 1925, 100 years ago today. It cost readers 3d. Since 1913, the news had been reported from Loxton and district by the Renmark-based Decision that impacts many

IN answer to A. Bell of Barmera ('Activities with more meaning', letters, 25/6/25), I can only say that the ending of Channel 7 broadcasts is a short-sighted decision in my eyes.

Yes, sport will be impacted, but there are many other programs that people enjoy.

We enjoy the news coverage and the odd quiz show. Many others like watching reality programming. It is not for us to denigrate peoples' watching

However, I will say that I'm an avid sport watcher, and this will be sadly missed by all those who cannot afford a smart TV they wanted to.

THE Pioneer published an extensive letter from Dr Michael Wright, president of the Royal Australian College of GPs ('Urging for free RSV vaccine', letters, 25/6/25), extolling the need for people to be protected with RSV vaccine.

Similar ads have been shown on commercial television.

So, learning that I am in one of the susceptible groups, I hurried to my local GP, discovered that I have to provide the vaccine, which I have to purchase from my pharmacist, and then came to a crashing halt.

The cost for the RSV vaccine, unless you are a pregnant mum, or a baby in certain defined age groups, is $300.

While I applaud the free provision of this vaccine to mums and babies, I think it is a bit rich for the government and the medical profession to be pushing this vaccine so hard, when the vast majority of people who need it have to pay out $300.

If it is that important, it should be on the PBS.

That's why we're pleased to see that the New Zealand National Party Government has launched a Solar on Farms Program which provides independent advice for farmers considering solar and battery storage on-farm.

New Zealand's government is backing sensible ways for their primary industries to reduce costs, and help farmers have more control over their power

Following FCA's successful call for battery support for Aussie farmers, seeing this initiative from a government across the pond demonstrates that batteries and solar onfarms are extremely practical for profitability, productivity, and the planet.

Congratulations to our Kiwi farmers. We're looking forward to government action like this in Australia.

Allowance cuts a rural blow

THE proposed changes to travel allowances for allied health providers under the NDIS Pricing Arrangements and Price Limits 2025–26 raise serious concerns for rural, regional and remote communities, severely impacting the delivery of essential support services.

Under the proposed changes, providers will face limits on the travel they can claim when supporting participants in harderto-reach areas. This poses a major threat to clinicians working in rural Australia assisting people with disability, where long-distance travel is a necessity, not a choice.

These changes effectively discriminate against people based on their location of work or home, or mobility challenges.

Clinicians will have no choice but to reduce or cease services to rural areas due to the financial disincentives created by these new pricing arrangements. Rural, regional and remote communities are already facing persistent healthcare access challenges, where service access is well, and truly, below the urban average, especially in MMM 3-7 regions or towns, which have between 100 to 50,000 people.

The National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS) had only begun to make a difference by supporting more equitable access to allied health and disability services in rural areas. The proposed cuts risk undoing that progress.

We were just beginning to see a positive momentum. Rather than building on the progress, these changes could reverse it. The government's good work in extending care and equity could be severely undermined.

Smaller providers, many of them locally owned businesses employing local staff, will be the hardest hit.

Small and medium enterprises play a vital role in maintaining the health and economic wellbeing of rural towns. Faced with tighter margins, many may be forced to close or scale back.

This would result in no service or make way for larger, city-based providers who operate at scale but with less local connection or understanding of local context. It will be a revolving door of people who fly/drive-in-fly/drive out with little continuity of care.

This is not just a health issue. It's a social and economic one

Removing or reducing viable services from rural towns has ripple effects far beyond healthcare, affecting employment, community resilience, and qual-

The NRHA urges the government to reconsider these proposed changes and to consult with rural providers, consumers, and communities to ensure equitable access to disability support, regardless of postcode.

A great debate for rural doctors

IS artificial intelligence (AI) the future of rural medicine, or will it lead to its ultimate destruction? That was the big question posed on night one of the recent Rural Doctors to access 7plus, or get pay TV.

A will for the right solution?

IT'S obvious, in my view, that building a Truro bypass that is only one lane either way is shortsighted and will result in muchmore expensive duplication sometime in the future.

Has serious thought been given to building the bypass as a dual lane in the Adelaide-to-Riverland direction only, while retaining the current road as dual lane only in the opposite direction?

Some benefits:

☐ This would be the cheapest option for a dual carriageway in both directions.

☐ Since the recent road repairs immediately east of Truro, the road through to Accommodation Hill is in good condition.

☐ The current highway would be much safer than it currently is, if it were dual lane in one direction only.

☐ Re-entering the highway in Truro after a stop would be much safer with traffic only in one direction.

☐ The Truro community is divided on the bypass issue. This option would retain half of the business generated for the town by through-traffic, while also halving the number of trucks and make crossing the Association of Queensland's (RDAQ) annual conference.

The event, themed Growing Pains: Change, Continuity, Community, drew hundreds of rural practitioners from across the state to the Gold Coast, together with medical students, rural families and healthcare stakeholders, for the event delving into everything rural medicine.

The popular RDAQ Great Debate was featured on opening night for the first time, hearing from Team Future and Team Destruction, along with a keynote address from changemaker Susanne Le Boutillier around leading rural healthcare with confidence.

The annual debate pairs medical students with a current doctor and pits them against each other on a topic relevant to rural healthcare.

The debate was a light-hearted, entertaining way to broach important and sometimes divisive subjects.

Artificial intelligence has the potential to fundamentally transform our lives, including the practice of medicine and delivery of healthcare.

Many rural doctors are finding ourselves at a moral crossroads around the shift to using AI tools and the balance between finding efficiencies in rural service delivery, and whether it compromises our empathetic and personalised care that characterises the relationship between patient and practitioner.

Hearing the perspectives of the next generation of doctors is extremely valuable and while Team Future delivered the winning argument, I think the complex subject of AI will still be very much up for debate across the remaining two days of conference and long into the future. Dr Danielle Allan

Battery incentive a win for consumers

THE Housing Industry Association (HIA) has welcomed the commencement of the new solar battery incentive program under the Small-scale Renewable Energy Scheme (SRES).

The inclusion of solar batteries in the SRES is a good step that will support more households to take control of their energy bills and improve energy efficiency in new homes and renovations.

Voluntary incentives like this are something HIA has consistently called for. It brings batteries in line with existing solar panel incentives and provides a practical and affordable path for more Australians to integrate battery storage into their homes.

A significant barrier in the uptake of household batteries is the large upfront costs and this scheme can be important in boosting uptake by providing homeowners with a 30 per cent discount.

Australian homes now have over 4 million solar panels installed, which have been installed through a range of rebates and incentives, showing how important targeted subsidy or rebate programs can be in driving change.

The housing industry is seeing growing demand from homebuyers for integrated energy solutions. In particular, in new builds where including a battery system upfront can work with features like solar panels to further increase the environmental benefits of new buildings.

With new Small-scale Technology Certificates (STC) assignment forms and documentation now available for solar retailers, designers and installers, HIA is encouraging members to familiarise themselves with the updated requirements.

This is a win for consumer choice and industry innovation.

It's a change that will help more Australians future-proof their homes and reduce energy

HIA will continue to work with government and industry stakeholders to ensure the scheme is effectively implemented and support Australian manufacturers and suppliers in providing these batteries into our homes.

Increasing the electric choice

THE New Vehicle Efficiency Standard (NVES) is already successfully providing Australian drivers with a rapidly growing range of modern vehicles that reduce emissions, lower fuel costs and deliver community-wide benefits, according to the Electric Vehicle

The NVES has been in place since the start of this year, but from July 1 penalties and credits will begin to encourage manufacturers to bring their best, most fuel-efficient vehicles to Australia.

July 1 marks a milestone for Australia as we power ahead with fuel efficiency standards and catch up to the rest of the developed world in accessing cleaner, cheaper-to-run cars.

For the NVES to succeed, this next step is crucial because it incentivises manufacturers to bring their best cars to Australia, giving consumers even more choice.

In part due to the NVES, Australians can now choose from more than 150 electric vehicle models, which is double what was available before Australia committed to a fuel efficiency standard. With dozens more EV models on the way, this is a clear sign of growing confidence in the Australian market.

Australians are increasingly voting with their wallets by buying EVs. So far this year EVs have accounted for more than 11 per cent of new vehicles sold which is a new record in this country, and some 17 per cent higher than the same period last year.

This increase is all the more astonishing given the premature withdrawal of state government incentives that would have helped thousands more working families unlock the savings from going electric.

The NVES is not just good for those buying fuel-efficient or low-emission cars that will save them money at the bowser, it's good for everyone. More low, and zero-emission vehicles mean quieter streets, cleaner air, and a healthier environment for us all.

No matter your lifestyle, there's an EV to suit every Australian, with some costing just over $30,000 drive away. We now have electric SUVs to ferry families, electric utes for tradies, electric vans for small business owners, and of course compact hatchbacks.

The NVES is finally bringing Australians the cleaner, fuel-efficient cars they deserve. Whether they are plug-in hybrids or full electric, this greater choice is helping keep more money in drivers' pockets.

With the high cost of living, more and more Australians are choosing low, and zero-emis sions vehicles to cut reliance on volatile foreign-owned fossil fuels and spend less at the

Daniel creates healing with art

MADISON EASTMOND

A RIVERLAND artist has been awarded more than $15,000 to create a safe and welcoming environment for First Nations people attending the new Mannum Medical Centre.

Renmark artist Daniel Giles was one of 10 artists chosen last month in the first round of the Federal Government's Regional Arts Fund, with his newest $15,500 project at the Mannum Medical Centre set to support a spiritual connection to Country as a pathway to healing.

"Historically, First Nations people have not had the greatest relationship with hospitals and health services," Mr Giles said.

"So, the goal is to create a space that is more representative of our culture, of each other, and what health means to us."

Suggested by Elders from Mannum when the medical centre was under construction, Mr Giles said the project would promote First Nations perspectives and culture through traditional artwork.

"I have worked with the local Elders, community, and schools to workshop a design," he said.

"The work is reflective of our cultures and country, so the river appears, and there is a bit of a spin on the Mannum cliffs.

"There is a focus on holistic health — when the country is healthy, so are we."

Though always enjoying art, Mr Giles only picked up a paint brush in 2019.

"I painted a mural at the school, and from that, I have just been asked to do more over the years.

"At the beginning, it was a little rough, but now I feel have started to find my feet.

"I also now visit other schools and services and teach art classes, workshops, and create a cultural immersion with an art spin on it.

"I grew up with predominately Aboriginal people in my life and a strong cultural background with Elders and the stories we tell — what we do, how we do it, and why.

"So, I have found art has become a great tool for me to showcase and explain First Nation's culture and have people dive a bit deeper into their own."

Country Arts SA chief executive Anthony Peluso said "this round of the Regional Arts Fund supports the development of remarkable new work across community publishing, collaborative exhibitions, international First Nations performances, and public art".

"There's a strong focus on growing the skills and abilities of the next generation of artists to achieve their artistic and cultural ambitions, and showcase their work in their local communities across regional and remote South Australia — and to audiences nationally and internationally," Mr Peluso said.

"We look forward to seeing the outcomes and wish the applicants well as they grow their practices."

The next funding round for the Regional Arts Fund is an Australian Government program will close mid-August 2025 for projects that commence after January 1, 2026.

Student skills showed

RIVERLAND vocational education and training (VET) students have returned champions after competing at the 2025 WorldSkills Australia National Championships, in Brisbane, earlier this month.

Involving Remark High School, Berri Regional Secondary School, and Loxton High School, four local students competed in the fields of information technology, healthcare, hairdressing, and electrotechnology at the competition.

A three-day showcase of talent as students benchmarked their skills against industry peers, the Worldskills National Championships are Australia's largest vocational education and skills excellence competition.

Competing in VET in Schools (VETiS) Healthcare Assistance, Berri Regional Secondary School student Morgan said she "felt the pressure at first, but once I was settled into the competition, the nerves were not as bad".

"I am grateful for this unique experience, and would definitely recommend others to take part," she said.

"It was a great opportunity to learn more about my skills and my future in that career pathway."

Loxton High School student Mitchell said competing in VETiS Information Technology was a "fantastic opportunity to showcase what I could do in a career in IT in the future, based on what (he had) already learnt".

"I am very grateful for the opportunity," he said.

"When I first competed in the state competition, I didn't really know what I was in it for.

"But while I was in Brisbane it was definitely something I was very happy to be a part of and would highly recommend others to be a part of it.

"It felt good to represent my school — I know that I had many people eager to know how I went thanks to Loxton High School's tight community of people, so representing them on the national stage felt great."

Mitchell said his favourite part of WorldSkills was "walking around the Brisbane Convention Centre and seeing what everyone else had to offer".

"I spent time watching everything from butchery to jewellery making — it really goes to show what other careers you could blend your own personal skills into," he Renmark High School student Zahlee and Loxton High School student Michael, were each awarded Certificates of Excellence for their high-level performance.

Passionate about hairdressing as she "loves to make people feel good about themselves and (being) creative", Zahlee said the experience of competing in VETiS Hairdressing was "nothing like (she) had ever done before".

"I loved every minute of it (and) I felt so proud to be representing my state in hair-dressing," she said.

"Even though it was a very overwhelming experience it taught me so much as a person and I learnt so many valuable things to use in my career of hairdressing.

"The piece of advice I would give someone that is entering the field of hairdressing is to do it — you are about to have so much fun with it and there are so many different pathways you can enter, plus you meet so many amazing people along the way."

Interested in his chosen field because his Pop is an electrician, when competing in VETiS Electrotechnology, Michael said he felt "great being selected to represent South Australia in WorldSkills Brisbane".

"My favourite part was definitely competing, especially in front of so many people, which almost gave me an adrenaline rush from the pressure," he said.

"The tasks that we were doing weren't too difficult, but the excitement and the pressure, the number of people coming through, was a thrill.

