Local politician, grower say 'stark' wine industry outlook needs re-structure...

REALITY CHECK?

HUGH SCHUITEMAKER

A SENIOR Riverland politician and well-known grape grower say structural adjustment is needed in the region's wine industry.

Opposition spokesperson for Primary Industries Nicola Centofanti last week moved a motion in the South Australian Legislative Council to recognise the critical importance of the state's wine industry, and calling for a renewed focus on support for exporters and structural reform.

Dr Centofanti said a more diverse approach to export markets, and help for growers to transition to higher-value production or alternative crops, was needed.

"South Australia's wine sector is not only a cultural hallmark but an economic powerhouse, especially in our regions," Dr Centofanti said.

"But the reality is stark – global oversupply, shifting consumption habits, and tariffs have hit our growers hard and they need more than token gestures or symbolic support.

"It's vital that we empower industry leaders - who already have the global relationships and market knowledge – to get on the ground, leverage those connections, and open new doors to sell more South Australian wine."

Cooltong wine grape grower Jack Papageorgiou said the majority of small-scale grape growers would be unable to last until industry conditions improved.

"Those growers are not going to survive for the next three years," Mr Papageorgiou said.

"We need some different models out there, where we can remove those vineyards from the ground."

Pasin says drought response is inadequate

THE Riverland’s Federal MP says a visit to South Australia from Prime Minister Anthony Albanese failed to meet expectations surrounding support for local farmers struggling through drought.

Barker MP Tony Pasin voiced concerns over current and future drought support measures for the state’s farmers, after Mr Albanese last week visited regional SA.

“We know drought doesn’t just appear overnight,” Mr Pasin said.

“It creeps up slowly but when it starts to hit, it hits hard. Unfortunately, the Prime Minister’s visit to SA has come months too late.

“Farmers need immediate relief yesterday, not an out-of-touch Prime Minister who makes a flying visit to SA for public relations purposes.

“The additional funding for Rural Financial Counsellors is very welcome, but does not go far enough to support drought-stricken farmers.

“I’ve been advocating to the Federal Minister to urgently review eligibility for the Farm Household Allowance which had not been reviewed since 2018.”

In a recent visit to South Australia, Mr Albanese said “we’re providing a billion dollars’ worth of support including $539m for the Regional Investment Corporation”.

“We’ve provided $187m for the farm household allowance, that is direct financial support on top of the additional funding that we’ve announced, which brings it $57m for the Rural Financial Counselling Service,” Mr Albanese said.

“We have provided $256m, which has been spent from the Future Drought Fund. We know that there will be more needed, we know that that’s the case. But one of the reasons why we’re here is consulting, seeing firsthand as well, and we’ll continue to engage.”

Mr Pasin said that asset and off farm-income thresholds have not kept up with wage growth, inflation and land and equipment values, meaning “what was originally designed to be a safety net is now seeing far too many people falling through the cracks”.

“Primary producers need access to capital to get through this drought,” Mr Pasin said.

They need to get feed in the paddocks, food on the table and water in the dams and troughs.”

Mr Pasin said the Coalition established the Rural Investment Corporation (RIC) in 2018 to provide farm businesses with low interest loans to support the agriculture industry, particularly through drought.

“Currently approximately $330m of South Australian farm debt was structured through the RIC, which represented around 30 per cent of all RIC loans nationally,” he said.

“While I’m pleased this former Coalition Government initiative is assisting primary producers in South Australia, there are still so many farming families out there in dire need of help who are struggling to get through the red tape of eligibility and lengthy assessment times,” he said.

“In other jurisdictions, State Government’s offered short-term, low interest loans to farming businesses in drought.”

“Low interest loans offered through the South Australian Government and council rate relief for primary producers would be welcome initiatives that should form part of a State Government relief package. Instead, the South Australian Government are increasing the Emergency Services Levy that will add to the financial pain for around 90 per cent of South Australian farmers.

“Our struggling farmers have every right to be angry at the lack of action from both State and Federal Labor.

“I’m pleased to see the Premier Peter Malinauskas and Prime Minister visit drought-affected areas of the state but they need to back it up with action on policy and support programs.”

Minister for Agriculture, Fisheries and Forestry Julie Collins said “we have just resigned a new National Drought Agreement out to 2029 with the states and territories”.

“The states obviously have already announced packages like here in South Australia, $73m,” Ms Collins said.

“They’re talking about the type of support that we’re announcing today for the Rural Financial Counselling support, but importantly, they’ve made a whole range of suggestions to us about things that they might be able to use in terms of concessional loans, in terms of the Farm Household Allowance.”

Crackdown on repeat offenders drives down shop theft

TARGETED strategies aimed at recidivist offenders have revealed a significant drop in shop theft offences across the state, including the Riverland, according to the latest crime statistics released.

The March rolling year crime statistics reveal shop theft has declined for the fifth successive period, recording an eight per cent reduction or less 1511 offences.

The reduction follows the previous eight per cent reduction in the February period, a five per cent decline in January, three per cent in December and two per cent in November.

Acting assistant commissioner John de Candia said the reduction in offending corresponded with the continuing efforts of officers involved in Operation Measure across all policing districts.

“We continue targeting the hardcore, recidivist offenders we know are committing large numbers of shoplifting offences and that is having an impact,” Mr de Candia said.

“Some of these offenders are committing literally dozens of offences, often endangering innocent members of the community.”

While Operation Measure teams continue to target individual offenders, operations are also held at specific locations that record high levels of offending.

Car theft and theft from a vehicle have again recorded decreases in the March period, dropping nine per cent, from 3814 to 3474 offences.

Theft from a motor vehicle declined by 23 per cent – from 10,082 to 7796 offences

Robbery and related offences also continued to decrease in the March period, with a 13 per cent decline reported, including a reduction of 16 per cent in aggravated robbery and a six per cent reduction in non-aggravated robbery.

The number of homicides committed has continued to decrease with a 52 per cent decline recorded in the March period – from 23 to 11 offences.

While a majority of offence categories showed decreases in the March period, increases were recorded in offences including serious assaults not resulting in injury, common assault, aggravated sexual assault, property damage and graffiti.

Riverland weekend traffic offences

TWO Riverland drivers were reported over the weekend, after being caught driving while disqualified.

On Friday May 30, Barmera police stopped a 54-year-old man, from Kingston-on-Murray, while driving on the Sturt Highway, at Kingston-on-Murray.

Police checks revealed he was driving while disqualified. He was reported and will be summonsed to appear in the Berri Magistrates Court at a later date.

On Sunday June 1, Loxton police reported a 39-year-old, from Loxton, for driving while disqualified.

It will be alleged he was driving on Coral Street, at Loxton, with a disqualified licence. His vehicle was impounded for 28 days, and he will be summonsed to appear in the Berri Magistrates Court at a later date.

A SENIOR Riverland politician and well-known grape grower say structural adjustment is needed in the region’s wine industry

Opposition spokesperson for Primary Industries Nicola Centofanti last week moved a motion in the South Australian Legislative Council to recognise the critical importance of the state’s wine industry, and calling for a renewed focus on support for exporters and structural reform.

Dr Centofanti said a more diverse approach to export markets, and help for growers to transition to higher-value production or alternative crops, was needed.

“South Australia’s wine sector is not only a cultural hallmark but an economic powerhouse, especially in our regions,” Dr Centofanti said.

“But the reality is stark – global oversupply, shifting consumption habits, and tariffs have hit our growers hard and they need more than token gestures or symbolic support.

“It’s vital that we empower industry leaders - who already have the global relationships and market knowledge – to get on the ground, leverage those connections, and open new doors to sell more South Australian wine.”

Cooltong wine grape grower Jack Papageorgiou said the majority of small-scale grape growers would be unable to last until industry conditions improved.

“Those growers are not going to survive for the next three years,” Mr Papageorgiou said.

“We need some different models out there, where we can remove those vineyards from the ground.

“We’re growing grapes and it’s costing us money out of our own pockets. We could be growing annual crops and getting a return.

“We must have a viable wine industry. South Australia has lost a lot of its industries, but our wine industry is recognised worldwide.”

Dr Centofanti said “strong, collaborative leadership” was needed in rebuilding the South Australian wine sector.

“Our wine regions, from the Riverland to Coonawarra, are vital to South Australia’s economy, identity and regional wellbeing,” she said.

“This isn’t just about trade or marketing. It’s about livelihoods, mental health, and the long-term viability of regional communities.

“That deserves more than spin, it deserves action.”

THE biggest sheep dog trial crowds yet gathered in Barmera last weekend for a much-loved June long weekend tradition.

A record entry of participants and spectators took part in Barmera’s annual SA Sheep Dog Trails last weekend, with the five-day event culminating with highlights such as the iconic running of the sheep and open class competition, before all action concluded on Sunday afternoon.

Raising more than $1000 for the Royal Flying Doctor Service, SA Sheepdog Trials organiser Bob Clark said crowd numbers that attended the Saturday morning running of more than 500 sheep “was the best (he) had ever seen”.

“There were just people everywhere,” he said.

“People just love (the event)

and it seems like every year it’s getting bigger.

“I think it’s starting to be when Barmera is mentioned, they think of the sheep, which is just great and helps so much with tourism.”

Though hosting a record-breaking 26 competitors, spanning from Loxton, across South Australia, and interstate Victoria and Tasmania, only four were able to claim gold, with the category winners including:

- Novice: Rex Hocking.
- Improver: Marion Whalon.
- Trans Tasman: Milton Cross.
- Open: Tom Joyce

Mr Clark said sheepdogs and trainers alike “had a lovely time at the trials” despite the cold and damp weather.

“We just keep hearing from them that it is one of the best trials in Australia,” he said.

“While we did have to cancel the skydivers planned for

Saturday morning (after the running of the sheep), the trials soldiered through the rain.

“Milton Cross, who won the Trans Tasman event, actually won his event (during the down-pour).”

Taking out the gold for this year’s open, Mullaquana Station competitor Tom Joyce has been attending the Barmera trials for the last four years.

“We really enjoyed this trial,” Mr Joyce told The Murray Pioneer last weekend.

“We have had a fair bit of success here over the last few years — winning the Trans Tasman and open three out of the past four— so it’s one of the favourites on the calendar.

“It’s just a beautiful spot to be, and Bob (Clark) just does a fantastic job at organising the event — it’s one of the best trials in the country.”

Having eight dogs running in the 2025 competition, Mr Joyce said the trials were a way to “make working dogs even better.”

“All my dogs are work dogs, and this is just somewhere we bring them for a bit of fun on the weekend,” he said.

“However, it’s one thing to have a really good dog at home, and another to put it on three sheep in a timed trial, and to be pointed on it — the trials really make you specialise (in the task).

“It can be a lot of work, but it’s super rewarding to see the young dogs get up and do well.”

Mr Joyce said he hoped spectators get to see “the best side of the (farming) industry, through (the) dogs and livestock which (they) love”.

“We want to show people that we love our animals, we love our land, and we love what we do,” he said.

SA Sheepdog Trials organiser Bob Clark said the crowd numbers that showed the Saturday morning running of more than 500 sheep “was the best (he) had ever seen”.

Riverland ignored in budget, say Lib duo

CLAIMS of a lack of support for grape growers and drought-hit farmers make the regions – especially the Riverland – the biggest losers from last week’s 2025/26 State Budget, two local Liberal MPs say.

Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone and the Liberals’ upper house leader, Nicole Centofanti MLC, both criticised the budget, accusing the Malinauskas Labor Government of ignoring the Riverland and Mallee.

“The budget fails to deliver for our region including healthcare, freight and road safety, agricultural resilience, and cost-of-living pressures,” Mr Whetstone said.

“Subsidies for public transport might help city commuters, but they mean nothing to families in the Riverland or Mallee who rely on cars to get to work, school, and medical appointments.”

Mr Whetstone said despite “some positives”, the budget failed to address the urgent needs of regional communities.

“While I welcome continued funding to fight fruit fly and support for the Murray River, the wider needs of our region have been completely ignored,” he said.

“At a time when soaring electricity prices are crushing households, the Government is raking in more tax revenue instead of providing relief.

“Healthcare is one of the biggest concerns for people in the Riverland and Mallee and while the Government talks up a $1.9 billion investment in the health system, there’s no specific funding to bolster much-needed mental health services or ease pressure on our local hospitals.”

Mr Whetstone was also disappointed that the Budget ignored a “a long-standing priority for the region, which is the duplication of the Sturt Highway”, despite his ongoing advocacy.

“The Sturt Highway is a lifeline for our freight operators, growers and families however, Labor continues to turn a blind eye to the need for safer, more efficient transport infrastructure,” he said.

“The lack of investment is not only disappointing but also unsafe.”

Dr Centofanti said despite drought conditions across vast parts of the state, the budget contained neither funding nor low-interest concessional loans, and offered just $2 million for rural business support grants, equating to just over 1000 grants of $1500 each.

“The funding is not even enough to support 15 per cent of the 9000 agribusinesses across the state, most of whom are in severe financial stress,” Dr Centofanti said.

“It’s a drop in the ocean, and it shows just how out of touch this Government is with the reality on the ground.”

Mr Whetstone also criticised the drought response.

“Farmers across our region have been clear about what they need: low-interest loans, seed banks, rate relief, equity in the Emergency Services Levy increase and boots-on-the-ground support,” he said.

“Instead, this package takes a one-size-fits-all approach that doesn’t reflect what our farmers are facing on the ground.”

Dr Centofanti said the Opposition had introduced its Drought Response and Recovery Bill 2025 to establish a dedicated state drought fund to deliver assistance like freight subsidies, concessional loans, and mental health services, and ensure “every dollar goes to the frontline, not bureaucracy”.

A RIVERLAND student has been awarded during this year’s National Reconciliation Week for receiving one of the highest Australian Tertiary Admission Ranks (ATAR) in the state.

Scoring 86.75 — one of the highest ATARs received among South Australia’s Aboriginal students — Berri Regional Secondary College alumni Nicholas Harris was awarded with a Chief Executive’s Reconciliation Award last month.

“Part of the award also included a prize of $1000, so I didn’t believe it at first — it was just such a surprise,” Nicholas said.

“When we got to Adelaide (for the ceremony), the nerves did start to kick in, and I think it was then I started to realise it was a big deal.”

The award coincides with National Reconciliation Week, with this year’s theme of ‘Bridging Now to Next’ calling on Australians to step forward together, to look ahead, and continue to push forward.

Spanning from May to early June, the dates of National Reconciliation Week commemorate significant milestones for First Nations peoples, including:

- ❑ National Sorry Day, May 26: Remembering and acknowledging the Stolen Generations.
- ❑ 1967 Referendum anniversary, May 27: When Australia voted for a change in the Constitution, allowing Indigenous people to be included in the census.
- ❑ Mabo Day, June 3: Anniversary of the 1992 decision to overturn Terra Nullius, led by the work and activism of Eddie Koiki Mabo.

