2025 RFL grand final and Riverland Field Days to clash...

A CLASH of scheduling between the Riverland's biggest day of local football and its iconic ag-themed expo is set to divide attendance at the two events this year.

The Riverland Football League

grand final is on Saturday, September 13, coinciding with the second day of the 2025 Riverland Field Days

RFL Commission independent chair Bruce Gehling said the local showcase was moved to the second weekend in September to avoid the same date as the Murray Valley Football Netball League (MVFNL) – formerly the RFL Independents – grand final.

“One of our key priorities was to avoid a repeat of last year's clash with the (MVFNL) grand final,” Mr Gehling said.

“After early discussions with the MVFNL, we confirmed our date as September 13, with theirs now set for September 20.

“Unfortunately, the Riverland Field Days were later confirmed to fall on the same weekend. This overlap was not identified during our fixture planning and wasn't raised by clubs or the commission at the time.”

The two events last clashed in 2019, when both were held on Saturday, September 14.

Riverland avoids Channel 7 disaster

RIVERLANDERS missed two Home and Away episodes, but no AFL games, after the dispute between WIN TV and Network Seven was resolved last week.

Seven’s channels were off air Tuesday and Wednesday, as WIN temporarily made good on its pledge to withdraw the Seven Network’s free-to-air broadcasts – due to the two parties being unable to reach a deal.

The impasse threatened to have disastrous consequences for locals unable to stream the 7plus service.

However, WIN and Network Seven made a joint announcement on Thursday, just hours before the AFL match between North Melbourne and the Western Bulldogs was beamed into local homes on free-to-air TV.

The about-face was a victory for people power, according to Federal Barker MP Tony Pasin, who gathered more than 2500 signatures on a petition calling for WIN and Seven to find a solution and restore the service to the Loxton and Mount Gambier facilities.

Mr Pasin described the temporary blackout as “a flagrant breach of the conditions of (WIN’s) commercial television licence”.

“Let’s be clear, it should never have come to this,” Mr Pasin said.

“I am livid that communities across the Limestone Coast and the Riverland were used as pawns in a commercial negotiation and I have made my disappointment clear to the chief executive Officers of both organisations.”

Mr Pasin said WIN is required to meet certain obligations under the Commercial Broadcasting Licence issue to it pursuant to the Broadcasting Services Act 1992 and Seven is contractually obligated under agreement with the AFL and Cricket Australia “to name just two”.

“Both parties in my assessment were in breach and it was these breaches that provided the leverage the community needed to ensure this matter was resolved expeditiously,” he said.

In their joint statement, Seven and WIN said they “acknowledge the significant impact of free-to-air television in regional communities and the importance of providing news, sport, entertainment, and a voice to regional Australians”.

Riverland POLICE NEWS

Drivers stopped over the weekend

THREE drivers lost their licences over the weekend following routine police stops within the Riverland.

On Saturday July 5, Waikerie Police stopped a Ford utility on Civic Avenue, at Waikerie.

The driver, a 35-year-old Waikerie man, produced a blood alcohol reading of 0.147, and was issued with a six-month instant loss of licence.

He was reported for drink driving and will appear in the Berri Magistrates court at a later date.

Later the same day, highway patrols stopped a Toyota sedan on Murtho Road, at Paringa.

The driver, a 20-year-old man from Berri, was roadside drug tested and returned a positive result to methamphetamine and cannabis.

He received a three-month instant loss of licence and may be summonsed to appear in court at a later date pending the results of a forensic analysis.

On Monday July 7, highway patrols stopped a Subaru wagon on the Sturt Highway, at Waikerie.

The driver, a 35-year-old O’Sullivan Beach man, was roadside drug tested and returned a positive result for cannabis.

He received a three-month instant loss of licence and may be summoned to appear in court at a later date pending the results of a forensic analysis.

AFL ‘role’ praised

THE return of Channel 7 programming to free-to-air screens in the Riverland last week represents justice – and is potentially a nod to the power of the AFL.

That’s the view of Independent MLC Sarah Game, who wrote to AFL CEO Andrew Dillon on June 19, asking the league to step in and facilitate a solution to the stand-off that saw Channel 7 programs withdrawn – ultimately temporarily – from local free-to-air TVs on July 1.

“I’ve seen it suggested that the AFL might have been a major player in getting this deal done,” said Dr Game.

“If that’s the case, and I played a small part in that via my letter – which I made public – to the AFL last month then that’s fantastic.

“But even if not, I’m still rapt for the people of the... Riverland.

“I’ve heard accounts of how distressing this has been for some elderly folk, and others, who – for various reasons – were going to miss out on AFL coverage, and everything else that Network Seven brings.

“Too often rural and regional South Australians are treated as an after-thought.

“I know commercial media needs to make money, because it can’t rely on government funding, but nonetheless this is a victory for people power and common-sense.”

Drink driver busted at Blanchetown

A DRIVER will face court after blowing nearly four times over the legal alcohol limit, at Blanchetown, last week.

Just before 4 pm on July 1, Blanchetown patrols stopped a Holden statesman, on the Sturt Highway, submitting the driver to a breath test. Police will allege that the unlicensed driver returned a positive result of 0.191.

The 39-year-old man, from the Riverland, was reported for drink driving and driving without a licence.

He was issued with a 12-month instant loss of licence and will be summonsed to court at a later date.

Temporary closure of Cadell ferry next week

THE Department for Infrastructure and Transport (DIT) advises there will be a temporary closure of the Cadell ferry service, from 10am to 2pm, on Tuesday, July 15.

The disruption is for routine maintenance as part of the Cable Replacement Program.

Alternative crossings are available at the Waikerie ferry (upstream) and Morgan ferry (downstream).

DIT thanks ferry users for their patience.

2025 RFL grand final and Riverland Field Days set for same September Saturday...

Double-booked

HUGH SCHUITEMAKER

A CLASH of scheduling between the Riverland’s biggest day of local football and its iconic ag-themed expo is set to divide attendance at the two events this year.

The Riverland Football League grand final is on Saturday, September 13, coinciding with the second day of the 2025 Riverland Field Days

RFL Commission independent chair Bruce Gehling said the local showcase was moved to the second weekend in September to avoid the same date as the Murray Valley Football Netball League (MVFNL) – formerly the RFL Independents – grand final.

“One of our key priorities was to avoid a repeat of last year’s clash with the (MVFNL) grand final,” Mr Gehling said.

“After early discussions with the MVFNL, we confirmed our date as September 13, with theirs now set for September 20.

“Unfortunately, the Riverland Field Days were later confirmed to fall on the same weekend. This overlap was not identified during our fixture planning and wasn’t raised by clubs or the commission at the time.”

The two events last clashed in 2019, when both were held on Saturday, September 14.

Riverland Field Days executive manager Emma Gwiazda estimated 60 per cent of last year’s attendance for the event was on the Saturday.

“It is disappointing that they have chosen this weekend, where the biggest event on our Riverland Events Calendar is on, however we understand that this may not be in their control,” Ms Gwiazda said.

“The Riverland Field Days is pretty reliably on the second weekend in September every year, but we do need to watch what the Royal Adelaide Show dates are doing in case they run a little later. Our marquee companies struggle to do both events if we are too close together.

“Over the entire event last year we had approximately 10,000 people come through the gates, with the Saturday being the busiest of the two days. I would estimate that we had approximately 6000 on the Saturday.

“We are hopeful that the grand final won’t affect our numbers too greatly, as not all locals attend either the grand final or the Field Days.

“(But) it would be great in future years if pre-existing events could be thought of in the planning of our local sports so that we can be supporting both events in our region.”

Mr Gehling said efforts would be made to avoid the grand final clashing with the field days in future years.

“We acknowledge both events are significant for the region and appreciate the potential strain this may place on attendees, volunteers and local resources,” he said.

“The RFL will be working closely with our clubs and partners to ensure a strong turnout and atmosphere at our grand final at Renmark Oval.

“We are confident the Riverland community and hopefully visitors to the region will support both major events.

“Looking ahead, we will be liaising with Field Days organisers to better co-ordinate future calendars and avoid similar clashes.”

Reforms mean RIT unable to trade?

HUGH SCHUITEMAKER

ONE of the Riverland’s major irrigation trusts has been left unable to make water trades due to new market reforms.

Renmark Irrigation Trust (RIT) has advised new regulations under the Federal Government’s water market reform would restrict it from facilitating any water trades of allocation or entitlement between customers for now.

“Renmark Irrigation Trust is disappointed to advise customers that from July 1, 2025, it is unable to provide services that could be regarded as a water market intermediary service under the new laws,” a public notice on the matter read.

RIT CEO Rosalie Auricht said requests to delay implementation of the new requirements were denied.

“Throughout the extended consultation on this reform, (RIT) strongly advocated to retain its ability to provide cost-effective water trade services for its customers,” Ms Auricht said.

“However, the final regulatory framework treats irrigation infrastructure operators (IIOs), like the Trust, as equivalent to commercial water market intermediaries, though some requested practical concessions for IIOs were accepted.

“The framework introduces some technical obligations that the Trust cannot meet by the regulated implementation date.

“The Trust is determining a pathway for these important customer services to continue, though remains extremely concerned about the level of financial risk imbedded in the regulations for entities like the Trust.”

It is understood transfers of water between accounts, or on/off licence, where the Trust is an approval authority only, may still occur.

Loxton Squash Club gets $100k to boost facilities

SEBASTIAN CALDERON

A LOCAL squash club has been awarded a significant grant to upgrade its facilities, aiming to ensure it remains a sporting hub for the local community.

The grant, announced through the Community Recreation and Sport Facilities Program (CRSFP) and Active State Collaboration Program (ASCP), will be used for essential improvements to the Loxton Squash club’s infrastructure, including the installation of a new roof and a new modern central air conditioning system.

The funding is part of a state-wide initiative to support grass-roots sports and encourage active lifestyles in regional communities.

Club president Craig Todd said “this grant will certainly benefit all club members”.

“Not only will it help us provide better playing conditions for our members, but it will also attract more people to the sport” Mr Todd said.

“The new roof is something we’ve needed for a long time, because when the wind picks up, the tiles would shift and it would get really cold during winter.

“When that happened, we had to manually shift them back to place, which was a safety concern.

“We have club member Mark Cash, who is experienced in project management, so hopefully he can co-ordinate everything.

Mr Todd said securing the grant was difficult, however the club had help from the Loxton Waikerie Council.

“The District Council of Loxton

Waikerie have been incredibly supportive in providing guidance, financial assistance and access to their grant writer Jenny Fleming.” he said.

“The Riverland community has been supportive, including letters of support from local schools, businesses, and individuals who have used the facility in the past.

“It really shows how much people care about the club and its future.

“Together we worked really well to get the grant in. We were successful in securing most of the money needed, which is fantastic for the club.

“It’s not all covered by the grant. The total cost of the work will be around $140,000, so we’ll need to come up with some additional funds ourselves, but we’re confident we’ll be able to manage it.”

Mr Todd said the wider impact of the grant for the club, and the community, would be very positive.

“This grant will allow us to improve the facilities significantly, and it’s especially important for the schools that use our squash programs,” he said.

“With air conditioning and a new insulated roof, we’ll be able to make the facility more comfortable year-round – keeping it cooler in summer and warmer in winter, definitely making a big difference to how people experience the club.

“This will also pave the future for the club, with the upgrades being just the beginning.

“The building has a solid foundation, but it does need a bit of tidying up. We plan to update the signage, do some painting, and keep things looking fresh.

“Our club members are really hands on, like Paddy Reynolds, who helps maintain the courts and paints them, and we’ll continue upgrading bit by bit.”

Mr Todd said with these upgrades, the club can focus on the resurgence of squash and it’s role in the community:

“Squash had fallen out of favour for a while, but we’re starting to see a resurgence, especially with the sport becoming part of the Olympics,” Mr Todd said.

“It’s exciting for us because we cater to all levels of players – from beginners to experienced athletes. Whether you’re just picking up a racket for the first time or you’ve been playing for years, there’s something for everyone here.

“The courts are available for anyone in the community to hire, and they can contact us through Facebook. “We would be happy to accommodate other sporting clubs looking for some cross training, either as part of our normal competition, or facilitating their own internal competitions.”

The upgrade is expected to begin later this year, with the aim of completing the work in time for next season’s opening.

The Loxton Squash Club is the only remaining club in the Riverland, and plays all year round, with breaks over the school holidays.

For more information on the club and upcoming developments, visit the Loxton Squash Club’s social media (www.facebook.com/p/Loxton-Squash-Club-100079297338219/).

Prison sentence for former Loxton disability worker

A FORMER Riverland support worker was sentenced after being convicted for stealing more than $9000 from clients at a Loxton residential care facility.

Previous Loxton Orana worker, 38-year-old Jasmine Kyly Hudson, was convicted of 22 counts of aggravated theft, after it was found she used the bank cards of six clients, between September and December 2022, to make unauthorised purchases, including supermarket items, online accommodation bookings, and Uber trips.

The thefts were discovered when a client expressed concerns to her family, leading to an investigation.

Ms Hudson, who had worked at Orana for 10 months, pleaded guilty to the charges, and was handed 11 months and 10 days in jail, with five months backdated to April 29, 2025, when she was remanded in custody for breaching bail conditions.

The remaining six months and 10 days are subject to a two-year good-behaviour bond. Hudson was also ordered to pay full restitution to the victims.

Orana executive manager branding and customer experience Vicki Cotis said “Orana is unable to provide details or make comment on individual cases or specific matters due to confidentiality obligations”.

“Orana is firmly committed to upholding the highest standards in safeguarding the safety, privacy, and wellbeing of our clients,” she said.

“We maintain a robust quality and safeguarding policy framework that undergoes regular review and updates to reflect best practices and evolving standards. This ongoing commitment to excellence ensures our policies remain current, effective, and aligned with our clients’ needs.

“Our dedication to maintaining the highest standards is evidenced through our regular NDIS audits, where we consistently exceed the strict requirements mandated by the National Disability Insurance Scheme.

“These audits demonstrate our commitment to quality service delivery and client protection.

“We take policy compliance seriously across all levels of our organisation and staff members are provided with comprehensive training on our policies and procedures, and there are clear consequences for any team member who fails to adhere to these standards, including our Code of Conduct.

“This accountability framework ensures consistent application of our protective measures.”

Ms Cotis said Orana remains committed to transparency and continuous improvement, ensuring every client’s rights, privacy, and wellbeing are fully protected at all times.

The court heard that the clients had varying disabilities, including intellectual disabilities, autism, and cerebral palsy, with some being non-verbal.

Magistrate Jay Pandya described Ms Hudson’s actions as a “betrayal without decency,” highlighting the breach of trust placed in her by vulnerable individuals.

In response to the thefts, Orana has implemented changes to its policies to prevent similar incidents in the future.