"Also, the people at Team SA created a great environment for us to be in — I would definitely recommend people to compete if they get the chance to compete at WorldSkills."

CANCER

Too much junk food can lead to toxic fat around your vital organs.

When you eat more than you need to, and aren't as active as you should be, fat doesn't just build up around your waist.

Toxic fat also builds up around your vital organs, releasing dangerous levels of chemicals, that bring heart disease, type 2 diabetes and cancer closer.

Living with overweight or obesity increases your risk of toxic fat related disease.

We know that our risk of these diseases depends on a lot of things, including how much extra weight we're carrying, and where that fat is stored.

When you think of toxic fat around your vital organs, making some small changes is no big deal. Changes like eating less junk food, drinking less sugary drinks and choosing the stairs.

Ricca Terra's Una Vita launch party

THE Riverland's newest premium white wine was tested by a large crowed a the Ricca Terra Wine Room.

Ricca Terra winemaker Ashley Ratcliff launched the Una Vita white – made from grenache blanc grapes – last Sunday at a long lunch event.

"With all our whites, we've always been looking for that distinct acid line through the wine, that's fresh and zippy," Mr Ratcliff said.

"I needed a variety that would hold that palate weight. Chardonnay is great, but I wanted something distinct.

"I wanted to use grenache blanc. We've got some of the oldest grenache blanc vines in the country in this state."

Mr Ratcliff said expanding the outside perception of Riverland-made wines was an ongoing goal.

"We hand-pruned it, hand-picked it, and let it sit for 12 months in a brand-new oak barrel," he said.

"I've shown it interstate and it's been very popular with wine enthusiasts and those looking to try a new, bold white wine."

Mary's 40 years

MADISON EASTMOND

A RIVERLAND volunteer has reached 40 years of service this week, with the dedicated local providing a smile, support, and a warm meal to those in need.

Mary White will be celebrating a milestone of service to Meals on Wheels this week, with the Berri volunteer helping to deliver hot meals to thousands of Riverlanders for the past four decades.

"I followed in my mother's footsteps really — she had always volunteered for Meals on Wheels," Ms White said.

"July 1, in 1985, is when I started, and it has been a joy since.

"Just being able to keep clients in their homes a bit longer makes it all worth it for me.

"Meals on Wheels is more than just a meal — we are a friendly face and smile, as well as a wellbeing check."

A Life Member of Meals on Wheels since 2004, volunteering is a passion for Ms White, who is also a Life Member at the Berri Football Club, a Raise mentor at the local high school, and helps at the local op-shop.

"My mum was a volunteer, so that made a big impression on me I think," Ms White said.

"She has been gone 20 years now, and I don't think a day or a week goes by where someone doesn't mention to me about her impact as a volunteer — it's something that makes a real difference in the community.

"It's just so very rewarding to be a volunteer for yourself.

"When I have finished (a shift of volunteering) I feel like a cup that is one and a half cups full — it just makes me feel so energised."

Always looking for volunteer drivers, Ms White said she encourages anyone with spare time to come along for the ride. "We are always looking for volunteers, and we want to make sure we can keep Meals on Wheels going," she said.

"Our roster is put together three weeks, so it's only one to two hours every three weeks of time that needs to be donated.

"I encourage anyone to come and give it a try and give back to their community."

SA to introduce firearms register

RIVERLAND gun licence holders have been asked to provide input into the establishment of a new state firearms registry.

South Australia Police (SAPOL) will introduce the South Australia Firearms Register (SAFR), a new system designed to improve the experience for firearm owners, businesses and law enforcement.

Officer in charge of firearms branch, Superintendent Lauren Leverington, said the system is anticipated to be operational by mid-2026.

"As we develop the new digital system, SAPOL is asking firearm licensees to provide us with feedback on their current user experience," Supt Leverington said.

"We encourage all licensees to participate and share their insights to help us improve our services."

Licensees who have registered their email address with SAPOL's Firearms Branch will receive an email invitation to complete a survey, with a participation link also available on the website (www.police.sa.gov.au/services-and-events/firearms-and-weapons/south-australian-firearms-register).

Plans for the SAFR include:

□ 24-hour online access for 15 digitised firearm services for dealers and licence holders

☐ Expediating application processing and reducing wait times.

☐ Improved visibility and tracking of their applications.

☐ Faster processing for digital applications. ☐ Secure online payments.

☐ Secure and centralised storage of all digital submissions and enhanced reporting and workload tracking for the Firearms Branch

☐ Built-in validation to reduce errors through the use of mandatory fields to prevent incomplete or incorrect submissions.

The SAFR initiative also forms part of the broader National Firearms Register (NFR) program. SAPOL is partnering with the Commonwealth and other states and territories to deliver unified and efficient firearms information in near real time across Australia.

"SAFR is shaping the future of firearms services in South Australia by delivering a new systems" Supt leverington said.

"Together with our Commonwealth partners, SAPOL aims to elevate safety standards and improve service across the firearms community."

Event grants to support drought- affected community tourism

RIVERLAND event organisers and businesses can now apply for a new grant aimed to provide financial support for hosting regional events that create community engagement and foster connections.

The state's Drought Relief Regional Event Fund will allocate $400,000 for regional areas that have been impacted by drought and adverse weather conditions over recent seasons, with financial assistance ranging from $25,000 to $75,000 per event.

Minister for Primary Industries and Regional Development Clare Scriven said "events are an important part of our Drought Support Package to help boost the spirits of droughtaffected communities, foster connectivity and, importantly, bring in business to local shops, cafes and suppliers".

"The $73m Drought Support Package has been designed in direct consultation with farmers, industry bodies and regional representatives," Ms Scriven said.

"It includes a wide variety of measures to directly support primary producers and drought-affected families, as well as regional communities.

"This fund provides an opportunity for regional towns to attract visitors and boost their local economy."

Applications for events held within the next 12 months (before June 30, 2026) will be prioritised, to promote visitation to affected regions in the immediate term.

Funding can be used to both market and deliver events, including engaging local suppliers, contractors and businesses to purchase local products, marketing costs to increase awareness and visitation, and employing short-term specialised personnel to facilitate the event.

Applications for the fund close on July 24.

The drought relief funding is in addition to the existing Regional Events Fund, with applications for the 2025-26 round closing in March earlier this year.

For further Drought Relief Regional Event Fund information, visit the website (www.tourism.sa.gov. au/events/event-funding.).

A LOCAL guide leader is hoping to establish a space for older women to come together and keep the spirit of girl guiding alive in the Riverland.

Whether a long-time member, or new to guiding, experienced Trefoil member Phyllis Salmon is inviting local women of all ages to a Riverland Girl Guides Trefoil Guild interest meeting and afternoon tea held this Sunday, on July 6, from 2pm, at the Berri Girl Guide Hall.

Road crash injuries continue to rise, can we stop them?

NEW research has analysed who is suffering injuries in road accidents, including in the Riverland, recovery times, and highlighting what strategies are needed to improve safety across Australia.

Led by Doctor Ali Soltani, from Flinders University College of Science and Engineering, the research mentioned how hospitalisation rates for road crashes have steadily increased over the past 10 years, particularly men, regional communities and pedestrians.

"Despite the introduction of Australia's first National Road Safety Strategy in 1992, road crashes continue to be a major issue, with four fatalities and 90 serious injuries estimated to occur every day," Dr Soltani said.

"A lot of money and effort is put into trying to reduce Australia's road toll, but enhancing road safety requires being able to predict the frequency and severity of

Published in the journal Case Studies on Transport Policy, Dr Soltani and his team combined injury and fatality data with advanced machine learning techniques to model crash severity and recovery outcomes.

Using data from the Australian Government's Bureau of Infrastructure and Transport Research Economics (BITRE), the study analysed over 10 years of hospital admission records (2011–2021) and 35 years of fatality records.

"We found between 2011 and 2019, crash-related hospitalisations rose steadily, only falling briefly during 2020 due to covid-19 lockdowns," Dr Soltani said.

"Hospital admissions from road crashes have not only increased, but we also found the injuries themselves are getting more severe in some

"This is a serious concern, especially considering our national targets to reduce serious injuries by 30 per cent by 2030."

The study also found:

- ☐ Regional crash victims experienced more severe injuries and spend longer in hospital than their urban counterparts, likely due to speed and infrastructure.
- ☐ Men account for nearly two-thirds of all hospitalisations (64.8 per cent) and require longer hospital stays than women, indicating more severe injuries.
- ☐ Older Australians suffer the longest recovery times, with people aged over 75 spending an average of 9.3 days in hospital per crash case, nearly twice as long as younger adults.

☐ Pedestrians were identified as the most severely injured group, with onethird requiring hospital stays of six days or more, along with motorcyclists and pedal cyclists.

The findings also suggest the current one-size-fits-all road safety strategies are failing to adequately protect the most vulnerable.

"This is about more than just numbers, this analysis can highlight who is getting hurt the most and why," Dr Soltani said.

"We also need improved infrastructure in our regional and remote communities, such as wider road shoulders and better lighting, as well as enhanced hospital trauma care and post-crash services for at-risk groups.

"Along with increased enforcement of speeding and drink-driving laws.

"This should include improved road design for older pedestrians, such as longer traffic light intervals, improved pedestrian detection in assistance systems in cars, alongside road safety campaigns.

"This study reminds us that the human cost of road trauma is felt in hospital beds and recovery wards across

Real wage increase offer for doctors with extra boost for trainee and regional doctors

A NEW state reform is set to ensure Riverland doctors' pay is nationally competitive and delivers a significant additional boost to trainee doctors.

The revised offer — announced last week - includes a minimum 10 per cent pay rise over three years, delivering a real wage increase above current inflation.

The State Government has also recognised the need to attract and retain new doctors, offering the state's 953 junior doctors in their first three years of clinical practice an additional $4050 base wage increase.

This will deliver a first-year pay rise of up to 8.6 per cent, and a base salary for interns starting at $88,869 - making them the second-best paid of any mainland state.

Under this offer a senior emergency department consultant would receive a pay increase of more than $50,000 over the three-year agreement, lifting their salary, including remote call and professional development allowances, to more than $600,000 per year.

The latest offer for the state's doctors also

- ☐ Incentives of up to $39,493 to attract and retain doctors in regional areas.
- ☐ Increasing minimum breaks between shifts from 8 hours to 10 hours to support the health and wellbeing of doctors.
- ☐ Enshrining a minimum of 20 per cent non-clinical time for consultants, giving senior doctors dedicated time for education, training, quality improvement and
- ☐ Formal recognition of rural generalists and an increase in their attraction and retention allowance from 30 per cent to 45 per cent.
- ☐ The ability to roster senior doctors on any day of the week in areas of need to improve timely access to patient care.

- ☐ Fixing ordinary hours of work at 37.5 hours per week, with penalty rates and overtime where applicable, rather than senior doctors having no fixed hours.
- ☐ Ensuring public health duties as primary responsibility for consultants.

"The government is committed to bargaining in good faith to reach a new enterprise agreement for public sector doctors, which balances real wage rises with responsible budgetary management," Minister for Industrial Relations and Public Sector Kyam

"With this offer the government is once again showing our commitment to supporting our health workers in the vital work of helping the South Australian community.

Minister for Health and Wellbeing Chris Picton said "doctors work hard to care for South Australians and they deserve a fair and reasonable pay rise which is exactly what we are offering".

"A pay rise of at least 10 per cent over three years will ensure our doctors' pay is nationally competitive," he said.

"On top of that, we're also giving a substantial boost for regional doctors and junior doctors.

"We also believe it is reasonable to be able to roster senior doctors on any day of the week in areas of need because public hospitals operate seven days a week.

We hope the union and doctors will consider in detail the benefits of the offer that will help us continue our strong recruitment that has already seen a boost of more than 600 extra doctors into SA Health over three years."

Pool and rec centre upgrades to be linked

CHRISTINE WEBSTER

THE District Council of Loxton Waikerie has decided to progress the Waikerie Recreation Centre upgrade and the Waikerie Community Swimming Pool Redevelopment as a single project.

Cr Clive Matthews moved the motion, which was seconded by Cr Ian Light, at council's recent general meeting.

District Council of Loxton Waikerie director of commercial and community services Andrew Waters said elected members discussed and agreed that the two projects needed to be aligned.

He said this would ensure that any future work that took place at either the pool or recreation centre would "complement and work together".

"As one project it will enable the pool, recreation centre, and surrounding infrastructure to link together to improve overall site management and cost efficiencies," Mr Waters said.

The linking of the recreation centre and swimming pool was one of the recommendations made by the SGL Consulting Group, who conducted a needs analysis and feasibility study of potential upgrades to the Waikerie Recreation Centre.

The council engaged the consultants last financial year to do the study based on predeveloped cost estimates and architectural drawings for three options.

An additional option was also considered: a stand-alone court adjacent to the recreation centre, serving as a second court.

The council sought feedback from the community on the consultant's recommendations in the study and received submissions until June 18.

SGL's key conclusions were based on a comprehensive feasibility analysis, benchmarking of regional projects, and stakeholder feedback.

Based on its research, the consultant made several suggested improvements in its study.

This included the proposal to link the recreation centre and swimming pool.

The study said this option could "allow for optimised staging arrangements, and potential lowering of operating costs".

SGL also recommended "enhancements and redevelopment of group fitness spaces, to allow higher optimised use of spaces".

"Increased use of the facility for social sports, particularly during off seasons", was also suggested.

Mid-week basketball competitions in winter was one of the ideas in the study.

The report also recommended providing new sports such as futsal or indoor soccer access to the recreation centre.

The Waikerie Recreation Centre currently caters for basketball, netball, and other indoor sports, and includes an adjoining gymnasium.

This facility is part of the larger Waikerie Community Sports Centre, which also features playing fields for hockey, cricket, soccer, athletics, softball, and touch football.