Department for Education chief executive

Martin Westwell said the awards complement the department’s Aboriginal Education Strategy, which aims to increase outcomes for Aboriginal students by supporting them to be “proud and confident learners”.

“We are committed to helping young Aboriginal people to feel supported in their educational pursuits and prepared to take on the world when they leave school,” he said.

“The awards acknowledge these students for their excellent academic achievements and the strong commitment they have made to their education.

“They have gained knowledge, skills and confidence to help them make positive choices about their future, with encouragement from their teachers and support from their family and friends.”

With a year 12 course load, that included chemistry, scientific studies, English, and essential math, Nicholas said the key to his academic success “was having a good balance” and “not hanging onto the past”.

“I really enjoyed year 12,” Nicholas said.

“There were moments when it could be stressful, and I did try really hard, but overall it felt pretty cruisy — I had good friendship groups and great teachers, so it was actually really fun coming to class.

“I also just tried to move past when I received a grade I wasn’t happy with — I worked on getting over the mistake I made and strived for better next time.

“I miss school a lot now actually, it was a really good time.”

Berri Regional Secondary College principal Clinton Ridgeway said “Nicholas had always been a driven and thoughtful student”.

“His ability to stay focused on his goals while also giving back to those around him

Berri Regional Secondary College alumni Nicholas Harris was awarded a Chief Executive’s Reconciliation Award for academic achievement last month by Governor General Frances Adamson and Department for Education chief executive Martin Westwell. PHOTO: supplied is what really sets him apart,” he said.

“We’re incredibly proud of Nicholas’ achievements, and know he’ll continue to make a meaningful impact in whatever path he takes.”

Encouraged by his recent achievement and award, which “made (him) want to reach (his) full potential”, Nicholas said he was looking forward to completing a secondary teaching degree, with a focus in science,

“Originally, I wanted to be a math teacher, but I realised (through my studies) that I like the ideas behind science more — it’s all about understanding how things work,” he said.

“The award has also made me want to do even better.

“It just makes me want to put my head down and start learning again.”

THE YEARS GO BY

BY PETER AND CARLA MAGAREY

A budget breakdown

DELIVERING government budgets, whether on the local, state or federal level, often seems like a thankless task, and one that illustrates the near impossibility of being able to please everyone at once.

Stephen Mulligan received his fourth reminder of this last week in his deliverance of the 2025-26 State Budget.

As it was at the Federal Election last month, the issue front and centre of everyone’s minds at the moment remains the current cost-of-living difficulties.

In examining the announced budget through the effectiveness of tackling this issue, there appears to be a few demographics of the community that will feel the measures announced last week are somewhat lacking.

Further support to help the costs of purchasing school materials will no doubt still be welcomed by some parents, however, this measure only applies to 120,000 children in government schools.

It is a similar situation with the announcement of a reduction in the cost of a metroCARD student pass.

Are students really the group that need to be targeted the most with cost-of-living relief?

The benefits of these measures are only maximised by families that have multiple school-aged children that are also catching public transport, so how many families will see meaningful financial support in the next 12 months?

What about pensioners living by themselves? What about the local families with one toddler who are currently still struggling financially?

However, we must also dissect this State Budget through the lens of what it means for regional communities such as the Riverland.

Crucially – and as covered in today’s edition of the Pioneer – funding to ensure the Truro bypass is constructed remains unclear.

Outside of those living in Whyalla, it seems reasonable to argue that the needs of regional communities have been overlooked in this budget.

It is interesting that this go at the State Budget has been labelled by many media outlets as being focused largely on law and order.

There are many throughout the Riverland that would argue a strong enough police presence is lacking in regional areas. There is also the risk that increasing financial pressure due to the cost of living will push more who are currently on the edge of instability towards a path of crime.

Isn’t the better potential solution to provide adequate investment beforehand into community support services?

Whether it’s attempting to balance the needs of regional and metropolitan areas, or trying to steer the state economically through major difficulties, it seems that questions will be asked regarding the priorities behind this budget.

Loxton North fruit grower Wally Miller: Another Riverland centenarian. Born in Brisbane, he moved with his family to SA and grew up in Prospect. He attended Adelaide High School, was a banker at Glenelg, and began part-time studies in Commerce at University. Riding his bike daily from Prospect to Glenelg, he ‘clocked up’ over 10,000 miles each year. With the outbreak of WWII, he joined the AIF Survey Corp in August 1943 and was posted to northern WA, then to Queensland’s Atherton Tablelands, and to the Allied-held Morotai Island strategic air-base in Indonesia. Post-war, the Australian Government wanted surveys undertaken around Bourke, but to avoid this, he transferred to the Pay Corp. Later he was posted to Loveday Internment Camp before the Italian POW’s were repatriated. On discharge from the Army, he returned to banking, at Kadina, but, being unsettled, he later moved to an orchard at Mypolonga. Hearing of the Loxton Returned Soldier Settlement Irrigation Scheme, he undertook two-years training at Ramco. While there, he met Pat, a Waikerie school teacher. They married in 1950. They had three children: Anne, Judy and Peter. In 1953, they moved to Loxton with other trainees including Tony Auld, John Stratford, Ron George, Colin Traeger and Keith Satterly. Wally turned 100 on June 4, 2025.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Never-ending Wilson Sreet saga

I REFER to the agenda for the Berri Barmera Council (BBC) meeting on May 27, Item 13.1.1: “Management Reports – Chief Executive Officer”.

CEO Tim Pfeiffer provided the following as part of his report titled “Update on 19 Wilson Street”:

“The administration can advise that follow up survey levels were undertaken in March and we are currently waiting for a plumbing pressure test assessment to be undertaken for stormwater and sewage services.

“The administration to provide scope to engineer to undertake an internal structural assessment to review loading for the second floor, staircases, disabled access, cracks, soil movement, windows, internal cracks, regular flooding areas, structural integrity of internal walls/columns in order for council to gain an understanding of what options can be put forward to progress this project.”

What an absolute joke and insult to all ratepayers.

In a council release (post) dated January 11, 2023, BBC advised that “we are moving” and that this was due to:

“Independent structural and environmental health assessments...

“Council has determined the building must be immediately vacated to allow for extensive structural investigation and remediation.”

So, what has council done, or achieved in the past two and a half years to resolve/remedy the problem at the vacated council offices at 19 Wilson Street, Berri?

I believe absolutely nothing.

The update provided by Mr Pfeiffer, as detailed above, merely details exactly the same issues used to flee the building in January 2023, some two and a half years ago.

The only thing council has done is spend heaps of ratepayer dollars on various assessments of the building.

How many has it been? Half a dozen or so?

What the hell are they assessing?

What is the action taken by council as a result of these many assessments?

Just imagine if this was you in a similar situation with your own home. No, you can’t, because you would actually do something and fix it, well and truly within the first six to 12 months.

The council held a confidential special meeting on December 21, 2022 and approved leasing the “temporary” premises it currently occupies at 5 Riverview Drive in Berri.

The approval was for entering a “3 year lease with an option of an additional two 5 year terms”.

As I have advised in previous letters, the cost of the rent for this lease is $235,000 per year. I believe it is most probable that this amount may increase when the lease is re-negotiated at the end of this year, when the initial three-year term will be up.

So, nothing has been done at 19 Wilson Street since the site was vacated in January 2023, and there’s a current three-year lease at “temporary” premises due for renewal at end of year, within six months.

All council will do is extend the lease for the Riverview Drive premises and everyone at council will be happy. Let’s not worry about the ratepayers.

Is council considering refurbishing these ‘temporary’ premises?

If so, this would take precedence over remedial action at 19 Wilson Street as I believe council has never had any intention of moving back to these premises.

From the outside looking in, I find this never-ending saga with council and its vacated offices to be logic-defying and beyond comprehension.

I consider it an irresponsible waste of ratepayer money.

Words from the great Jack Oatey

AN article on the football history of Jack Oatey that appeared in the YP Country Times on May 13, 2025 was very interesting.

As a result, one could not help adding, and commenting, on the commendation that this iconic footballer and SANFL coach gave me after the last West Torrens team (they merged with Woodville in 1991) won the 1990 reserves preliminary final against Glenelg, coming from 11 goals behind five minutes into the third quarter.

As I left the coach’s box to address the players after the game, Jack Oatey (with John Halbert, former Sturt captain, premiership and state representative player) asked if he could have a moment with me.

Having an iconic football person such as Jack Oatey wanting to talk to you was more than I could imagine, even after a tremendous victory.

I was too starstruck not to give my time to him, even though I knew the West Torrens players and all those associated with the club were eagerly waiting for me to address them in the changerooms.

Jack said to me:

“Des, I assume you are aware of my SANFL playing and coaching history and I would like to say to you, in all of my football history both as a player and coach, I have never witnessed such a determined team working together against all football odds in the second half of a cutthroat final, in what I considered an unwinnable game, win it. Well done, Des”.

Then he shook my hand.

I passed the message onto the victorious West Torrens players; it made them feel good and they thoroughly deserved it as they had to play the game – all I did was steer them.

They had won the last-ever premiership for the West Torrens Football Club.

Wage decision a business blow

THE South Australian Business Chamber has expressed concern over the recent Fair Work Commission decision to increase National Minimum Wages and Modern Awards by 3.5 per cent.

The increase to the award is yet another cost impost on business that is well above the inflation rate.

Like costs relating to gas, electricity, insurance, rent and most inputs that have grown exponentially in recent years, it will further erode business profitability.

It remains challenging to pass on these cost increases while the economy is still suppressed.

While the Chamber supports reasonable and sustainable pay increases, a hike higher than inflation poses further challenges to Australia’s economic recovery efforts, at a time when profits are contracting and business investment is falling.

Australia’s flagging productivity has been well documented, with average annual growth barely registering.

We acknowledge that the Fair Work Commission had noted this stagnant growth, but we are also concerned that today’s decision is based on future productivity improvements that are yet to be realised.

An Australian Chamber of Commerce and Industry submission, supported by the South Australian Business Chamber, recommended a fair and responsible increase of 2.5 per cent. This recommendation considered the economic environment, the needs of workers, cost-of-living pressures, as well as the high costs of doing business.

The decision means that minimum wages in Australia will increase to $24.95 per hour, or $948.00 per week, effective from the first full pay period on or after 1 July 2025, representing a 3.5 per cent increase.

This decision applies to all private sector businesses, such as national system employers.

Decade of Australian Mental Health Prize

THIS year marks the 10th anniversary of the Australian Mental Health Prize — a decade of recognising important Australians changing lives through their work in mental health.

From researchers and clinicians to lived experience leaders and local community advocates, past recipients have helped shape policy, challenge stigma, and deliver better mental health support across Australia.

Yet significant challenges still remain.

Mental ill-health continues to affect one-in-five Australians each year, with young people, Indigenous communities, and LGBTIQ+ individuals among the most impacted.

Proven, community-led approaches and prevention still struggles for funding and recognition.

The Australian Mental Health Prize honours those creating real change — often quietly, and with great impact.

Nominations are now open across four categories: Lived Experience, Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander, Professional, and Community Hero.

I encourage you to nominate someone in your community making a difference.

Visit the website (www.australianmentalhealthprize.org.au). Nominations close July 23 2025.

AUSSIES' poor oral health is keeping hospital emergency wards buzzing, with the latest government data suggesting dental conditions are contributing to 24 per cent of acute potentially preventable hospitalisations, the second most common cause behind urinary tract infections, at 25 per cent.

This comes amid research from Bupa which suggests just 52 per cent of adults had regular health checks such as dental check-ups, which play a big role in addressing small problems before they spiral into a situation requiring hospitalisation. Potentially preventable hospitalisations are conditions where the hospitalisation may have been prevented through preventative care at home or treatment in settings like GPs and dentists.

Skipping or avoiding visits to the dentist increases the risk of small issues spiralling into major oral and general health conditions.

A visit to the dentist involves a whole lot more than a simple clean and cavity check, we also look for signs of oral cancer, oral infections and a range of other conditions that can have a significant impact on your general health if not addressed early.

Many Aussies are also rushing to the emergency ward as a first resort for dental issues rather than consulting their dentist, many of whom can provide emergency treatment on short notice or provide relevant referrals or advice.

Data from the Australian Dental Association suggests seniors, who are most vulnerable to health issues, make fewer trips to the dentist than the rest of the population, with cost the most common barrier.

In recent times, we have worked hard to address cost of living concerns, with eligible Bupa Health Insurance customers getting 100 per cent back on check-ups and simple dental fillings when visiting Bupa Members First Ultimate practices.

As we move into the second half of the year, it's definitely time to take stock of your health and book in that dental check-up if you haven't already. A visit to the dentist today could save you a painful visit to the hospital later on.

Bupa is also a provider for the government's Child Dental Benefits Schedule (CDBS), a government-funded program that provides up to $1132 for basic dental services for eligible children aged 2 to 17 over two calendar years, to access basic dental services such as examinations, x-rays, cleaning, fillings and extractions.

Common sense in renewables

THE continuing rise in heat levels across planet Earth is a matter of great concern for the human race.

Rises in heat levels across the world over the last decade have been the hottest ever recorded. Present indications point to world heat levels continuing to rise at even faster rates every year.

Climate scientists are warning that within possibly two decades large movements of people living in very warm countries will be forced to start moving to cooler countries, in large numbers, because of the heat. This will almost certainly cause huge disruption to millions of people around the world.

It is the burning of fossil fuels - coal, gas and oil - to create energy, that is the prime cause of planet Earth warming as it is.

However, the ever-improving problem solver is called renewables. Australia possibly has climatic conditions that are near perfect to create energy through using the sun, wind, sea, hydro and other natural means that do not cause global warming by releasing massive volumes of greenhouse gas emissions into the atmosphere, as does burning fossil fuels. Plain common sense indicates that renewables must be given every chance to be the number one provider to a world that requires huge amounts of energy to function.

Caring for community

A LOCAL disability service provider is set to host a new event to help support its clients build potential employment connections.

Berri-based Mobo Group will next Wednesday host its I.C.A.R.E event, providing local clients with disability an afternoon of “valuable connections, insightful conversations and new opportunities”.

Employment services officer Renae Agius said supporting the local clients was a personally rewarding experience.

“I get to work in an environment that reflects the values of inclusion, collaboration, accountability, respect and empowerment,” Ms Agius said.

“I love being able to support jobseekers in a way that meets them where they’re at, helping them build confidence and feel genuinely seen.

“As a proud Riverland local, I care deeply about the impact we can have in our community and for me, it’s not just about helping people get a job, it’s about helping people with disabilities believe in themselves and feel proud of what they can achieve.

“We’re working on fresh ways to connect with local employers and services such as in our upcoming event, with the aim to create more meaningful opportunities for our jobseekers.”

Fellow employment services officer Tyson Linsday said “I’ve further developed

“This occupation allows me to have insight and further understanding in respect to the disability and NDIS community, allowing me to develop necessary capabilities and consideration when making everyday choices as an individual,” Mr Lindsay said.

The I.C.A.R.E event will run from 11am to 3pm, at the Berri Senior Citizens Club, on Crawford Terrace.