Returning Glossop’s deeply missed mail service, Kylee Bradford’s drive-through-café is now a home for more than 300 local post boxes. PHOTO: Madison Eastmond

Glossop’s got mail (again)

MADISON EASTMOND

A RIVERLAND town has regained its post office after almost 12 months without the service.

Since opening KB’z Coffee recently, Kylee Bradford has brought back Glossop’s mail service, with the drive-through-café now already home to 300 (and counting) postal boxes.

Open five days a week, from 6am to 2pm, Ms Bradford said the local community support and interest had “been amazing so far”.

“I used to own the Glossop BP — which also included the post office — before it was sold again, and then unfortunately closed,” Ms Bradford said.

“The feedback has just been brilliant from the local community, and because I owned the post office previously, I already know a lot of our regulars.

“I loved offering the service to the community before, and I’m so happy I am able to bring the postal service back to Glossop with the drive-through-café as well — I feel just so passionate about both.”

Previously operated for seven years by a local couple on a short-term licence, the Glossop post office closed last September when the agreement expired and Australia Post required it be placed up for tender.

Since the closure, residents of Glossop and Winkie areas have had to make the trip into Berri to receive their post.

Though currently operating as a community postal agent, Ms Bradford said immediate demand from locals has her considering licencing the local post office in the future.

“Because there hasn’t been a service here for a while, I didn’t think many people would so quickly be signing up for a Glossop box,” she said.

“To not have a post office locally was a huge inconvenience for a lot of people — so there is definitely a call to licence.”

Glossop local Harry Huntley said it has been “so much easier” to access his mail since Ms Bradford opened KB’z coffee.

“It’s been so great to have (the service) back in Glossop — I can walk to get my mail now,” Mr Huntley said.

“Before I was having to run into Berri every couple of days, which was such a pain because I receive parcels regularly.

KB’z Coffee is located on 27 Anderson Terrace, Glossop.

EDITORIAL

THE YEARS GO BY

LoxStory, Peter and Carla Magarey

The broadcast is back

A COMMONLY-used phrase may need to be slightly adjusted following the events of the past week, to now state ‘hell hath no fury like a regional community about to lose its footy on TV’.

Although the risk of Channel 7 being shut off Riverland screens had been made clear weeks prior, it seemed that it was last Tuesday morning, when people waking up and attempting to watch Channel 7 were met with a red screen informing them the programming was no longer available, that the reality of the situation really hit home.

Local radio stations were flooded with calls from perplexed community members, seeking to know which party was responsible, and what actions were being taken to restore the broadcast.

Thursday then came, and with it the deadline of the week’s first AFL game. Tensions were high as the possibility countless Riverland households would miss seeing North Melbourne’s clash with the Bulldogs became more and more likely.

But, just as the situation was looking its most dire, and with almost little warning ahead of time, those in the decision-making positions on both the Seven and WIN sides were able to come to an agreement, saving the weekend for the many AFL diehards in the Riverland who would be without a smart TV, or a knowledge of how to work the 7Plus streaming app.

It’s difficult to know exactly what the deciding factor was in bringing WIN back to the table, however, we saw a number of politicians – including our local Federal and State MPs – loudly voice their criticism on the situation.

It seems a high possibility that the potential loss in viewership figures would have ruffled some feathers along the AFL’s chain of command as well, resulting in pressure being put on the restore the broadcasts.

However, while the favourable outcome for our community may have been reached this time, the reversal of one decision is hardly going to halt the increasing – almost seemingly inevitable – preference toward streaming television.

Channel 10’s ongoing absence from household screens in nearby Mildura is proof that the risk is far from gone at this stage.

While we should be thankful the voices of local politicians and community members helped reach the desired outcomes, these events also show us that in regional communities, even access to free-to-air television can no longer be taken for granted.

That’s got to say something about the direction ‘modern progress’ is heading.

The community spirit of the Loxton township and outlying villages was given a boost when, in 1925, the district’s first local newspaper, The Loxton Clarion, was established. For 12 years, the news had been ably reported by The Murray Pioneer, but the advent of a ‘local’ newspaper made possible a more detailed and well-timed news service for the district. This news plays a role in helping a community grow in its business capacity, and its considerable interests in sport, recreation, local church, agricultural show and picture theatre matters. The Clarion published news specific to localities, under banners such as Taplan Topics, Meribah Matters, Sandalwood Items, and Paruna Paragraphs. In 10-12 un-numbered pages, the Clarion presented an advertisement for a hand-wound record player (gramophone, pictured) with associated text: ‘LOXTON is undoubtedly advancing. There are evidences everywhere of its splendid progress, and NEUEN’S up-to-date COMMERCIAL STORES are keeping well abreast of the times. LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Councils: efficient or over-capitalised?

ONCE again ratepayers are being asked to give feedback on councils’ annual business plans with the media promoting discussion by using the flawed rate percentage increase headline.

Percentage increases are subject to the starting figure.

An 8 per cent increase for one council could be a 15 per cent increase in another area.

Councils are bound by the Act to do public consultation, but is it worth the effort for ratepayers to comment?

The following comments and figures are not a criticism of council and without any real in-depth knowledge of council’s budget are just what I can glean for clarification.

I’ve been told, that councils know their figures and have spent hours developing their ABP and I don’t have all the facts.

In 2023/24, Berri Barmera Council presented a budget for feedback showing a $289,000 operating deficit, audited result $7.539 million deficit.

The 2024/24 ABP presented a $21,700 surplus which now is a $4.226 million deficit.

The following are figures from the Berri Barmera Council’s Long Term Financial Plan and ABP that will “ensure council has a good opportunity to be economically sustainable with a strong future”.

I wonder if ratepayers have that assurance for their own finances?

- ❑ Vacant land rates going up by 104.7 per cent.
- ❑ Rates to increase by 48 per cent over the next five years.
- ❑ Operating losses totaling $17.556 million over the next five years.
- ❑ Total liabilities (mostly loans) peaking at $24.466 million in 2027/28.
- ❑ Rates to increase from $16.5 million to $27 million in 10 years.

The depreciation figure councils are showing is difficult to understand and I struggle to get answers on how it works.

The president of the LGA, Dr Heather Holmes-Ross, has said that debt is good for councils as they can afford and build assets now, then have the ratepayers that use them pay them back.

Councils often only build an asset if they receive a government grant, normally 50 per cent.

Am I then paying off half the cost, plus interest, then having the whole amount being deducted from my rates, depreciation, to replace that facility?

The recreation centre in Berri cost nearly $10 million. I assume rates are being set aside to replace this? The user groups pay council $1 a year.

Councils build roads, some funding comes from the fuel tax I pay, and they become an asset which council depreciate. Are my rates being set aside to replace that asset at the same time I’m paying fuel tax to replace the roads?

Why do councils have assets that have been built on their land, but entirely paid for by a sporting club, listed as their asset they have to maintain and replace?

It’s more than obvious that there are problems with councils. Connie Bonaros MLC has asked for an independent inquiry into the toxic culture plaguing our councils to try to stop harassment and bullying in councils.

The Premier has just stopped the Adelaide City Council having a say on the new golf course – presumably because if council had a say it would never get built on time.

Is it time to look at more than annual business plans and figures with councils?

Are councils over capitalised? Are they efficient? Could they amalgamate services? Do their costs reflect normal business practices?

In Berri Barmera Council, 10 staff have cars as part of their salary packages.

Guess I’ll just put it all into the too-hard-to-understand basket.

Council plan to seal Zante Road?

I AM grateful for the prompt response to my contact with the Berri Barmera Council over the state of the footpath in front of our home.

The council re-gravelled the footpath on Zante Road within a fortnight from first contact.

However, I do ask, has the council got a master plan to seal the footpath along Zante Road?

It is approximately about half sealed. It is a main road with school and pedestrian traffic.

When will it become an all-weather, sealed pedestrian path?

Bingo clubs lament lack of support

DO you go to bingo to help raise money for a group, team and organisation?

Do you then support the bingo club in return for the opportunity to raise money?

Here are a few home truths about bingo clubs.

Bingo clubs are run by volunteers who give their time so others can raise money (fund-raising).

Bingo clubs do not get anything out of your bingo event.

Bingo clubs purchase all the tickets, markers (dobbers and pens), some pay rent on the premises, some supply the raffle tickets etc. This all costs money, so they run bingo events for themselves regularly and they need others to attend so that the bingo club can purchase the materials you need to play bingo.

There are regulars who come almost every week to play and support whoever is hosting the bingo.

How does bingo work?

The tickets are purchased by the players.

The money raised is split, with approximately 50 per cent going to prize money and the other 50 per cent to the group, team or organisation hosting the bingo. Supper and raffles are supplied by the group, team or organisation and they get all the proceeds.

No money goes to the bingo club.

The group, team or organisation hosting the bingo is asked to support the bingo club and the regulars by having two representatives attend the bingos hosted by the bingo club.

A representative collects the money raised and proceeds to thank the club, regulars and their supporters, and indicate that someone will attend all or some of the bingo for the bingo club.

At the end of the year bingo clubs give excess money to different groups; they keep enough capital to ensure they can continue the next year.

The reality?

All of the above happens except all the group, team or organisation forget to support the bingo club.

Bingo clubs are struggling and some may soon have to stop because of the lack of support.

The lack of support is an insult to the bingo clubs and the regulars that support you.

Some clubs are considering giving funds to those clubs that support them. In the case of one of the largest bingo clubs they will probably will not give anything away because they have had no support for the past four or five bingos they have hosted for themselves.

Now the question is: Do you want this fundraising avenue to continue or is there an easier, better paying means to support your group, team or organisation?

I doubt that there is an easier way of raising a substantial amount of money for any group, team or organisation.

So, please support your bingo club.

All we ask is for two people from your group, team and organisation to attend the bingo for the bingo clubs so that they can continue to support you.

On Sunday, July 6 Pacemakers had bingo for themselves and only the regulars made an effort to come.

This would be the third or fourth time this year no representatives from any of the groups, or teams and organisations who had used and benefited from this organisation assistance have bothered to attend.

Not good enough ladies and gentleman. Not good enough.

Stand to your rights

FROM personal experience, elderly abuse is rife across this state.

Government agencies who are assigned to tackle the issue are manned by, in my view, untrained staff who are unable to stand up for the aged rights.

Those seeking justice through legal channels will find it is either unaffordable, if one is on a limited income, or highly complex, and sometimes open to dishonesty.

There are those even in responsible positions who will try to get away with treading on vulnerable people.

My advice for the latter is to get legal advice from reliable, independent sources, as well as support from trusted friends or family, and stand steadfastly to one’s rights.

The unachievable commitment?

THE red meat corporations, many of which are foreign-owned, have been scrambling to impugn the simple facts that meat is bad for human health, appallingly cruel to the animals it kills, and devastating to the environment.

They thought they could disguise the latter fact in 2017 by proudly announcing a ‘Carbon Neutral 2030’ target, with much fanfare and obfuscation.

Now, much more inaudibly, they have confirmed that they are walking away from their always doubtful net zero undertaking. The news was almost hidden in a Red Meat Advisory Council statement quietly released on June 26, with the review admitting that the target was “not achievable”.

That review was launched in 2019, meaning they spent the last six years working out what we have been telling them all this time, for free), the best and quickest way to reduce carbon emissions is to stop breeding and eating animals.

Going vegan is the easiest and most delicious way to combat climate change.

Up the creek without a paddle

IT seems common sense is being thrown out with the bathwater following the latest NDIS price changes as regional service funding is cut.

But perhaps it is because a bigger plan is at hand at state levels. The problem is we just don’t know, because co-design now seems to be as elusive as trying to catch smoke with a fishing net.

The Australian Physiotherapy Association, Dietitians Australia, Australian Podiatry Association, Speech Pathology Australia, Occupational Therapy Australia, the Australian Psychological Society, Exercise & Sports Science Australia and Osteopathy Australia are calling on the Federal Government and the National Disability Insurance Agency to immediately halt and review the NDIS pricing decision, which poses a direct threat to essential supports and choice for people with disability.

Early intervention is crucial for children, and we want them to access this at some level in regional areas so that children can grow, develop, and become more independent, faster and with greater capacity. Instead of simply cutting funding, let’s take the approach of saying, “we are cutting one thing because our plan is to...”. That last piece is what is sadly missing.

We are wasting NDIS funds on report writing for the NDIS — reports that, according to their own CEO, are often not even read. At the same time, we are cutting funding for those very services. We are also cutting travel allowances and reducing access to these services, and like many in regional Australia, we are left without a plan.

It’s like being sent up the proverbial creek without a paddle.

When participants are not living in cities or major residential areas, their funding is wasted and used up quickly because the hours available to fund allied health and other services are disproportionately absorbed by travel costs rather than direct service delivery.

We don’t fund regional disability services to operate remotely, so children and adults living with disability experience significant inequity just to receive any type of support or service — and now our federal agency has cut that funding even further.

The reason we fight so hard for allied health and capacity-building services in rural areas is that these services foster independence and lasting change in a person’s life. This has the potential to reduce long-term reliance on services in the future.

What I hope from the recent announcement is that this will act as a precursor to the State system announcing proper service planning for foundational supports instead.

We have seen discussions about bringing NDIS fees for allied health services in line with other settings, but what people don’t seem to understand is that, in other settings, health services have the capacity to charge gap fees on top of what Medicare funds. This isn’t possible right now for NDIS-funded professionals.

Our allied health staff are at breaking point. There are major wait times and a lack of capacity across health services. The NDIS is requiring reports from these professionals as evidence to fund, and more recently, to defend people from being removed from the NDIS.

My fear is that we are setting up a health system — already beyond capacity — for a huge fall, and not co-ordinating a good system or response, so it is on the verge of collapse.

We must connect the dots and co-ordinate between departments, state and federal, and devise a solution that is cost-effective because it is efficient and flexible. Proactive policy results in long-term cost savings.

Fly over the Riverland this weekend at Loxton

THE Loxton Aero Club is holding a Try ‘n Fly on Sunday, at the Loxton Aerodrome, in collaboration with the Riverland Sport Aviation and Waikerie Gliding Club.

Attendees will be able to experience flying in a light aircraft, training lessons and conversations with pilots and club members alongside morning tea and lunch.

Numerous two-seat Jabiru light aircraft, and two four-seater Piper Cherokees, will be available for participants to enjoy on a short local flight.

Local recreational and general licence pilots from Loxton Aero Club, Riverland Sport Aviation and Waikerie Gliding Club will donate their time to show members of the public the thrill of flying in a small aircraft with a ‘bird’s eye view’ of the Riverland, with the $40 donation to the clubs based on a cost-sharing arrangement.

Passengers need to be at least 15 years old and accompanied by a parent/guardian at registration.

Loxton Aero Club secretary Bev Scarfe said “morning tea and lunch will be available at the clubrooms and it will be a great day out for families and individuals with an interest in aviation”.