The sports centre also has facilities for special functions and community events, six hard tennis courts, two netball/basketball courts, croquet courts, a bowling club, and a swimming pool.

Mr Waters said council was in the process of examining the community feedback on the needs analysis and feasibility study.

"As we have only just received community feedback on both the pool and the recreation centre, considerations are yet to be had or made," he said.

Smart technology proposal to reduce light pollution

CHRISTINE WEBSTER

MID Murray Council has released its revised Light Management Plan for the River Murray International Dark Sky Reserve and its revised Dark Sky Policy for public comment.

The two draft documents were endorsed for public consultation at the June council meeting.

Featherstone Consulting was engaged to undertake the review of the current Dark Sky Policy and light management plan to incorporate consideration of smart technology as a means of addressing light pollution.

The River Murray International Dark Sky Reserve covers more than 3200 square kilometres from Bow Hill to Blanchetown, and west to the foothills of the Mount Lofty Ranges.

Mid Murray Council said the review focused on aligning the Light Management Plan with "emerging best practices in dark sky preservation and compliance with the International Dark Sky Association's standards and the integration of smart lighting technologies.

The draft 'Light Management Plan – River Murray International Dark Sky Reserve said the aim of the plan was to raise community awareness of the RMIDSR and seek their assistance in maintaining the Dark Sky.

It said the aim of the recommendations was to ensure that council, other government bodies

Mid Murray Mayor Simone Bailey says the use of smart technology would assist in reducing light pollution in the River Murray International Dark Sky Reserve. PHOTO: Dave Hartley and private landholders within the RMIDSR understood how they could assist in preserving, enhancing, and promoting the Dark Sky Reserve concept.

Mid Murray Mayor Simone Bailey said the aim of the public consultation process on the draft plan and the revised Dark Sky Policy was to educate the community about the importance of dark sky preservation and gather feedback on the two revised strategies.

She said council was also hoping to encourage voluntary compliance with lighting standards.

Council in the draft light management plan said a "wide variety of outdoor lighting existed within the RMIDSR".

"A positive aspect of the location of this reserve is that it is in an area which is not subject to large development pressures, and therefore it is unlikely any new substantial arrays of lighting will be developed in this area in the coming years," the document said.

The draft plan recommends that council and Mid Murray Landcare

SA work with owners of commercial premises to ensure outdoor lighting and illuminated advertising signage meet the International Dark Sky Standards.

"As a principle, digital signage is preferred option to meet light pollution guidelines and prevent unnecessary light spill," the document said.

Ms Bailey said if these recommendations were introduced, council would use a combination of education programs, social media and provide advisory notes to development approvals.

She said council was hoping to phase in smart technology for dimming and adaptive lighting, replace non-compliant flood lighting, and develop a long-term lighting master plan aligned with dark sky principles.

"These measures aim to reduce artificial light pollution, minimise light spill, protect nocturnal wildlife, and preserve the natural night sky," Ms Bailey said.

"With the emergence of smart technology, there is greater scope for council to advocate for reduction in light pollution within and adjacent to the reserve in the absence of any mandatory regulations to control the type of lighting and light spill," she said.

"The reserve offers significant opportunities for astro-tourism, a rapidly growing sector worldwide.

"By preserving dark skies, the Mid Murray region can attract star-gazers, photographers, scientists, and eco-tourists, which will support local accommodation providers, hospitality venues, and guided tourism operators."

The revised plan and policy is available for the public to view at Mid Murray Council offices during normal working hours or on the council website at (engagement. mid-murray.sa.gov.au/light-management-plan-and-dark-sky-policy)

Written submissions or the feedback form needs to be received by council by 5pm on Friday July 25.

RiverBlinds: A new chapter in innovation and customer service

FOR 16 years, Kaine and Annette Aston's Renmark business, formerly known as AA Canvas & Shades, has been a staple in the Riverland community, offering reliable canvas and vinyl manufacturing, repair services, and outdoor shade solutions.

From their humble beginnings operating out of a home shed, to now shifting gears into a new era of innovation, their commitment to excellence has remained constant.

The business has grown significantly since those early days, and what started as a small venture has blossomed into a trusted service with a reputation for quality. They have a team of dedicated employees who share the same passion in delivering great products and service.

This journey has been defined by Kaine's vast experience in the shed and fencing industry, combined with Annette's expertise as a master saddler and seasoned manager.

However, the most exciting change is the rebranding. The business will now be known as RiverBlinds, a name that signifies their new direction while honouring their roots.

This strategic shift is a clear reflection of their evolution as a business, and their focus is now squarely on enhancing customer experiences and delivering cutting-edge solutions.

'We're still the same trusted business, in the same location, with the same fantastic team," Annette said.

"The only change is our name and our refined focus on providing innovative products designed with our customers in mind. We want to stay ahead of the curve. making sure we deliver exactly what our customers need in a rapidly changing market."

The company's new website offers an easy-to-navigate platform where customers can explore the full range of available products, backed by excellent product information to help you make informed decisions. Whether you're looking for stylish interior blinds, curtains, robust exterior shades, or cutting-edge solutions to enhance your living space, RiverBlinds has something for you.

As Kaine, Annette and their team embrace this new phase of their business, it's clear that their commitment to quality, customer service, and innovation

The proposed policy would allow a stamp duty waiver for first home buyers purchasing existing properties valued up to $1m. FILE PHOTO

Tim backs proposed stamp duty relief for SA first home buyers

SEBASTIAN CALDERON

A LOCAL politician highlighted a recent proposal to scrap stamp duty for first home buyers, which would include buyers in the Riverland, saying that if approved, it would relieve pressure on many families across the region.

The proposed SA Liberal policy, aimed to alleviate the financial burden on firsttime homebuvers, would remove stamp duty for buyers purchasing existing properties valued up to $1m.

Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone said "this is a game-changing policy for young people and families in the Riverland and Mallee who are working towards home ownership".

"Scrapping stamp duty on existing properties will relieve some pressure on local buyers who are already facing the squeeze of rising living costs," Mr Whetstone

"In regional SA, people shouldn't be penalised for wanting to buy an established home close to their job, their kids' school, or their family property.

The policy is intended to make homeownership more accessible for those entering the property market for the first time, addressing rising costs and easing the pathway to property ownership in a competitive real estate landscape.

Opposition leader Vincent Tarzia announced earlier this month the measure could save a first home buyer more than $45,000.

"This policy will unlock additional buying power for young people and level the playing field so they can get a roof over their heads," Mr Tarzia said.

"Adelaide is the sixthleast affordable property market in the world, and we want to help young people to secure a place of their own here, rather than leaving for interstate or overseas.

"Not all first home buyers want to wait for a new home to be built or to live in an outer suburb and we know many want to be able to buy closer to family, friends and

Mr Whetstone said "this is about giving first home buyers greater options and keeping the next generation living and working in our regions, rather than forcing them to look elsewhere.".

'It's practical policies like this that support regional South Australians and help secure their future," Mr Whetstone said.

Opposition minister for housing Michelle Lensink said stamp duty revenue "continues to rise above budget forecasts and is expected to add $1.8bn to the government coffers by FY 2028-29".

"With record stamp duty pouring in and only expected to continue to increase, the State Government can afford this concession for first home buyers," Ms Lensink said.

"We have now seen an extra $845m in stamp duties than originally budgeted for over the four years from 2024-25.

"We want to ensure the next generation of South Australians can get a foothold in the housing market.

"Scrapping stamp duty on established homes for eligible first homebuyers is a sensible initiative that would take some pressure off young people, who are already doing it tough with the rising cost of living.

"This initiative would also bring South Australia in line with every other state that already offers stamp duty relief for first homebuvers purchasing existing proper-

Community feedback sought on council review

CHRISTINE WEBSTER

THE District Council of Loxton Waikerie is seeking community feedback on its proposed future structure as recommended in its Draft Representation Review

Representation reviews are a legislative requirement that gives councils the opportunity to consider whether their current composition and structure best serve their communities.

These reviews are a statutory responsibility of councils under section 12 of the Local Government Act 1999, generally undertaken every eight years.

This process requires council to consider if the community would benefit from altering the composition or ward structure of the District Council of Loxton Waikerie is proposing that the future elected body continue to comprise the mayor and 10 councillors and the council area avoid being divided into wards, and the existing no-ward structure be meeting, elected members endorsed the Draft Representation Report for public consultation as pre-

The motion was moved by Cr Kent Andrew, and seconded by Cr Craig Ferber.

SA planning consultant CL Rowe and Associates prepared the Draft Representation Report.

The council began its current review on January 29 with a briefing of the elected members, discussions regarding the various relevant review issues, and consideration of a detailed discussion paper.

These included potential ward structure options.

At a meeting held in February, council identified its preferred future composition and structure and resolved to present this proposal to the community for consideration and comment.

The draft report said the elector data and elector ratios indicated that while council's level of representation was on the high side, its elector ratio compared favourably with councils in districts such as Berri Barmera, Mid Murray and Yorke Peninsula,

This data was taken from the Electoral Commission SA's data from January 31,

"Council believes that, in order to provide fair and adequate elector representation across the whole of the Council area, a total of ten (10) councillors is necessary and appropriate at this time,' the draft document said.

It said that while a reduction in the number of councillors would obviously result in some financial benefit to council and the community, it was council's desire to maintain the level and quality of representation already experienced by the local community.

The community consultation process opened on June 25, and continues until July

Event grants to support drought-affected communities

RIVERLAND event organisers and businesses can now apply for a new grant aimed to provide financial support when hosting regional events that create community engagement and foster connection and tourism.

The state's Drought Relief Regional Event Fund will allocate $400,000 for regional areas that have been impacted by drought and adverse weather conditions over recent seasons, allocating financial assistance ranging from $25,000 to $75,000 per event provided as a single year agreement.

Minister for Primary Industries and Regional Development Clare Scriven said "Events are an important part of our Drought Support Package to help boost the spirits of drought affected communities, foster connectivity and, importantly, bring in business to local shops, cafes and suppliers".

Australian sunscreen labels deceiving customers? involved, but they trust that in a country

RIVERLANDERS have been urged to further research the sunscreen they use, following concerns surrounding effectiveness raised by a major consumer

According to recent testing undertaken by CHOICE, an Australian consumer group, many Australian sunscreen brands have failed to meet the claims advertised on their labels and packaging.

University of New South Wales (UNSW) Business School Professor Nikita Garg said "most of us are told to apply sunscreen that is at least SPF 30 or above, so the SPF 50+ label gives consumers comfort".

"It's a quick, accessible signal that they're doing the right thing and they rightly trust that if a brand is saying it's SPF 50+, somebody has taken a look at it and approved it," Prof Garg said.

In Australia, the majority of sunscreens are regulated by the Therapeutic Goods Association (TGA), and are required to meet all legal requirements of the TGA prior to being approved by sale.

The TGA claims "statements on sunscreen labels are truthful and not mislead-

Despite this, the common assumption from consumers that the label accurately reflects real-world performance is now being questioned.

Prof Garg said "people are time poor, they don't want to spend time researching every product, especially for something like sunscreen that's used regularly".

"They rely on the brand and the label to give them the information they need so they don't have to do it themselves," she said.

While the TGA's pre-sale testing is specifically designed to protect consumers, recent testing from CHOICE has highlighted how discrepancies between labels and actual SPF performance can occur, which has raised questions about how consumers should interpret labels, as well as how much they trust the testing process behind them.

Prof Garg said "consumers may not always know the name of the agency way these results were communicated may have done more harm than good. "The implicit trust consumers had in those labels because they thought they were being backed by some scientific evidence falls apart" she said.

"As a consumer, you think: Where do I go now? What do I buy? You feel betrayed".

Professor Garg said "there is no sunscreen they tested that didn't provide protection at all, but some consumers may only read the headline and walk away thinking none of them work, which is extremely

"Not using anything is not an option," she said.

THE Mantung Hall recently hosted its Farmers Afternoon, hosted by Chris McDermott, from Little Heroes Foundation, and Breakthrough Mental Health Research Foundation CEO John Mannion, for the third year.

Almost 50 members of local farming communities came along, and it was also great to have representation from Richard and Jo, from Fat Farmers Loxton Group.

Mr Mannion and Mr McDermott led a powerful session on mental health, encouraging open conversation, connection, and practical strategies to build resilience — followed by a moving group exercise that helped farmers begin to "connect to heal".

Held at the Mantung Hall, the event included lunch and a sense of solidarity that continues to grow year by year.

Organisers of the event thanked the people who gave their time to "show up, speak up, and stand" with us. Thanks were also given to Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone, the Department of Primary Industries and Regions, Tom Shannon and the Rotary Club of Loxton.

The Farmers Afternoon was a day of connection, courage and healing for those who often carry the weight of isolation in silence, and a reminder that a farmer dies every 10 days from suicide

Smart regional growth leading to strong SA

IMPROVING rural productivity and resilience, in areas such as the Riverland, will support long-term prosperity and sustainability in South Australia, according to a major new state development plan.

Regional Development South Australia (RDSA) last week launched its Regional Priorities Statement, called Strong Regions, Smart Growth, calling for a collaborative approach to regional development across South Australia.

Regional Development South Australia executive chair Rob Kerin said the statement outlines "strategic priorities and collaborative actions" required to prioritise regional communities through the state's ongoing growth.

"Our regions are not only vital to South Australia's identity—they are central to its future," Mr Kerin said.

"From renewable energy and agritech to green steel and premium exports, regional South Australia holds the key to unlocking the next chapter of economic complexity, innovation, and sovereign capability for our entire state.

"When our regions thrive, our entire economy benefits. We're calling for stronger partnerships with government, business, and community leaders to make that happen — this is not just about regions, it's about the whole state."

Mr Kerin said supporting opportunities to enhance infrastructure, workforce, population growth, housing, and intergovernmental collaboration in rural areas was an ongoing target.