LANGUAGE SUPERSTAR: Year 10 student Triny placed first for Renmark High School in the Education Perfect International Language Competition. PHOTO: Madison Eastmond

Renmark student a language superstar

MADISON EASTMOND

A RIVERLAND student has been awarded for a first-place ranking in a global language competition.

Competing in French, Chinese, Vietnamese, Japanese, Greek, Italian, and Spanish, year 10 student Triny placed first for Renmark High School in the Education Perfect International Language Competition last week, and received ‘Elite Status’, awarded to only 195 students globally.

“At first I joined the competition for a bit of fun,” Triny said.

“But after a while, I thought I might be able to achieve ‘Elite Status’, so that’s what I set my goal to.

“My language teacher, (Jasmine) Sotiroulis, was so proud of me, which made me not want to give up.”

With Renmark High now in a top-five position, out of 68 schools in the state, thanks to Triny’s hard work, the Education Perfect Championships are a free event that takes place on the online resource platform, where students compete with each other, while also boosting their own learning journey.

Actively learning English,

Chinese, and French, while also learning vocab from the others “for a bit of fun”, Triny said she had always been interested in different languages, and had a passion to study them.

“I loved learning languages since I was little,” she said.

“Vietnamese is my mother tongue, but when I was in year 1, I started learning English.

“Since coming to Australia (to study) — using English, and beginning to study Chinese and French — I have (grown to love) learning a language even more because it allows me to communicate with others and meet new people.

“I just want to keep learning more and more languages, so I can speak to more people.”

Though believing every language is beautiful in their own way, Triny said her favourite was English “because it was the most common language in the world”.

“I get to use it every day, which is great,” she said.

“However, I love the way Chinese and French sound — French is very romantic and beautiful.”

Mrs Sotiroulis said that

Triny joined her French class at the beginning of the year, and was “amazed by the remarkable progress she made in such a short period of time”.

“While we all have the potential to become multilingual, there is no doubt that children exposed to more than one language from an early age tend to develop this ability more rapidly — Triny is a clear example of this,” she said.

“Renmark High School is extremely proud of Triny’s recognition for her achievements in languages and celebrates her dedication, talent, and enthusiasm for learning.”

Planning on focusing on only English and French for the next two years of her senior education, Triny said she hoped one day she could become a language teacher just like Renmark High’s Ms Sotiroulis.

“I want to also be able to teach young students’ languages, because I want to share them with anyone I can,” she said.

“Renmark High School has given me a lot of opportunity to dive into new things, subjects, and languages — I got what I dreamed of.”

Berri centre (officially) open to community

MADISON EASTMOND

RIVERLAND agency ac.care celebrated lauching the Berri Community Centre last Wednesday, officially marking the site’s status as a community centre and a place locals can connect with others, learn new skills, and seek support.

Located on 5 Keally Street and previously known as the Riverland Service Hub, the Berri Community Centre came into fruition after long-term Department of Human Services (DHS) funding that has supported activities at ac.care’s Riverland service, provided additional resources to combat social isolation, promote a sense of belonging, and foster inclusive, equitable and resilient local communities.

Also the remaining home to all of ac.care’s Riverland services, including foster care, homelessness, emergency relief, financial counselling, family and youth support, Aboriginal services, and more, ac.care CEO

Shane Maddocks said the refreshed community space will continue work “to interrupt the cycle of disadvantage and strengthen the fabric of (the Riverland community)”.

“We know that some people face particular challenges, but if they get the right support at the right time, they can get back on track and thrive,” he said.

“Many of our staff have that experience, and they bring incredible knowledge and wisdom to their work every day.”

Believing the centre is capable of significant community change, ac.care community services executive manager Kirsty Barnett said the local Riverland team wanted the space to “demonstrate what is possible when care is put into action somewhere”.

“Many, many people feel invisible or isolated, (and) loneliness is a huge problem because it affects mental and physical health with sometimes very serious consequences,” she said.

“Beyond the obvious individual health impacts, loneliness can impact our sense of purpose and self-worth in a world which emphasises independence and encourages virtual interaction.

“(While) many people lack deep, consistent connections, it’s not a personal issue, (but) a public issue affecting communities.

“That’s why spaces like this matter so much — a community centre isn’t just a place, it’s a symbol.

“(They are places) where people can come to access resources, information, or to join in on events, (and also to find connection, support, and a sense of belonging.

“We generally invest in people where we encourage friendships to form, for stories to be shared, for help to be offered and received, and for people to be truly valued.

“There are many people to thank for the making this all happen, (which include) the DHS for their funding, our community connections partners who work and collaborate really strongly around the centre, and of course, our amazing volunteers and staff.”

For more information and updates, follow the Berri Community Centre noticeboard – ac.care on Facebook.

Funding for Renmark West

MADISON EASTMOND

A RIVERLAND school has received funding as part of the 2025-26 State Budget’s $40m investment into the South Australian public sector.

Renmark West Primary School is set to use the funding for infrastructure upgrades to the school’s toilet facilities.

“Renmark West Primary School is grateful to be receiving this funding to help us upgrade our toilet facilities,” Renmark West principal Travis Keane said.

“This is a welcome boost for our school community and will make a big difference in modernising our ageing toilet block.

“These upgrades are an important step we’re taking to make sure the students have access to high-quality facilities.”

With the average building age in schools being 44 years, the funding is part of the State Government’s 20-year infrastructure plan, with budget commitment seeing an extra $10m per year for the next four years allocated to fast-track priority projects.

“There is no more important investment we can make than in the education of our young people, it transforms lives,” Premier Peter Malinauskas said.

“We are a state that is growing, with enormous opportunity for economic prosperity ahead of us. But to maximise this opportunity we need our growing population of families building their homes in communities with high-quality schools.

“That’s exactly what this investment in a new school and preschool, along with school upgrades around the state, will deliver.

“The state is undertaking unprecedented growth and we need to ensure we are ready, with schools in new developments, ready to go as families with young children move in — not 10 or 20 years later.”

Treasurer Stephen Mullighan said “ensuring students have access to a great education, no matter where they live, has been an important part of every budget of this government”.

“From building new schools, to ensure we have appropriate services available to families, to capital infrastructure — we are doing the hard work now, so that we are prepared for the future growth of the state,” he said.”

Minister for Education, Training and Skills Blair Boyer said the budget continues the State Government’s “record of prioritising education in our state – from the early years, all the way through school, training and university”.

“It’s the best way we can ensure economic growth for our state,” he said.

“Our government has a strong commitment to public education and ensuring our children and young people have access to a high-quality education in their local area.

“Every investment we are making is aimed at making sure families can attend their local school, knowing we are making every school a great school in South Australia.”

Local MP celebrates new regional Starlink service

SEBASTIAN CALDERON

A MAJOR telecommunications company has partnered with an internet satellite provider to deliver improved remote mobile connectivity for regional areas such as the Riverland.

Telstra, in partnership with Starlink, has enabled free satellite-to-mobile messaging, marking a step forward for regional communications.

Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone said “the announcement of Telstra’s satellite-to-mobile messaging service is a big win for regional South Australians”.

“This is a game-changer for people living and working across the Riverland, Mallee and other remote parts of our state who have long struggled with mobile coverage,” Mr Whetstone said.

“I’ve been calling for solutions to regional communications for years, because I hear firsthand from local farmers, emergency services and small businesses just how critical connectivity is to their safety, productivity and quality of life.

Mr Whetstone said the satellite connectivity through services like Telstra’s partnership with Starlink was exactly the kind of innovation I have been advocating for regional areas.

“This is about staying in touch during emergencies, running a business from the farm, or accessing telehealth services, and it will make a real difference,” he said.

“I will continue to work closely with providers and governments to ensure that broader access capabilities are delivered, and that the needs of the Chaffey communities remain a priority.

“This is a positive step forward, but it must be the first of more to come.

Opposition spokesperson for regional communications Anne Webster said Telstra’s team-up with Starlink was a “fabulous step forward’ for people in the bush”.

“This is the biggest breakthrough we’ve had in regional communications for some time and I’ve been talking about working through satellite as being the only real solution for a long time,” Dr Webster said.

According to both companies, the satellite text message service is only available at the moment on Samsung Galaxy S25 mobile phones, however Apple devices and complete voice capability, is expected by 2027.

It has also been noted that TPG and Optus are also developing their own mobile-to-satellite capability, with Lynk Global, and Starlink, respectively.

“Labor’s Universal Outdoor Mobile Obligation needs to be defined ensuring there is, at the latest, a 2027 timeline for voice calls,” Dr Webster said.

“Australia is a unique nation with small population and large distances. This is a genuinely regional solution for a ubiquitous problem we all experience if we live and work in the regions.

“This will also be an important development for our emergency services employees and volunteers in the bush where it is dangerous to have black spots during natural disasters or accidents.”

Seeding with caution? GPSA raises important concerns

GRAIN producers in the Riverland are moving forward with seeding programs despite current weather conditions, adjusting their procedures in hopes of more rainfall ahead.

According to Grain Producers SA’s 2025 Seeding Intentions Survey, 171 grain producers revealed that nearly two-thirds (64 per cent) avoided starting seeding prior to the historically suggested season break of Anzac Day, citing the lack of opening rains as the major reason. Only 14 per cent had started seeding by Anzac Day week, with a further 22 per cent sowing prior to that.

Grain Producers SA (GPSA) chief executive officer Brad Perry said the survey results highlight a season being shaped by moisture stress and financial risk.

“Grain producers are being forced to make some incredibly tough decisions this season, with many delaying sowings due to a lack of soil moisture and others dry seeding significant areas just to stay on schedule, hoping for imminent rain,” Mr Perry said.

“This survey tells us that growers are adapting, but the uncertainty is weighing heavily on farm confidence during the drought.”

The same report stated that the average confidence rating for the season ahead in the survey was four out of 10, with some grain producers rating their outlook as low as zero. One respondent commented “in the past we’ve dry sown the whole program with great confidence. Last season was the first time we’ve had hesitation and now this year we are really nervous”.

The survey showed that 92 per cent of respondents are planting wheat, 87 per cent planting barley, 56 per cent planting lentils, 34 per cent planting canola and 30 per cent planting beans.

Two-thirds (64 per cent) avoided starting seeding prior to the historically suggested season break of Anzac Day, citing the lack of opening rains as the major reason. FILE PHOTO

More than 70 per cent of producers said they would dry sow at least some of their crop, with 15 per cent intending to dry sow everything and 14 per cent stating they would avoid dry sowing at all.

While many producers are experienced in dry sowing, confidence this season is notably lower, with only 17 per cent of respondents saying they were very confident in the success of dry sowing under current conditions, while nearly a third (31 per cent) said they were “not confident at all”.

“This is not just another dry year, it’s the compounding impact of successive difficult seasons,” Mr Perry said.

“Some grain producers are walking a tightrope, trying to keep costs in check without knowing whether the season will turn in their favour.”

Input costs remain a key concern, with almost 50 per cent of growers in the survey reducing fertiliser usage in response to the dry conditions, while 45 per cent are proceeding unchanged. Many are basing fertiliser adjustments on soil testing, rotation planning, and low nutrient removal from failed 2024 crops.

“Growers are being forced to take a more conservative approach to fertiliser and other inputs,” Mr Perry said.

“With margins tight and moisture scarce, it’s about managing risk while still being ready if the season improves.

“The insights in the survey are valuable for industry and government to understand the reality of farming during the drought. GPSA will continue to advocate for support measures that can assist grain producers to get through this very difficult period.”

Rego increases will affect farmers, local politician says

SEBASTIAN CALDERON

A RIVERLAND politician has expressed concern regarding increases to vehicle registrations and driving licences, and how these will impact farmers and local families during current economic challenges.

The State Government recently announced a 3.1 per cent increase in motor vehicle registrations and a $5 increase on driver licence renewals.

Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone said the increase would “seriously affect” families and farmers in the Riverland.

“The latest round of fee hikes from the Labor Government is yet another blow to families and farmers in the Riverland and Mallee,” Mr Whetstone said.

“Our households are facing significant financial strain, and Labor are now digging further into our pockets with higher rego fees and driver’s licence charges.

“Our farmers, who are already dealing with one of the driest years on record, are being sluggish with heavy vehicle rego increases of up to 8 per cent.”

“A typical Adelaide household might have two regos and two licenses. In a regional setting, South Australian farms operate multiple vehicles alongside registering machinery and ensuring equipment is compliant.

According to Mr Whetstone, in some instances, a farming operation will have between 10 and 20 registrations and multiple licences to deal with.

“The Labor Government is enjoying record revenue from stamp duty and camera fines, yet instead of delivering cost-of-living relief, they’re imposing additional charges on South Australians to fund their spending spree,” Mr Whetstone said.

“The upcoming State Budget must provide meaningful relief, particularly for our rural communities that are currently struggling. Our region deserves better.”

SA Liberal leader Vicent Tarzia said that current increases will add to the $85 increase on average water bills and the $6.70 increase in the Emergency Services Levy.

“These fees and charges all start to add up and, in a cost-of-living crisis, households are really feeling the pinch,” Mr Tarzia said.

Mr Tarzia said that younger drivers would feel the pressure as learner permits went up by 4 per cent.

In addition, opposition treasury spokesperson Sam Telfer said “the cost creep will also hit farmers hard with heavy vehicle registrations increasing by as much as 8 per cent”.

“The Malinauskas Government is giving with one hand and taking from another for farmers, at a time when they are battling the worst drought in a generation,” Mr Telfer said.

“This shameless cash grab will force families and farmers to tighten their belts, while the Malinauskas Government goes on a spending spree.

SA Treasurer Stephen Mullighan said “we are stepping up to help regional communities when they need it most, providing drought support”.

“The regions are vital to South Australia’s economy, driving industries such as tourism, agriculture, aquaculture, and mining,” Mr Mullighan said.

Minister for Primary Industries and Regional Development Clare Scriven said “This Budget provides significant support for some of the biggest challenges facing our primary industries and regional communities, being drought and biosecurity”.

“Our Drought Support Package provides a range of assistance for farmers, rural businesses and communities,” Ms Scriven said.

Riverland libraries offering more than just books

MADISON EASTMOND

RIVERLANDERS are being encouraged to ‘check-out’ their local library and the services they provide,

Berri Barmera Council Mayor Ella Winnall said Riverland libraries — some of more than 140 public libraries in the state — can be “so much more than just bricks and books, it’s about community”.

“Libraries provide a welcoming space where we gather, learn, exchange ideas, and strengthen community connections,” she said.

“It also serves as a safe haven, offering shelter and comfort for those who may not have it at home.”

With the Barmera, and recently updated Berri library open from Monday to Saturday, Mayor Winnall said the local libraries “continue to evolve, offering not only books but also essential services like community events, workshops, meeting areas, and access to technology”.

“If you haven’t been into a library recently – I really recommend popping in and asking the staff to show you around to find out about all of the services that are available for people of all ages,” she said.