“For many it will be their first time in a small aircraft and we hope to make this an annual event after a successful Try ‘n Fly in 2024,” Ms Scarfe said.

“The birds-eye view from a light aircraft is amazing and we just want more people to experience it.

Passengers are asked to bring cash if possible to pay for flights and refreshments, or make an electronic funds transfer to the Loxton Aero Club bank account.

Loxton Aero Club, Riverland Sport Aviation & Waikerie Gliding Club invite you to:

Riverland celebrates NAIDOC

MADISON EASTMOND

RIVERLAND NAIDOC Week festivities began this week, with locals gathering to celebrate and recognise the history, culture, and achievements of the community’s Indigenous peoples.

Following the official opening smoking ceremony held at Loxton last Sunday, large crowds gathered at the Berri Senior Citizens Club for the official 2025 NAIDOC march and flag raising, on Monday.

Marking a 50-year milestone of honouring Indigenous voices, culture, and resilience, and celebrating the bright future ahead with strong and empowered leaders and visions of the community, the NAIDOC theme for 2025 was The Next Generation: Strength, Vision & Legacy.

Paying homage to the theme, some of the youngest members of the Riverland Indigenous community lead the march to the Berri Riverfront.

“NAIDOC Week is a week where we get to celebrate Aboriginal and Islander culture, but we should be sharing it every day,” local Aboriginal elder Sheryl Giles said.

“Our strength is shown through our culture — we are resilient and we can adapt our language, arts, stories, dance to the contemporary.”

Berri Barmera Mayor Ella Winnall said “NAIDOC week is a great time to celebrate the history, culture, and achievements of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples”.

“Congratulations to all the local NAIDOC Week Award winners whose leadership, dedication and contributions make a big difference in the Riverland community,” Mayor Winnall said.

The day’s events concluded with the community nominated and voted NAIDOC awards — recognising local excellence, contribution, and achievement — and traditional dance performances.

Winners of the NAIDOC awards included:

Amalia Roberts, Shila Giles (back), and Nori and Demi Giles (front) performed a traditional dance to close the day’s events.

- Apprentice/Trainee of the Year: Nadine Abdulla.
- Caring for Country: Sam Lindsay.
- Male Elder of the Year: Rodney Bromly.
- Female Elder of the Year: Leanne Johnson.
- Person of the Year: Di Wilson.

Rob’s (got it) going on Mastermind

MADISON EASTMOND

A RIVERLAND radio personality is set to put his music knowledge to the test on national television next week.

Competing in the semi-finals of SBS quiz show Mastermind, next Monday night, at 6pm, Magic 93.1 announcer Rob Lawry is set to showcase his specialised knowledge of American rock band Fountains of Wayne.

“I couldn’t believe it when I got to the semi-finals — it was just pure shock,” Mr Lawry said.

Mr Lawry originally expressed his desire to be on the program while hosting Magic’s Tabby and Bob breakfast show in 2024, before competing and winning in the beginning rounds with the Mission: Impossible film franchise earlier this year.

“I knew I didn’t want to do a film for the next round, although I did consider doing the three Magic Mike films at one stage,” Mr Lawry said.

“However, I ended up going with Fountains of Wayne, (and the team at Mastermind) were all for it — I think because they didn’t think many other people would pick that topic again.”

Though known as one-hit wonders, and often the subject of the punchline, with the song Stacy’s Mom, Mr Lawry said his interest in Fountains of Wayne came from a “perfect storm” of happenstance in 2020.

“When I was working at the University of Adelaide student radios — we were moving out of our old studio and found a heap of old Fountains of Wayne CD’s,” Mr Lawry said.

“I thought it would be hilarious to give away Fountains of Wayne albums that didn’t have Stacey’s Mom on them.

“However, that never happened, so I just ended up with them.

“Then in 2020, the bass player and main songwriter, Adam Schlesinger, was one of the first famous people were to pass from Covid — I found myself reading a lot of these lovely tributes to him, and ended up giving the band a chance and just getting really into it.

“Since further research into them for the show, I have only come to appreciate them more.

“Obviously, their songs are very catchy, but they are also really focused on melody, storytelling, and the way they created music about the everyday is really inspiring — it made me want to learn a few chords on the guitar.”

Preparing for the big match, Mr Lawry said he spent the past months reading biographies, and listening non-stop to the five albums he is set to be quizzed on

“A band was a good pick, because like a movie, listening to albums is easy revision, if not even easier,” Mr

Lawry said.

“I could just turn it on every day in my lunch break, in the car, and so on.

“I think I really challenged myself with a topic hardly anyone would know anything about — that’s the charm of Mastermind.”

Mastermind Australia airs 6pm, weeknights, on SBS One and SBS OnDemand.

Rivergum Christian College makes a splash

MADISON EASTMOND

A RIVERLAND school took to the stage with success and applause last week, with its students leading both performance and design.

Performing their version of a beloved Walt Disney classic for their fourth production, Rivergum Christian College students made their debut of Finding Nemo Jr on the Chaffey Theatre stage last Wednesday night.

Following the story from the depths of the Great Barrier Reef to Sydney Harbor as a father searches for his son, Rivergum Christian College students worked over the past six months to design sets and props, and learn lines, songs, and choreography to more than 24 roles and an ensemble.

“Thankfully I had a team alongside me, including Cheryl Burgemeister as primary director and learning, and Joanna Whitehead as production manager,” Rivergum Christian College teacher, and Finding Nemo Jr artistic director, Jenni Sander said.

“I thrive on the transformative power of the arts, and students being creative.

“Our musical program allows this and promotes student involvement and input — it’s a show for the students by the students, I am the bystander.”

Meeting with The Murray Pioneer before their first show, lead performers Isaac, Paige, and Tasmin — Marlin, Dory, and Nemo — said while they were “pretty nervous”, they knew their “months of practice and hard work would pay off”.

“Everyone has been really supportive and it’s been a lot of fun — hopefully the show will be just as great,” Tasmin said.

Now completing her third school production as a year 12 student, Paige said the biggest challenge was learning all of her lines as Dory on top of her schoolwork.

“However, it’s been just so much fun,” she said.

“The cast have gotten around me and helped me a lot.”

Isaac said the best part of putting on the production was “the teamwork”.

“You’re a big team, and the connections you make a really great — especially since you have to work with people from all different (year levels) and who you may have never met before,” he said.

“It brings everybody together.”

Ms Sander said the two evening shows were “outstanding” and “a burst of colour and song”, and was “blown away at the talent Rivergum Christian College”.

“It was a team effort, and the buzz backstage after the shows was evidence of how proud everyone was with their achievements — from acting, to lights, and moving sets,” Ms Sander said.

“Paige had great comedic timing and Isaac had emotional sensitivity — they were a great duo moving the show through the ocean.

“Tamsin gave me goosebumps in each solo song.

“From the junior students as jellyfish singing loud, to primary students as dancing turtles and sea creatures, and the senior students in lead roles — every student was a piece of the performance puzzle.”

Veterans' voice returns to the Riverland with new Renmark RSL advocate

THE Renmark RSL Sub Branch has welcomed local man Peter Amos as its new military advocate, bringing essential support services back to the region's veterans and their families.

Peter Amos, a long-time RSL member of over 20 years, will now assist both current and former serving military personnel, as well as partners and widows, to access Department of Veterans' Affairs (DVA) entitlements and services.

"The RSL had been without one here for 12 years, due to the DVA changing the legislation," Peter Amos said.

"Everyone who's got a Department of Veterans' Affairs card can access RSL services.

"That card is also handed down to the widow if eligible, continuing their entitlement to our support."

Now based at the Renmark RSL, Peter Amos offers a free service available to all veterans and their families, regardless of RSL membership status.

Advocates help veterans and their families navigate the complex DVA claims system, including areas such as compensation, mental health, medical and injury assistance, and household support.

"Compensation is provided if they've been injured while in service, it's an entitlement, and they can access it as long as they're eligible," Peter Amos said.

"There's a lot more there that people don't even know about.

Peter Amos was inspired to take on the role after assisting a close friend with paperwork during a cancer diagnosis.

"He asked me to do all the paperwork," he said.

"There was a lot of it, and since everything is going online now, a lot of veterans don't want to use a computer, or don't know how. That's something I can help them with."

Peter Amos emphasised the RSL's mission extends beyond advocacy to include commemoration, education, and mateship. "The advocate connects people to the RSL mission and its services," he said.

Peter Amos is available every weekday, until 5pm, and can be contacted on 0478 227 729.

WAIKERIE High School (WHS) recently hosted the regional round of the state Science and Engineering Challenge for year 9 and 10 students.

Students from Nuriootpa, Faith Lutheran College, Mannum, Loxton and Renmark, and 32 students from Waikerie, took part in the annual competition.

WHS was leading at halftime, but was pipped at the post in the afternoon activities, resulting in Nuriootpa winning the challenge.

WHS's leader of maths, science and agriculture, Donna Haynes, said the activities the students undertook included the job juggle, designing earthquake-resistant buildings, creating eco-habitats, a flying challenge, and bridge building.

The Rotary Club of Waikerie co-ordinated the event with assistance from other members of Rotary clubs in the Riverland.

Ms Haynes said the Science and Engineering Challenge enabled students to become involved in communicating and collaboration.

"They are problem solving challenges that they have not been exposed to," she said.

Jenny’s meeting to discuss council rates

‘ATTEND the council meeting, then come to mine’.

That’s the message from a Riverland-based 2025 Federal Election candidate ahead of next week’s Renmark Paringa Council public consultation session on its 2025/26 budget.

The council is asking for public feedback on its Draft Annual Business Plan and Budget, which includes a “$29.3 million investment in essential services and infrastructure”, plus an average rate rise of 11.25 per cent – reaping an extra $2.29 million from ratepayers.

To receive community feedback on the plan, the council is staging a public meeting at the Renmark Club next Thursday, July 17, from 5pm to 7pm.

Renmark woman Jenny Troeth, who contested the seat of Barker for One Nation in May, said she was “unhappy” with the planned rate rise and was planning her own public meeting in response.

“But I really encourage people to head along to the council’s event first, to listen to what the council representatives have to say, and how they justify this rate rise,” Mrs Troeth said.

Mrs Troeth said she was concerned about the possible impact of increased rates on locals already struggling from the cost-of-living and housing crises.

“This rise will hit residents, businesses and landlords, but also people who rent,” she said.

“Because rate rises will need to be passed on.

“I think it’s time for the council to tighten its belt, like everybody else has been forced to do. You can’t just cry poor, then keep spending like you have always done.”

Mrs Troeth – who finished third on first-preference votes at the 2025 election, securing a 1.6 per cent swing for her party – founded the Renmark Paringa Houseboat Collective, aimed at lobbying council around issues affecting local houseboat owners. She said the group would be rebadged to include ratepayers.

Mrs Troeth’s own “public forum” on council matters will be held at the Renmark Club on Sunday, July 20, from 2pm to 3.30pm.

Regional news is the canary in the coal mine

DAMIAN MORGAN
President
Country Press Australia

Country Press Australia president Damien Morgan.
PHOTO: supplied

I STEP up as president of Country Press Australia (CPA), ostensibly to represent the best interests of independent regional newspaper publishers. But the responsibility is far greater than that.

The future of regional news publishing is inextricably linked to whether regional communities will continue to have a say in shaping the future of regional Australia.

In fact, regional newspapers are the metaphorical canary in the coal mine – their health signals the health of the voice of the communities they serve.

And both are under threat.

The toxic combination of ever-expanding corporations and surging city populations dominating our politics is reducing regional communities to branch office status, with their futures determined by powerful elites in our CBDs.

With every small business that’s bought out and ‘rolled up’ into a corporate machine – or shut down to make way for a big-box competitor – a local business owner is replaced by a corporate manager. The profits are siphoned off in the first electronic transfer back to the city, and a small part of the soul of our communities dies.

As our capital cities grow, the weight of our democracy and decision-making drifts further away from the regions – away from where much of our nation’s wealth is generated, by the way.

Even local government is losing its voice.

Many locally elected councillors now fear speaking out on behalf of their communities, worried they’ll be reported by bureaucratic staff to increasingly powerful, city-based governance bodies. When this happens, our democracy is weakened.

Regional news publishers are among the last lines of defence against these forces.

At our best, we rally and amplify the collective voice of our communities. We stand up to power and fight for a fair go.

There’s a saying that the squeaky wheel gets the grease – but in regional Australia, it’s mostly the silent, hard-working wheels that keep the whole country moving.

That’s why regional newspapers promote local communities and give those doing the heavy lifting a voice.

We unapologetically champion independent regional businesses – the ones who make, grow, and fix things. The ones who only sell what they believe in and are proud of.

We’re also here for the bush cops and single-teacher schools, the nurses and doctors who are always on duty, and the junior sports coaches who drive the bus three hours each way so kids can get a game on the weekend.

We’re up for the fight. But it’s getting harder.

A decade ago, regional newspapers were thriving. Classifieds, display ads, and community notices funded large local newsrooms filled with trained journalists.

But the landscape has changed.

When news went online – and we’re online too – global tech giants like Facebook quickly came to dominate the advertising market, using their monopolistic power to take an overwhelming share of digital ad revenue.

Yet these platforms don’t produce news.

They don’t employ journalists.

And they certainly don’t hire anyone in regional communities where they glean enormous profits from the attention of local people, while contributing nothing back to local newsrooms or communities.

In fact, they profit from our content, created by local journalists, without paying fairly for it – undermining the very business model that sustains local news.

And big box retail corporations making huge profits from our regional communities are now choosing to advertise with these global tech giants, not with local publishers.

Like frogs in warming water, too many Australians are unaware of the growing danger of letting corporatism control our communities – and the new media platforms and AI systems that (mis)inform them.

My top priority as president of CPA is to fight for the publishers who, in turn, are fighting for their communities.

We’ll be wearing out the boot leather lobbying governments to protect our people from exploitation by tech platforms that profit from harmful content and put our children and democracy at risk.

We’ll push back against bureaucracy that strips power from local leaders.

We’ll shine a light on the creeping reach of corporatism.

We’re proud to take on these battles.

All we ask in return is that you keep buying your local paper — or subscribe online — and support the local businesses that advertise with us.

Is the Riverland ready for new e-scooter regulations?

SEBASTIAN CALDERON

A RIVERLAND politician has warned the State Government about a lack of road infrastructure for the new e-scooter regulations in South Australia, which come into effect from Sunday.

Residents aged 16 and over will be allowed to use e-scooters, e-skateboards and e-solo-wheels on footpaths, bike paths, and many roads across the Riverland, provided they meet regulated safety standards.

The new laws bring the region in line with other parts of South Australia, following successful e-scooter trials and consultations with road safety experts.

While the new rules open up personal mobility in the Riverland, Chaffe MP Tim Whetstone said regional areas face unique challenges that must be considered by the State Government.