"For too long, regional needs have been an afterthought," said Mr Kerin.

"It's time we move away from reactive, crisis-driven responses and instead adopt a coordinated, long-term approach that recognises the unique strengths and strategic value of our regions.

"We're extending a clear invitation (to) join us. Let's work together to create a more balanced, competitive and inclusive South Australia — one where the full potential of our regions is recognised and realised."

Key recommendations from the statement include:

- ☐ Developing a coordinated regional economic growth strategy with the SA Government
- ☐ Increasing investment in regional infrastructure and housing diversity
- ☐ Creating jobs and skills hubs to build resilient regional workforces
- ☐ Strengthening data-sharing to guide planning and improve service delivery
- ☐ Supporting population growth in regional hubs to reduce pressure on Greater Adelaide.

The full Regional Priorities Statement can be viewed by visiting the website (www. regionaldevelopmentsa.com.au/resources/).

Mental Health round.

Fat Farmers Rural Health Initiative is dedicated to inspiring and encouraging rural communities to improve their health and wellbeing through physical activity. What began in 2012 when three farmers in their 40s started attending the local gym after their football careers finished, has turned into a grassroots initiative bringing farmers and rural communities together.

Those three farmers, near Maitland on the Yorke Peninsula, Greg Hean, Ben Wundersitz, and Scott Hoyle, joked about being 'fat farmers' one morning, and the name stuck.

So, why the name? It's simply a conversation starter. You don't have to be fat, or even a farmer, to reap the benefits. It captures the light-hearted, tongue-in-cheek banter that mates give each other, and the fun that can be expected in our groups. Members are cheered for just turning up to the gym and having a crack, even if that's still in their work

Tomorrow night, Fat Farmers Ambassador and former Adelaide Crows player from 1999 to 2010, Brett Burton, now a well-respected leadership and wellbeing facilitator, will share his experience and insights into good mental health, along with some stories of his time in the AFL over dinner at the Barmera Club.

On Friday morning, at 7am, everyone is invited to watch the sun rise over Lake Bonney, as Fat Farmers hosts a group walk with Brett from the Yacht Club to The Lakes Café, in Barmera, to then enjoy a free coffee afterwards. Chat with Brett during the walk, or just start your day with some beautiful fresh air.

Round 10 of the RFL kicks off on Saturday, July 5, when Barmera Monash Football Club take on the Loxton North Football Club. Flinders University International Centre for Point-of-Care Testing will be conducting free diabetes and heart condition risk assessments for the public. From a single prick of blood, results will be available just in six minutes. Some eligibility criteria apply.

Throughout the matches, the Barmera Monash Wellbeing Committee will be awarding Wellbeing Medals in memory of Brandon Wundenberg for best team man, and the Corey Siemers trophy will be awarded to the most inspirational players in A Grade and B Grade.

We encourage everyone to join us at all events for either a motivational speech, free coffee, free health check, or just an opportunity to chat with other members of the community.

All it takes is a minimum 30 minutes of exercise to start transforming your mental health.

Parkrun marks 400th event

RENMARK Paringa locals are encouraged to participate in an ongoing community exercise initiative that recently celebrated its 400th event.

The Renmark Parkrun group recently marked the milestone with an event that carried the theme 'Don't Worry, Beanie Happy', due to the cold weather.

Annette Aston, who originally began Renmark's Parkrun and was the 400th run director, said "I think there's all walks of life that do Parkrun, and they do it at all different speeds"

"I've had people that have come along that have just moved to town, and they say Parkrun has really helped them find new friends" Ms Aston said.

Renmark Parkrun will celebrate its ninth birthday in the coming weeks, on July 19. It offers an extensive number of social, physical, and even mental health benefits.

Over its nine-year span, Parkrun has become a popular way to meet new people. hang out with friends, and improve physical and mental health.

"I know when we first started numbers were really low, especially in winter, obviously, because its cold, and I think our average now has almost doubled from what it used to be," Ms Aston said.

"Popularity for Parkrun in general, worldwide, has definitely increased, but we always love to have more people out there."

Celebrating Parkrun's 400th event, 55 participants endured the cold, along with 10 volunteers

Ms Aston said "the majority of our runners are regular, if they're not there every week its every couple of weeks"

Riverlanders are encouraged to take part in upcoming Parkrun events, and experience firsthand the friendly atmosphere and health benefits that it has to offer.

Medical colleges join forces to tackle rural doctor crisis

AUSTRALIA'S specialist medical colleges are implementing groundbreaking changes to their training selection processes to address the chronic shortage of specialist doctors in rural and remote communities like the Riverland.

The Council of Presidents of Medical Colleges (CPMC), working with the National Rural Health commissioner, has released new guidelines requiring all specialist medical colleges to prioritise candidates with rural backgrounds and experience when selecting new trainees.

"Too many rural Australians are waiting too long for specialist care, or having to travel hundreds of kilometres to access it," CPMC Associate Professor, and chair, Sanjay Jeganathan

"We know that doctors who come from rural areas or have trained in rural settings are far more likely to return and practice in these communities.'

Under the new framework, medical colleges will systematically recognise and reward rural experience when selecting new specialist trainees.

The initiative establishes standardised criteria recognising candidates who spent significant childhood years in rural areas, medical students who completed 12 months of rural placements, and junior doctors who gained experience in rural hospitals.

The initiative aligns with the National Medical Workforce Strategy and will be implemented progressively across all specialist medical colleges.

Loxton Mardi Gras treasurer Sandy Sheahan congratulates her husband Chris Sheahan on taking over the reins as acting chairman of the Mardi Gras Committee, from retiring chairman Liz Dymmott. Loxton Mardi Gras still on search for secretary

AT the recent Loxton Mardi Gras Annual General Meeting, longtime committee member Chris Sheahan offered to temporarily take over the chairman position of the committee from Liz Dymmott, who has held the position for 10 years and needed to step down.

Long-time cecretary Carla Magarey also declined re-election, and with no one offering, the secretary position remains

"We are hopeful some kind person reading this will come and offer their services," Mr Sheahan said.

"We have an assistant secretary who will take the minutes, so the secretary position is not too arduous."

In her chairperson's report, Mrs Dymmott acknowledged the Loxton and wider Riverland community for their enthusiastic support of the 68th annual Loxton Mardi Gras Family Festival, which was held in extreme heat conditions in February.

"A wonderful selection of floats in the parade, along with two bands, older vehicles and emergency services made for an outstanding parade once again," she said.

"The number of children on the floats was amazing and even in the extreme heat, the children loved being in the parade."

Mrs Dymott thanked the Loxton Waikerie council for their in-kind continued support, and the local SA Police, emergency services, MCs, commentators and judges of the parade, and The Murray Pioneer's Shop Window competition.

"Despite the efforts of the ambassador entrants, their sponsor and the generosity of several local businesses, the amount of funds available to distribute was not enough to support Small Grant applications this year... these funds will be held over for distribution next year," Mrs Dymmott said.

Mrs Dymmott finished her report by saying, "I look forward to the 69th Loxton Mardi Gras, on February 28, and March 1, 2026 with the theme chosen for next year being 'Disney'.

New times for beloved Lions Bazaar fundraising events

LOCALS are advised the starting times of the Renmark Lions Club's popular Bazaar fundraisers has been modified.

The decision was made by club members to avoid having to organise the events early on, and to avoid cold mornings during the winter months.

Commencing from June 29, the Renmark Lions Club sale event, run by Lions volunteers, will run in accordance with daylight saving times, with the events held during winter (April-September) to start at 9am and finish at 12 noon, while the Bazaars held between October to March will start at 8am, to avoid darker hours.

Organisers of the Renmark Lions Club fundraiser said they hope attendees understand the decision and continue to support the community events.

Connection postcards heading to the Riverland

RIVERLANDERS are manager community and ies those small but mighty encouraged to pick up a pen and participate in a national initiative aiming to inspire meaningful moments of connection and reduce loneliness.

Australia Post and Beyond Blue have teamed up in an effort to spread prepaid hand-written postcards to households across the country, aiming to "spark simple yet powerful acts of kindness".

"What we know is that people still feel a much deeper emotional connection when they receive a letter or a postcard, and that's why we want to write to one another, to improve connection." Australia Post general stakeholder engagement, Nicky Tracy said.

Beyond Blue CEO Georgie Harman, said "this initiative is such a great reminder of the power of connection and how small acts of kindness can have a big impact on our mental health".

"Research shows that everyday micro interactions like saying hello to people in our local neighbourhood as we're walking the dog or popping into the shops can help us feel less lonely and more connected" Mr Harman said.

"Our partnership with Australia Post and the connection postcards embodmoments by encouraging Australians to let someone know they're thinking about

With studies performed by Beyond Blue showing that 30 per cent of people are experiencing loneliness or a lack of connection due to distress, financial pressure, relationship pressure, and housing stress, friends and family are highly encouraged to reach out to each other, using handwritten and personalised postcards and letters.

The postcards will be available at participating post offices nationwide as a part of the national cam-

Patient or peer — health awards want to hear

RURAL and remote communities, like the Riverland, are being encouraged to acknowledge the contribution, innovation and dedication of their local health professionals and organisations, by nominating for the 2025 National Rural and Remote Health Awards.

Inaugurated by Rural Health Pro at Parliament House in 2023, the Awards take place each November as part of Rural Health Month and nominations can be peer, organisation, patient or self-nominated.

Finalists and nominees will have the opportunity to attend the Awards alongside the Governor-General of Australia Sam Mostyn, and the National Rural Health commissioner Jenny May.

Rural Health pro manager Jessica Rostas is encouraging every individual, whether a patient or peer, to rally behind and celebrate the extraordinary efforts of their local health professionals, teams and organisations by nominating them for one of 10 award categories.

"We have been delighted with the support these awards have received in the past, all to celebrate the work of some of Australia's most outstanding health professionals and organisations, making a difference where it matters most," she said.

"Whether you're a patient or peer, every nomination is an opportunity to express gratitude and acknowledge the extraordinary efforts of your local health professionals and organisations, or you can nominate yourself.

"Furthermore, it is my hope that our winners' stories will inspire future generations to consider pursuing careers in this vital field and raise awareness of the many rewarding benefits of working in rural health."

All rural, remote and regional communities now have the opportunity to showcase this work by nominating today in one or more of categories, including:

- ☐ Outstanding Contribution to Rural/ Remote Health Access.
- ☐ Rural/Remote Aged or Disability Carer of the Year.
- ☐ Excellence in Rural/Remote Health Administration.
- Rural/Remote Multidisciplinary Collaboration of the Year.
- ☐ Excellence in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Healthcare.
- ☐ Rural/Remote Health Professional of the - ☐ Rising Star in Rural/Remote Health.
- ☐ Dedication to Health in a Remote
- ☐ Rural/Remote Health Innovator of the
- ☐ Rural/Remote Health Employer of the Nominations close August 11.

Aboriginal Education Strategy generating benefits

ACCORDING to a new Department for Education report, participation of Aboriginal children in at least 600 hours of preschool before school has grown by 8 per cent, in regional areas like the Riverland.

The Aboriginal Education Strategy, Impact Report noted grants for bus services for six Aboriginal preschools, in both metropolitan and regional areas, continues to support improved attendance and participation – a recommendation by the Royal Commission into Early Childhood Education and Care.

Additional outcomes noted include:

- □ 10 per cent more Aboriginal students completed the SACE in 2024 compared to the year before.
- ☐ Since June 2024, the number of active collaborations with Aboriginal language organisations and owners has grown from six to 10.
- ☐ More than $900,000 was distributed to schools to support Aboriginal learners in primary school to learn their, or another Aboriginal language, in 2025.
- ☐ Since 2019, the number of schools with an Aboriginal languages program has grown from 46 to 63 in 2025.
- ☐ Since 2019, the number of Aboriginal languages programs in schools has grown from 48 to 73 in
- ☐ With funding support from the department, the Pitjantjatjara and Yankunytjatjara

Critical to the success of the strategy is partnering with Aboriginal organisations and communities to ensure their voices are not just heard, but they are at the decision-making table...

- Kyam Maher

Blair Boyer

Education Committee has established an Anangu Resource Development Unit, which has produced 17 teaching and learning resources in first languages for Anangu.

☐ In 2024, 1264 students participated in South Australian Aboriginal Secon-dary Training Academy (SAASTA) Programs and 632 in Workabout. SAASTA expanded from 22 Academ-ies in 2023, to 26 Academies in 2024.

"Seeing increased participation of Aboriginal children in preschool is a result of this government's commitment to supporting the early years of a child's life," Minister for Education, Training, and Skills Blair Boyer said.

"It will continue to be a key focus of the Office for Early Childhood Development in joining up our early years services with families and communities.

"It's also pleasing to see participation rates for secondary school Aboriginal students continue to grow in the South Australian Aboriginal Secondary Training Academy (SAASTA) and Workabout programs.

"These support Aboriginal students to pursue exciting career pathways like civil construction apprenticeships and legal studies at university.'

Minister for Aboriginal Affairs Kyam Maher said "the Aboriginal Education Strategy continues to make progress in improving the lives and educational outcomes for Aboriginal children and young people in South Australia".

"Critical to the success of the strategy is partnering with Aboriginal organisations and communities to ensure their voices are not just heard, but they are at the decision-making table," Mr Maher said.

"With support from the Department for Education. Aboriginal language organisations are writing the curriculum in their own language, and Aboriginal staff are contributing to department policies."

Medical specialists for regional SA

THE Riverland now has greater access to medical specialist services, with the State Government's recent delivery of a $10m election commitment.

The State Government has so far recruited 10.37 full-time-equivalent (FTE) specialist doctors to treat people living in regional and remote areas.

These specialists are providing regular clinics and services including virtual clinics in all six regional Local Health Networks (LHNs), with care closer to home.