South Australian Council social service director Rebecca Tooher said community support is all part of a libraries’ role as being a safe space and helping close digital gaps, especially in regional areas where they are often the only community hub available.

“Our research shows libraries are at the forefront of bridging the digital divide for people who lack access to data, devices or the skills to use them effectively,” Dr Tooher said.

“They offer free Wi-Fi and assistance using government services online, while on hot or cold days, libraries are a safe, secure and welcoming place for people to get some reprieve – especially those who might be doing it tough.

“Libraries are essential infrastructure for digital access, learning and community connection, which is why we’re supportive of this campaign to showcase their enormous value to South Australians.”

Reminiscing about their time in Waikerie at the reunion in Adelaide were Kym Rogers, Margaret Sampson (nee Humphreys) Julie Stapleton (nee Crabb), Alison Kalisch (nee Boehm) and Des Kalisch.

Waikerie faces back together

ALMOST 30 people attended the annual Waikerie Reunion Lunch recently, at the Wellington Hotel, in North Adelaide.

Julie Webber, one of the co-ordinators of the gathering, said those taking part came mostly from Adelaide, from suburbs including Port Adelaide, Happy Valley and Rostrevor.

Those who attended from Waikerie were Ms Webber and her mother Gwen, John Flanigan, and Marnie and Phillip Bishop.

“The Wellington Hotel is a great location for everyone to get to and re-establish friendships and connections from their time in Waikerie,” Ms Webber said.

“We welcomed seven new people this year and they enjoyed meeting old and new friends,” she said.

“As usual there were many apologies with people travelling or unwell, but people like to stay on the email list and endeavour to come another year.”

Ms Webber said anyone with a connection to Waikerie was welcome to attend.

“They may have lived in the town, gone to school in the area, or worked in Waikerie,” she said.

The event is held each year on the first Monday in June and the venues have changed over the years.

People who are interested in attending should email (waikerielunch@gmail.com), with their contact details to ensure they are included on the list to receive information about the annual reunion.

The upgrade of the Waikerie Institute’s green room is almost complete.

Waikerie Institute’s refurbishment underway

CHRISTINE WEBSTER

RENOVATIONS earmarked for the Waikerie Institute Soldiers Memorial Hall in Loxton Waikerie council’s budget for this financial year have begun.

Loxton Waikerie council director of commercial and community services Andrew Waters said $200,000 was allocated to upgrading the institute in council’s 2024-

25 Annual Business Plan.

He said performers and events at the institute would benefit from this latest work on green room upgrades, including plaster and flooring repair, sanding, painting, minor electrical work, and mirrors and infrastructure.

Mr Waters said work was also underway with a local plumber and wastewater engineer to investigate the installation of mains water to the building and identify methods to capture, contain and correctly dispose of wastewater that was compliant and sanitary.

“The plumber and engineer are awaiting further advice from SA Health on their proposed options,” he said.

Mr Waters said the majority of the green room upgrades were now complete, with minor works to come.

“Council has also recently delivered a $125,000 community-use storage shed, which has enabled the removal of items previously stored in the institute, making the space more available for events, dances, performances, and concerts,” he said.

Mr Waters said renovations to the Waikerie Institute had been ongoing for a number of years with investigation into asbestos floor removal occurring in 2021.

He said in the years following, new vinyl flooring, electrical upgrades to improve safety and functionality, repairs to ceilings, beams, and architraves occurring due to white ant damage were all completed.

Mr Pallaras also appeared at the Waikerie Hotel.

Stephen captivates Riverland audiences

A SENIOR South Australian legal figure recently gave Riverland audiences an insight into a major murder, and announced his intended political candidacy.

Former South Australian director of public prosecutions Stephen Pallaras last month presented his True Crime: Sweet Old Lady & The Murderer Mother show - examining the 2008 murder of Vonne McGlynn, in Adelaide - in Renmark, Waikerie, and Loxton.

Alongside the show, Mr Pallaras also announced he would run as an independent candidate in the Upper House at the next State Election, with a focus on action surrounding domestic violence.

Mr Pallaras said improving protections for women, and ensuring support services were readily accessible, needed to be a priority.

“This has been an expensive and drawn out exercise while family and domestic violence has continued to escalate,” Mr Pallaras said.

“What can we hope to learn from it?”

“We should hope at least to learn something that we don’t already know.

“That means that we don’t need to be told that women are too often traumatised by the legal process and too rarely see justice, we don’t need to be told that our state’s services are fragmented, under-resourced and difficult to use, and we don’t need to be told that the legal responses in policing, bail, prosecutions and sentencing do not reflect the gravity or complexity of domestic violence.

“In other words, we do not need to be told that our systems are failing those who need it the most.”

Mr Pallaras said introducing stronger legal protections for families and victims of domestic violence was a goal.

“What we expect and insist upon is the commissioner’s advice on how to re-shape our policies, laws and support mechanisms to assist the ever-growing number of victims in our state,” he said.

“The end of this Royal Commission must, above all, be the beginning of real change in South Australia.”

CHAFFEY MP TIM WHETSTONE gave the following speech regarding BUDGET CONCERNS FOR THE SA AGRICULTURE INDUSTRY last week in State Parliament...

Just another blow to farmers?

I RISE to talk about the woes of being a primary producer.

South Australia's $17bn agriculture industry is going to take a beating. South Australia's economy will be nowhere near the $15m that it receives on an ongoing basis.

What I saw last week, after the horrific winds and dust storms on top of the drought, and on top of significantly low commodity prices, was a farmer who was out in his paddocks, inspecting fences that were lying over. Those fences were lying over because the wind had blown the mallee soils away from the posts — the ferocity of that wind had seen much of his fencing lying on the ground. On top of that was the frustration of what it looks like at the moment — not only was he dealing with the fencing, dealing with the drought and dealing with the feed and the fodder for his livestock, but this was exacerbated by the lack of hay supplies in South Australia.

We are competing with every other mainland Australian state in looking for hay and fodder to feed livestock. This Malinauskas government was slow off the mark, and we are on the back foot looking to sustain that.

What this farmer has had to do is go and register as a hay importer, which attracted a one-off import fee of $125, or $198 if he wanted to bring in more than one load. Then he had to have his hay inspected by government officials before it entered South Australia, with hourly fees being charged by the inspectors. But it is good to see that the government has now waived the fee since last week. The farmer had to keep any hay in quarantine until the inspector could get there to inspect it before feeding it to his livestock.

Sadly, there was no subsidy available to assist with the cost of transport because the government's assistance does not extend past the five charitable organisations. I question whether it is even possible for the five organisations to bring enough hay to adequately support our farmers. This leaves our farmers with no choice but to source hay and pay for the delivery of it themselves, unlike other drought-affected farmers in other states. The cost to farmers in buying hay and trucking it there under their own steam is almost cost prohibitive.

The extra $2m for rural financial counselling, announced by Prime Minister (Anthony Albanese last week), is welcomed, but is that what farmers really asked for? There are calls for further assistance with fodder, low-interest loans, seed banks, rate relief and equity in the emergency services levy (ESL).

Speaking of the ESL, it is just another blow to farmers. The 4.2 per cent ESL increase in the upcoming budget really is a disproportionate disadvantage to the regional farmer. Currently, the $157.85 to $164.55 is what happens in the city, but just imagine if you were a farmer with more than one vehicle. Imagine a farmer with more than one licence, or imagine you are a farmer with multiple properties. The costs continue to escalate and intensify the financial pressures on those households already grappling with the cost of living and the cost of the drought.

Currently, farmers are being sluggish with heavy vehicle registration increases of up to 8 per cent.

As a farmer, unlike people in the city — and the Premier and the Treasurer (Stephen Mullighan) often talk about two cars in an average family, two licensed in an average family. If you go out to a primary producer's farm he has 20 vehicles, he has equipment that has to be registered to be compliant, he has multiple licences, fees and charges that are all going to be impacted by this government's tardy understanding of what it really means to be a primary producer in the regions of South Australia.

As I said, a typical household in Adelaide will have a limited impact. A primary producer, a farming family, will see significant hardship and income burden with this upcoming budget.

As I said, some of these farming operations have between 10 and 20 registrations and multiple licences just to be compliant.

So my question to everyone in this chamber is, is the government really listening to what the primary producers are needing?

The Prime Minister coming to South Australia (last week) was a wasted opportunity — a $2 million exercise to put more into rural financial counselling to deal with mental health. That assistance is already there in place.

So what I would say is that the government need to get off the horse and get on the ground and seriously listen to what the vagaries are around government support.

They have already exacerbated the cost and the hardship, and now the government need to step up and actually listen.

The improvements on the Loxton Riverbank will provide mitigation effects during high water flow seasons. PHOTO: supplied

Riverbank stabilisation project works are started at Loxton

WORKS at the Loxton riverbank to undertake ground stabilisation as part of an important project, aimed to improve access for communities and landholders during natural high flow events, have commenced.

Loxton Waikerie Council started the riverbank stabilisation, in front of the Loxton Aquatic Club, as part of the SA Constraints Measures Project, through the Murray-Darling Basin Plan.

The site was fenced off and works commenced recently, with machinery and personnel already on site. The project investigates ways to mitigate the effects of high flows on infrastructure and communities, which included upgrading riverbanks alongside the Murray River. Council worked closely with Neilly Group Engineering to finalise a design that will not only withstand fluctuating river levels and future flooding events, but will also create a more usable riverfront.

Council is reminding community members to take caution when navigating the area and stay clear of the work zone, even when work isn't actively underway. For any questions about this project, please contact Council on 08 8584 8000 or email (council@lwdc.sa.gov.au).

Berri Lions gift $21,000 to Loxton

AFTER 12 months of development, a Loxton living service has officially opened a leisure and recreation space last week, with the new outdoor area made possible by a $21,000 local community donation.

In partnership with the Australian Lions Foundation and local business, Big River Developments, the Berri Lions Club have funded a new outdoor space for clients of Orana’s supported independent living service.

Designed for inclusion, enjoyment, and wellbeing, Orana Australia CEO Jim Liu said since March the new space had “been actively and readily used” and “brought many smiles”.

“It’s been a wonderful and valuable addition to the facilities of our site,” he said.

“It has well received by our clients, as well as families and staff.

“We would just like to acknowledge and extend our sincere thanks and gratitude to the Berri Lions Club for their generosity and support.

“We would also like to thank Murray Knowing (of Big River Developments), who created this space and did a wonderful job — this area is going to provide a long-lasting benefit to all of our clients for many years to come.”

Using funds from the Images of the Riverland Calendar, which has now collectively raised over $400,000, Berri Lions Club second vice-president Willemina Boekhout said it was important for the group to donate outside of the local area.

“This is what the Berri Lions Club is all about, and this is what the Images of the Riverland Calendar is all about,” she said.

“We love to give to each of the town, since money is collected region wide — it lets us have that bigger impact across the Riverland.”

Berri Library hosts booked-out history workshops

THE Berri Library ensured a statewide history festival was well celebrated throughout May with several successful workshops held.

The Berri Library held three booked-out film, DVD and slide conversion workshops, attracting people from across the Riverland as part of South Australia’s History Festival.

Locals took up the opportunity to learn how to have special moments and events – captured on older technology – converted to digital form.

Staff shared how to use modern equipment to transfer old 8mm film and VHS video to either DVD or USB to be able to view on television or computer.

The attendees were also keen to have a go at converting slides to digital format, making it easier to view or print their slides.

One attendee was able to view her wedding, filmed 51-years ago on 8mm film, and now has it on a USB to watch at home.

South Australia’s History Festival is an annual state-wide event exploring the state’s history in May each year.

The festival explores the state’s places and spaces, stories and collections.

Due to the strong interest, the Berri Library will look to hold future sessions later in the year.

The 2025 Regional Leadership Development Program was launched in Murray Bridge. PHOTOS: supplied

Our next leaders among 2025 RDAMR cohort

EMERGING Riverland leaders are among those participating in an annual program, aiming to build “thriving, connected, and inclusive regional communities”, run by the region’s development board.

The 2025 Regional Leadership Development Program – run by Regional Development Australia Murraylands and Riverland – was launched last week.

Minister for Primary Industries and Regional Development Clare Scriven said the program – which is delivered locally in regional areas – removes barriers such as long travel times and time away from work or family.

“The Regional Leadership Development Program has demonstrated that it can reach a large and diverse group of emerging leaders from right across regional South Australia and provide them with valuable skills relevant for their work in regional industries, businesses, and in community activities,” Ms Scriven said.

Participants will take part in immersive workshops and on-country sessions designed to deepen self-awareness, foster courageous leadership, and build strong connections across sectors.

RDAMR program manager Mandy Tennant said the initiative had been particularly successful in “attracting a diverse group of emerging leaders, including women, who make up more than 68 per cent of participants”.

“By investing in people, we’re investing in the resilience and sustainability of our communities,” she said.

“These 27 emerging leaders are stepping up to shape a better future—not just for their workplaces, but for the region as a whole.”

Locals among SA’s next leadership generation

NUMEROUS locals are among participants in an annual program targeting “transformative” change on regional communities.

A total of 15 Riverlanders are among participants in the 2025 Regional Leadership Development Program – delivered by Regional Development Australia Murraylands and Riverland (RDAMR) – which was launched last month at an event in Murray Bridge, which featured Minister for Primary Industries and Regional Development Clare Scriven.

Participant Rennee Scutcheon, from the Loxton District Children’s Centre, said the experience had already been personally rewarding.

“What an incredible couple of days it’s been,” Ms Scutcheon said.

“I feel so fortunate to have spent this time learning and growing alongside such passionate, authentic, and inspiring people.

“The way everyone created such a safe space so quickly has made this experience something really special.”

RDAMR project manager Mandy Tennant said the voices of regional communities would play a “critical role” in shaping South Australia’s future.

“Minister Scriven’s presence was a strong and meaningful show of support for the emerging leaders in our region,” Ms Tennant said.

“Her encouragement and experience helped set the tone for what is shaping up to be a transformative and empowering program.

“What we experienced together was overwhelming in the best way — heartfelt stories, powerful insights, deep camaraderie, and a shared drive to lead with purpose.

“Inspired doesn’t even begin to cover it. The future of our regions is in strong, passionate, and capable hands.”

A RIVERLAND West date producer is set to grow his operations after securing a major national grant. Coles last week announced Waikerie-based Date Farms Australia had received a $500,000 grant – through the Coles Nurture Fund – to build a solar-powered processing facility, and expand its planting of Medjool dates. Date Farms Australia director, and owner, Kym Pfeiler said the funding would provide a boost to the industry both locally and across the country. “Most dates on Australian shelves are currently imported due to limited local supply and we’re focused on changing that. This grant allows us to build the infrastructure we need to scale up production and grow the local industry,” he said. “We’ll be able to invest in better equipment, improve the quality of our produce and cut our energy grid reliance by 70 per cent, meaning we can grow in a more sustainable way for both the environment and our business.” Mr Pfeiler said the project would also help reduce the industry’s reliance on imports. Coles Group chief commercial and sustainability officer Anna Croft said supporting “forward-thinking projects that drive innovation” was a goal for the grant program. “We’re proud to support these businesses that are pioneering smart and practical solutions that will help to create a more sustainable future,” she said. “It’s exciting to see such a strong pipeline of ideas with the potential to make a real impact, not just on production methods here in Australia, but on the communities and environments they are part of. “At Coles, we know sustainable growth needs collaboration and the Coles Nurture Fund plays a vital role in helping producers bring these ambitious ideas to life.”