“While I fully support the need for sustainable transport options, the use of e-scooters in regional areas can be limited,” Mr Whetstone said.

“Unlike Adelaide, our region has fewer and narrower footpaths, unsealed roads, no designated bike lanes, and limited enforcement resources.

“We need to consider older residents and people living with disabilities who rely on safe pedestrian spaces.

“It’s vital that the State Government’s public education campaign is highly visible in regional South Australia, not just Adelaide. Additionally, the 12-month review must include real consultation with regional communities.

“Our regional towns deserve well thought-out, tailored solutions rather than a one-size-fits-all approach.”

Riverland councils will also play a role in managing parking and storage of shared e-scooters, should commercial operators expand their services to the region in future.

As with bicycles, riders must wear a helmet and use a flashing light when riding at night or in poor visibility. No licence or registration is required, but strict speed and safety rules will apply.

On local footpaths and shared-use trails, such as those along the Murray River or through Renmark’s riverfront precinct, riders must keep speeds below 10km/h.

E-scooters will be allowed on roads with a speed limit of 60km/h, but only in bike lanes and at no more than 25km/h. Other devices must stick to roads with a 50km/h limit or less.

Riders are banned from using handheld mobile phones, carrying passengers, or riding under the influence of drugs or alcohol. Mounted phones for GPS are permitted on devices with handlebars.

Penalties, including fines and potential demerit points, will apply to those caught breaking the rules.

A public awareness campaign will roll out in the coming weeks to ensure all South Australians understand their responsibilities. The government plans to review the regulations in July 2026 to ensure the system remains safe and practical for all road users.

Rural mental health grants on offer

FOUNDATION for Rural Regional Renewal’s (FRRR) In a Good Place (IAGP) program is inviting Riverland community groups and not-for-profits (NFPs) to apply for grants of up to $20,000 for projects that support the mental health and wellbeing of farmers, farming communities, and people living in regional areas.

The IAGP program has $240,000 in funding available in this round.

The grants can support community-led initiatives that improve mental health education to increase knowledge and reduce stigma, build community connections to lessen isolation and increase wellbeing, and assist local non-clinical services.

FRRR head of granting Jill Karena said that though “country people are resilient, that doesn’t mean they don’t need support”.

“Resilience is about using what you have in your toolbox to tackle a challenge, it doesn’t mean you have to battle things on your own,” Ms Karena said.

“These grants are for local organisations to help their community build up the knowledge, skills and networks to support their mental health and wellbeing, and to make sure locals know they don’t need to go it alone.

“Community groups and NFPs are on the ground, speaking with local people, so they are best placed to understand the kind of pressures that the community is dealing with and what kind of support is needed.

“This might be through a mental health first aid course, hosting a community event to help locals feel connected and less isolated, inviting a guest speaker to share their mental health journey, or providing locals with a safe space to speak up about their own mental health.”

Community groups, and NFPs can apply for grants through two streams of funding:

- Community wellbeing: for projects that focus on strengthening the general mental health and wellbeing of people in remote, rural and regional communities.
- Farmers and farming communities: for projects specifically supporting the mental health and wellbeing of farmers and the communities they live in.

“The National Farmers Federation’s 2023 National Farmer Wellbeing Report reinforced why it’s so important to offer funding to local NFPs in farming regions and offering the second stream of funding,” Ms Karena said.

“We’ve been inspired by the passion and dedication for the wellbeing of farmers and their towns.”

Loxton High Ignites entrepreneurial spirit

SEBASTIAN CALDERON

LOXTON High School students recently embarked on a journey through a dynamic program designed to prepare young minds with the skills needed to create impactful community projects and business solutions.

Students at Loxton High School traded textbooks for innovation last week as they immersed themselves in the Ignite workshop, a five-day program designed to spark entrepreneurial thinking and social impact.

Ignite offered students a unique opportunity to explore the world of business, with a strong focus on personal growth and community-minded solutions.

Throughout the week, students identified their passions, values and strengths, with this self-awareness path becoming the launchpad for purpose-driven ideas aimed at making a real difference in the Riverland. The program also introduced participants to the concept of social enterprise and the importance of measuring social impact.

Loxton High School assistant principal Sarah Edwards said “ultimately, Ignite empowered students with the knowledge, skills, processes, and support to take meaningful action on problems that mattered to them”.

“This initiative not only prepared them for future entrepreneurial endeavours, but also instilled a sense of purpose and social responsibility,” Ms Edwards said.

“The Ignite workshop proved to be an unforgettable experience, inspiring the next generation of entrepreneurs to make a positive impact in their communities and beyond.”

The students were guided through different activities aiming to develop vital entrepreneurial skills, crafting value propositions, conducting market research, and managing projects.

Leadership and collaboration were key elements, with students learning how to lead both themselves and others in a team environment, through the core principles of design thinking, from empathising with users and brainstorming ideas to testing concepts and delivering polished pitches.

A highlight of the week was a visit from Yellow Brick Road CEO and television personality Mark Bouris, who shared his personal journey in business. His insights on the rewards and risks of entrepreneur-

Under the guidance of facilitators Trish Yandell, Mary-Ellen Cass and a team of Loxton High School staff, students formed small teams to tackle real-world problems affecting the Riverland region. Their projects reflected a deep understanding of local issues and a strong desire to contribute meaningfully.

The week concluded with a dynamic showcase event, where students pitched their innovative, scalable and sustainable ideas to a panel of judges. Their presentations demonstrated not only creativity and strategic thinking, and also a genuine commitment to social responsibility.

“The experience left a lasting impression on students and staff alike, proving that when given the right environment and encouragement, young people can generate ideas with the potential to positively impact their communities,” Ms Edwards said.

Farmers put fitness first in Barmera

MADISON EASTMOND

A HEALTH initiative that aims to inspire and encourage rural communities to improve their health and wellbeing through physical activity arrived in the Riverland last week.

The Fat Farmers team visited the Riverland, with the initiative hosting several health inspired events in Barmera over the week, including:

- ❑ A Thursday morning training and dinner, attended by guest speaker Brett Burton, at the Barmera Football Club.
- ❑ A Friday morning walk along Lake Bonney.
- ❑ All-day free health checks, during the Saturday RFL match between Barmera-Monash and Loxton North.

Beginning in 2012 when three farmers at Maitland on York Peninsula started attending their local gym together, Fat Farmers have now expanded across towns all over country, including in Loxton, connecting farmers and rural people with fitness groups of all levels and ages.

Local Cameron Fielke said it was the “camaraderie” of the Loxton Fat Farmers group that has kept him a steady member since it formed late last year.

“Every Tuesday there is a gym session, and then we also have a Friday morning walk,” Mr Fielke.

“It’s a great way to offer support to farmers during a time where they’re doing it tough — a great support network.

“Everyone knows each other and we always have a good laugh, while also getting fit.”

Member for Barker, TONY PASIN, has provided the following opinion piece on WIN TV reversing its decision to cut NETWORK SEVEN programming to the Riverland and South-East regions...

It’s a WIN for common-sense

If you had told me in 2013, when I was first elected to the Federal Parliament, that as the member for Barker I would one day be called upon to fight for the right of my constituents to watch Home and Away, I might have laughed and asked you what you had been smoking.

But that is exactly what I was required to do over the last fortnight. Not Home and Away specifically but Channel Seven programming more generally including of course AFL football broadcasts.

Thankfully as a result of immense community pressure, including more than 2500 people signing my petition, Channel 7 and WIN TV have now come to an agreement meaning that WIN has returned to broadcasting the full suite of Channel 7 programs.

Let’s be clear: It should never have come to this.

I am livid that communities across the Limestone Coast and the Riverland were used as pawns in a commercial negotiation and I have made my disappointment clear to the chief executive officers of both organisations.

As I made clear during the course of this dispute, the actions of WIN and Seven were not just unconscionable they were unlawful.

WIN is required to meet certain obligations under the Commercial Broadcasting Licence issue to it pursuant to the Broadcasting Services Act 1992 and Seven is contractually obligated under agreement with the AFL and Cricket Australia to name just two.

Both parties in my assessment were in breach and it was these breaches that provided the leverage the community needed to ensure this matter was resolved expeditiously.

However, it occurred whether it was my correspondence to the Australian Communications and Media Authority calling on that Authority to cancel WIN’s broadcasting licence, my engagement with the AFL and Cricket Australia calling on them to force Seven to meet their contractual obligations, the countless discussions with the CEO’s of WIN and Seven, or the upwelling of community sentiment as evidenced by the petition, the good news is Channel 7 programs have been switched back on.

Ultimately a win is a win, and as a community we should be so proud of how we pulled together and achieved an outcome that many thought impossible or at least improbable.

Reluctant reader becomes local leader: Katrina's 35 years at the Waikerie Library

FOR WAIKERIE's Katrina Webber, what began as a personal connection to the town turned into a life-long career filled with learning, leadership, and a love for libraries.

More than 35 years ago, Katrina, who lived in Adelaide, found herself frequently visiting Waikerie to see someone special.

When a job opportunity opened at the Waikerie Library, she applied — as a book lover, and as someone seeking a new chapter.

She was the successful applicant and little did she know, it would be the beginning of a remarkable journey.

"I wasn't a reader when I started," she admits.

"But my love of reading certainly developed and has grown over the past 35 years."

Eager to deepen her understanding of the profession, she pursued an Associate Diploma in Library Studies by correspondence, while working full-time.

Her dedication paid off — she graduated in 1997 at the top of her class and since then her career has been as diverse as the library's complete collection.

After eight years of full-time work, she transitioned to part-time following the birth of her children and was able to take on extra roles across the Waikerie and Loxton offices, the Loxton Library, and the Waikerie Depot.

In 2017, she stepped into a leadership role as the District Council of Loxton Waikerie's Waikerie library information co-ordinator.

Her responsibilities expanded further in 2019 to include the Visitor Information Centre, and again in 2023 when she took on the council's customer service, at Waikerie.

"I've seen lots of changes over the years," she reflects.

"We started with a manual card system - everything was paper-based and we even had cassette tapes."

The library joined the state-wide One Card system in 2013, allowing patrons to borrow items from libraries across South Australia with a single card.

"We've updated our software a few times since, but the core mission remains the same," Katrina said.

Her early work schedule was demanding with late nights and Saturday mornings being "the norm".

"I've done my fair share of weekend work and now I'm lucky to work office hours, five days a week," Katrina said.

Despite the changes, one thing has remained constant, Katrina's love for the job.

"Working with children is my favourite part, I once wanted to be a primary school teacher, and now I get to teach in a fun way - without being around children for the whole day," she said.

Katrina also thrives on organising - whether it's people, programs, or events.

"Libraries are just as important today as they were 35 years ago, especially in regional communities," she said.

"We're a welcoming hub that offers free learning, connection, and personal growth for all ages and we're a safe space."

From children's programs to adult catch-ups, tech help to online resources, the library continues to evolve.

Her message to the community is simple: "If you haven't visited the library in a while, come in and have a look, 'You might be surprised'."

The Waikerie Library's recent Friday morning coffee session was extra special as it coincided with Katrina Webber (head of table) marking her 35th work anniversary at the library.

Loxton Hub connects researchers, industry, and community to address water-related challenges

ONE Basin Cooperative Research Centre's (CRC) Loxton Hub is playing a key role in fostering collaboration to solve key water challenges in the Murray-Darling Basin (Basin).

One Basin CRC is a research-based, industry-led partnership established with the vision to support Australia's irrigation regions to become the most productive, resilient, and sustainable in the world.

CEO, Professor Mike Stewardson, said "our 85 partners are working together across the CRC to build capability to develop real-world solutions for problems the Basin is facing now, and into the future".

The Loxton Hub, located in the Department of Primary Industries and Regions' Loxton Research Centre, facilitates regional industries, businesses, First Nations communities, and government to work with researchers from Australia's leading universities to ensure solutions are fit-for-purpose, and directly relevant to the region.

The Hub acts as a home base for PhD and Post-Doc researchers recruited to the region, as well as facilitating the Regional Advisory Committee (RAC). The RAC is comprised of CRC-appointed representatives who provide local insights and expertise on water, the regional industry needs, and the associated issues and impacts, to guide CRC work in the region.

"The Regional Advisory Committee has led the development of a Strategic Plan centred around local priorities that require a research-based solution," One Basin CRC Loxton Hub manager Kym Walton said.

"Located in one of South Australia's most productive and ecologically diverse regions, harnessing local knowledge is key to achieving impact when directing innovation in agriculture and climate adaptation."

Loxton Hub has several projects underway, covering a range of challenges including projects that investigate groundwater as an alternative water source to the Murray River through water banking and sourcing and treating brackish groundwater. Through the hubs, local communities will learn how to apply One Basin CRC research outputs to manage, prepare for and adapt to changing climates and market conditions.

The CRC is open to new partnerships and collaborations. Contact information, as well as guidance on this process, can be found on One Basin CRC's website.

Be part of an Art Club

ATTENDING Mr. Reeks' Art Classes is an enjoyable way of doing visual arts in a fun and satisfying way after school with your friends.

It is both relaxing and enjoyable to spend time with like-minded friends.

Local artist Greg Reeks said "it is like being part of an art club, where you are together with young people and people young at heart, who enjoy creating and designing artwork".

"It is a great social occasion, where you can unwind doing what you enjoy doing best," Mr Reeks said.

Mr. Reeks said "it is not only wonderful to teach young people artistic skills and see them blossom in the way they can express themselves with pencil, paint, textas and paper, it is excellent to watch the students help and work with each other whilst socialising".

"Some mothers even come along with their children and share quality time together, which is so good," he said.

Mr. Reeks classes cater to a variety of ages, with young children through to teenagers and adults, so lessons can easily adapt and adjust to varying levels of ability and interests.

Mr. Reeks said "the success of each lesson is every student completes a piece of artwork". "It is enjoyable to watch their reaction when they have achieved something they thought they could never do,

"Learning to draw and paint is a gradual process of building up a set of techniques and skills that enables young people to use their minds to art and designs in their own unique and special way.

"Students become more articulate and clearer in explaining what they are aiming for, being in more touch with their feelings and emotions. They select a huge variety of topics and mediums to work with in the classes"

Waikerie’s new friendly face

The Waikerie Hotel Motel’s new manager Brenton Franks is committed to supporting the local community.

CHRISTINE WEBSTER

A FAMILIAR face to the region, Brenton Franks, is the new manager of the Waikerie Hotel Motel.

Mr Franks has more than 20 years’ experience in managing community hotels and clubs, and was manager of the Renmark Club from 2008 to 2014.

He started in his new role in mid-May and gradually took over the reins from Andrew Tyson, who was manager of the Waikerie Hotel Motel for almost 14 years, and officially retired on June 15.

Mr Franks was previously the venue manager of the Ceduna Foreshore Hotel Motel for the last two years, and has also been at the helm of hotels in Broken Hill, Adelaide and Victoria.