Regional cancer services have been boosted through the recruitment of additional oncologists, including a new cancer clinic at the Riverland General Hospital over the last two years.

Access to essential end-of-life care has also been improved in the Riverland Mallee Coorong, thanks to additional palliative care consultants.

Other medical specialists recruited to service regional areas include anaesthetists, an orthopaedic surgeon and general, emergency medicine and respiratory physicians.

Many of these specialists are also providing crucial advice to rural general practitioners and regional healthcare staff and, in some areas, are supporting the development of local training pathways and building clinical trial capabilities in regional South Australia.

"I'm delighted that regional communities are now benefiting from the hard work that has been done across all six regional local health networks to get these medical specialist roles in place," Minister for Health and Wellbeing Chris Picton said.

"This is an important part of our commitment to providing more services closer to home for people across South Australia.

Riverland Mallee Coorong Local Health Network executive director of medical services Caroline Phegan said "funding from the election commitment has supported the expansion of our community palliative care services across the entire Riverland Mallee Coorong Local Health Network"

"It has also supported rural generalists to train in palliative care as their advanced skill, further embedding palliative care in the community, and providing services close to home," Dr Phegan said.

Free stroke prevention tool to take control

STROKE Foundation is supporting a free digital tool, Love Your Brain, to help Riverlanders understand and manage their

Developed in collaboration with Monash University and the Menzies Institute for Medical Research at the University of Tasmania, Love Your Brain aims to reduce the number of strokes experienced each year by empowering people with knowledge, motivation and simple, practical steps to improve their health.

Currently, researchers are looking for people aged 45 or over who have never had a stroke or major heart event to take part in the free Love Your Brain program.

The program offers participants a 12-week tailored online course, or a series of emails or SMS messages, sharing insights into stroke risk factors, such as high blood pressure, and how to take meaningful action to lower them.

Stroke Foundation CEO Lisa Murphy said the initiative is a powerful way to put prevention into people's hands.

'This project is about raising awareness and making prevention practical," Dr Murphy

"Love Your Brain meets people where they're at and encourages small changes that can make a big difference."

Barmera Primary School students show gratitude

Martin Heppell with Barmera Primary School reception student Annabel.

BARMERA Primary School students took part in a Resilience Project's Gratitude, Empathy, and Mindfulness (GEM) sessions, with Martin Heppell, earlier this month.

Students attended Renmark Greek Hall for the sessions, where they enjoyed dancing, showing their gratitude to each other through hugs and high fives, and were empowered to be themselves while feeling confident in their own bodies.

Barmera Primary School student Paige said she "enjoyed how people could just be themselves", while student Eliza said she liked "how (she) got to hug people we knew from other schools and say nice things about them".

"I gained more confidence about myself", Barmera Primary School student Chanelle said.

The program supports the agricultural community in the Murraylands and Riverland region to increase sustainable farming practices and improve natural resource-management out-

Eligible groups can apply for funding to run training, deliver skills and knowledge building activities, host community events, and trial or demonstrate new approaches to climate-smart agriculture.

Murraylands and Riverland Landscape Board sustainable agriculture officer Denham Ewens said the grants are a valuable opportunity to support local producers facing an increasingly challenging climate.

"These grants are a great opportunity for primary producers and agricultural groups to access support that helps them adapt, innovate and share knowledge within their communities," he said

"We know our climate presents ongoing challenges for the agricultural community (and) this program is about helping them build adaptability by supporting practical, onground activities that strengthen both productivity and sustain-

"More than $270,000 is available, so we encourage all eligible applicants to consider how the funding could support their ideas."

Applications are open until July 11.

SPSF project helping financially struggling owners with registration, desexing fees

SAFE Pets Safe Families (SPSF) are running a Community Connections Project, with aims to increase rates of pet registration and desexing for Riverlanders who are struggling financially.

Operated through a threeyear initiative funded by a $195,000 grant from the Dog and Cat Management Board, SPSF works with individuals and families through difficult times, including homelessness, domestic violence, mental health or sickness, and aims to provide aid during times of crisis, and reduce pressure on local animal shelters by removing financial barriers to reuniting pets with their owners.

Through the Community Connections Project, SPSF will:

- ☐ Increase access to subsidised desexing, and offer practical and financial assistance with registration, microchipping and returning of impounded pets.
- Run Community
 Connection Days where

Times of difficulty can be distressing enough without having to surrender beloved pets, which sometimes are a person's only form of comfort and companionship...

- Carrie Lilly

the public will be provided greater access to essential pet services and educational resources about responsible pet ownership.

Employ a dedicated Community Connections project officer to liaise between families and stakeholders, and to facilitate the financial assistance available through the program.

SPSF can also arrange nointerest repayment plans for pet surgery.

These services are aimed at increasing the rates of microchipping, desexing and registration, reducing pet surrender rates, boosting the chance of reunification between impounded pets and owners, and preventing unwanted litters.

SPSF Community Connection project officer Carrie Lilly said times were tough for many people and the companionship and positive benefits of owning a pet were needed more than ever.

"We are honoured to be supported by (the) Dog and Cat Management Board to deliver a program that can help people and pets that ordinarily may face barriers to accessing the resources and services that many of us take for granted," Ms Lilly said.

Dog and Cat Management Board Chairman David Parkin said the group was proud to support the Community Connections Project.

"Safe Pets Safe Families does incredible work to help out families who are going through tough times," Mr Parkin said.

"Times of difficulty can be distressing enough without having to surrender beloved pets, which sometimes are a person's only form of comfort and companionship."

Lions backing for Renmark community kitchen group

THE Lions Club of Renmark held a recent dinner meeting on June 9, at the Renmark Club, welcoming Elsa Loulas and Susan Chliaris as their guest speakers to talk about the Kosmos Community Kitchen, operating from the Chaffey Community Centre

Elsa is the founder of Kosmos Community Kitchen, which commenced in 2024. Her team of volunteers will in July celebrate one year of cooking meals to support those needing food assistance in the community.

The group of dedicated volunteers started out preparing around 25 meals once a month, and the need has steadily increased to around 70 meals a month. They receive assistance with ingredient supplies from local businesses, but as demand, has increased they quite often contribute funds personally to buy supplies.

The Lions Club of Renmark was proud to support Elsa and her dedicated group at Kosmos Community Kitchen, by approaching Koch's Foodland in Renmark and placing a $1000 donation for goods to be purchased in store.

Well done to the Kosmos Community Kitchen for their wonderful work providing food assistance to those in their community who need it. For more information contact the Chaffey Community Centre on 8586 5745

Watch out for heater sparks during winter

INCREASED heater-related fires have sparked a warning from authorities for Riverland residents to check their winter appliances and use them safely around the home.

The Metropolitan Fire Service (MFS) have attended 11 incidents across the state this year, resulting in around $1.1m in damages, compared to eight fires linked to electric or gas heaters, combustion heaters and fireplaces at the same time last year.

South Australians are urged to have their combustion heaters, flues and chimneys professionally inspected and cleaned at least once a year – timed for the start of the cold weather – to keep them in good working order and avoid embers sparking a fire.

In 2024, MFS and Country Fire Service (CFS) crews attended a total of 47-related blazes, an increase of more than 50 per cent on the previous year, with 31 incidents recorded.

Minister for Emergency Services Emily Bourke said "we know heaters are one of the most common causes of house fires, so preparation around the home is key as temperatures drop".

"A check of winter appliances can help prevent a blaze that risks the safety of your family, your neighbours and fire crews who respond," Ms Bourke said.

"Correct installation, maintenance and use of equipment, paired with a working smoke alarm, will help save lives and prevent devasting consequences."

Nearly three-out-of-four fires that have occurred so far this year were in May.

Other heater safety tips include:

☐ Keeping combustible items like clothes, bedding, furniture and curtains well clear of heaters – ideally a minimum of 2 meters.

☐ If clothes need to be dried inside, use a clothes airer in a room with no heater but a good air flow.

☐ Ensuring any heating equipment is installed by a qualified tradesperson and regularly maintained.

☐ Following the manufacturer's instructions. ☐ Checking for signs of wear and tear before ☐ Checking for signs of wear and tear before use, and replacing as needed.

House fires are more common during sleeping hours of the cooler months, June to August, highlighting the need for all households to prepare this winter.

Acting CFS chief officer Paul Seager said "firefighters respond to hundreds of house fires across regional South Australia each year".

"For your family's safety, it is recommended chimneys, flues and gas or electrical heating systems are professionally inspected and cleaned annually to keep them in good working condition," Mr Seager said.

"Never leave a fire or heater unattended, ensure all open flames and heaters are fully extinguished or turned off before going to bed or leaving the house."

A working smoke alarm is crucial for giving early warnings of fire, providing the time needed to safely evacuate from the property.

Fire-related deaths often result from smoke inhalation and toxic fire gases rather than direct contact with flames and heat.

THE FAIR-WEATHER GARDENER

UNFORTUNATELY our weather has been mainly fair. Still hoping for some decent rains. In the meantime look at plant care on frosty days.

FROST

Move outside pot plants to a more protected area. Don't cut back any damaged foliage, as this will protect the plant from further frosts.

An application of liquid seaweed will give added strength in the cooler weather.

Frosts are beneficial to some plants by assisting leaf drop, making pruning an easier option, particularly with roses. These can be left until July to

If you prune too early the new shoots will be burnt by any further frosts and with our late start to winter, there will be more frosts to come.

HOUSE PLANTS

I feel house plants come into their own in winter as they add so much to our indoor spaces.

However they do need some TLC. They might need a shift closer to the light source.

Remove dead and damaged leaves or flowers, and mist regularly, particularly if you have indoor heating. Keep the leaves dust free by wiping them regularly with a cloth dipped in water or milk. This will also give shine.

Indoor plants purify the air and make our homes healthier, happier places. Two of the best, and also hardier plants, are mother-in-law's tongue, and the peace lily.

WEEDS

Even without the winter rains, the weeds have managed to keep growing. Beside removing by hand and mulching, I have found growing ground covers not only look great, but they help smother weeds.

Some that do well are prostrate grevilleas, mondo grass, thyme, pig face, and the native violet. Creeping boobialla are also hardy, with a dense, spreading growth and whitescented flowers.

GARLIC

It is the traditional time to get your garlic in.

Make sure you plant disease free corms. It is best to replant from your previous year's crop, or purchase from a reputable nursery. They like well drained, fertile soil, and will grow well in Feed them with a high-nitrogen fertiliser, and remove any flowers so that bulb will grow larger. Your reward will be a prolific crop, with many health benefits.

THINGS TO DO IN JUNE/JULY

- 1. It's a good time to move any plants. Remove any damaged roots and prune lightly to compensate for the root loss and transplant stress.
- 2. Plant some quick-growing annuals such as alyssum, calendulas, nasturtium, lobelia and pansy.
- 3. Feed your cymbidium orchids with a specialised fertiliser, as they put out their flower buds.

- 4. Prepare the garden for, and order, your new roses.
- Lift and divide day lilies, and take cuttings of salvias.
- You can still plant spring seedlings, so browse your garden centres. Look for peas, winter lettuce, cabbage, broad beans (from seeds), English spinach, onions and beetroot.
- 7. Buy and plant a rhubarb crown.
- 8. Clean out the garden sheds, sharpen tools, and oil moving equipment like wheelbarrows.

WINTER COLOUR

Small shrubs that bloom in winter are always in demand.

Try azaleas, Chinese lantern (abutilon dwarf), camellias, daphne, Geraldton wax, hebe, and lavender.

Save money and buy a container of flowering annuals to brighten your heart and your home.

Available now are alyssum, cineraria, dianthus, lobelia, nemesia, polyanthus, primula, and snap dragon.

Blood Moon

TITLE:

Sandra Brown

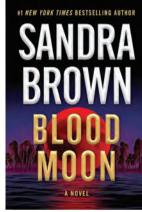

BOOK REVIEW BY:

Katrina Webber

Blood Moon is an enthralling mystery set against the backdrop of coastal Louisiana. The story begins with Beth Collins, a determined TV producer for a true crime show, who arrives in the small town of Auclair to investigate a cold case. The case involves the mysterious disappearance of a young girl named Emily three years ago, coinciding with a blood moon — a rare lunar event where the moon appears red.

Beth believes that the abductor will strike again during the next blood moon, which is just four days away. She teams up with detective John Bowie, a local cop who has been haunted by Emily's case and is eager to find closure. Despite his initial reluctance and the corruption within his police force, John joins Beth, driven by a shared determination to solve the mystery.

As they delve deeper into the investigation, Beth and John uncover a web of secrets and lies that point to a much-larger conspiracy. The tension increases as they race against time to prevent another abduction. The plot is filled with unexpected twists and turns, keeping readers on the edge of their seats.

The setting of Louisiana, with its remote bayous and dense forests, adds a layer of mystery and danger.

Throughout the story, the relationship between Beth and John evolves from professional collaboration to a deeper connection, adding a touch of romance to the suspenseful plot. Their energy is captivating, as they navigate personal demons and professional challenges while working together to solve the case.

Sandra Brown skillfully weaves together elements of mystery, suspense, and romance, creating a fastpaced and engaging read. The graphic descriptions of the Louisiana landscape and the complex plot make 'Blood Moon´ a standout novel in the mystery genre. The book explores themes of trust, resilience, and the relentless pursuit of justice, making it a thought-provoking and thrilling read.

Overall, Blood Moon is perfect for anyone who enjoys a good thriller with a unique setting and a gripping storyline. It's a book that will keep you guessing until the very end, with a satisfying conclusion that ties up all the loose ends.

Loxton Waikerie Library Service monthly update

LOXTON and Waikerie libraries will begin the school holidays with their Block and Pixel Pursuit challenge. Available from the July 4 to 31, young adventurers have the task to find 20 block-and-brick-inspired images hidden throughout the libraries. Grab a sheet from the front desk to help in your search.