Riverland schools celebrate reconciliation

SCHOOLS around the Riverland came together to celebrate Reconciliation Week earlier this month, with each hosting special commemorations and events. With this year’s theme of ‘Bridging Now to Next’ — calling on Australians to step forward together, to look ahead, and continue to push forward — Reconciliation Week is a time to learn about shared histories, cultures, achievements, and explore ways to achieving reconciliation, with the dates commemorating significant milestones for First Nations

- peoples, including:
- ❑ National Sorry Day, May 26: Remembering and acknowledging the Stolen Generations.
 - ❑ 1967 Referendum anniversary, May 27: When Australia voted for a change in the Constitution, allowing Indigenous people to be included in the census.
 - ❑ Mabo Day, June 3: Anniversary of the 1992 decision to overturn Terra Nullius, led by the work and activism of Eddie Koiki Mabo.

WHILE enjoying a good cup of tea and a plate of home-made sweets, a Riverland school has raised more than $5000 worth of life-saving funds for Australians impacted by cancer.

Collecting the biggest pool of donations yet, Rivergum Christian College held its fifth Biggest Morning Tea last week, with this most recent effort raising $1654.12 to support Cancer Council SA to fund vital research, support services, and prevention programs.

With both primary and secondary Student Representative Council (SRC) members joining forces this year to run the annual event, the school-wide effort was also expanded off campus, with students visiting residents at Bamera's Hawdon House with homemade treats, and sharing left over platters with the Berri Barmera Council office.

"The Biggest Morning Tea is one of four major projects our SRC leads annually – spanning (across areas of) community, national, global, and school-focused causes," Rivergum Christian College teacher, and event organiser, Christina Van Deventer said.

"From the admin staff to the Year 7 students, everyone played a role.

"Staff members baked and donated treats, Year 7s baked fresh cookies on the day, and the SRC team decorated and set up tables filled with goodies.

"Events like the Biggest Morning Tea remind us of the power of community and the difference we can make when we come together.

"Many hands made light work, and we'd like to thank the wonderful people who helped make this event possible — here's to another year of compassion, action, and connection."

$2.5m per annum from 2025 through 2027 dedicated to supporting different industries to diversify and connect with importers in new or growing markets. FILE PHOTO

New State Budget increases to benefit regional exporters

RIVERLAND exporters will be among the beneficiaries of recent budget increases to support key sectors facing challenges from global trade disruptions.

The new State Budget will include $2.5m per annum from 2025 through 2027 dedicated to supporting different industries to diversify and connect with importers in new or growing markets across the world.

Under the $5m boost, capacity development programs include market intelligence, targeted business missions, and facilitation of importer visits to South Australia.

South Australian exporters set new records in the past two years, achieving more than $17bn in merchandise exports in both 2024 and 2023. This marked a more than 50 per cent increase – or $5.9bn per year – on pre-COVID levels.

Latest figures from the Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS) also show South Australian exporters have sold more than $900m of wine and live lobster to China since tariffs were lifted last year.

Minister for Trade and Investment Joe Szakacs said “South Australia has been setting new export records in the past two years and achieving incredible results which support more than 220,000 jobs across our state”.

“This has been achieved despite the most turbulent global trading environment that many of us have witnessed in our lifetimes and the government has stood with them and provided support to diversify, re-engage and thrive in difficult times,” Mr Szakacs said.

Mr Szakacs also said the outlook does remain unpredictable and challenging.

“That is why we have committed $5m in new money to assist local exporters to seize new opportunities in diversified markets and build even more resilience for the future,” he said.

“From South Australia’s global powerhouses of wine and advanced manufacturing, through to emerging growth in food manufacturing and sports technology, South Australia is at our best when we front-foot challenges and seek growth and diversification.

“New programs in the next two years will be delivered in consultation with local exporters to ensure that we are responding to their specific needs and evolving threats and opportunities in a fast-changing global market.”

The new $5m will ensure ongoing support for key industries including wine, seafood, and primary produce amid the imposition of new tariffs by the United States and responses by other nations.

The State Government has already taken measures to assist businesses seeking to take advantages of new opportunities, including the showcasing of 14 South Australian wine brands with Canada’s Liquor Control Board of Ontario (LCBO).

In the past 12 months, the Department of State Development has provided export services to more than 460 South Australian businesses and supported over 270 South Australian businesses on international trade missions to key markets.

Canada buddies enjoying SA’s wine

INCREASING South Australian trade levels with a major international partner are presenting a “growth” area that may benefit the Riverland wine industry.

Recent figures from the Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS) show the state’s trade to Canada had almost doubled in the past 12 months, to $663m.

Minister for Trade Joe Szakacs said wine exports to Canada remained stable – at a total of $99m – yet still presented a growth opportunity amid current volatility in global trade conditions.

“Doubling our exports to Canada – now exceeding $663m – is fantastic news for our state, and the local companies doing business with our Commonwealth partner,” Mr Szakacs said.

“What we are seeing here is our business community adapting and leveraging the recent changes in global trade dynamics, capitalising on the world-class reputation of our state’s produce to increase sales and engagement with the Canada market.

“Because of that, Canada has jumped 10 places to become our fifth-largest export partner – providing more diverse options for our state’s exporters in North America.”

The latest ABS data showed Canada is SA’s fifth largest wine export market, sitting behind China, the UK, Hong Kong, and the US.

More than 30 South Australian wineries were represented in Toronto and Montreal in May as part of the Wine Australia North American roadshow, supported by the Department of State Development’s (DSD) North America office.

The South Australian Government also ran a retail and tasting campaign across Ontario, with the Liquor Control Board of Ontario (LCBO), in April.

New workforce strategy to strengthen food, wine and agribusiness sectors

CREATING a sustainable and reliable workforce for South Australia’s agriculture industry – including the Riverland’s – is the target of a new state strategy.

The State Government last week announced a Food, Wine and Agribusiness Workforce Strategy would be developed.

Development of a “co-ordinated, state-wide workforce strategy” was a key recommendation in a business case commissioned by the State Government, which was launched last week at the 2025 Primary Industries and Regions Forum.

Minister for Industry, and Deputy Premier, Susan Close said workforce challenges were creating “a handbrake on the growth and productivity of our agribusiness sector”.

“South Australia’s food, wine, and agribusiness sector workforce is diverse, innovative and dynamic,” Dr Close said.

“To maintain and enhance our state’s global reputation as a producer of clean, green, and premium products, strategic workforce planning is essential, with a co-ordinated approach that delivers clear attraction and retention initiatives and broader awareness of the job opportunities available.”

Minister for Primary Industries and Regional Development Clare Scriven said the strategy was aimed at delivering a “long-term, integrated approach to supporting workforce growth”.

“South Australia’s food, wine and agribusiness sector is not only vital to our state’s economy – it’s integral to our rural and regional communities,” Ms Scriven said.

“The business case demonstrates there is both a need and an opportunity to showcase the sector and its career pathways as exciting, diverse and high value.

“That’s why the Malinauskas Government is working collaboratively with industry and education providers to build a comprehensive workforce strategy to support sustainable growth in the years ahead.

“I want to thank the many stakeholders across government, education and industry who contributed to this work and look forward to our continued collaboration as we move into the next phase to further strengthen this sector.”

The business case outlines actions to deliver co-ordinated initiatives that:

- ❑ Improve community perceptions.
- ❑ Highlight diverse career opportunities available.
- ❑ Help education providers inspire and equip students to pursue agribusiness careers.
- ❑ Support businesses to attract and retain migrant and overseas workers.
- ❑ Explore ways to drive attraction of under-utilised workforce demographics.

Primary Producers South Australia chief executive officer Caroline Rhodes said

“South Australia’s food, wine, and agribusiness sectors offer more than just jobs—they offer purpose”.

“From scientists and agronomists to marketers, IT professionals, and veterinarians, there’s a place for every passion and skill-set,” Ms Rhodes said.

“Built on innovation, research, and education, this sector is shaping a sustainable and globally competitive future.

“Primary Producers SA looks forward to continuing work in partnership with the State Government, education providers and other industry stakeholder in the development of this workforce strategy.”

Development of the workforce strategy will be undertaken during 2025/26, with a strong focus on stakeholder engagement. The co-design of specific initiatives will also be informed by workforce data analytics and policy analysis.

SA awarded A+ in fight against tobacco and vapes

MEASURES across South Australia to tackle the use of illegal tobacco and vapes are showing benefits for areas such as the Riverland.

The Australian Council on Smoking and Health's recently released national scorecard ranked South Australia's response to tobacco and vapes is the nation's best.

Minister for Health Chris Picton said recent statistics from the South Australian Health and Medical Research Institute showed 2024 vaping rates among 15 to 29-year-olds reduced by around a third when compared to the previous year.

"The results are in and South Australia is rated the best in the nation in the fight against tobacco and vapes," Mr Picton said.

"We've received an A+ for our measures in tackling this important health issue, ahead of any other state or territory. Smoking is our biggest preventable killer and a major burden on our health system.

"Vapes are full of highly-addictive nicotine and nasty chemicals. Parents have told me about the terrible effects of their children getting addicted, including problems sleeping, difficulty concentrating at school, irritability, and lack of appetite.

"These are the reasons

Parents have told me about the terrible effects of their children getting addicted...

- Chris Picton

we are so focused on reducing the devastating impact of smoking and vaping. The only thing we should be putting in our lungs is air and we are glad that our measures to reduce smoking and vaping are making a difference and being recognised."

Nine key areas were assessed in the scorecard, including cracking down on illegal sales and enforcing vape laws, protecting kids from marketing, ensuring public spaces are smoke and vape free, support for high-risk groups and investing in public education and awareness campaigns.

Minister for Consumer and Business Affairs Andrea Michaels said 33 short-term closure orders had been issued for stores caught selling illicit tobacco and/or vapes, with two long-term closures also approved.

"This national scorecard result demonstrates that we are leaving no stone unturned in our continued effort to crack down," Ms Michaels said.

"As a government, we remain incredibly concerned about the rise of vaping amongst young people as well as the increased involvement of organised crime in the illicit tobacco market.

"We acted decisively with a $16m investment in a dedicated taskforce within Consumer and Business Services, as well as a suite of new penalties and levers the government could pull such as closure orders.

"Not only is smoking and vaping terrible for people's health but we know that 75 per cent of the illicit market is controlled by organised crime in Australia. The Malinauskas Government will continue to do everything it can to get these dangerous products off South Australian streets and out of the hands of our children."

The full scorecard can be viewed by visiting the website (www.acosh.org/failing-the-smoke-test-nationals-corecard-on-tobacco-and-vape-reform/).

$23m in illicit tobacco seized across SA

THE Riverland is among areas of the state seeing seizures of illegal tobacco and vapes through new South Australian measures.

More than $23m in illicit tobacco and vapes have been seized across South Australia since the State Government started its illicit tobacco taskforce, within Consumer and Business Services, alongside SAPOL's Operation Eclipse.

More than 500 inspections have been conducted around the state with 20 per cent of these taking place in regional South Australia, representing $4m of the illicit products seized. Minister for Consumer and Business Affairs Andrea Michaels said "we are leaving no stone unturned in our fight against illegal tobacco and vapes".

"We are out raiding illegal tobacco stores, seizing their products and shutting these stores down," Ms Michaels said.

"The government has now seized more than $23m worth of illicit tobacco and vapes. That is millions of cigarettes and vapes that are not out in our community destroying the health of South Australians with the profits going to organised crime.

"We are committed to ending the illicit tobacco trade in South Australia and putting these criminals out of business."

- The seizures to date included:
- 17.2 million cigarettes, valued at $13.7m.
 - 105,100 vapes valued at $4.5m.
 - 6 tonnes of loose tobacco, valued at $3.1m.
 - 2.3 million cigarette tubes, valued at $1.4m.
 - 834 nicotine pouches valued at $25,000.

The State Government has also introduced the toughest penalties of any state or territory in the nation against the sale of illegal vapes and tobacco, with fines of up to $1.5m for those caught selling. Legislation has also recently been passed to increase fines to up to $6.6m for the supply and possession of commercial quantities of illicit tobacco and vapes.

The proposed road limit modifications aim to improve freight efficiency and road connectivity. IMAGES: supplied Trucks to use local roads?

A PROPOSED road network change inside the Riverland, allowing heavy vehicles to use specific local roads, is aiming to improve freight efficiency and increase safety with minimal community impact.

Loxton Waikerie council is seeking community feedback to allow road trains operating under the Heavy Mass Limit (HML) scheme to use specific local roads.

The proposed changes are as follows:

- Council is considering the gazettal of 580m of Railway Terrace, in Paruna and 145m of Schubert Road, also in Paruna.
- Taplan Road, Badcoe Road and Kokoda Terrace (from Taplan to Bookpurnong Terrace, at Loxton) are also proposed to be gazetted.

Come and see Loxton's new gallery of art from a Loxton artist.

Visitors to the Parish Hall Gallery can also relax with a brewed pot of tea served in fine china, selected from the impressive range of leaf tea on sale.

Anyone of the exhibiting artists are in attendance during opening times and may be working on an art piece at the time.

The Parish Hall Gallery, on Edward Street, in Loxton, is open on Thursdays and Fridays, from 10.30am to 3pm.

It will also be open more often during the SALA Festival in the month of August, and during the Riverland Rose and Garden Festival, in October. The gallery can also be opened outside of regular times by appointment.

New firearms for SAPOL officers

THE new State Budget will see the replacement of current pistols used by police, including those in the Riverland, with the new replacement model and associated training to be introduced.

South Australia Police (SAPOL) will receive an additional $6.8m over a period of four years to enable the replacement of the current semi-automatic pistol used by SA Police, which is no longer being manufactured.

The use of pistols by SAPOL is extremely rare and over the last 18 months, officers have used their firearm only 808 times.

Many of these occasions (673) relate the lawful destruction of animals, while the remaining 135 occasions includes the sighting or levelling of a firearm.

Pistols are an important part of a current officer's operational safety equipment to safely resolve incidents, and is a major deterrent in potentially violent confrontations and is critical to deescalating threats.

In addition to the new pistols, close to 1200 new multi-purpose police vests have already been delivered to all uniformed

Operational Readiness Qualified SA Police officers, security officers and Community Constables, to ensure they have access to a vest for their safety and protection.

The semi-automatic handgun is just one of the tactical options available for SAPOL to help police officers, police security officers and community constables perform their duties. Batons, electronic control devices (tasers) and capsicum spray are all issued to frontline officers, while long arm firearms are also used by specialist units and for the destruction of animals in regional locations.