He and his wife Melissa were keen to move closer to Adelaide to spend more time with their families and the location of Waikerie, just two hours’ away, was ideal.

“At the start of the year, we started to look for something a bit closer to Adelaide and I heard that there was a position going at the Waikerie Hotel, so I was successful in getting the role Mr Franks said.

He is excited about his new appointment and is planning to spend most of his time between the office and “the front of house”.

“On Friday nights and busy nights of the week if something is on, I plan to be around in the hotel,” Mr Franks said.

“This will enable the community to get to know me and recognise me as the friendly face of the hotel.”

Mr Franks and his wife have settled into their new home at Waikerie, and are enjoying meeting locals and travellers at the hotel and local events.

“It is a great little community, I like to attend the football when I can and say hello to everyone,” he said.

Mr Franks is looking forward to working with the board, which he said were “very supportive and committed to the development of the hotel”.

He is committed to continuing to support community associations and events such as the Waikerie Australia Day Event, the Waikerie and Districts Community Flower Show and the Riverland Enduro, which runs from Friday until Sunday.

Applications for ACRRM Fellowship now open

THE Australian College of Rural and Remote Medicine (ACRRM) has opened applications for its 2026 Rural Generalist Fellowship Program, calling for Riverland doctors ready to take on one of the most diverse and in-demand roles in medicine.

ACRRM president Rod Martin said the diversity of the rural generalist role is what makes it one of the most “rewarding and urgently needed” medical careers in the country.

“Every day is different, one day you’re providing emergency care, the next you’re supporting mental health or delivering long-term care to a family you’ve known for years,” Dr Martin said.

“Rural generalists do more than general practice - and that’s exactly what rural, remote, and First Nations communities need.”

As Australia faces critical rural workforce shortages, Dr Martin says training more Rural Generalists is essential to maintaining access to care.

“There are towns where a single well-trained doctor can mean the difference between no healthcare and a fully functioning clinic or hospital,” Dr Martin said.

“We need doctors who are adaptable, capable, and committed, and that’s who the ACRRM rural generalist Fellowship program is designed to support.”

The ACRRM Fellowship is the only national training program built specifically for doctors who want to practise medicine in rural, remote, and First Nations communities across Australia.

Registrars train in rural and remote locations and are equipped with the broad skills required to meet complex and varied community needs.

The program includes advanced training in emergency care, obstetrics, anaesthetics, Indigenous health, and mental health, and is underpinned by strong mentorship and regional support networks.

Dr Martin said the program is ideal for doctors seeking a career that challenges them professionally while allowing them to make a meaningful difference.

ACRRM president Rod Martin says the diversity of the rural generalist role is what makes it one of the most “rewarding and urgently needed” medical careers in the country. PHOTO: supplied “We’re training doctors not just to be clinicians, but to be leaders in their communities,” Dr Martin said.

“If you want a career where every day is different — this is your next step.”

Applications for the 2026 ACRRM Rural Generalist Fellowship Program are now open.

Year 12 students learn about innovation in Adelaide

SEBASTIAN CALDERON

A DAY of exploration and immersive learning was undertaken by a group of Loxton students, aimed to broaden their understanding of academic and professional horizons.

Year 12 biology, chemistry, and physics students from Loxton High School were given a behind-the-scenes look at research taking place at the University of Adelaide. They participated in four engaging and educational workshops:

- ❑ EXTERRA Lab: Students explored the future of space travel, delving into the poten- tial of missions to the Moon and Mars.

- ❑ Chem Lab: Students examined Atomic Absorption Spectroscopy, gaining insights into how scientists analyse materials on an atomic level.
- ❑ Acoustics Lab: The group got hands-on experience with the science of sound, uncovering the principles behind acoustics and how sound waves interact with different environments.
- ❑ Vernon Roberts Anatomy Museum: Students discovered the wonders of human anatomy through interactive displays and fascinating exhibits.

The day's journey ended with a visit to Fusetec, a world leader in 3D printing, where students observed how the technology is used to create human anatomical models that play a critical role in international surgical training.

A second group of year 12 business innovation students participated in the AT2 Mentoring Event, co-organised by Tricia Yandell, Enza Iammarrone, and Adelaide University.

This event brought together more than 200 students from across South Australia for a day of pitching and networking, allowing students a unique opportunity to present their business models to a panel of industry mentors, receiving invaluable feedback to refine their entrepreneurial skills.

The day also had the presence of 11 Loxton High School alumni among the 26 mentors, showcasing the lasting impact of the school's programs and the strength of its community.

Among the alumni mentors were business figures such as Joshua Arnold, Liam Philips, Chrysanthi Sialas, Eleni Fodgen, and many others who shared their time and expertise with the next generation of entrepreneurs.

Mrs Yandell expressed her pride in the students and alumni, saying "it was an incredible experience for our students to engage with mentors who were once in their shoes".

"This event reinforced how important it is to foster connections and continue the legacy of success within the Loxton High School community," she said.

"Both the science workshops and the business event demonstrated the commitment of Loxton High School to providing diverse and enriching opportunities for its students, ensuring they are well-prepared for the challenges and opportunities that lie ahead."

Students participated in four engaging and educational workshops, which included space travel, engineering, atomic spectroscopy, acoustics laboratory and science of sound and a visit to Fusetec, world leader in 3D printing.

Local leader joins National Changemaker Gathering

RIVERLAND changemaker Mandy Tennant has returned from Cairns after taking part in the Australian Rural Leadership Foundation's (ARLF) first National Changemaker Gathering, bringing home renewed clarity, strengthened confidence, and deeper purpose in her leadership work across the Murraylands and Riverland.

Held over three days, the gathering brought together 50 community leaders from across rural, regional and remote Australia. It marked the culmination of a nationwide series of Changemaker Workshops, supported by the Australian Government's Future Drought Fund, and was designed to build resilient, connected leadership in the face of ongoing regional challenges.

Representing Regional Development Australia Murraylands and Riverland (RDAMR), Ms Tennant described the gathering as "transformative" and a powerful reminder of the importance of storytelling in leadership. "We were reminded that as changemakers, we are not just problem solvers – we are bringers, receivers and holders of stories," she said. "Listening deeply to the experiences of others across the country reminded me that change often begins in quiet conversations – not in policy, but in people." As a key driver of the Regional Leadership Development Program (RLDP), a program delivered by RDAMR and funded through the Department of Primary Industries and Regions, Ms Tennant said the gathering reaffirmed the impact of local leadership initiatives already underway in the region. "It deepened my belief in what we're building through the RLDP, we're giving participants the confidence and tools to create disruption where it's needed, and to lead change with courage in their own communities," she said. Participants at the gathering were encouraged to consider how best to influence change at the system level that makes the most sense for their context, a concept Ms Tennant said will continue to shape her leadership and regional development work. "It's not always about taking on the whole mountain, sometimes the most effective change happens by influencing the system you're already in and supporting others to lead alongside you," she said.

Ms Tennant also highlighted the role of Tanya Lehmann, of Aurora Meliora, one of the gathering's facilitators, who brought insight, warmth, and inspiration to the group. "Tanya's ability to hold space and guide us through both personal reflection and collective exploration was truly powerful," she said. "Her presence and approach helped us go deeper and connect more honestly with ourselves and each other." The event also provided a rare opportunity for shared learning and support among changemakers, with leaders from vastly different communities coming together to explore how to navigate complexity, build resilience, and stand with one another through adversity. "It was inspiring to be in a room of people who are walking similar paths, juggling community leadership, work, volunteering, and caring deeply about their places," Ms Tennant said.

"I came home reminded that leadership is not a title, it's a practice. It's showing up, staying curious, and making space for others." The Australian Rural Leadership Foundation has delivered more than 80 Changemaker Workshops across Australia, engaging over 2000 regional leaders (150 being from the Murraylands and Riverland Region). The National Changemaker Gathering is the next step in strengthening a national movement of community-led resilience, connection, and leadership.

ARLF facilitators who supported the gathering included manager of learning Andrew Bryant, Paul Ryan, of the Australian Resilience Centre, Tanya Lehmann, of Aurora Meliora, and Benny Callaghan, of Systems Collaboration Partners.

St Francis of Assisi College year 11 students, Cleo and Imogen, awarded $2400 to St Vincent de Paul Society president Margie Thomas, and treasurer John Fewster. PHOTO: Amelia Semmler

A chilled day at St Francis

AMELIA SEMMLER

WHILE enjoying a peaceful walk on the St Francis of Assisi College oval, students from the Riverland school last month raised more than $2000 for local people in need.

Collecting $2400 and a pool of non-perishable food items, St Francis of Assisi College held its annual winter appeal on Friday, June 20, to raise money for the local St Vincent de Paul Society (Vinnies).

With this year’s Winter Appeal theme in the hands of sports house Ignis, students were tasked with walking, or running as many laps as possible in 70 minutes, with sponsors donating either a flat amount, or dollar amount per lap.

“The aim was to do as many laps as they could to raise as much funds as possible,” A college spokesperson said.

“These donations will go toward the Vinnies’ Winter Appeal to support the local people in need.

“It encouraged our students to bring more donations to provide for the local community.”

Altogether, the four sports houses completed a total of 3725 laps in 70 minutes, with Ignis walking 986, Ventus walking 952 laps, Aqua walking 920 laps, and Terra walking 867 laps.

Along with completing the laps, Ignis house also organised an ice bucket challenge, where staff and students were dunked with cold water, in order to raise further donations, including non-perishable food items and warm clothing.

With each item a student brought, they received one vote, allowing them to vote for whoever they wanted to participate in the ice bucket challenge.

“For the ice bucket challenge, that was more items donated, rather than money,” the spokesperson said.

“Such an event touches on our school values of faith, compassion and care, “It’s important for us to go out into our community, and really making an impact by helping those most vulnerable.

“It allows that close connection and helps to raise awareness.”

St Vincent de Paul Society treasurer John Fewster was appreciative of the school’s donations.

“We really appreciate the support this school has given us right from the start,” Mr Fewster said.

“Thank you for the support from the wonderful teachers, students, it’s an amazing college this one.”

Mr Fewster said they help a lot of people in the community, mainly with food but with other items as well.

“We certainly appreciate the ongoing support.”

South Australian youngsters to access preschool in 2026

RIVERLAND long day care services will be among those partnering with the State Government to deliver three-year-old preschool from next year, as part of the first stage of the landmark early childhood reforms.

The services, located across metropolitan, regional, and rural South Australia, will be joined by 45 government preschools in regional and remote communities, along with three government metro demonstration sites.

This will support more than 6000 three year olds to access a teacher-led, play-based learning program in the first year of the rollout alone.

Research has shown that two years of quality preschool supports children to ensure they are ready to learn on their first day of school.

Long day care services partnering in 2026 have been prioritised based on their quality, including their National Quality standards rating and ability to deliver a teacher-led program, and their location, to ensure a broad geographic spread, with a focus on reaching communities where children are likely to benefit most from access to three-year-old preschool programs in the early years of the rollout.

In the 2025-26 State Budget, the State Government is delivering a further $27.7m investment to accelerate the rollout of three-year-old preschool in a long day care.

The funding will provide over 2000 additional places from 2026 and bring forward the long day care rollout by 12 months.

The rollout will expand each year, with additional services joining annually until universal access is achieved by 2032.

The standard offering for three-year-old preschool will be for 15 hours per week, or up to 600 hours per year.

Families can now visit (www.flyingstart.sa.gov.au) to learn more about the rollout of three-year-old preschool, explore partnering services in their community, and check when their child will be eligible to participate.

“Three-year-old preschool sets children up with the skills and confidence they need to ensure they are ready to learn as soon as they head to school,” Premier Peter Malinauskas said.

“There is no bigger reform in improving the long-term trajectory of our state, socially and economically.

“This is a reform grounded in research and follows the recommendations provided by the Royal Commission into Early Childhood Education and Care – led by former Prime Minister Julia Gillard.

“We know that two years of quality preschool are better than one, particularly for those children in disadvantaged and low socio-economic areas.

“We have been unapologetic in our ambitious goal to reduce the rate of South Australian children entering school developmentally vulnerable.”

Minister for Education, Training and Skills Blair Boyer said “the very first recommendation of the Royal Commission into Early Childhood Education and Care was to reduce the rate of South Australian children entering school developmentally vulnerable from 23.8 per cent to 15 per cent within 20 years – well below the national average of 22 per cent”.

“Three-year-old preschool is the most effective way, we as a state, can achieve that ambitious goal. These outcomes will be significant for decades to come,” he said.

“The response from providers has been overwhelmingly positive, with hundreds of services stepping forward to express their interest in partnering with us to deliver quality three-year-old preschool to South Australia’s children.

“Today’s announcement reflects the sector’s commitment to quality early childhood education and their readiness to deliver for children and families.”

New AEDC data reinforces urgent need to invest in community playgroups

PLAYGROUP SA is calling for State Government support to strengthen early childhood development outcomes across the Riverland, with recent data suggesting many South Australian children continue to start school developmentally vulnerable.

After the release of the 2024 Australian Early Development Census (AEDC), Playgroup SA is calling for urgent investment in playgroup infrastructure to ensure families have access to critical support during the first 1000 days of a child’s life.

Recent research from the University of South Australia, commissioned by Playgroup Australia, found that children who attend playgroups are 40 per cent more likely to be developmentally on track by the time they start school.

When combined with preschool attendance, this increases to 70 percent a stronger impact than long day care alone.

Children who are developmentally vulnerable are at high risk of falling further behind in their schooling with reduced outcomes throughout their education.

Despite the strength of this evidence, Playgroup SA currently receives no state government funding for the co-ordination or delivery of community or supported playgroups across South Australia.

Existing investment is limited to developmental checks delivered through the Ready Set Progress initiative, without broader support for local infrastructure, facilitation, or outreach.

“Playgroups are one of the most effective, low-cost ways to support child development, strengthen parenting confidence, and build social capital,” Playgroup SA CEO Craig Bradbrook said.

“Without investment in the co-ordination and sustainability of the playgroup network, South Australia risks missing a proven, community-based solution to reduce developmental vulnerability.”

As the Federal and State Governments renegotiate national funding agreements and access to the NDIS narrows, fewer families are able to access timely foundational supports.

In this context, playgroups provide a universal, low-barrier platform for early help — linking families to information, services, and peer connection.

Playgroup SA is calling on the South Australian Government to:

- ❑ Recognise playgroups as essential infrastructure in the early years system.
- ❑ Invest in state-wide co-ordination and backbone support for community playgroups.
- ❑ Embed playgroups in early years strategies aimed at reducing developmental vulnerability.

“The AEDC data tells us where the gaps are,” Mr Bradbrook said.

“Playgroups are part of the answer. They are where development, connection, and community begin.”