The Loxton and Waikerie libraries invite the community to a special public screening of Nunga Screen, a compelling collection of short films that celebrate and share First Nations stories, culture, and language. Nunga Screen features a diverse mix of animations, documentaries, and scripted dramas, offering audiences a unique opportunity to engage with Indigenous voices and perspectives.

The screening is thoughtfully structured to cater to a wide audience. The first 45 minutes are suitable for younger children, making it an ideal outing for families. The second half of the program is recommended for mature audiences, as it explores more complex themes. Nunga Screen entertains and supports the development of new First Nations creative works and community initiatives across South Australia. Loxton Library will run screenings on Monday, July 7, starting at 9:30am, running every hour, while Waikerie Library will have screenings on Monday, July 7, at 2:30pm, and Tuesday, July 8, at

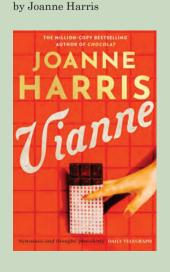

As part of NAIDOC Week celebrations, Loxton Library has the Sista Girls Group Art Exhibition on display, showcasing the artistic talents of young, Indigenous students from our region. Loxton Library is also running a NAIDOC colouring-in competition. Collect your colouring-in sheet from the front desk and submit your completed entry. Winners will be chosen on Monday, July 14.

Looking for a creative and engaging way to keep the children busy these school holidays? Join the Loxton Library for a wild adventure filled with stories and animalthemed craft activities which are sure to keep the children entertained on these chilly days. The Waikerie Library invites children to explore the imaginative worlds of LEGO and Minecraft through a variety of fun craft activities. From building and painting to designing and playing, this program is perfect for curious minds and crafty hands. It's a great way for children to express their creativity while having a blast.

21st BIRTHDAY

SMITH, Nyah.

Happy 21st birthday.

Wishing you an amazing birthday filled with laughter, celebration, and everything you love.

> Have the best birthday ever!

Love the Murray Pioneer family.

DEATHS

BAKER, Ross.

Friend for over 40 years.

Kind, gentle, loving, humble and generous.

You never let me pay for lunch or drinks.

Enjoying the simple life, never chasing fame just fun.

While my heart was being fixed, yours was fading.

Next life we will be playing harps together, maybe instead of guitars. We do not sorrow as others who have no hope. Forever in my heart. Marlene 'Marle'.

BINDER, Dennis Murray.

> 14/2/1944 -25/6/2025

Dearly loved husband of Jill.

Father and father-in-law of Brenton and Paula, Vicki, Dean, Jason and Belle.

Pop to Lachie, Will, Charlie, Henry Jonah, Della, Raph, James, and Eddy.

Forever loved and sadly missed.

My last cruise going overseas

ON February 28 I flew to Sydney to board the Queen Anne - the fourth Queen of the Cunard Line - on her inaugural world cruise. I had enjoyed cruises on the Mary 2, Elizabeth and Victoria over the years, before the pandemic intervened.

We left Sydney just as Cyclone Alfred was heading toward Australia and Brisbane. The captain was notified that the Brisbane Port was closed because of the cyclone. Captain Inger Thorhauge, who is the only woman captain with Cunard and one of only three in the world, was born in the Faroe Islands, and moved to Denmark in

She steered Anne on the edge of the cyclone area. There were 2900 passengers on board, plus 1000 crew. We experienced a bit of rocking most of the night.

Queen Anne anchored for the day at Airley Beach and the next day at Yorkey's Knob, where I went ashore to have lunch with Peg and Ian Woodcock. We went off and around Cape York to Darwin, and then to the Philippines and Manila, where the lights went out for a short time as pirates were in the vicinity. We had to have much information on our phones to gain entry and customs just looked at our passports. The tour I did took in the American Cemetery and Memorial, immaculately kept and covering 152 acres, and containing 17,113 white Italian marble headstones. Displays showed the war in the Pacific in 1941 to 1945. Walls honouring the 36,286 missing in action can be viewed.

Although I mentioned how many were aboard, I travelled alone and was happy to share a table in Brittania Restaurant at dinner. A gentleman kept looking across at me and said "I think I know you". I replied "I don't think so". When he finished eating, he came around to me with his phone and said "here you are". It was a group dance photo taken in 2017 on a dance cruise around the Mediterranean. The gentleman Ken was from Christ Church, New Zealand, and Linda, who shared my cabin for a week, was also aboard. To be recognised after eight years shows cence

I also went to hear an Andrew Jarrett, a retired referee of 14 years at Wimbledon, who has written a book titled Championship Points. He won junior tennis tournaments and worked his way into the English team. My tennis experiences were relived.

The third lecturer was Sir Peter Cosgrove, our former Governor General of Australia.

His sense of humour was infectious, his experiences in the army in Vietnam and his interaction with our late Queen Elizabeth II were something to hear and see on the screen. I met him and his wife at the lifts and had a photo, both were very approachable.

Phu, a coastal town in Southern Vietnam, was next, with a greeting by drummers and dancers in national costume as we docked. I chose to do a tour to Ho Chi Min City (Saigon) which was a twohour bus trip away. The poverty was evident most of the way, with many roadside stalls selling their produce. Singapore was next on the Itinerary, where I disembarked and flew home that night. The airport is extensive. I have seen most of the world in the last 20 years, in its affluence and poverty, so it is time to discover and stay in our lovely country.

Building Bridges towards deaf-friendly rural classrooms

A RECENT survey by Deaf Children Australia (DCA) has shown many rural children, living in regions like the Riverland, believe their schools lack necessary skills, resources, and support.

The survey of hundreds of parents, carers and school staff, primarily in rural and regional areas, found that more than 60 per cent of respondents believe their mainstream school needs greater deaf awareness while more than 40 per cent reported their schools have limited skills in effectively communicating with deaf and hard-of-hearing children.

This is despite 83 per cent of deaf and hard-of-hearing students (DHH) in Australia attending mainstream schools.

The DCA survey also found 80 per cent of respondents felt the school community would benefit from skills and resources to better support DHH kids.

In response, Deaf Children Australia (DCA) last month launched Building Bridges, a free online course designed to help school communities better support their DHH children.

Building Bridges is evidence-based and built on years of research, and designed to be practical and flexible for any school setting and individual need.

Building Bridges includes:

- ☐ Deaf awareness, communication tips and guidance.
- ☐ Access to a video library of 200+ school-friendly Auslan signs.
- Downloadable resources with practical information about inclusion, Auslan and classroom activities.
- ☐ Free Auslan Resource Pack with posters, activity sheets, and two large format Platypus Playhouse storytime books, with key Auslan signs and translations that gently introduce Auslan to DHH and families

Building Bridges is based on the principle that DHH students deserve the same level of support and inclusion that is provided to students of other abilities.

DCA spokesperson Sarah Brennan said Building Bridges will help school communities understand the different types of deafness, how to recognise and respond to them, and the unique challenges faced by DHH sudents when it comes to inclusion and participation.

"We know deaf and hard of hearing students thrive when their school community understands how to support them, but many within that community feel they do not have the skills or resources to properly communicate with them to ensure they feel fully included," she said.

"All students, regardless of their abilities, have the right to communicate with, and be understood by their teachers, school staff and peers.

"And when it comes to special education and additional assistance in regional and rural areas, the challenge is even greater, with limited options for families who choose to live in these communities.

"Building Bridges is a highly-practical, flexible way to embed inclusive practices across your school — at no cost."

EXCHANGE DEBATE VICTORY: Alongside teacher Kevin Barber. Berri Regional Secondary College debate team Grace, Charlie, and Ebony won their debate at the Mount Gambier Exchange Debate this week. The topic was 'AI is a threat to education', and the team put forward a well-researched, persuasive case that impressed both the audience and adjudicators. Loxton players celebrate a goal in the A grade's massive eight-goal win on home turf over the Olympic, Pelicans play out entertaining draw

IT is quickly unfolding as one of the strongest rivalries in Riverland soccer, and another exciting instalment played out between Barmera and Renmark in the women's competition last weekend.

With competition held at Loxton over the weekend, it meant the two sides met on neutral ground, ultimately sharing the spoils as the result finished two goals apiece.

Blossom Kimberley opened the scoring for Olympic after 26 minutes, and although Barmera levelled on 29 minutes through Amelia Koumbarakos, Renmark quickly responded.

Just one minute later, Emilly Jordan gave Olympic back the lead, giving her side a 2-1 advantage at the half.

However, Matilda Mitchell got things back on level terms shortly after the break, with both sides failing to ultimately find the

The result sees the Pelicans remain on top of the ladder, only ahead of Renmark on goal difference, with both sides on 19 points after eight matches.

Elsewhere, Loxton United proved too classy for Berri, securing a second win of the campaign with a 3-0 victory on home turf.

United made the most of their familiar surroundings, and it was three minutes of madness inside the first half which caused the result.

Sarah Setchell scored after 25 minutes, and only three minutes later Melissa Greer doubled the lead, giving Loxton the advantage at the break.

Greer found her second of the game to seal the three points for United, who travel to Renmark this week for a clash with Olympic. A grade men's action saw Loxton make it back-to-back victories, defeating Berri by a massive eight goals to nil.

Berri is yet to record a point this season, with a goal differential of -42, and United took full toll.

In an even spread of contributors, six players scored for the team on home turf, but it was Hayden Stevens and Josh Ekisa as the main beneficiaries, each finishing with a brace.

Joel Sleep and Constantine Vallelonga competed hard for the River Rangers, who are showing signs of growth amid a tough campaign.

Elsewhere, Renmark proved too good for Barmera with a 2-0 win, scoring either side of the half to set up the three points.

In what was a strong performance from Vincent Vu across the day, he was rewarded for his efforts with a first half goal, while Jason Stokes doubled the lead after 65 min-

The win sees Renmark open up a fivepoint lead at the top of the ladder ahead of Loxton, with the outcome of Sunday's match proving significant.

The biggest winning margin of the weekend came through the B grade men's competition, where Renmark smashed a disappointing Berri outfit 11-1.

Both George Tsolomitis and Karan Kahlon had enjoyable days out, each finishing with a hat-trick, while Berri's highlight of the day came through Brenton Kenefick.

Riverland sides compete in junior netball ca

AMELIA SEMMLER AND LACHLAN DAND

THE Loxton Junior Netball Carnival was held last weekend once again in the Riverland, with teams of junior players from all around South Australia taking to The Precinct in Loxton.

The carnival has been an ongoing event in the Riverland since the 1980s, and current co-ordinator, Joanne Hondow, has been involved for over a decade.

Ms Hondow said she hopes the Riverland carnival will continue, but is varying due to the number of teams.

"We had a really good day; the weather was perfect for netball." Ms Hondow said.

"We had about 18 teams, which is a little bit down on other years.

"Which I think is due to Elizabeth running a carnival on the same day, and also the Katy Perry concert took some of our players away.

"Out of the 18 teams, we did have Hills travel from Adelaide, and we also had the Sunraysia teams come this year which was really exciting. They brought six teams.

"Sunraysia are more representative teams, so that gives our local comp a little bit extra competition.

"I think overall the competition was quite strong, and there were a lot of talented play-

Nine teams represented the Riverland across the region's towns, and although Sunraysia Green took home wins for the under 15s and under 13s competition, the home sides competed strongly.

"I think it's really good for the girls to get different experiences against other clubs and different teams, rather than just their normal Saturday competitions," Ms Hondow said.

"I'd love to thank the junior carnival committee, they do amazing work to get this carnival up and running.

"Also just our netball club families, who were rostered on to work in the canteen and the barbeque, without their support it would be unable to go ahead, so we definitely appreciate what they do.'

We had a total of three local clubs, Loxton, Renmark and Berri, and five clubs all together compete in the carnival.

"It's exciting we can hold something in the Riverland, rather than the girls having to travel."

Ms Hondow said she'd love to see more teams in the future, and it's something being looked at with numbers dropping a little bit in recent years.

Schaefer and Reay were crucial in securing the points for Loxton, working well throughout the game, while BJ Hammerstein also impressed.

Waikerie found some respite through Abbey Edwards' strike, with last year's grand finalists continuing the search for a response as the season hits the halfway point.

On the other side of the coin, reigning premier Sunraysia made a successful trip to Berri, defeating the home club by three goals to one on Saturday evening. Sunraysia celebrated success in a statement to the competition, and it was Rory Giddings who seemed to be the difference, scoring two goals.

Giddings' pair of goals were aided by Sue Wakefield finding the back of the net, and she proved particularly strong across the evening alongside Paige McInnnes.

Berri made the score respectable via Ella Rothe's goal, while Ashlee Hibberd and Madi Martin worked tirelessly throughout the match.

A grade men's action saw reigning premier Berri continue to perform at a high standard, this time defeating Sunraysia 2-0.

Scott Moldovan and Josh Fleming were the ones to find the back of the net, while both Jameson Radloff and the ever-consistent Daniel Shawver both stood tall.

The biggest winning margin of the weekend came through the B grade women's competition, after 10 goals from Renmark helped it secure a massive win over a scoreless Loxton side.

In an even spread of goal contributions, Tia Vowles, Kylie Radloff, Kylie Barton, and Jorji Townsend scored twice, while goals from pair Ael Atienza, and Avani Singh saw the margin reach double figures.

Riverland hockey will be held across both Friday and Saturday night this weekend, before heading to a mid-season bye for school holidays the following weekend.

RENMARK TABLE TENNIS ASSOCIATION

ROUND eight of the Renmark Table Tennis Association saw the Backhand Bandits cement their spot at the top of the ladder with a commanding victory over Net Ninjas, and Bits 'n Bats score their second win for the season over Bit Edgy.

In the first match of the night, Backhand Bandits showed why they are a game clear at the top of the ladder with a huge 19-5 win over secondplaced Net Ninjas.

Net Ninjas started well, winning the irst doubles match but from there it went downhill fast, losing all the subsequent doubles and only four of the 16 singles rubbers.