South Australian Police Commissioner Grant Stevens said "ensuring officers have the most reliable and effective equipment is paramount to maintaining public safety".

"The new pistols will enhance our operational safety capabilities and provide our officers with the tools they need to safely resolve critical incidents," Mr Stevens said.

"While the use of firearms is infrequent, having access to reliable pistols is essential for the safety of SAPOL members and the community."

SAPOL joins blood drive to increase winter supplies

A NEW campaign is calling on emergency services workers and police officers, including those in the Riverland, to make the highest number of blood and plasma donations, aiming to increase blood supplies across the state.

South Australia Police (SAPOL) has joined emergency services partners to increase winter blood supplies as part of a lifesaving campaign, with Police Commissioner Grant Stevens announcing a joint effort with other agencies to launch the 2025 Emergency Services Blood Drive, at South Australian Metropolitan Fire Service (MFS) headquarters.

The blood drive is held annually by Australian Red Cross Lifeblood, from June 1 to August 31.

"Our members are always onboard to help others, and I encourage them to continue making a life-changing impact by rolling up their sleeves and donating," Mr Stevens said.

"Police often attend incidents where people have been seriously injured, and we understand firsthand that the need for blood is ongoing.

"I encourage all SAPOL staff and their family members who are able to donate via the South Australia Police Lifeblood team and contribute to this incredible cause."

Last year SAPOL's Lifeblood team helped save 6381 lives through 2127 donations: 963 blood, 1138 plasma, and 26 platelets.

Through the 2024 Emergency Services Blood Drive alone, SAPOL made 578 donations: 264 blood, 301 plasma, and 13 platelet – helping to save 1734 lives.

Recently, the Bleed 4 Blue Blood Drive from December 1 to February 28, also saw SAPOL's team make 594 donations, helping to save 1782 lives.

SAPOL will compete against SA-based Australian Federal Police, SA Country Fire Service, SA Ambulance Service, St John Ambulance, SA Metropolitan Fire Service, SA Department of Correctional Services, SA State Emergency Service, Royal Flying Doctor

Service and Aviation Rescue Fire Fighting Service – Airservices Australia.

"SAPOL's efforts last year saw our team keep the state trophy and jump one place up the national leader board," Mr Stevens said.

"We hope anyone in the community who is able to donate will be inspired by the efforts of police and our fellow first responders and will take the short time out of their day to make a life-saving donation."

Pop-up and mobile donor centres will operate in regional areas, alongside five metropolitan donor centres: Adelaide (Regent Donor Centre), Marion, Port Adelaide, Noarlunga, and Modbury are open for donations.

Only donations made during the challenge period (June 1 - August 31) count towards the tally, however, Lifeblood Teams operate year-round.

To book a donation visit the website (www.lifeblood.com.au) call 13 14 95 or download the donate blood app.

Loxton's new pocket galleries

SMALL galleries located in a Riverland town centre are designed to be an opportunity for local artists, community groups, schools and the wider community to showcase local stories in high-traffic areas.

The Loxton Waikerie council has installed miniature Pocket Galleries around the Drabsch Street crossover of East Terrace, in Loxton, providing an opportunity to display artwork and promote local artists, while encouraging the exploration of the district.

The Loxton installation is part of a pilot project, and council has opened a survey focused on gathering resident's opinions about their viability and whether they would like to see them installed in other towns.

Residents interested in the survey can visit the website (www.engagement.lwdc.sa.gov.au).

TAKING SCHOOL TO THE ZOO: Renmark High School year 11 biology students last week visited Monarto Safari Park as a part of their ecosystems and biodiversity unit. They got to explore a range of species, including meerkats, Asian elephants, African painted dogs, giraffes, and more. The students were given a guided tour by one of Monarto's education experts and deepened their understanding of the importance of conservation efforts for keystone species. PHOTO: supplied

Renmark Ladies Probus Club celebrates 38th birthday

Probus members inspecting some of the upgrades made by Ms Neale.

THE Renmark Ladies Probus Club celebrated its 38th birthday with a morning tea, and a presentation and viewing of the Murray River Queen (MRQ).

The Loxton location of the Queen is very picturesque and peaceful, and the ladies thoroughly enjoyed their visit.

Following an amazing Devonshire tea, owner Donna Neale spoke about her history with the MRQ and took us on a tour of the refurbished accommodation.

The ladies were amazed at the amount of work that had been carried out since Ms Neale’s purchase of the boat, as she calls her.

The group also commented that other organisations should be encouraged to visit the MRQ, even if it was only for morning tea and a viewing.

The next meeting of the Club will be on July 7, at Hotel Renmark, at 10am. Members are invited to bring along something they treasure or value. There will also be a competition ‘How well do you know your committee?’, by identifying members of the committee from their baby photos.

Seeking UniSA cups, caps and clothing from days gone by

THE University of South Australia's Time Capsule is asking Riverland alumni to take a trip back in time, to add to its collection of memorabilia recorded over more than 150 years.

The online collection already holds almost 400 visual mementos contributed by staff, students, alumni and community members, yet there's an element UniSA's acting-vice chancellor Marnie Hughes-Warrington said is underrepresented "unfashionable and outdated" merchandise.

"I'm challenging the community to dig deep in their bottom drawers and storage boxes, (and) seek out those outdated mugs, shirts, and hats that I know are out there," Professor Hughes-Warrington said.

The UniSA Time Capsule is a work in progress, holding a collection of photos, videos and documents celebrating achievements, history and culture across the sweep of the university's teaching, learning, research and community and campus activities.

The goal is to capture special UniSA moments.

Personal reflections, preserving the University's past before it joins with the University of Adelaide, and will then be known as Adelaide University.

"UniSA has a long legacy," Professor Hughes-Warrington said.

"Including our antecedent institutions, our history goes back to 1856.

"We created this project to help our community tell the UniSA story as it relates to them.

"This is not a formal history of the university nor a repository for formal university records, it's a people's history."

Professor Hughes-Warrington said museums and history books have an important place in the world but making history accessible to people is what matters most.

"Most people connect with history visually, including through photos, films or television," she said.

"It was important to us to create an experience where people could make history with us, not by giving us their objects, but by sharing their images, videos or other documents — memories that are important to them.

"History is all around us, it's what we wear, it's what we carry around.

"There is nothing too small that isn't important in our own stories and the story of UniSA.

"We're absolutely delighted that our community is embracing this project and sharing their own pieces of history.

"Research shows that if people feel they are part of creating history and are involved in that process, they are more likely to contribute, to go and look at it, and the result will be a richer, more authentic story."

For more information, or to view time capsule to contribute a photo, video or scanned document, visit the website (timecapsule.unisa.edu.au/).

Fruit and vegetable ban compliance is essential

RIVERLANDERS and travellers to the region were among South Australians advised to comply with strict fruit and vegetable movement restrictions during the past King's Birthday long weekend, aiming to safeguard the state's $1.3bn horticulture industry from fruit fly outbreaks.

Acting general manager for the Fruit Fly emergency response Jason Size highlighted the importance of vigilance during the latest holiday weekend.

"We encouraged everyone to enjoy the holiday weekend, but it's essential that travellers understood and followed the produce restrictions in place," Mr Size said.

"Transporting restricted fruit and vegetables into South Australia or the Riverland can have devastating impacts on our growers and the broader horticulture sector."

Travellers were reminded to eat or dispose of any restricted produce before entering the state or Riverland region. Clearly marked quarantine bins were, and will continue to be available at major road entry points, airports, and rail terminals to facilitate safe disposal.

Random roadblocks and inspections were conducted, with fines of $417 applicable for non-compliance. Restricted produce includes common fruit fly host produce such as apples, oranges, bananas, tomatoes, and capsicums.

Many fruits and vegetables are unrestricted, including leafy greens, root vegetables, and certain fruits such as honeydew, pineapple, rockmelon, and watermelon.

For the full list visit the website (www.fruitfly.sa.gov.au/outbreak-restrictions/fruit-and-veg-without-restrictions).

Mr Size also highlighted the role of responsible disposal in protecting the state.

"Interstate travellers must use quarantine bins or official stations for disposing of restricted produce. This simple action is vital to keeping our fruit fly response strong," he said.

Entries now open for 2025 Food and Beverage Industry Awards

RECOGNISED Riverlanders working in hospitality can nominate their entry for one important award that aims to empower excellence on the people, products and businesses driving our state's largest manufacturing industry.

The South Australian Premier's Food and Beverage Industry Awards are now open for applications, with the 2025 awards evolving to have a stronger focus on innovation, sustainability, mental health, wellbeing, and future growth.

Presented by Food South Australia, the state's peak body for the food and beverage industry, the program honours both established businesses and emerging brands and showcases the diversity and quality of South Australia.

The awards will be divided into two main categories:

Riverland side strangled in Lyndoch

LACHLAN DAND

THE King’s Birthday long weekend marked the annual return of interleague football, with a Riverland side defeated by 57 points against the best of the Barossa, Light & Gawler Football Association.

Held at Barossa Park in Lyndoch – an AFL Gather Round venue – Riverland trailed by 26 points at the major break, with the damage ultimately done in the second half.

In soaking conditions, the home side kicked four goals unanswered in the second half, totalling 24 scoring attempts to two in the timeframe.

Quality was littered all throughout the Riverland side with all six clubs represented, headlined by local club captains in Jesse Will and Codi Voumard.

The Riverland side was coached by Waikerie legend, and 2010 Whillas medal-list, Damian Stevens on the day, who said he thoroughly enjoyed the experience.

“As always, I am a big fan of representative footy, so to be given the opportunity to coach again... I was honoured,” he said.

“I would have loved for the result to be different, but the group itself I just can’t knock because they gave everything they had until the last minute which was exactly what the coaching group asked.

“It was a very young squad, but the intent and effort were always there, so as a coaching staff, that’s all we can ask for.”

Waikerie led the way with seven representatives, headlined by reigning Whillas medallist Kade Hilton.

Barmera-Monash had five players in action, four Tigers took to the field, and three Panthers were in action.

Renmark had both Brody Rover and Zach Gartery from the Kennel, while Brad Rosenzweig was the sole representative from the Demons.

Stevens said narrowing down the selection process was a complicated task, with some players choosing to avoid the field.

“Myself and the assistant coaches watch a lot of footy each week and we start by asking each team to nominate some of the best players in their eyes at their club,” he said.

“We’ll add or take from the squad each week depending on what we’ve seen, so someone like Lucas Warnett from Barmera-Monash was someone who caught the eye of the coaches at different stages.

“In the lead-up we have a training session three weeks before the game, and then one the Thursday before the game.

“This year we suffered a number of injuries to key players in the squad, so through necessity, the squad was culled on its own accord.

“That initial training is really good because it’s a physical sport so it’s not easy to ask players to suddenly play like they’ve all played together before.

“You find a lot of the time that guys who you might not get on all that well with on the field, after you train with them you realise they’re someone you do get on quite well with.

“Some of my best mates are guys who I’ve met during my time playing representative footy, and a lot of them were assistant coaches for me this year.”

Adelaide experienced up to 30mm of rain-fall on Saturday, and the Riverland side was right in the thick of it in Lyndoch.

With the Riverland team experiencing the relatively foreign conditions, Stevens said he was pleased with the way his group adapted.

“It actually came down right at the end of the under 18s game, and it just continued to rain after that, and it was just a cold and wet typical winter’s day in the Barossa,” he said.

“It made it very interesting because as Riverland players we’re used to playing on big ovals in open spaces, and playing fast free-flowing football.

“Midway through the first quarter we had to re-evaluate that and go back to wet weather football, and unfortunately for us, a lot of our players haven’t experienced playing in those conditions.

“It was a class act by the Barossa, they’ve played in it a lot of the time, and were very comfortable with it, and that was the telling factor in the end.

“We started well but as the game went on the ground got slippery and the ball got heavier, and they just started to rise to the front and we missed one percenters, and they made us pay.”

Elsewhere, the under 15s side suffered a 31-point defeat, despite a two-goal afternoon from Barmera-Monash’s Ivan Ness, which proved the only two majors for the visitors.

The under 13s, coached by Brian Gates, went down by 17 points in a low-scoring encounter, while the closest game of the weekend came from the under 18s competition.

Coached by Chris Marks, the 18s fell short by just five points, despite strong efforts from Kaiden Evans (Loxton) and Rhys Wooldridge (Loxton North) who lead the charge, continuing impressive seasons at their respective clubs.

Stevens said the result of the under 18s match showed that the Riverland is in good stead for the future.

“There’s a lot of young, quality footballers getting around the place at the moment, and at least half of the under 18s side has tasted A grade football,” he said.

“You can see that them getting the opportunity to play against those bigger bodies, and more experienced players has helped them out for sure.

“Hopefully they stick around and keep rewarding the clubs for putting time into them, but you can certainly see a lot of quality coming through in the years to come.”

Sullivan enjoys state success with SA

LACHLAN DAND

RENMARK Rowing Club captain Tom Sullivan recently added another accolade to his trophy cabinet, claiming victory with the South Australian masters team at the national championships, in Sydney.

Competing in an eight, Sullivan stood tall on the big stage, with his performance standing out as the state cruised to victory ahead of second-placed Victoria.

Sullivan’s achievement is one he is particularly proud of, having only gotten back into rowing in 2019.

“I’ve just recently come back from the Australian Rowing Masters Championships in Sydney, and winding back a few months ago I got selected for South Australia,” he said.

“I represented in an eight in the championship race, and basically they get the best rowers from across the country and race off, and are awarded with the championships.

“I was in the men’s eight and we managed to win by over a boat length, which made things even sweeter.

“I hadn’t done a lot of representative rowing for quite a while, mainly because I stepped away from sport for quite a while and came back to it casually.

“As I’ve been getting back into it since 2019, my fitness levels gradually increased, but it was the wharf redevelopment in Renmark that had me going down to West Lakes to do a lot of competing.

“I did a sub three-minute ergo which peaked the interest of the coaches, and I got into the team from there, and then the coaches really accelerated my technical development.

“They really look after you and nourish you, I just should have done it earlier because it turns out I missed it a lot.”

Sullivan’s selection, and eventual victory was built on the back of months of hard work, making the journey to Adelaide for gruelling training.

The final session consisted of a training session at West Lakes, in swirling winds, but Sullivan believes it held the team in good stead.

“At the masters they have a very stringent regime, and every week we have to do training every weekend to make sure we’re in shape,” he said.

“For six weekends in a row I’d have to drive down to Adelaide on the Friday, and on the Saturday, we’d have to do 22km sessions together at Port Adelaide with the coaches, and then we’d do it again on Sunday.

“On the last weekend we went to West Lakes for dress rehearsals, so we do our own thing away from the coaches and work it out in some pretty tough conditions on the day.

“That can give us an advantage over the other states because the preparation we put in is so full on.”

Sullivan is hoping to take back some of his experiences to life at Renmark, utilising his knowledge from coaching in Adelaide to help Renmark become as strong of a rowing club as possible.