FAMILY GET TOGETHER: Singing to his own accompaniment is Pastor Geoff Kuchel, from Freeling, who led the service at the Pilgrims of Zion Lutheran Church, Bookpurnong, for the recent Fielke family reunion. Pastor Kuchel is a fourth generation of the August Fielke family, who came to Bookpurnong, from Dutton, in 1923. PHOTOS: supplied Roger Fielke, from Murtho, gave his father Dennis Fielke's eulogy at the recent reunion church service. After the service, the congregation gathered at the cemetery for the interment of the ashes of Dennis, with his wife Audrey. Dennis was a third generation of the Fielke family, his father being Oscar Fielke, the sixth child of 14 children born to August Fielke, and his wife Tina (nee Doering).

Robert Fielke, from Loxton, welcomed Fielke family members and partners to the reunion, held recently at The Precinct. More than 100 descendants gathered for an informal get-together for lunch. It has been many years since the family has gotten together and to have so many of the younger generation attend made the day special.

The Church of Pilgrims of Zion Lutheran Church, Bookpurnong, was full for the Fielke family reunion service. The Paschke grandchildren of the deceased Dennis Fielke, from Waikerie, led the service on organ and guitar.

Enjoying catching up at the reunion were second cousins Mark, Bronwyn, Robyn and Craig Fielke, who were all in the same year at Loxton High School. It has been around 30 years since they were in the same room.

Short stays for carers and those living with dementia

AN initiative promoting increased wellbeing for those living with dementia is set to run in the Riverland.

Even as a teenager, Resthaven project officer Sarah Stamoulis felt a pull to support older people living with dementia.

At 14, she was a volunteer of Resthaven Mitcham and after school she would provide company and assistance to residents who were living in the dementia-specific area. Fast forward to today, and Sarah has completed her Bachelor of Dementia Care and is jointly leading Resthaven's Staying at Home in Regional South Australia (SAHRSA) Program, alongside fellow project officer Stephanie Karagiannis.

Similarly, Ms Karagiannis also has experience volunteering, with Baptist Care, and has completed her Master of Social Work study. Together, they promote, organise and implement Resthaven's SAHRSA retreats – a chance for people living with dementia and their caregivers to enjoy a few days of respite, while also embracing wellbeing and education. The retreats are usually three days and two nights, and are person-centred and goal specific to suit the individual circumstances of each participant.

Over the course of the retreat, the person living with dementia has access to tailored, fun, meaningful, and individualised support from dedicated Resthaven engagement staff, while caregivers receive education sessions on dementia-related topics.

"The retreats are really aimed at supporting carers to enable them to keep their loved one at home for as long as possible," Ms Stamoulis said.

"Getting that support early and knowing what is available is the most useful thing in preventing carer stress and burn-out.

"We often hear from people that they can 'cope on my own'. However, rather than waiting until the last possible moment to seek support, it is always more beneficial to know what help is available before it is needed."

Ms Karagiannis said the retreats offer carers information through a variety of providers, including Carers SA and Dementia Australia.

"But, the bigger benefit, which we see time and again, is the connections people make with each other," Ms Karagiannis said.

"It's carers finding support from other carers who are going through the same things, as well as people living with dementia finding people who accept and understand what they are going through also."

Previous groups of retreat guests have continued to catch up long after the gathering has finished.

"It's a safe space for people to talk openly," Ms Karagiannis said.

"What we hear from people is that often, because they are with 'strangers', they feel able to open up about how they are truly feeling, without judgement or the weight of responsibility which might come from people closer to them."

Along with Ms Stamoulis and Ms Karagiannis, a team of Resthaven staff attend the retreats to engage with the person living with dementia, and ensure everything runs smoothly.

"Staff stay onsite for the entire retreat, so it's also an opportunity for Resthaven staff to work in different areas of care and support," Ms Stamoulis said.

"We have met so many special people on these retreats. At the end of the three days, we feel like we've known each other for ages – such connections are made."

Retreat clients are supported over a six-month period that includes the retreat and a follow-up consultation. There is no need to be a Resthaven client, and there is no need to be under My Aged Care.

"The retreats are an excellent way to promote different services available to carers," Ms Stamoulis said.

"It also helps carers to see that their self-care is important too. Yes, the health and wellbeing of the person living with dementia is important, but it is not more important than the health and wellbeing of the carer.

"It should be equal."

The Staying at Home in Regional South Australia program is fully-funded by the Australian Government. An upcoming retreat will be held in the Riverland from July 15 to 17.

For more information and to begin the process for eligibility and assessment, visit the Resthaven website (www.resthaven.asn.au/sahrsa/).

Three-year high of trainee doctors in regional workforce as model expands

THE number of doctors undertaking GP training in regional areas of South Australia, such as the Riverland, is at a three-year high and will be supported by the major expansion of a new employment model.

A total of 196 second, third, and fourth-year registrars are undertaking their general practice and rural generalist training with SA Health and private employers in regional SA this year.

This compares with 123 in 2023. This is in addition to 41 regional interns (first-year trainees) employed by Local Health Networks (LHNs) this year as part of a record state-wide intake.

This is a 242 per cent increase since 2020, when there were just 12 regional interns between only two LHNs.

Regional GPs and generalists play a vital role in the regional health system, providing not only primary care, aged care, emergency care and acute care in rural hospitals.

To attract and support trainee GPs, this year the Federal and State Governments are supporting them further by expanding the Single Employer Model (SEM), which provides certainty around where they work, their income and employment conditions like work hours, on-call obligations and leave entitlements.

It also provides patients with more consistent access to primary care.

A trial of SEM run by the Riverland Academy of Clinical Excellence in the Riverland Mallee Coorong Local Health Network (RMCLHN) has operated since 2023, with up to 20 generalist trainees at a time. It has received positive feedback from general practices and trainee GPs.

A new four-year trial of SEM is underway at all regional Local Health Networks and will be able to support up to 60 GP and rural generalist trainees.

So far, 57 GP practices have been approved to take part in the new SEM trial across the five regional LHNs, with 11 trainee doctors having joined the trial this year and another two due to join by the end of August.

It is hoped the expansion to other areas in the state will result in more trainees remaining in regional areas, leading to better medical support for those communities, and improved patient care.

Doctors completing their GP training usually must change private employers for each required training placement, which affects their leave entitlements and other conditions that can't be transferred from one employer to the other.

The SEM allows them to be employed by SA Health for up to four years as they finish their rural generalist and general practice training, moving between private and public placements as needed.

"The Single Employer Model will help to address one of the biggest health workforce issues in regional and remote areas – recruiting and retaining doctors," Minister for Health and Wellbeing Mark Butler said.

"We have seen how successful the Single Employer Model has been in the

● Mark Butler

Riverland for the past two years, increasing the medical workforce by more than 25 per cent in the region.

"Bringing in more doctors to regional South Australia continues our recruiting drive to boost the state's health system, where we have hired nearly 2800 extra health workers since 2022."

Federal Minister for Health and Aged Care Mark Butler said "the extension of the Riverland Single Employer Model is a positive step towards addressing the workforce challenges facing rural and remote communities in South Australia".

"By allowing registrars to remain within the SA Health system throughout their training, they have the opportunity to not only gain valuable experience, but also establish long-term connections with the communities they serve," Mr Butler said.

"This model is a win-win for registrars and rural and remote communities, ultimately ensuring a more sustainable, committed rural healthcare workforce."

Applications are now open for next year's intake of SEM trial participants.

Riverland input needed on flow project

THE Department of Environment and Water (DEW) are encouraging Riverlanders to fill out a survey to ensure the SA Constraints Measure project reflects community needs.

The SA Constraints Measure project removes barriers to flow for River Murray floodplains. The project includes a package of works designed to benefit the environment and improve community access to the river during natural high flow events.

Examining how high flows affect property, business, hobbies or interests, as well as where infrastructure upgrades are needed most, those interested are to complete the DEW survey by 11.30pm on Tuesday, July 29.

To complete the survey, visit the website (www.shorturl.at/rHkmM).

For more information, visit the website (www.environment.sa.gov.au/topics/water-and-river-murray/-projects-plans-security-and-legislation/-water-projects/constraints-measures-project).

Local quilters give big

AMELIA SEMMLER

A RIVERLAND quilting group has made a sizeable donation to keep those most in need warm this winter. Berri Uniting Church quilting group Refresh and Bloom have donated numerous hand-made quilts to ac.care Riverland earlier this month, with this donation just one of many to the community from the local creatives. Meeting on Wednesdays and Thursdays, the group creates quilts and donates these to local charities, while also participating in diamond art, crocheting and knitting. “It’s more of a community group, rather than a church group,” Refresh and Bloom co-ordinator Helen Morgan said. “It’s very rewarding and we all enjoy it.” In the last 12 years, Refresh and Bloom has been able to sew almost 1000 quilts. “While the last lot of quilts we sent to the ac. care, some went to flood victims, others went to bush fire victims, and some have gone interstate,” Ms Morgan said. Ms Morgan said every year the group also donates quilts to the Riverland Special School, allowing the children to have their own quilt when they rest during the day. “Then they will have that same quilt all through their schooling years,” Ms Morgan said. Ms Morgan said it was through the support of the Riverland community the group was able to give so generosity. “Most of the fabric is provided by donations, and Vaughan’s Loxton provide our fabric with a very generous discount,” Ms Morgan said. “Quilts are very expensive to make and a lot of people don’t realise that.” For expressions of interest to join Refresh and Bloom, contact Helen Morgan on 0429 822 524.

Watch out for house fire dangers during winter

A MAJOR insurance company has warned Riverland homeowners to avoid the risks of heating devices sparking a fire. Insurer AAMI has urged homeowners to be vigilant about the dangers of house fires and the use of heating devices during the upcoming school holidays, with more than 250 fire-related claims received so far in 2025. The leading cause of house fires for the insurer includes lithium-ion batteries in e-scooters and e-bikes, heating appliances, and faulty power outlets. AAMI’s head of assessing and supply chain Steven Hussey warned of the link between school holidays and house fires. “Throughout the year, we’ve seen school holidays spark a higher-than-normal number of claims for house fires, but winter will bring its own unique challenges,” Mr Hussey said. “We usually see a concerning rise in house fires caused by electrical appliances being placed in dangerous locations - think about a heater too close to curtains, or worn-out electric blankets being used. Even something as simple as leaving your heater on when you’ve just ducked out to the shops can cause a spark. “With winter keeping people inside, we don’t want to see this danger continue, especially as people depend more on their electrical appliances to keep warm.” Recommendations surrounding heating devices include:

- ❑ Inspect heating appliances for damaged plugs, frayed cords, or signs of overheating. It is recommended to have appliances tested and tagged by a qualified electrician to ensure they are in working order.
- ❑ Keep appliances 1m away from anything flammable, such as curtains, furniture, bedding, or drying laundry.
- ❑ Avoid overloading power outlets by only plugging one heat-producing appliance into a single power outlet at a time. Overloading can cause circuits to overheat and spark fires.
- ❑ Test smoke alarms monthly to ensure they are working correctly, have fresh batteries, and are located on every level of your home, including bedrooms and hallways.
- ❑ Check electric blankets for scorch marks, frayed cords, or damaged elements before use.
- ❑ Only use manufacturer or recommended charging cables for all electrical appliances including phones, especially e-scooters and e-bikes.

Loxton Mens Probus Club celebrates 40 in style

INVITED Probarians and their partners from around the Riverland, and members of the Loxton Mens Probus Club, attended the recent celebrations of the club's 40th birthday, held at the Loxton Club.

Catering for 100 people for a midday lunch, the committee organised a reading of the club's history by president Trevor Fielke, telling how the club began under the guidance of the Loxton Rotary Club by Neil Schlein, and giving the life history of 100-year-old member Wally Miller, by David Kimber. The Probus singers, under the guidance of Jack Slater and pianist Anne Battams, also entertained guests. The club's two life members, Caudis Koch and Keith Munchenberg, and longest active member, Trevor Holman, were given the task of lighting and fanning out the candles, and cutting the cake.

President Trevor Fielke said the membership of the club has ebbed and flowed over the past 40 years, with a membership now of 75. "Along with three lucky door prizes, some humour interspersed through the program, the day was indeed one of 'Fun, Fellowship and Friendship'," Mr Fielke said. The Loxton Mens Probus Club meets monthly on the third Tuesday, at the Loxton Club, at 10am till 12 noon. Visitors and new members are always welcome.

FIELKE FAMILY HISTORY: This water-filled pipe, so the story goes, came into the Fielke family way back in the mid-1850s in Prussia, or maybe even earlier. The inscription on the back of the framed pipe shows that its custodians over the now-five generations of Fielke family include Gottlieb Fielke, who held the pipe from 1856 to 1867. The Fielke family came to Australia during this time and settled on a farm at Dutton, SA. The pipe was then passed onto his son, August Fielke, in 1867, who then handed it on to his second son Otto Fielke, the third-generation Fielke in Australia, who was custodian of the pipe from 1941, until his death in 1977. Otto only had two daughters, so the pipe was passed on to second daughter Margaret Ames, in 1977. However Margaret did not have any children, so in 2015 she chose younger cousin Rex Fielke’s son, Rowan Fielke, a fifth-generation Fielke, to be the custodian so it stayed in the Fielke family name. The history of the water-cooled smoke pipes goes way back to ancient times, with similar devices being in use more than 2000 years ago, the thinking being that passing the smoke through water could make the tobacco less harmful. New ad campaign to tackle obesity

NEW advertisements showing the damaging impact of toxic fat on the body will spearhead a new campaign to address obesity across SA, including in the Riverland, following successful adoption in other states.

Obesity puts people at the greater risk of health problems and diseases such as cancer, heart disease, and type 2 diabetes. South Australia currently has the nation’s highest rate of diabetes.

The LiveLighter campaign comes as the latest data from Preventive Health SA reveals 66 per cent of South Australian adults, and 37.1 per cent of children, are overweight or living with obesity.

The LiveLighter campaign is a part of a collaboration on obesity prevention that includes Prevention Health SA, Cancer SA, and the South Australia Health and Medical Research Institute (SAHMRI).

The ads will run on radio, TV, billboards and social media, aiming to increase awareness of the impact of toxic fat and also encourage South Australians to eat well and increase physical activity to improve their health.

The strategy adopts parts of the proven evidence-based LiveLighter public health campaign that has been successfully running in Western Australia for more than a decade, and has also run in ACT, and Victoria.

The toxic fat ads will direct Riverlanders to the LiveLighter website, containing information and tools to support eating healthily and being more active, including healthy recipes, workout builders, and meal planners.

“The toxic fat ads are confronting – and that’s intentional – graphic campaigns like this have been proven to change behaviour.

“Just like with smoking and drink driving, we need strong, clear messages to shift public perception and spark positive action.” SAHMRI health policy centre director, Professor Caroline Miller, said.

Minister for health Chris Picton said “obesity has overtaken smoking as the leading risk factor in preventable health conditions for South Australians, which is why we are taking action.”