Dennis Robinson has continued to rebuild his season after a poor 2024, which saw him drop to the number two team position for the first time in approximately 60 years.

In round eight, Dennis fought hard to win both his singles in five games against Barry Williams and Nigel Stoeckel, moving his ranking up four positions to return to the top five, at number four.

In the second match, Bits 'n Bats secured an important win, to keep in touch with the top four, defeating Bit

Bits 'n Bats took an early lead in the doubles, and then extended it with some good wins in the singles.

Allan Hughes of Bits 'n Bats had a real battle, with Paul Reid of Bit Edgy needing 9, 11, 14, 6 and 12 points respectively to secure the rubber in the five games.

Panthers keep finals hopes alive

LACHLAN DAND

FINALS football is still alive for Loxton North in season 2025, following a hardfought 18-point win over Berri on Saturday afternoon, at Panther Park, in the RFL's A grade competition.

Heading into the match in last position, Loxton North's finals hopes were quickly fading, while Berri had the opportunity to gain breathing room on fellow contender Loxton.

In blustery conditions, it was a cagey start to the contest, with both sides finding the big sticks twice in the opening term.

Loxton North kicked the first goal of the game through emerging young forward Tyler Wagner, but the Demons quickly responded, first through Darcy Minchella, followed up by Michael Mcrae.

However, North jumped to a one-point lead at quarter time following Wagner's second, giving the home fans plenty to cheer about.

In what was somewhat of a surprise, Loxton North made the most of the wind advantage going towards the primary school end, kicking five goals to one, and opening up a 23-point half-time lead.

The Panthers made an inaccurate Berri side pay for missed opportunities, with the Demons kicking just one goal from six attempts.

Returning from suspension, Masud Akaso got things started for Loxton North, alongside a pair of goals from Ryan Proud and Jarrod Buckley, with the Demons' relief coming via Mcrae's second of the day.

However, the biggest cheer of the game came just moments prior to the half time siren, with Panther debutant Rhys Wooldridge kicking his first A grade goal.

In a low-scoring third term, Minchella's second goal of the game was the only major of the quarter, trimming the margin to 17 points at the final change, with both teams burning several chances.

Berri started the final quarter with a flourish, somewhat similar to North the previous week, but struggled to convert inside 50.

However, the Demons kicked two in a minute, firstly through Jake Egel, followed up by Tyson Lindsay, with the margin going back to just three points.

The Panthers then got the game back on their terms, and ultimately steadied with goals from Wagner, and Wooldridge after the siren, sealing a three-goal victory.

North recruit James Neale impressed all day, giving plenty of run, and breaking the lines throughout the match.

Although unable to hit the scoreboard, which he has been able to do for much of the season, Neale was a strong competitor across the day, and set up several opportunities for

Captain Codi Voumard was superb in defence, curbing the influence of dangerous Berri forwards, and combining well with Judd Tschirpig, while Wagner was clinical in

For the Demons, Rory Moroney failed to give in across the afternoon's events, generating plenty of run for his side, while Brad Rosenzweig also worked hard.

This weekend sees Loxton North head to the Lakeside for a clash with Barmera-Monash, while Berri will hope to return to the winners' list when it takes on Waikerie at league headquarters, with both matches kicking off from 2.40pm on Saturday.

HAVING just one win from its last four matches heading into Saturday afternoon's RFL A grade clash at Loxton, Barmera-Monash was desperate for a response.

Widely expected by many RFL spectators to be at the top of the table at the pointy end of the season, the Roos entered the game outside of the top two.

However, the visitors were on song on Saturday afternoon, and although only leading by two points at quarter time, piled on five goals to two in the second term, racing out to a 27-point advantage at the half.

The loss sees Loxton remain outside of the top four, and with back-to-back away matches on the agenda, the path to finals becomes less clear.

Although both sides failed to kick a major in the third quarter, Barmera-Monash ran out the game well, kicking three goals from nine scoring opportunities, leading to a 39-point victory.

Roos playing coach Fraser Sampson said getting back to playing consistent football was high on the agenda, and his side were able to execute well against the Tigers.

"It was good to get back to playing a more consistent game and closer to our brand of footy," Sampson said.

"If we are able to get the game on our terms in the key areas we focus on then I feel we are really hard to beat.

"We just tried to simplify things and really hone in on a couple areas that we have been struggling with.

"The belief has always been there of what we can do but our confidence had taken a hit over the past month.

"Getting the win on the weekend was really important for us to get a bit of separation on the bottom three teams, but we are well aware that the competition is very close."

Matt Wutke was a key piece to the win for the Roos, kicking four goals, continuing his impressive season, while Max Pietrolaj slotted two, with ruckman Jack Austin working well throughout the day.

New recruit Will Cowling shone in the back half of the ground, while captain Sam Butterworth showed class with ball in hand.

Yet it was Wutke who helped break the game wide open in the second term, proving crucial around stoppage, and hitting the scoreboard with two in the quarter.

"I felt like we controlled field position well and that then allowed our midfielders and forwards to get some repeat looks," Sampson said.

Barmera-Monash small forward Matt Wutke tore Saturday's game to shreds with four goals in the win over Loxton.

"He (Wutke) is massive for us. He gets on really well with everyone in the group and sets a great example for us on field with his contest work." Tigers coach Nathan Brown continued his impressive run of form, showcasing his goal sense with two majors, while Ross Romeo, and the returning Bailey Boughen each finished with one.

Youngster Harley Campbell, and captain Jesse Will both fought hard for the hosts, and Sampson believes the Tigers are an underrated threat in the competition.

"They have some serious talent which can be really hard to stop when they get some momentum," he said.

"I still feel like they are a big threat and on their day are as good as anyone."

This weekend sees Loxton travel to Renmark in the 5RM Game of the Day, with the Tigers only outside of the top four on percentage, making Saturday's challenge even greater against the first-placed Rovers.

Barmera-Monash will return home for a match with an improving Loxton North, in what is a special day for the Roos.

"It'll be a big game for the club with the Mental Health Round, and the Corey Siemens Memorial game," Sampson said.

"We certainly won't be underestimating North and will need to be near our best to beat them."

Birdman flies in for Wellbeing event tomorrow

FORMER Adelaide Crows AFL star Brett 'Birdman' Burton is guest speaker at a special event tomorrow night to mark the RFL's Wellbeing Round.

Burton will appear at the Barmera-Monash Football Club's "evening of community and connection", to be held at the club from 7pm.

The free event is being staged by the Barmera-Monash Football Club's Wellbeing Committee, in conjunction with the Fat Farmers initiative.

It continues the committee's mental health focus, which began with an inaugural mental health game against Loxton North, in 2023.

The initiative continued last year and aims to shed light on mental health and suicide in the local community.

The club said it hopes to help "break the stigma surrounding mental health and prioritise support".

"By raising awareness, fostering understanding, and providing resources, we can save lives and make a difference," it said.

"Together, we want to build a society where everyone feels heard, supported, and valued."

Brown's Well hand out a 173-point thrashing

COMING off of a shock loss the previous week, Brown's Well recorded the biggest win of the 2025 MVFNL season so far, thumping Ramco to the tune of 173 points.

Brown's Well returned home for a competitive game for the first time since May 17, having won by forfeit in round seven against BSR.

More importantly, the Bombers were desperate for a response after a shock loss in Paringa the previous week.

Brown's Well begun the day with a five-goal-tonil head start to open up a 38-point lead at the first change, but the pain was yet to begin for Ramco.

The second term saw the Bombers extended the lead past triple figures with 10 goals unanswered, and when the margin grew to 158 points by three quarter time, the Roosters' day was getting progressively worse.

Ramco fought the game out well in the latter stages, having several opportunities in the last quarter, but failed to convert, leaving the margin inflated.

In an even spread of goalkickers, both Troy Braun and Ty McKenzie finished with six goals, while Lane Smith also booted five.

Ramco's only goals of the day came through Nathan Birch and Brodie Fridd, in what was a disappointing afternoon in Paruna.

Over in Paringa, the lowest scoring game of the year occurred, with the Bulldogs scrapping their way to a 10-point victory.

Wayward kicking cost Paringa throughout the day, while Wunkar managed just two majors from 16 shots at goal.

Heath Kelly and Tarquin Schulz both performed well for the visiting side in the win, while goals came through Jake Neumann and Tyson Renshaw.

Lee Verrall kicked both goals for Paringa in the second term, which proved to be the Swans' only two for the day.

The most entertaining result of the day came via Swan Reach, as the Redbacks took out an 11-point win on home deck.

Michael Pasiczynskyj and coach James Mapstone both excelled for BSR, while Jake Woodhouse kept the Magpies in touch with four majors.

This weekend sees Murrayville return from the bye to take on Brown's Well in a grand final rematch, while Ramco is set for an extended bye ahead of next weekend's SA Country Championships.

Renmark extend the gap in high-scoring battle

LACHLAN DAND

RENMARK extended the gap at the top of the Riverland Football League's A grade ladder on the weekend, downing Waikerie by 48 points.

In what was a high-scoring affair in Waikerie, Renmark found the big sticks on 19 occasions to record the big win, creating a six-point gap on second place.

It was a relatively slow start to the game between the bitter rivals, with the Rovers holding a six-point lead at the opening change after goals from Liam Jackson and Matt Woolford matched Cooper Mackereth's first of the match.

In an evenly matched second term, Renmark extended the lead by a further goal, kicking six majors to five as the game opened up.

However, the Rovers did a bulk of their damage throughout the third quarter with a massive eight goals to one, seeing the lead grow to 56 points.

Renmark playing coach Josh Vater said consistently looking for ways to improve is driving the Rovers with nine rounds now in the books.

"You're always looking for little things to improve on to make sure you're keeping the players engaged," he said.

"Now that we're right in the middle of the season and everyone's almost played each other twice, so the message is about how fortunate we are to be in the position we are at the moment.

"From a team point of view, we're always just trying to be better because there's always things to work on as individuals and as a team.

"From an individual point of view, there are still players trying to cement their spot in the side and we've had a heap of injuries all season, which has given others opportunities.

"We've been fortunate to have a heap of success in recent years but there's players in our group who haven't been apart of that yet so they're really driven.

"The older you get the more you appreciate the fact that it is going to end soon, and that you want to make the most of it while you can."

Renmark superstar Nick Gillard returned to the side for the first time since round four, and marked a successful comeback with four majors, while Jackson, Brody Rover, and Johnson all kicked three.

Vater oozed class through the middle of the ground, as did the ever-consistent Lachlan Lellmann, while Zach Gartery gave his on-ballers first use as always

For Waikerie, defender turned forward Sam Haniford enjoyed a strong day out with four goals, while reigning Whillas medallist Kade Hilton showed his smarts around goal with three majors.

Ryan Shaw continued an impressive campaign, finding plenty of the ball, while Luke Exton worked hard defensively under enormous pressure.

One of the key pieces to the success of the Rovers across recent seasons has been the ability to restrict opposition scores, however, the Magpies managed 77 points during Saturday's clash.

It's something which Vater said Renmark will continue to work on, putting the score down to the free-flowing nature of the match.

"We always want to restrict the opposition from scoring, but it was such an open game that it was probably enjoyable to watch, and enjoyable to play in because there were so many opportunities," he said.

"At the same time, we do pride ourselves on our defensive work, but you can't be perfect every week because that's how footy unfolds, but we've got things to work on defensively for sure.

This weekend sees Waikerie on the road to face Berri at league headquarters, while Renmark will return home to face Loxton, with both games set to have major finals implications.

The Rovers' clash with Loxton will be the 5RM Game of the Day, and Vater said his side will be wary of a Tigers outfit desperate for a win.

"In our debrief after the game we actually spoke about preparing for this week, and the fact that Loxton match up quite well against us," he said.

"They've had the better of us in that first game the last couple of years, and I'm unsure what they've done that works when

'That being said, I think if we take our opportunities and play the brand of football that we like to play and know we can play, we'll give it a fair crack.

"It's certainly one we're looking forward to, and we know they're in the mix to play finals, so they'll be as desperate as ever to get a win."

Both matches this Saturday kick off from 2.40pm.

RIVERLAND SAPSASA UPDALE

REPORTS SUPPLIED

DAY one of the Sapsasa Girls Netball State Carnival is complete; the weather stayed fine and it was a great day of 'learning to play and playing to learn' for our teams.

See our match reports below, written by Berri Regional Secondary College sport and recreation students Emily, Bella, Jemma and Klaudia, in consultation with coaches Brooke Franks and Taniel Willmott.

DIVISION THREE

Game One

Lower Eyre Peninsula 13 d Riverland 7 Best: Evie and Chloe

The girls started well and were still working on finding their groove, and we had a strong first and last quarter.

The girls moved the ball well down the court and into the circle, showing good teamwork and flow, with impressing rebounding at both ends of the court.

Overall, the girls fought hard, kept their heads up, and got ready to bring that energy into game two.

Game Two

Mid North 21 d Riverland 15 Best: Willow and Hannah

Our second game of the day was another windy and tough game. The third quarter was a real highlight, with excellent ball movement down the court and strong teamwork at both ends.

Defensively, it was fantastic to see players working on their hands-over and staying focused on applying pressure.

Overall, it was a great team effort and an exciting game to watch.

Riverland 22 d Northern 16 Best: Skylar and Peyton

The shooters moved well in the circle, and shot accurately under pressure. It was great to see their teamwork and communication paying off.

The mid-court did a solid job bringing the ball down the court with their dodges and worked together to keep the ball moving

Well done everyone, the efforts to win back the ball and apply pressure all game was impressive.

Everyone gave 100 per cent chasing down loose balls, showing great hustle and determination, and the teamwork, support, and positive attitude on court were fantastic.