“It’s mainly around the technique, and putting everything together, but it’s helped me so much with my knowledge that I can pass on,” he said.

“Now that I know what’s required, I can help people prepare for regattas and tell them about my experiences.

“Some people in the club are on the fence a little bit about representing in the masters, but now I can tell them what happens and help them get the confidence to go to that next step.

“One of my biggest regrets is moving away from the sport, which I did to focus on work, and then you find out that sitting in the office without fitness isn’t the best thing for you and other sports just weren’t doing it for me.

“I started off with getting fitness back, and now that I’ve gone back to the national competitive level, I wish I never left it because it just gives you more exposure to the higher levels of the sport.

“I think I thrive in that space, although before I used to shy away from a bit but now I’ve gotten back into it, I’d definitely rather be involved in sport.”

Shep shines for state second XI

LACHLAN DAND

DESPITE being entrenched in winter, one Riverland youngster is continuing to make lengthy strides in the cricket world.

Barmera young gun Shep Humphries is coming off of a whirlwind summer, opening the bowling and playing a key part of the Pelicans’ outfit, while also captaining Berri’s under 16 team to a premiership win.

Recently, the 15 year old was involved in South Australia’s state second XI for his age group, and the youngster said for him it’s all about pace bowling.

“For me it all just started with pathways stuff in January, and they just picked the team from that,” he said.

“I missed the first team, but got invited back after they entered a second team, and put older kids in the second team.

“I ended up having a good carnival with five wickets, but my best figures were when I took 3/9 against Northern Territory.”

Raw pace and an ability to swing the ball both ways is a key strength for Shep, who took 23 wickets in the Riverland’s B grade competition last summer.

He said being self-driven is a great strength, and continuing to think about the game and stay involved in it helps him to success.

“At Berri in the juniors I captained the team, and for me it’s just knowledge, knowing what’s going on most of the time,” he said.

“You always have to keep an eye on the batter and know what their weaknesses are, and try and target that.

“Something that stands out for me the most would be the way I can get at batters.”

Shep knows a lot of work lies ahead of him this Summer, having recently signed on with Adelaide district club Port Adelaide, as well as playing in the Riverland under Pelicans’ captain Kylan Beech.

“I’ve just signed on with them, but it shouldn’t impact playing for Barmera as juniors play on Sunday, so unless I am selected in their senior teams I should be fine to play locally this year too,” he said.

“I just love the game so I never really get sick of it and I’ll just go out for a hit and a bowl whenever I feel like it.

“Kylan has been an awesome captain especially around Barmera, and what he’s done for the club is amazing.

RIVERLAND SAPSASA UPDATE

REPORTS SUPPLIED by PETER SAFRALIDIS

IT was a clear and dry day at Oakbank Racecourse, as our Riverland SAPSASA Cross Country team, as well as our local high school teams and students, competed in the state championships.

This event is massive, drawing more than 2500 students with no divisions, meaning each age group race was a powerful display of raw talent.

Seeing more than 200 competitors explode from the starting line at once is a rare sight, and tricky for competitors to navigate.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE DAY INCLUDED STATE TEAM QUALIFICATION

With primary school students now qualifying directly (secondary students now have to trial through Sport SA), from Oakbank with a top six finish, we had two students who are able to take a place to go to the Gold Coast in September.

Chloe Golding (Waikerie Primary) won silver in the 11-year-old girls’ race, having taken silver for the 10-year old’s last year as well, in the cracking time of 12.12.01, a pace of 4.04 min/km.

Chloe has earned another crack at the nationals with that effort.

- ❑ Zara Bullock (Loxton Primary) finished fourth in the 10-year-old category in her first state cross country event, with a time of 8.24.67 at a pace of 4.12.
- ❑ Our mix of new faces and experienced long-distance runners, who left the course feeling incredibly positive about their efforts.

Many achieved fantastic times and placings, and the invaluable experience gained will undoubtedly contribute to their growth as athletes.

Top 20 placings for the following Riverland students, a great achievement:

- ❑ 11F – 117th – Elsie Thiele (Loxton Primary).
- ❑ 13F – 5th – Mollie Thiele (Loxton High); 18th – Skye Golding (Waikerie Primary).
- ❑ 14M – 10th – Max Liebich (Waikerie High); 18th – Sebastian Coote (St Francis of Assisi).
- ❑ 15F – 7th – Asha Lehmann (Waikerie High); 14th – Isabella Antonopoulos (Berri Regional Secondary College).
- ❑ 15M – 8th – Jake Ingerson (Loxton High).
- ❑ 16F – 17th – Taylah Liebich (Waikerie High).

- ❑ 20M – 13th – Ollie Lang (Renmark High).

Some great efforts for the day and a beneficial learning experience for all.

In the words of our Riverland SAPSASA coach Mr Coote, who also trains so many of our students through his RADs group, “it’s a great experience for Riverlanders to challenge themselves against other athletes from across the state.

“It’s an opportunity to comprehend that this type of running requires not just an athletic ability, but, a well-prepared endurance capacity and mental toughness.

“Running is one of those aspects that is often overlooked by aspiring athletes as a key component to gaining a competitive edge in gaining representative selection in any sport.

“Stay focused and reap the rewards of your determination and commitment.”

MANY THANKS MUST GO TO:

- ❑ Richard Coote, as above for his expert work coaching our team. This year it was great to have him with our Riverland crew on the day (as he has relinquished his state duties) to warm our students up, talk strategy with them and see them when they returned after their races.

All the parents for their help with getting their children to firstly the Riverland day, then training and also Oakbank, including putting their hands up for whichever jobs needed to be done. An extra thank you to the parents who took on the role of warming up and managing an age group.

Well done again to our Riverland cross country competitors. What a great time ‘learning to play and playing to learn.

Careers promoted to Waikerie students

CHRISTINE WEBSTER

WAIKERIE High School’s (WHS) year 10 students were recently given the opportunity to learn about a diverse range of career opportunities from local businesses and services.

The career expo at the school was run in partnership with the Riverland West Chamber of Commerce, and featured 23 stalls.

WHS vocational education and training co-ordinator Matthew McDonald said year 10 students who are studying a subject called ‘Exploring Identities and Futures’ attended.

“These students are undertaking career exploration,” he said.

Mr McDonald said the day was run in a ‘speed dating’ format, where a pair of students talked with a business for four-to-five minutes, and then rotated.

“It is the fifth year we have run this event and it continues to grow,” he said.

Mr McDonald said the expo enabled the students to learn more about the businesses and services in their local community, and develop their communication skills through talking, listening and asking questions to adults they did not know.

He said the students were able to hear the ‘pathway stories’ of many different people, which were valuable for students beginning their own pathway.

Mr McDonald said they were also able to ask specific questions about a job or industry that they may be interested in.

Co-owners of Riverland Irrigation Services, Connor Arnold, and Theo Human speak to students about career opportunities in the irrigation industry at the recent Waikerie High School Career Expo.

The Waikerie High School’s recent career expo featured 23 stalls representing a diverse range of businesses and services in the area.

Opportunity knocks: Funding available for local councils and educators across SA RIVERLAND councils and regional universities, education providers and industry innovators are encouraged to apply for additional funding, available to support projects that help innovate, grow strategic capacity and deliver better outcomes for their communities.

The 2025-26 round of the Local Government Research and Development Scheme, managed by LGA South Australia, has made available more than $1m in support to back innovation and new ideas, focused on empowering councils to trial new approaches, build partnerships and tackle emerging challenges through creative solutions.

LGA president Heather Holmes-Ross said the funding continues to be an important way to unlock efficiencies, deliver sector-wide resources and support projects that make a difference.

"This program has helped the sector take bold steps, test new ideas and work collaboratively in ways that brings real value to local communities," Ms Holmes-Ross said.

"In the last round, we received 37 applications requesting almost $2.5m in funding, a clear indicator of the level of innovation and ambition within our sector and other organisations wanting to collaborate with councils."

Within the projects funded in last year's program are regional workforce shortages, developing nation-leading pest bird management strategies, and exploring needs-based outdoor fitness equipment.

"These projects, though diverse, all reflect the same goal – building a more adaptive, innovative, inclusive and sustainable local government sector," Ms Holmes-Ross said.

Projects eligible for funding must demonstrate measurable long-term benefits and address future local government priorities across six key focus areas:

- ❑ Climate and environment.
- ❑ Community wellbeing and inclusion.
- ❑ Planning and infrastructure.
- ❑ Financial sustainability.
- ❑ Building sector workforce capacity.
- ❑ Strengthening the capability of councils.

"We know great ideas can come from anywhere, and this funding round is about unlocking that potential," Ms Holmes-Ross said.

Applicants are encouraged to consider partnerships, evidence-based approaches and strategies that deliver scalable or replicable models for the local government sector.

An online information session will be held today to guide interested parties through the application process and answer questions about project eligibility and assessment criteria.

Applications for the 2025-26 round close Monday 4 August.

More details, including eligibility guidelines, assessment criteria and the application portal, are available on the LGA website (www.lga.sa.gov.au/research).

Fur Real? Australia Post rollouts new dog deterrent

THE decision to equip posties with the new deterrent, including those in the Riverland, was made due to an alarming number of dog-related incidents in the past six months, introducing this measure as a last-line-of-defence to protect team members from imminent attack.

With more than 44 Posties a week falling victim to a threatening dog – an average of nine per day – Australia Post will be rolling out a new non-harmful, water-based citronella spray that when deployed, the deterrent temporarily distracts the dog, giving the Postie crucial moments to move to safety and call the owner for help.

Building on its international successful use-cases, Australia Post conducted an extensive two-phase trial in some of the worst-affected areas, finding the spray was 80 per cent effective in causing dogs to retreat, leaving Posties unharmed.

The citronella spray program will prioritise high-risk regions first, with all Posties to be equipped with the spray by the end of July. The program will then be extended to parcel delivery drivers, and all team members will be trained on how to use the spray safely and only as a last resort.

Despite repeated appeals for dog owners to secure dogs during deliveries, new Australia Post data reveals over 1150 dog-related incidents have occurred in the past six months.

The growing frequency of parcel deliveries has led to almost 40 per cent of dog incidents taking place on a customer's property with half of those when a front door is opened for a parcel delivery.

Dog incidents occurring on the street account for 57 per cent of all cases, with roaming dogs being a particular concern, accounting for 39 per cent of all street incidents. Half of all other cases on the street were unrestrained dogs escaping a property to attack a Postie.

Australia Post general manager safety Russell Munro said the organisation is constantly looking for ways to better protect frontline team members.

"The safety of our team members is a core value at Australia Post, and despite public awareness efforts and rigorous safety protocols, we continue to see alarming rates of dog-related incidents".

"The best way to avoid dog attacks is to ensure your dog is safely secured behind a locked door or gate when your Postie arrives with your parcel," Mr Munro said.

"We've identified a safe citronella spray deterrent that has proven largely effective in de-escalating incidents. When our people continue to end up in hospital, we have a responsibility to act and this is a last resort measure," Mr Munro said.

In addition to incidents ranging from physical and attempted attacks to chasing and harassing, there are currently 35,000 active dog-related hazards flagged in handheld devices carried by team members, a 20 per cent increase since November last year.

Following the rollout, Australia

Post will continue to analyse incident data and conduct regular reviews of risk management practices. Posties will undergo briefings on how to use the deterrent safely, following strict protocols for use.

Australia Post advises dog owners to follow the three PAWS for Delivery steps: Sit, Stay, Secure.

- ❑ Sit your dog safely in a contained place, separate room, or behind a locked gate at the back of the home when expecting a delivery.
- ❑ Make sure it's somewhere the dog can Stay while your Postie delivers your parcel.
- ❑ Keep your dog Secure behind your door or gate, allowing the Postie safe access to make the delivery and leave the property.
- ❑ If you are unable to properly secure your dog, consider using your nearest free 24:7 Parcel Locker.

Blazers strike a partnership with Sabres

WITH the basketball world currently captivated by an incredible NBA playoffs, and NBA finals, locally, one club is making strides despite the competition being in the middle of the off-season.

The Berri Blazers and NBL1 club Sturt Sabres recently announced a partnership, joining forces to help grow both clubs.

Sturt competes in the competition just below the NBL, Australia’s premier basketball competition, in what is a highly competitive league.

Aimed at strengthening grassroots basketball, Sturt said it was looking forward to creating a development pathway for players and coaches in the Riverland region.

“This collaboration will focus on coaching support and player development, with initiatives including mentoring for local coaches, and joint development camps held in both regions,” a statement to social media read.

“The goal is to help Berri basketballers grow their skills and opportunities, with the long-term vision of enabling more athletes to compete and thrive at higher levels of the game.

“Both clubs share a deep passion for basketball excellence and community development, and we look forward to building a strong, lasting relationship that benefits the sport across South Australia.”

Basketball is one of the fastest-growing sports in Australia, and last season’s

Riverland competition housed 125 teams.

Berri’s division one men’s side were coached by newly appointed development officer Todd Glen, who said the partnership was built on ensuring sustainability in the region.

“A key focus of my role is coaching and player development, and we decided at committee level that partnering up with a professional club would be a perfect way to ensure sustainability to our basketball program,” he said.

“It also allows us access to mentoring, and development opportunities for both players and coaches.

“It creates a linear pathway for any of our players hoping to play at a higher level, having already assisted our Berri division one players Harry and Heath Campbell, who are playing for Sturt under 21s, and division three men respectively this season.

“Recently, myself and club president Mark Howie were invited to Heritage Round, where Sturt hosted Forrestville, and were invited to the rooms, and sat behind the bench with assistant coaches.

“It was a fantastic experience to observe high-level coaching, and playing from the inner sanctum of a professional team.

“Berri Blazers are looking forward to growing our basketball program alongside Sturt Sabres Basketball Club.”

RECENTLY holding the 51st Barry Skinner Handicap Classic on the streets of the Riverland, the region’s local cycling club was well represented.

With numbers filled in the junior and senior grades, last month’s race saw a lot of competitors in action, with junior riders tasting success.

Riverland Cycling Club president Clint Bambrick said he was pleased for the juniors, who finished the race with good results.

“In the juniors we had really good results, and the committee members chipped in with supplying marshals to help keep everything running smoothly,” he said.

“It’s good to see that some of the young kids who are putting in the time and effort to train are reaping some benefits of their work.

“One of the under 13s, Zach Liebich, earlier this year competed at Bright, in Victoria, in the Junior Road Series.

“Jarred Lawrie is one of the under 17s who is going very well, and he’s got a lot of potential, and he loves just trying to get better.

“In terms of the seniors, a few of us have competed in the Super Series in Adelaide, and we’ve had some pretty good results there too.”

While numbers for the club in the seniors are dwindling, junior grades are at an all-time high, and Mr Bambrick said new faces are always welcome.

“Overall, it’s not too bad currently, we’re down on senior members a little bit, but we’ve probably got the most juniors we’ve ever had in the club,” he said.