“Two-thirds of adults and more than one-in-three kids in SA are overweight. Unless we change this too many kids will face reduced life expectancy and a lifetime struggling with chronic disease.

“Overweight and obesity has become our most urgent public health challenge, putting growing pressure on the health system and our society.”

Health SA chief executive, Marina Bowshall said “the results of this campaign are proven, after years running interstate.

“We know that people who see the ads are more aware of the serious health consequences of obesity,” Ms Bowshall said.

Cancer Council SA senior manager prevention Christine Morris said. “we support all initiatives that are working to increase healthy eating and physical activity as we know that action on these can reduce the rate and impact of cancer.”

Trivia to help make a wish come true

THE Make-A-Wish Riverland branch is encouraging locals to help celebrate the organisation’s 40th anniversary this week.

Hosting the trivia night on Friday, July 11, from 7pm, at Hotel Renmark, interested parties are to bring together a table of eight to enjoy the festivities, and blue and white theme.

At $10 per person, supper will be provided, and will feature raffles and games, with many prizes to be won.

For table bookings, or more information, contact Cara on 0448 230 477, or Dallas on 0431 352 168.

New tool to support dementia care workforce

A NEW app-based tool available from Dementia Australia will help Riverlanders working in health, disability and aged care to provide support for people living with dementia.

Dementia Australia executive director of services Kaele Stokes said the tool – called Tell TiNA – will help workers and providers to assess the skills they need to embed in order to better support people living with dementia and meet the Strengthened Aged Care Quality Standards that commence from November 1.

“People living with dementia have specific care and support requirements that cannot be delivered without appropriate education and training of the workforce,” Dr Stokes said.

“This tool will support providers to take a continuous improvement approach to the care they deliver, as well as assess the strengths and areas of development within their workforce to build a comprehensive dementia care training strategy.

“Dementia education must not be a once off. It needs to include a regular process of formalised continuing professional development that benefits people receiving care, as well as staff themselves.”

Deakin University Professor Kon Mouzakis said that by bringing experts in dementia and technology together, more effective workforce training and support can be provided when and where a worker needs it.

“Our team is proud to work with Dementia Australia to develop technologies like Tell TiNA, which provides resources for care workers to best support people living with dementia,” Prof Mouzakis said.

Tell TiNA can be previewed by downloading the free ‘Ask Annie’ mobile app from any app store.

Organisations can subscribe to access the dashboard and manage staff participation and performance.

In order to access the full version of Tell TiNA, enquire via the website (dementia.org.au/tell-tina), or email a Dementia Australia business solutions consultants at (development@dementia.org.au).

Loxton survives the ultimate scare

HAVING not suffered a loss since the 2023 qualifying final, Loxton survived a massive scare against Renmark on Friday night in Riverland netball’s A1 competition. Travelling to the Alan Coulter Recreation Centre in Renmark, the location where the Tigers last tasted defeat, Renmark were desperate for a victory with finals aspirations in mind. As has become the norm in Riverland netball in recent history, Loxton got away to a strong start, leading by five goals at the first break. Loxton continued the momentum into the second term, extending the gap to eight at the major break, putting distance on the home side. However, Renmark responded, putting scoreboard pressure on following strong link up play from Ashlea James and Lara Telfer. Trailing by five goals at the last change, Renmark produced a strong final term, and despite a late pair of goals from Sonja and Anita Modlinski in the dying stages, the hosts fell just one short. Defender Tarnie Shinnick excelled yet again for Loxton in the tense victory, while superstar shooter Mackella Hogan notched up 48 goals. Loxton relied heavily on its mid-court play across the game, with Shenae Rucioch particularly impressive against her old side. For Renmark, James and Telfer were terrific, while Anita reached 28, and Sonja 24, as Renmark got back into the top four on percentage, in what shapes as an exciting run home. Elsewhere, Loxton North bounced back from a shock loss the previous week, defeating Barmera by two goals in an entertaining contest. Trailing by two goals at the first break, North got back in front by halftime, in what was a see-sawing contest throughout the entirety. Barmera were able to wrestle back momentum in the third quarter, gaining the lead back after a 14-9 quarter. The Lakesiders held a four-goal advantage at the final change, and appeared all but likely to close the gap for second spot, with North goalkeeper Paris Lawrie suffering an injury. However, Loxton North coach

Renee Williams rallied her group, and following some positional moves, saw her side over the line on the back of a massive 16-10 quarter. Youngster Layla Hutchinson scored the ultimate sealer for her side, capping off five last quarter goals, and combining well with Maddie Groth, giving North fans a glimpse into the future. Groth finished with 24 goals in the win, while earlier in the night Ellie Thomas worked hard and was rewarded with 23 of her own. For Barmera, young duo Hallie Hodgson (30 goals) and Meg Kassulke (20 goals) impressed the home fans, but it ultimately failed to be enough to see the Lakesiders over the line. Riverland netball will hold a two-week bye due to the school holidays, ahead of Pink Round beginning on Friday, July 25, with Renmark to host Barmera, and Berri travelling to face Loxton. Read the upcoming July 23 edition of The Murray Pioneer for a full story on the association’s Pink Round.

Renmark moved six points clear at the top of the A grade men’s competition, with the next round of local action to be held on Sunday, July 27. PHOTOS: Grant Schwartzkopff Barmera proved far too strong for Berri in the open women’s competition last Sunday in Renmark, defeating the River Rangers 14-0.

Potent Pelicans return to winning ways

A RETURN to winning ways was high on the agenda for Barmera United on Sunday afternoon when it met town neighbour Berri in the latest round of Riverland soccer action, held in Renmark.

It was a clinical performance from the Pelicans, moving swiftly past Berri and scoring 10 goals, with midfielder Dimitri Kanakaris leading the way.

Barmera were in strong form particularly in the first half, scoring six goals, with five individual scorers capped off by an own goal.

Kanakaris scored the first two of his three inside the opening 45 minutes, while Cooper Ebert also doubled, as the score ticked over with Tony Mitchell’s 25th-minute finish.

The Pelicans continued the positivity throughout the second half, with James Wallace scoring twice, and Jesse Tsonis also finding the back of the net.

Berri’s only relief of the afternoon came through Peter Katsaitis, who converted from the penalty spot after 78 minutes, in what was a disappointing day for the River Rangers.

Elsewhere, a hard-fought performance from Renmark Olympic against Loxton saw the hosts of the round take the three points.

In a rematch of last season’s top four cup final, Olympic recruit Cole Davy was the difference in the match, scoring after 66 minutes.

Davy’s goal was the only one of the match, seeing Renmark move six points clear at the top of the ladder.

Callum Leckie-Hefford was particularly impressive in the victory for Renmark, working hard throughout the day, while Travis O’Shaughnessy fought valiantly for United.

B grade men’s action saw Barmera take home a forfeit win, in what was a disappointment for the River Rangers.

Open women’s action saw one of the biggest winning differentials of the season, as Barmera recorded a monster 14-nil win over Berri.

Amelia Koumbarakos scored on eight occasions, leading the way for the Pelicans, while Mikayla Rayner’s brace put the result beyond doubt.

Shona Lees was the driving force behind Barmera’s attacking play, while Charli Muller tried in vain in a disappointing result for Berri.

Elsewhere, Renmark remained in the hunt for top spot, recording an important 3-1 victory over a competitive Loxton side.

It was three minutes of mayhem for Renmark, with Nita Eleftheriadis, Maggie Lock, and Chanel Gadaleta scoring in quick succession.

Darci Chapman and Chelsea Docking were particularly impressive in the win, while Ellena Tsakarellos provided United fans with a highlight, scoring after 67 minutes.

Riverlanders compete at Table Tennis Championships

REMARK Table Tennis Association were strongly represented at the South Australian Country Table Tennis Championships over the recent June long weekend. Their experienced players were joined by their new talented juniors, who dominated their respective age groups and divisions, including:

■ Rylan Coppin winning under 18s singles and doubles.

■ Jemima Livingston-Bornholm winning Women’s C singles and doubles, Mixed C doubles, and the under 13 and 15 doubles.

■ Byron Livingston-Bornholm winning mixed C doubles and under 15 doubles.

■ Asher Harris winning men’s C doubles.

■ Joel Stoeckel winning under 13 doubles.

Senior players were awarded the following wins:

■ Steve Watson winning over 50s and over 60s singles.

■ Geoff Haby winning over 70s combined doubles.

■ Scott Bornholm winning mixed D singles and doubles.

The winners, along with Barry Williams, Nigel Stoeckel, Peter Rogers and Nate Dyer, also scored runner up trophies in numerous aged and graded divisions.

Play time was lost on the Saturday due to power difficulties, which led to the team’s section not being completed.

WELCOME TO COUNTRY: Renmark and Loxton took part in a Welcome to Country as part of the Rovers’ inaugural Indigenous Round match. The Welcome to Country was done by Indigenous elder Sheryl Giles.

Riverland Enduro 2025 – know the fruit fly risks

AS thousands of motorsport fans prepare for the ARB Waikerie Hotel Riverland Enduro, from July 11 to 13, Primary Industries and Regions SA (PIRSA) is urging all visitors and local competitors to help protect the region by leaving fresh fruit and fruiting vegetables behind.

Waikerie and surrounding areas remain under fruit fly quarantine restrictions due to ongoing Queensland fruit fly outbreaks, and increased travel into the region raises the risk of the pest spreading further.

"Events like the Riverland Enduro bring great energy to the region, which we are really pleased to see," general manager of the fruit fly response program Jason Size said.

"But more movement means more opportunity for fruit fly to hitch a ride – especially when people unknowingly bring in restricted produce."

Mr Size thanked Riverland residents in affected areas for their continued co-operation, as PIRSA teams carry out baiting, trap checks, fruit removal and property inspections across the region.

"Please do the right thing – whether you're a local competitor, or travelling from interstate in a campervan, trailer or pop-up," Mr Size said.

"Leave your fruit at home, check your vehicle and food supplies, and use the quarantine bins provided at entry points. Keeping the Riverland fruit fly free is a team effort and every action counts, no matter how small."

The event, at New Well Centre Road and Meissner Road, New Well, is in a green area, but is bounded by Swan Reach, Waikerie, Loxton and Renmark red outbreak areas and yellow suspension areas.

If you live in a red outbreak or yellow suspension area, don't bring home-grown produce to the event, even if it's just a short drive. Produce must be treated or processed appropriately.

Bringing home-grown restricted produce into the Riverland is restricted. These must be surrendered at quarantine stations or disposed of before entering the region. For fresh produce, please buy from local retailers.

"It only takes one piece of infested fruit to trigger a new outbreak," Mr Size said. "Following the rules protects growers, local jobs, and our export markets."

Know before you tow:

- ☐ Leave fruit and fruiting vegetables behind.
- ☐ Check your vehicle, camper trailer, esky, and food storage.
- ☐ Use the quarantine bins at regional entry points.
- ☐ Tell your crew and travel mates.

Fruit fly detections – April 6 to June 29:

- ☐ No flies were detected in 22 of the 56 Riverland outbreak areas.
- ☐ Flies were detected in 34 of the 56 Riverland outbreak areas.

Outbreak end dates

- ☐ Riverland: December 23, 2025

Bonney the hero as Roos overcome Panthers

LACHLAN DAND

CELEBRATING a special day for the club in the annual wellbeing match, Barmera-Monash left it late to secure a three-point win over Loxton North, on Saturday, in the RFL's A grade competition.

Barmera-Monash entered the match at the Lakeside Oval desperate for a win to keep its status inside the top two, and make it back-to-back wins following the victory over Loxton the previous week.

Meanwhile, Loxton North were equally as keen for a victory, hoping to lift itself off the bottom, and remain in touch for finals footy.

In a low-scoring start to the game, it was Loxton North that struck first through first-year player James Neale, before the Roos fought back just moments before quarter time through Lachlan Marks.

Just two points separated the sides at the first break, and it was Tyler Wagner who goaled first in the second term, before an important major from Marks had the margin at five points at the long break.

Loxton North controlled much of the possession during a two-goal-to-one third term, with majors from Liam Bastian and Jarrod Buckley coming either side of one from Roo Tony Drogemuller.

Barmera-Monash coach Fraser Sampson said Loxton North were hard at the ball as usual, giving credit to his opposing captain.

"They (Loxton North) are always really strong in the contest, and Codi Voumard controls their back half so well if you let him," he said.

The Panthers found the first of the final term through Bastian's second of the day, and it appeared momentarily that the visitors would snatch victory, with the margin floating out to 16 points.

However, Barmera-Monash found another gear, and goals from Matt Wutke, and Lucas Warnett trimmed the deficit to four points.

Yet, the biggest drama of the match came late on, with veteran defender Justin Bonney drifting forward and snapping truly to steal the lead.

In what was a tense final few moments, the Roos were able to hold on, and Sampson said he was proud of his group, noting that every player had a moment.

"Our leaders really stood up when it mattered on the weekend, Sam Butterworth and Justin Bonney were huge all day, then Matt Wutke had a really big last quarter to drag us over the line," he said.

"I think this sends a really strong message to the rest of the group about what is required when the pressure is on.

"The win on the weekend was really important for us. It obviously helped us to keep pushing for a top two spot, but more importantly it showed that our young group had the resilience and maturity to turn things around in the last quarter."

Sampson himself oozed class across half back throughout the afternoon, and found a lot of the ball, while Bonney, and skipper Sam Butterworth also worked hard.

For Loxton North, Joel Worsfold competed hard across of the afternoon, while Bastian provided a threat in the ruck and up forward.

The result sees Barmera-Monash hold on to second spot, only ahead of Waikerie on percentage, while North remains in last spot.

Following this weekend's competition-wide bye for the SA Country Championships, the Panthers will return home to face Renmark, while Barmera-Monash is back at the Lakeside to face arch-rival Berri.

Both sides will welcome back reinforcements following the bye, and Sampson said the week off has come at a good time for his group.

"We are really looking forward to the mental refresh the bye provides," he said.

"We plan to have quite a few experienced players available in the coming weeks which will cause some selection headaches."

THE MATCH WINNER: Barmera-Monash defender Justin Bonney drifted forward to snap the eventual match winner in the dying stages against Loxton North on Saturday afternoon.

RIVERLAND DARTS

RIVERLAND darts saw an excellent roll up of players for the Audrey Strother Riverland Singles last Thursday night, at the Cobdogla Club.

There was plenty of good quality darts played in the men's section, with James Lindsay scoring a 140, 171, and a maximum 180.

Several other players also scored a 180, with Shane McKinnon hitting one, Calib Martin hitting two, and Darcy Crane leading the way with three, with Crane going undefeated to make the final.

In the second round, Martin faced strong opposition to make the last two.

In a high-quality final in which either player could have taken the title, Crane was able to hold off a determined Martin to win 3-1, and claim his second title.