DIVISION ONE

Riverland 15 d Lower Eyre Peninsula 13 Best: Olivia and Ada

With some windy conditions, the girls started strong in the first half, a great start to the carnival, and all of the girls played well and worked as a team.

A highlight of their game was their defensive pressure down the whole court, where they were able to use their turnovers as an advantage in the first half.

In the second half, they got tired and struggled a little bit, but overall, they played really well and supported each other. Game Two

Riverland 16 drew with Mid North 16 Best: Elsa, Ivy

The wind died down, and the girls had a strong physical game, but they were always moving the ball around.

They had good defensive pressure and ision throughout the game, which meant their intensity was at a high level.

In the last quarter, Mid North fought back hard, but the girls failed to back down or give up.

Game Three

Northern 25 d Riverland 15

Best: Elsa, Elsie

In our previous games we started strongly, however in this game Northern started really well, and put us on the back foot.

The girls were exhausted from their previous games, however they did a great job in the second half of the game, playing with good intensity.

Accurate shooting from Northern meant that it was hard to get turn overs and rebounds, however the girls still played with determination and grit.

DIVISION THREE

Game Four

Riverland 19 d Northern Yorke 13 Best: Elsie and Amelia

The girls started off strong in their first indoor game for day two, bringing great intensity from the beginning, maintaining pressure all the way down the court.

The defensive end, through to mid-court, was outstanding, creating turnover after turnover and finishing the game with an impressive total of 20 intercepts.

As a team, their focus for the next few games will be to slow down the pace when needed and improve the accuracy of their

Riverland d Central Eyre Peninsula Best: Marli and Portia

Game five was a cold one for the girls, with wind and rain adding to the challenge, but despite the tough conditions, they played another fantastic game.

The coaches gave them guidance, and the girls responded right away, either working on it during the match, or immediately applying it in play.

They did especially well at keeping their passes short, showing strong second efforts, and battling hard for loose balls.

Game Six

Riverland 18 d Lower South East 10 Best: Skylar and Chloe

Proud of the girls for finishing strong today, after already having two wins, the girls gave it everything on the court, showing incredible teamwork and focus.

Every game is a learning moment, and they're rising to the challenge with determination.

From big plays to quiet moments of support between teammates, they're growing stronger together and gaining more confidence.

It's been amazing to watch their energy and confidence build with each match.

DIVISION ONE

Game Four

Riverland 31 d Northern Yorke Peninsula 11 Best: Ashlyn, Aggie, Nora

We kicked off the day indoors, and the girls came out with a strong, positive mindset right from the first whistle, and their determination and teamwork shone throughout the entire game.

With confident drives down the court and impressive shooting accuracy, they created some truly beautiful passages of play.

Our defensive pressure, one of the standout strengths of the carnival, was particularly effective through the mid-court.

The girls responded well to feedback, applying it consistently in every quarter, and most importantly, their effort never wavered. Game Five

Riverland 11 d Central Eyre Peninsula 6 Best: Molly and Lacey

Our second game of the day kicked off under some challenging and unusual conditions. With cold wind and rain setting the scene, but the spirits failed to drop for our girls.

They rose to the occasion, adapting impressively to the weather. Using front cuts and short passes, the team made the most of every scoring opportunity.

Playing with their heads and eyes up at all times, it allowed us to capitalise on our opposition's errors, picking off passes and turning them into valuable possessions.

Despite the trying conditions, the girls fought for every ball, and our defensive pressure stayed strong throughout the game, showcasing grit and determination.

Game Six

Riverland 23 d Lower South East 11

Best: Nora and Olivia

In our final game of the day the rain had eased but the cold lingered, and despite the chilly conditions, the girls remained full of energy and were determined to finish strong with another win.

Our focus for this game was to bring the ball down the court more efficiently, by starting together on a turnover and creating multiple options.

The team began to put this into practice throughout the game, resulting in much smoother transitions and cleaner ball move-

We showed real grit and determination, failing to give up, and putting bodies on the line to chase down loose balls.

Our short, sharp passing combined with strong movement created great opportunities, which we capitalised on through accurate shooting and solid rebounding.

DAY THREE DIVISION ONE

Game Seven

Riverland 17 d Upper South East 9 Best: Elsa and Ada

In the first outing of the last day, the girls played a strong, consistent game from start to finish.

Both offensively and defensively, they dominated with solid rebounds, which led to key turnovers and scoring opportunities.

Their teamwork stood out as they used short, effective passes to move the ball down the court efficiently.

Overall, they showed excellent ball movement and maintained a strong presence throughout the game.

Game Eight

Riverland 21 d Mid South East 8

Best: Lacey, Elsie

In the second game of the day, the girls came out focused and determined. Their court vision was exceptional, allowing them to make smart decisions and connect on strong, accurate passes that consistently advanced the ball.

From the opening whistle, they took control of the game, building and maintaining a strong lead through a combination of quick ball movement, unselfish play, and great communication on the court.

Offensively they worked well as a unit, finding open teammates and creating highpercentage scoring opportunities.

Defensively, they applied relentless pressure, forcing turnovers and disrupting the opposing team's rhythm.

Their energy and teamwork were evident throughout the game, resulting in a confident and well-deserved win.

Riverland 14 lost to Southern Fleurieu 21

Best: Ivy, Lacey

The last game of the carnival was a tough fight. After three big days, the girls were understandably tired and found it challenging to lose their players and create movement on court.

When the girls looked down the court early and passed quickly to the first lead, they really excelled.

Overall, it was an excellent carnival. The girls showed clear improvement over the three days, and it was a pleasure to coach them all. Well done on a great team effort.

DIVISION THREE

Game Seven

Riverland 15 d Upper South East 7 Best: Evie and Elsie

The team showed fantastic effort with some strong drives into space and great defensive pressure throughout the court.

Players worked hard to get free, using quick direction changes and calling confidently for the ball.

There were several impressive intercepts, especially when defenders stayed alert and stepped in front of passes at just the right moment.

Overall, the team kept up great energy, supported each other well, and started the day with a positive attitude and growing

Game Eight

Riverland 18 d Mid South East 8 Best: Marli and Chloe

Defenders stayed focused and stepped up with well-timed intercepts, disrupting the opposition's flow and applying strong pressure across the court. There was great teamwork on display, with players communicating well and supporting each other.

The timing of passes and movement improved as the game went on, showing how the team is learning to work together more effectively.

Game NineRiverland 22 lost to Southern Fleurieu 23

Best: All players

The final game was without a doubt the team's best performance of the day, with every player giving 110 per cent, and showing real determination from the first whistle to the last.

They fought hard for every ball, made smart decisions under pressure, and put in second efforts that kept the momentum

The team's movement, timing, and teamwork all came together, resulting in a confident and exciting performance.

Overall, the girls finished a close 4th. They had six wins in a row and a real close game against the top side, just falling short in the last minute.

Over the three days the improvement from all the girls was impressive and great to see understanding of the game foster.

What a finish to the carnival, with both teams making it six wins in a row before thrilling last games against Southern, (the division three team going down to the undefeated winners by 1).

The division one team finished with a 6-1-2 record, and the division three team finished 6-3.

- ☐ Thanks to our coaches Brooke Franks and Taniel Willmott for their stellar work with the teams this week, along with their assistants, BRSC year 12 sport and rec students Jemma, Emily, Bella and Klaudia.

Berri secures shock upset to rocket back into the four

ONE of the biggest surprises of the Riverland Netball Association's A1 competition occurred on Friday night, as Berri snapped a six-match losing streak.

In a night where both matches were held at The Precinct, in Loxton, Berri faced off against the second-placed Loxton North.

Despite scores being level at the opening change, Loxton North built a lead in the second term, opening up a four-goal advantage.

However, Berri added a twist to the match in the third quarter, levelling the scores at the last change.

From there, the visitors found another gear in the final quarter, remaining calm and composed, and goals from Taniel Willmott and Brooke Franks in the dying stages sealed a victory for Berri.

Willmott produced what was arguably her best game of the season, scoring 29 goals in a full game

Franks was also on target with 25, while Abby Fenwick provided plenty of run across the game in her role at wing attack.

The win helps Berri leap into the top four on percentage ahead of Renmark, which had the bye.

Meanwhile, action on court two saw yet another victory for Loxton, proving too strong for Barmera, and picking up a 14-goal victory, in what was the Tigers' closest match of the season so far.

Also held level at the opening change, Loxton kicked into gear in the second quarter, creating a fivegoal half time lead, which extended to 12 at the last break.

Barmera continue to show signs of improvement under new coach Lyn Wutke, and finished the game well, while putting together strong pieces of play throughout.

For Barmera, Jemma Kassulke worked hard defensively, while sister Meg finished with 29 goals in attack, and was well assisted by Hallie Hodgson's 25.

This weekend sees Loxton travel to the Alan Coulter Recreation Centre to do battle with Renmark, while Barmera welcomes Loxton North to the Barmera Recreation Centre at the Lakeside.

Olympic, Pelicans share the spoils

IT is quickly unfolding as one of the strongest rivalries in Riverland soccer, and another exciting instalment played out between Barmera and Renmark in the women's competition last weekend.

With competition held at Loxton over the weekend, it meant the two sides met on neutral ground, ultimately sharing the spoils as the result finished two goals apiece.

Blossom Kimberley opened the scoring for Olympic after 26 minutes, and although Barmera levelled on 29 minutes through Amelia Koumbarakos, Renmark quickly responded.

Just one minute later, Emilly Jordan gave Olympic back the lead, giving her side a 2-1 advantage at the half.

However, Matilda Mitchell got things back on level terms shortly after the break, with both sides failing to ultimately find the winner.

The result sees the Pelicans remain on top of the ladder, only ahead of Renmark on goal difference, with both sides on 19 points after eight matches.

Elsewhere, Loxton proved too classy for Berri, securing a second win of the campaign with a 3-0 victory on home turf.

United made the most of their familiar surroundings, and it was three minutes of madness inside the first half which caused the result.

Horoscopes July 2025: week 1

A challenging aspect to Pluto could bring some secrets about your personal life out into the open. There will be a few more disclosures over the week but nothing to get worried about! Romance. A very unexpected call will help to get your love-life back on track after a recent break.

An acquaintance who seems to have been behaving strangely recently may have something on his or her mind which you are not aware of. A positive aspect to Mercury early in the week will make this a good time for communicating your concerns sensitively. Romance. You will have to be more encouraging to a new admirer. Their confidence may only be on the surface.

Things will go well this week, provided you don't push things too far. You will be in need of a change, and will probably manage to get most of the

You are very keen to help out and "do towards the end of the week. Don't do your bit" for your partner, especially all their work, however.

things that you ask for. Romance.

A powerful aspect to Mercury at the beginning of the week will help to improve your powers of communication. You have a lot of ideas in your head at the moment: this will be a good time to get them across to other people. Romance. Your partner will be keen to spend more time with you. A chat later in the week will clear up a recent misunderstanding.

JUL 24TH - AUG 23RD

Time spent with somebody from a different culture will help you to understand your situation from a fresh perspective. This person may have noticed something about your life which you have missed. Romance. A series of changes to your domestic routine might be a little harder to get used to than you were expecting.

Your boss may be in a slightly difficult mood: this is not the best time to ask for any favours. Things will settle down later in the week. Romance. Don't give a secret away too soon! An air of mystery will make your friends believe that you are hiding more than you really are.

You have put in a lot of extra effort recently, but your sacrifices may not be acknowledged for some time. Don't expect to get all the credit that you deserve. Romance. Be careful not to be too erratic in your behaviour. Your partner will need to know that your feelings towards them are constant, even if your emotions are a little unpredictable at times.

You may have to conform more than you would really like. A completely independent approach will not go down well with your co-workers. Romance. A strong aspect to Neptune could make you a little dreamy and unrealistic at the moment. Your partner may be confused at times about how you are really feeling.

You may be a little shyer than normal at the moment. You need to spend some time by yourself, especially around the middle of the week. Romance. Somebody that you have not known for very long may have a stronger hold on you than you realise. A dream will help you to understand your relationship with this person a little better.

OCT 24TH - NOV 22ND

Help from a co-worker will help you to get an important new project off the ground. You won't be able to make much progress without this person's input. Romance. There are some aspects of your partner's behaviour which you will just have to accept. Don't try to change things which you know are not going to change.

DEC 22ND - JAN 20TH

A small sum of money will reach you from an unexpected source. Your finances may be a little shaky at the moment: this extra boost will make a big difference. Romance. This will be an excellent time for making a longterm decision. Make sure that you take your partner's views into account, as this decision will affect both of you.

An animal companion may be a little difficult to handle at the moment. They might have picked up a feeling of anxiety from you which you are not aware of. It is always a good idea to listen to them. Romance. Someone whom you see as a figure of authority may be interested in seeing you. Do not be afraid to take advantage of this person.

EMMA WATKINS HELPS TASSIE TEENS TAKE THE LEAD IN NEW

TEENAGE BOSS: NEXT LEVEL

THE ABC is thrilled to announce the return of the hit series Teenage Boss: Next Level, premiering Friday, July 25, on ABC iview and Saturday, July 26, on ABC Family.

Beloved host Emma Watkins is back to guide a new group of teens as they take the reins of their family finances for an entire month, managing the budget, making decisions and learning valuable life lessons along the way.

This season the series heads to the wild and wonderful landscapes of Tasmania, adding a fresh twist to the much-loved format.

From deciding what's for dinner to planning family outings, and maybe even a cheeky splurge, 10 new teens are about to find out what it really takes to run the show. Emma Watkins is back to cheer them on, offer advice and provide the occasional reality check.

The teens are not just managing the household budget; they're also saving for their own ambitious goals – from a state-of-the-art drone, to funding a home recording studio or buying their first car. With Emma's guidance they'll face real-life financial challenges, teaching both themselves and their parents about money management and independence. Always free and always entertaining, catch up on Teenage Boss: Next Level on ABC iview