“We’re always open to new members, and people can just contact us through our Facebook page (Riverland Cycling Club), send us a message, and we can put you into contact with the right people.

“At the moment we’re a pretty tight-knit group, and there’s a lot of camaraderie in the club, so that’s really good.”

Racing action will next be held in October, in Loxton, for the Junior Santini Series, and Mr Bambrick said locals are very supportive of Riverland events.

“There’s a lot of people that come out and watch, and most of the locals who are interested in cycling are either racing or standing on a corner, so it’s always nice seeing a friendly face,” he said.

750 in the books for experienced Aylward

LACHLAN DAND

FOLLOWING an extensive umpiring career all over the state, an official in the Murray Valley Football Netball League (MVFNL)’s competition recently celebrated his 750th game in green.

David Aylward began his field umpiring journey in 1997, in the Adelaide Footy League, having initially kicked off as a boundary umpire.

Aylward is currently officiating in the MVFNL, and reached the special milestone in BSR’s thrilling two-point win over Sedan-Cambrai prior to last weekend’s bye.

Reflecting on his football journey, the 47-year-old said he is thoroughly enjoying the journey of umpiring he is on.

“I actually started as a young 13-year-old doing some boundary umpiring in the Adelaide Footy League,” he said.

“In 1997 I thought I’d save the legs a little bit and do some field umpiring, and I have had a lot of experience in other leagues.

“In 2000 I did some umpiring in the SANFL, and ended up with 57 league games, and then I did a Wizard Cup with the AFL.

“As I was getting a bit older, I cut back a bit and went back locally, spent some time in the Yorke Peninsula league and the Adelaide Plains, and then in 2015 I went back for another nine years in the Adelaide Footy League.

“After that I wanted to change it up so I had a year off, and then I came back into the MVFNL this season.”

Now into its third season of existence having switched over from the Riverland Independents, Aylward believes the standard of the league is a strong one.

Aylward said the key difference of the Murray Valley competitions compared to ones in Adelaide is the pure speed of the game.

“The standard of the competition is at a higher level in the city, but that’s mainly around the pace of the city competition being a bit sharper, and it’s more physical in the country with the farmers,” he said.

“The efforts around the ground are fantastic, and working with some of the other umpires has been great.

“I’ve had no issues, and the league is a really easy one to umpire which is good.”

Now into his 28th year of umpiring, Aylward said the thing that keeps him coming back to umpiring is helping see both players, and fellow officials flourish in the best way, leaning on his experience to guide him through.

“I love supporting mates and being a role model, and that’s something my father always said I flourished in,” he said.

“I thought to come back and help the club umpires that really need it and getting them on the same page as I am is important.

“We’re running out of umpires, and a lot of people aren’t taking it up because of abuse and that’s something I’m trying to get back.

“I’ve been a mentor in junior football, so it’s about helping people communicate, and making sure you take control of the game.

“If you put 110 per cent in, and you work really hard, you’re going to be putting yourself in the best position to succeed, and help the game flourish.”

RENMARK TABLE TENNIS ASSOCIATION

Superstar player Rylan Coppin continued his outstanding 2025 campaign. PHOTO: supplied ROUND five of the Renmark Table Tennis Association closed out the first series of games, and with all teams having played each other it is Backhand Bandits who sit top of the ladder, with a close win over Bits ‘n Bats.

The first match was the close one, with Backhand Bandits beating Bit ‘n Bats 12-12 (46-44) in a count back.

Backhand Bandits took an early lead of four rubbers into the singles after dominating the doubles rubbers.

Bits ‘n Bats will rue the three double matches they lost 3-0, failing to clinch at least one game, which would have made a significant difference in the final result.

In the second match Whack-a-Ball beat Net Ninjas 14-10 (46-44). The match was fairly even all night, with Whack-a-Ball scoring one extra in both the doubles and singles.

With a settled Whack-a-Ball team and three changes required for Net Ninjas, it was hard to read a lot into the match, but Net Ninjas will look to get back in the winning books against Bit Edgy next week, who they defeated 16-8 in Round 1.

The ladder shows the evenness of the competition, with all teams securing a win and suffering a loss in their first four matches.

Backhand Bandits sit clear at the top with Net Ninjas, Whack-a-Ball, and Bit Edgy all following with only percentage separating them.

Bits ‘n Bats bring up the rear, but with a win and close loss to top of the ladder Backhand Bandits, are not far away.

Individually, Rylan Coppin remains the top-ranked player, being yet to lose a game this season.

In the doubles, Alex Riddle is the only player to not lose a doubles’ rubber this season with Jemima Livingston-Bornholm and Byron Livingston-Bornholm following closely, winning 88 per cent of their rubbers.

Riverlanders represent at Country Championships

THE long weekend saw the return of the annual Netball SA Country Championships, held at the state netball stadium in Adelaide, with three Riverland sides in action in wet conditions.

The under 17s, under 15s, and under 13s all competed in the finals series in the respective grades, in what was a successful weekend, with the under 15s cohort tasting the ultimate glory in division two.

The under 15s won through to the division two grand final, ultimately defeating Port Lincoln by 23 goals in the decider under the guidance of former Barmera A1 coach Jane Gartner.

The Riverland side was thrown into the Pool B qualifier against Southern Hills after four group stage defeats, and was able to win through to the division two semi-final against Adelaide Plains.

It was there where the Riverland won through to the decider in a tense two-goal victory, having already won a matchup on Saturday morning.

Elsewhere, the highly touted under 17s group, coached by Chrissy Eleftheriadis, exited in heartbreaking fashion, falling to the Barossa, Light and Gawler by just three goals in the division one semi-final on Monday morning, in a game played outdoors.

A1 regulars in Loxton's Bailey Hahn, Barmera's Meg Kassulke, and North's Maddie Groth impressed throughout the entire weekend, while Berri junior Bella Gates also caught the eye of spectators.

Meanwhile, the under 13s team, coached by Charlie Gates, fell at the final hurdle, going down in the division one grand final against Port Lincoln by nine goals.

Showcasing talent and speed right throughout the weekend under Gates' guidance, the Riverland side proved competitive across the whole weekend.

Under 13s umpires Leah Uren and Deni Eleftheriadis also had successful weekends achieving C grade umpiring badges, while Michelle Pannell earned a B grade badge.

Local business Nippy's supported the players by donating fruit juice and chocolate to assist players in recovery, while Venus Citrus donated mandarins and oranges.

For a further wrap on the Championships, read the June 18 edition of The Murray Pioneer.

Riverland A1 netball will resume this Friday night, with Barmera welcoming Renmark to town, and Loxton on the road to take on Berri.

Sullivan tastes state rowing successes:

LACHLAN DAND

RENMARK Rowing Club captain Tom Sullivan recently added another accolade to his trophy cabinet, claiming victory with the South Australian masters team at the national championships in Sydney.

Competing in an eight, Sullivan stood tall on the big stage, with his performance standing out as the state cruised to victory ahead of second-placed Victoria.

Sullivan's achievement is one he is particularly proud of, having only gotten back into rowing in 2019.

"I've just recently come back from the Australian Rowing Masters Championships in Sydney, and winding back a few months ago I got selected for South Australia," he said.

"I represented in an eight in the championship race, and basically they get the best rowers from across the country and race off, and are awarded with the championships.

"I was in the men's eight and we managed to win by over a boat length which made things even sweeter.

"I hadn't done a lot of representative rowing for quite a while, mainly because I stepped away from sport for quite a while and came back to it casually.

"As I've been getting back into it since 2019, my fitness levels gradually increased, but it was the wharf redevelopment in Renmark had me going down to West Lakes to do a lot of competing.

Dancing on air

OLYMPIANS, comedians, news presenters and podcasters abound as a truly stellar line-up of celebrities make their way into the Dancing with the Stars ballroom on Sunday night for a new season of shimmies, sashays and spins.

Gold Logie winner Rebecca Gibney, comic Shaun Micallef, former The Bachelor host Osher Günsberg and swimming legend Susie O'Neill are among the 12 famous faces undertaking reality TV's ultimate test.

It's taken weeks of intense training, litres of spray tan and metres of sequinned fabric, but they're finally ready to show off their fancy footwork and strut their stuff for judges Craig Revel Horwood, Helen Richey, Sharna Burgess and Mark Wilson.

Packed to the Rafters star Gibney enjoys dancing for exercise and looks forward to showcasing her new skillset when she dances the cha cha with British partner Ian Waite in Sunday's premiere.

"Dancing has always been my happy place," she says.

"It's what I do to make myself feel better if I'm having a bad day. To be given the opportunity to learn a new form of dancing and being taught by an expert was too good to pass up."

Confessing that she gets terrible stage fright despite her showbiz success, Gibney jokes: "I'm hoping if all else fails, I can fake it – use my acting skills – so hopefully [the judges] will be looking at my face and not my feet."

DANCING WITH THE STARS
Seven, Sunday, 7pm

THEME: PLANTS

9-LETTER

Using the nine letters in the grid, how many words of four letters or more can you list? The centre letter must be included and each letter may only be used once. No colloquial or foreign words. No capitalised nouns, apostrophes or plural nouns ending in 's'.

Today's Aim:

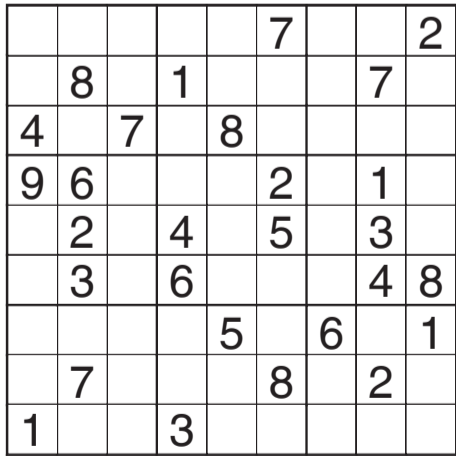

23 words: Good

34 words: Very good

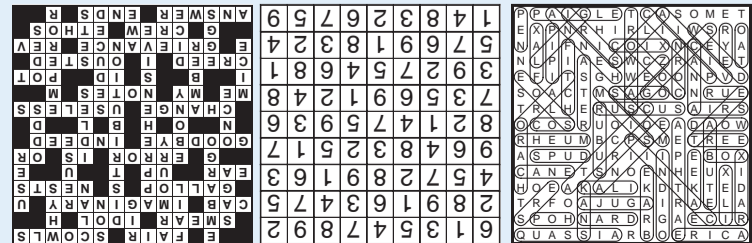

46 words: Excellent

SUDOKU

To solve a Sudoku puzzle, every number from 1 to 9 must appear in: each of the nine vertical columns, each of the nine horizontal rows and each of the nine 3 x 3 boxes. Remember, no number can occur more than once in any row, column or box.

SOLUTIONS

June 2025: week 2

Horoscopes

ARIES
MAR 21ST - APR 20TH

You may be feeling a little insecure at the moment, but you should not go back on a move which you know makes sense. Stick to your guns, even if your decision isn't popular with everyone! Romance. A friend who wants to get to know your partner could stir up jealousies, possibly without realising it.

GEMINI
MAY 22ND - JUN 21ST

A group project will become very difficult to implement if you are not completely co-operative. You may have to fit in with other people's plans whether you want to or not. Romance. A person whom you meet in a familiar place will help you to understand yourself a little better. Listen carefully to what this person tells you.

LEO
JUL 24TH - AUG 23RD

A deal later in the week will work out much better than you have been anticipating. If you hold your ground you will force the other person to back down and make concessions. Romance. You will appreciate your partner's sensitive approach to a situation which could otherwise have been quite difficult.

LIBRA
SEP 24TH - OCT 23RD

You might not want to know what has been happening behind your back. You will find out when the time is right! Romance. A rather unsubtle gesture by a friend may be a little embarrassing at first. This person is interested in getting to know you better, but may not be able to express themselves very well.

SAGITTARIUS
NOV 23RD - DEC 21ST

A misunderstanding will end much more peacefully than it began. The other person concerned has some views which are quite different from your own, but you have a surprising amount of common ground. Romance. A long conversation with your partner will bring out feelings that you may not have been aware of before.

AQUARIUS
JAN 21ST - FEB 19TH

A difficult aspect to Mars could bring some powerful energy to the surface. Be careful not to let a discussion veer off track and end up in an argument. Romance. A person whom you meet at work will want to see much more of you. Take the time to get to know this new admirer properly before you make a move.

TAURUS
APR 21ST - MAY 21ST

Be careful not to spend more money than you can afford. You could be tempted to splash out on an expensive item which ends up costing more than you expect. Romance. The Moon/Juno Midpoint now in your sign will make you think much more seriously about your relationship.

CANCER
JUN 22ND - JUL 23RD

A powerful aspect to Saturn later in the week will help you to deal with an issue which has been brewing for some time. You need a very practical, down-to-earth approach which avoids taking too many risks. Romance. Don't be too secretive about your intentions. At some stage you will have to come clean and explain what you are going to do!

VIRGO
AUG 24TH - SEP 23RD

A long discussion with a friend will raise more questions than it answers. Try to get to grips with the original problem before you tackle the next one! Romance. It won't be long before a new relationship heats up! You will soon have to make a difficult decision.

SCORPIO
OCT 24TH - NOV 22ND

Good communications will help you to work out what it is that has come between you and a close friend. It may be less than you think! Romance. Your partner will appreciate some encouragement. An honest discussion later in the week will help to bring you much closer together.

CAPRICORN
DEC 22ND - JAN 20TH

A challenging aspect to Pluto could bring a few surprises out of the closet. A secret which you have been doing your best to keep under wraps will finally come out. Romance. A long discussion with your partner will help to make it easier for you to understand a recent disagreement between you.

PISCES
FEB 20TH - MAR 20TH

If you try to mix business with pleasure you could get into quite deep water. Be careful about a situation which is hard to get out of. Romance. You may need to move quite quickly in order to take advantage of some recent changes. Listen to the advice of a close friend.

ANDY LEE'S NEW FAMILY SERIES PREMIERES ON ABC IN JULY

ANDY Lee's new animated series Do Not Watch This Show premieres at 6am, on Friday July 4, on ABC iView, based on Lee's best-selling book series Do Not Open This Book. Families will be delighted to defy Wizz, a blue monster who refuses to accept that he is the star of a TV show and is desperate for kids to switch it off. Wizz, voiced by Lee, goes to hilarious lengths to deter his audience, which only makes him more appealing. In each of the 12 episodes, the audience is desperate to answer the ultimate question – why doesn't Wizz want us to watch the show? They will discover ridiculous, outrageous, limitless reasons why. The all-star cast features Denise Scott, Joel Creasey, Kura Forrester and Dave Hughes, with art direction by the book's illustrator Heath

McKenzie. The series also features cameos from Hamish Blake, Glenn Robbins, Carrie Bickmore, Tony Armstrong, Pete Smith, Broden Kelly, Jack Post, Rebecca Harding, Mick Molloy, Ben Fordham and Chrissie Swan. Always free and Always entertaining, watch all of your favourite Family programs on ABC iView now.