Allen Hargreaves had the highest peg out of the night with 120, just edging out Lee Rasheed, who pegged 110.

In the ladies' section, Gloria Dyer went undefeated to reach her 15th final.

Gloria came up against an improving Tamara Josephs, in what was as close a final as expected, with Gloria claiming her 10th title.

Magpies defy the odds in thrilling win

LACHLAN DAND

WAIKERIE has produced one of the best wins in its recent RFL A grade history, with a depleted side coming away with the chocolates following a thriller at Berri Oval last weekend.

Suffering several injuries in last week’s loss to Renmark, most notably to ruckman Brad Burgemeister, Waikerie was always going to have a fight on its hands.

Added to that was the fact the Magpies were facing a Berri side desperate for a response to last week’s loss to Loxton North, and to entrench itself inside the top four prior to the bye.

In an accurate first term from both sides, Berri booted four straight goals to three straight, opening up with a six-point quarter time lead.

Darcy Minchella and Rory Moroney goaled either side of Jake Egel’s two, while Waikerie answered the challenge with two goals from Shaun King, as well as Stephen Hausler’s first.

Waikerie dominated possession in the second term but failed to put it on the score-board, however, King kicked his third of the day in response to a goal from Demon Michael Mcrae.

A see-sawing third quarter saw the intensity ramp up further, with Berri striking first through Regan Kruger to see the margin shift to nine points in favour of the hosts.

However, Waikerie answered with two quick goals, firstly through Ryan Turner, followed up by Kade Hilton’s finish, giving the Magpies the lead for the first time.

Berri did manage to get the advantage back in the dying stages of the third term through Geordie Franks, giving his side a six-point advantage with one quarter to play.

An entertaining final term saw four goals for Berri, among several missed opportunities, and five for Waikerie had fans on the edge of their seats throughout the entirety of the quarter.

King’s fourth of the day saw the Pies level the scoring in the early stages, only to be answered by three-straight Berri goals.

Moroney’s second of the day was either side of a pair of Egel goals, taking his tally to four, and the Demons’ lead to 21 points.

However, Waikerie were able to find another gear, and goals from Hilton, and Jake Spencely had the margin as low as two points.

Deep into added time, Spencely was rewarded for a holding-the-ball call, kicking truly for his second, and what would be the eventual winner, shattering the hearts of the home side in the process.

With Burgemeister on the sidelines, Berri ruckman Ondre Hunyadi produced his best game of the season, giving his midfielders first use.

Egel and Moroney proved dangerous inside attacking 50 yet again, while Cohen Robertson also showed he is one for the future.

For the Magpies, King proved the greatest threat on the ground, while Hilton, Spencely and Brad Truscott failed to give in throughout the afternoon’s events.

The result sees Waikerie head to the bye in third spot, three games clear inside the top four, and remaining on the tail of second-placed Barmera-Monash.

Berri is inside the top four with six rounds remaining after this weekend’s competition-wide bye, and will face Barmera-Monash at the Lakeside in round 11.

Waikerie will be back at home that afternoon to face off against a Loxton side desperate for a victory as the race for fourth spot heats up.

Bulldogs storm into second spot

WUNKAR is heading to the Murray Valley Football Netball League’s competition-wide bye in second place on the back of a massive 12-point win over Sedan-Cambrai last Saturday.

Travelling to Cambrai, it was a case of kicking accurately for the Bulldogs, converting 15 of 20 opportunities, with the Magpies converting 12 of 23.

It was a game where Wunkar was forced to come from behind, as the visitors trailed by 13 points at the major break.

However, a barn-storming third term saw the Bulldogs pile on five goals to one, before a tense final quarter saw them over the line.

Tyson Renshaw was the key piece in attack for Wunkar with three goals, while Jake Neumann, Steve Sullivan, and Kyle Worsfold each kicked two.

The ever-consistent Tarquin Schulz also performed well, while youngster Cameron Rankine continues to shine.

Elsewhere, Jake Woodhouse was dominant in attack for the Magpies with four goals, while Nathan Greenshields and Shayne Scanlon worked hard.

BSR continued its strong form, entrenching itself inside the top four and moving two games clear from fifth spot.

While Paringa remained in touch for much of the afternoon, the Redbacks remained a step ahead throughout the day, enabling a 16-point victory.

Jake Cunningham was best afield for the Redbacks, while Jackson Dahlitz also worked well throughout the day.

Matt Gibson kicked five for the home side, while Bryce Denham and Jacob Hodge each slotted two.

For the Swans, Ben Carpenter and Joel Watson were in strong form, while recruits Sam Di Cicco, and Dean Hill both chimed in with three.

Elsewhere, Murrayville made a successful trip to Paruna, dismissing of Brown’s Well by 70 points.

Classy forwards Nathan Bramfit and Sam Magnisalis each kicked four goals, while Brock Milde and Kelly Gohl both worked well together.

Jordi Bibby was the main man in attack for the Bombers, kicking two goals, while Digby McNeil and Blake Edmonds both worked hard.

The MVFNL will now head to a competition-wide bye, with Paringa set for an extended break as the race to the finals continues to heat up.

Clinical Rovers head to the bye on a high

LACHLAN DAND

AS the second competition-wide bye of the 2025 RFL season arrives, Renmark is still flying high on top of the A grade ladder, and beefed up its percentage with a massive win over Loxton on Saturday.

Back to familiar surroundings on home turf, the Rovers celebrated Indigenous Round by putting Loxton to the sword to the tune of 65 points, at Renmark Oval.

The Rovers were unrelenting from the opening minutes, opening up a 27-point quarter time lead after five goals to one to kickstart the afternoon.

In just his second game since round four, star forward Nick Gillard got things started for the hosts with three goals in the opening term, with majors from Declan Johnson and Brody Rover boosting up the margin.

Loxton's only respite of the opening term came through playing coach Nathan Brown, who's right foot snap gave the visiting supporters something to cheer about.

Missed chances for the hosts in the second term were unable to be capitalised on by Loxton, and after goals from Rover and Gillard, things were getting out of hand quickly for the Tigers.

Ryder Montgomery kicked Loxton's second of the day to cut the margin back to 35 points midway through the second quarter, and missed chances saw the home side remain in control at the half.

Ricky Garrett celebrated game 100 in the closing stages of the first half with a goal, seeing the margin move to 40 points at the major break.

In somewhat of a low-scoring third term, Renmark found goals through Declan Johnson and Matt Smith, either side of a pair of Gillard goals, who took his tally for the day to six, with the margin moving to 64 points at the last change.

Loxton found a pair of goals through young bull Kaiden Evans, breaking the goal-scoring drought, and taking the Tigers to four for the day.

Gun midfielder Dan Woolford slotted his first of the match, and returning A grader Nathan Zunic put the cherry on top of the Rovers' big win.

Gillard was sensational in the win, proving unstoppable with six goals, and moving well inside forward 50 throughout the day.

Garrett was superb throughout the day, finding the ball at will, while Adren Herrador added bounce and drive off half back.

Johnson and Rover kicked two each for the home side, both remaining in touch for the leading goalkicker award.

Deegan Rothe provided strong resistance in the defensive half, while Harley Campbell and Evans fought hard in a tough loss. The result sees Renmark collect its ninth win of the season, and move three games clear on top of the RFL A grade ladder, with six games remaining after this weekend's bye.

Loxton still remains outside of the top four in fifth place, however, only trail Berri on percentage ahead of a massive trip to Waikerie after the bye.

MURRAY PIONEER WRITERS' AWARD

After spending a season at Paringa, Adren Herrador has made a seamless return to the Renmark side across half-back.

Renmark's Zach Gartery and Loxton's Carter Wright compete for the ball in the ruck during the Rovers' 65-point win on Saturday.

Berri makes Glassey Park a fortress

THE latest round of Riverland hockey saw Berri record one of the biggest wins of the A grade women’s season, cruising past Waikerie on Friday night.

Berri found the back of the net on four separate occasions, and it was Nicole Mentha leading the way, scoring twice.

Mentha was a key piece of the Berri victory, while both Hayley Crowhurst and Ocea Vallelonga were the other goal scorers.

Opal Prince and Alana Matulick fought hard for the Knights in what was a disappointing evening from the group.

Elsewhere, Loxton proved too good for the Victorian-based Sunraysia, and it was the good form of Carla Reay that continued, scoring a goal to show the difference in the match.

Jordana Shields and Rory Giddings both worked well for Sunraysia, but it was ultimately an unsuccessful Saturday evening for the visitors.

B grade men’s action saw another victory for Loxton, getting the better of Renmark 3-1 in an entertaining battle.

In an even spread of contributors, Lachlan Mackinnon, Simon Bullock, and Jai Mickan all found their names on the scoresheet for the Tigers.

Adam Townsend provided the only relief for Renmark, while Dean Beer tried his best in a tough outing for the Blues.

Forfeits occurred in both the A grade men’s competition, and the B grade women’s competition, with Loxton on the receiving ends of wins in both grades.

Sunraysia forfeited the men’s clash, while Berri handed the Tigers an automatic 5-0 forfeit win in the women’s competition.

The biggest winning margin of the round came through the under 14 mixed competition, where Berri defeated Loxton by a massive seven-goal margin.

Nate Harrington found the back of the net on three occasions for Berri, finishing with a hat-trick, while Sebastian Coote, Lilah Brattoli, Lily Marsden, and Henry Coote were all among the goals.

Riverland hockey will have a competition-wide bye this weekend due to the July school holidays, with action resuming on July 18 and 19.

Turnbull takes out Coach of the Year

A TEACHER from a Riverland school was recently given a special award following signs of success from her student cohort.

Stephanie Turnbull is the rowing program co-ordinator at St Francis of Assisi College (SFAC) in Renmark, and was recently handed the Rowing SA Coach of the Year award.

Since opening its doors in 2022, SFAC has quickly developed a reputation as the premier rowing school in the region, and students have worked on their skills in quick fashion.

However, Ms Turnbull said she was overwhelmed to receive the award, but had a lot of pride simultaneously.

“It was something I didn’t expect to be up for, so it was lovely to be able to win it,” she said.

“Through high school in Adelaide I got talent-tested through SASI, and I got into rowing through that process, and I did it competitively for seven or eight years.

“When I stopped racing and had a bit of a break due to injury, I coached at a college in Adelaide for a season, which was great, and I had a wonderful mentor, but then I stepped away and followed a different career path.

“It was really since I moved to the Riverland just over nine years ago, I reconnected to the sport through the Renmark Rowing Club, and I started doing volunteer coaching, and connecting with other Riverland clubs, and it was just a natural progression from there.

“When St Francis was opening, there was an idea floated about rowing, and I guess you can say the rest is history.”

Students involved in the SFAC rowing program continually work hard to make sure they are achieving their goals, with the values of the school driven hard.

The school’s mission for the rowing program is to provide students with the opportunity to learn the skills required to row, and to develop strong life skills such as commitment, hard work, teamwork, resilience, and respect.

Ms Turnbull said seeing the students rewarded for their hard work is one of the best parts of the job, highlighted by recent successes in the Wharf to Woolshed Long Row, and last December’s Riverland Regatta.

“At the Riverland Regatta, we get a lot of people coming from Adelaide, and there was a lot of positive feedback from the broader community, and the other large colleges about how well the kids are going which was amazing.

“I think what I’ve really enjoyed is seeing the kids who aren’t as sporty become involved, because rowing can really appeal to those kids,” she said.

“We live in a beautiful place, and it’s quite surprising how many of them don’t use the river, so being able to get them out in fresh air, and on our beautiful river, is awesome.

“But for those who have continued and are now competing... seeing their passion and how they grow as people, as well as learning to push themselves and work as a team is an aspect I love.

“For the ones in our senior squad, a few have part-time jobs, so they’re learning time management skills, and even though they might have had a tough day at school, they can get out and clear their mind from a well-being perspective.”

With the school just over three years old, Ms Turnbull started the rowing program from scratch, something she said was a “challenge”.

However, she said she was able to lean on support networks from her time in Adelaide, as well as people at the Renmark Rowing Club when needed.

“I didn’t really know what I was getting myself into, and it was a lot of work, but I’m fortunate to have some great connections and networks in the broader rowing community who I was able to lean on,” she said.

“I think within the first six months I really realised that we were in a fortunate position with very little resources.

“The fact we were brand new allowed us to pave our own way, so I think that’s been really exciting to not be bound to how other colleges do it, because we’re not set up like that.

“(It’s) working with Rowing SA and the Renmark Rowing Club with what’s within our parameters, and stepping back and remembering why we’re doing this.

“The college principal Nathan Hayes has been incredible in supporting it along the way, because they’ve been learning as much as I’ve been learning.

“I think that’s where I’m the proudest of this achievement, because it hasn’t been an easy start since the school opened, so it’s nice knowing they’re on the right path.”

Upgrades to the Renmark Wharf were recently completed, and Ms Turnbull said the support of the Renmark Rowing Club had been ‘immense’ from day one.

“It’s something we wouldn’t be able to do without the support of that club, and I’ve been on the committee for a number of years now, so I already had really strong relationships with the group,” she said.

“We use their facilities and their equipment, so it’s a real joint-venture, and our older members at the club are really enjoying seeing the students come through and fall in love with the sport, so I think it’s been great for the community.

“I’ve got a great core group of students that have trusted the process, and been with me every step of the way, so it’s very much a collective award.”

Taste of Success

THERE'S plenty of cause for celebration in the MasterChef kitchen these days – not only is the series nominated for three Logie Awards, but after 12 weeks of competition, the remaining Back to Win contestants are truly at the top of their game.

"We are at the extremely pointy end of the competition now and it just keeps heating up," says judge Sofia Levin, who's in the running for the Graham Kennedy Award for Most Popular New Talent at this year's ceremony.

"The contestants are the best they've ever been, yet somehow they continue to grow and redefine themselves at an exponential rate.

"We have seriously talented guest chefs coming up, from a sweet mix of new and old – think a challenge with our first-ever winner Julie Goodwin, and our most recent winner, Nat Thaipun – to those who are leaving their stamp on the world stage thanks to the unique way they approach ingredients and dishes, like Vaughan Mabee from Amisfield Restaurant in Aotearoa/New Zealand."

The series' current quartet of judges – Jean-Christophe Novelli, Poh Ling Yeow, Andy Allen and Levin – began filming their first season together in 2023, which just now being recognised by the Logie Awards. Levin couldn't be more excited to see their work nominated for Best Competition Reality Program and to have her friend and colleague Ling Yeow up for the Gold Logie.

"To have our MasterChef Australia fam up for three nominations for our first season together is so heartening!" enthuses Levin.

"I think it speaks to how much people connect with the joy of the competition and its uplifting nature. It's very cool to have both female hosts nominated for awards, and while I'm incredibly flattered to be up for New Talent, I'll be the one in the room screaming the loudest for Poh!"
