Loxton loses long-serving council employee

WELL-KNOWN Loxton man John Sylvia died suddenly last week.

Mr Sylvia, 62, was an employee of the District Council of Loxton and District Council of Loxton Waikerie for 39 years and retired two weeks ago.

The Murray Pioneer understands Mr Sylvia died as a result of an accident at home and SAPOL is preparing a report for the coroner.

Mr Sylvia is survived by his children.

Debut of The Pioneer’s new TV guide

READERS of The Murray Pioneer will see a new TV guide format inside today’s edition.

The regular TV section has now been expanded and improved to include a seven-day schedule of all 15 free-to-air channels.

Also make sure to take full advantage of the numerous outstanding voucher deals for Riverland businesses that will appear in the lift out each and every week.

Today’s deals are from Riverland Sunfresh, Renmark Club, Renmark Fish & Chips, Hoods Agrimotive, Koch’s Foodland and Koch’s Local Cellars.

Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone has been highly critical of the SA Government over an agreement with NSW that has resulted in a sludge of blue-green algae water being sent downstream to South Australia.

Government downplays blue-green algae risk

A BLUE-green algae sludge making its way downstream from NSW poses little health risk to SA River Murray communities, the State Government says.

Last week Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone and Riverland-based MLC Dr Nicola Centofanti were scathing in their criticism of the government over the issue, claiming the health of people and livestock had been put at risk.

The Liberal duo targeted SA Environment and Water Minister Dr Susan Close, accusing her of deliberately keeping South Australians in the dark over an agreement with NSW that saw environmental water released from Menindee Lakes from last Saturday onwards.

However, a government spokesperson this week described the water as “mainly

NSW blue-green algae sludge headed our way

“We need answers to serious questions and Susan Close needs to explain her shocking capitulation that could put locals in danger.”

“When did Susan Close agree to this secret blue-green algae sludge?”

“Why has Susan Close kept this blue-green algae sludge secret from South Australians?”

The press release from the New South Wales Government last week announced 45,000cLGL

“Last week’s Murray Pioneer non-toxic blue-green algae”.

The spokesperson conceded the release “may have some impact on water quality”, but said it was expected to be safe.

“While River Murray water could appear cloudier than usual, and have an odour, it is not expected to cause any risks to public health,” the spokesperson told The Murray Pioneer.

“SA Water is currently sampling the lower Darling River to inform water treatment processes and river operations.

“The ongoing monitoring will inform whether there is any need for future public health warnings, in line with established protocols.

“The Department for Environment and Water (DEW) officers are working with the MDBA, environmental water holders and other government agencies on mitigation strategies to minimise water quality impacts in South Australia.

“This includes mixing and diluting with water released from other storages, varying weir pool levels, and diverting a portion to Lake Victoria.”

In a blistering attack in parliament last week, Mr Whetstone accused Dr Close – the Deputy Premier – of “making light of an issue that is of paramount importance to every South Australian”.

Mr Whetstone said Dr Close made a “snide remark” when questioned about the environmental flush, and that government members laughed along.

A RENMARK local has received one of the nation’s highest honours for his decades of work toward community health and fitness. Renmark man Alan Coulter, 79, was on Sunday named as an Order of Australia medal recipient in the 2024 King’s Birthday Honours list.

Mr Coulter said being told he would receive the award was surprising news. “When I found out about the nomination, I was in disbelief,” he said. “I was honoured and humbled at the same time. “I was completely caught off guard. I had no idea that I had been recommended. “I feel there would be a conglomerate of past and present clients who have contributed to this. To those I say thank you.” Mr Coulter said seeing positive change in those he works with was personally rewarding. “My motivation comes from seeing young athletes breaking their personal records, teams winning premierships, major post-operative knee and hip replacement clients improving their range of joint movement, and working with clients suffering serious illness to improve their quality of life,” he said. Mr Coulter was manager of the Renmark Recreation Centre from 1984 to 2016, overseeing the ongoing development and improvement of the facility. Mr Coulter is current coach for the Vitor Renmark Amateur Swimming Club, and a lecturer for the South Australian Sports Medicine Association. He has previously also been involved with the Renmark Rovers, Renmark Netball Club, Renmark Marathon Rowing Team, and a clinical educator at TAFE SA. A statement regarding Mr Coulter’s award states he “will leave a lasting legacy to his local community, in more ways than one”.

Riverland’s fruit fly outbreak tally remains at 51 total

NO new Queensland fruit fly outbreaks were declared between 21 May to 3 June, with the total number of outbreaks remaining at 51. Of these outbreaks, 20 have not recorded a fruit fly detection within the last 12 weeks and some have been without a detection for more than a year. New extensions apply in the existing Glossop outbreak area. As the winter season sets in, the Department of Primary Industries and Regions (PIRSA) will briefly pause its sterile fruit fly releases in the Riverland and will recommence them later in the year. PIRSA’s fruit fly emergency response incident controller Jason Size said that “Sterile Insect Technique (SIT) works when sterile flies breed with wild flies to break the life cycle, but that cooler weather reduces wild fly presence – as well as the impact of SIT”. “SIT is one of our best tools to stop wild fruit fly breeding more generations,” Mr Size said. “We have released more than

1.5 billion sterile flies into the Riverland to break the chain of those wild populations and they’ve been out there doing their job to disrupt the breeding cycle.” Mr Size explained that during winter, Queensland fruit fly adjusts its life cycle to remain underground as pupae for a longer period than it does in warmer weather. “Cooler weather means sterile flies will have a lower chance of finding wild flies to breed with, and also a lower chance of reducing their breeding numbers,” he said. “We’ll continue releasing SIT flies at Renmark until the week of 17 June.” The end date for all Riverland outbreaks is currently 23 December 2024 but this may change if more fruit flies are detected. For more information about the fruit fly, self-baiting, or the latest outbreak advice, visit (www.fruitfly.sa.gov.au) or call the fruit fly hotline on 1300 666 010.

Telstra outage wipes out all three local councils... ‘It’s just not good enough’

STEPHANIE THOMPSON

TELSTRA is “sincerely sorry” for the impact of a cloud service crash last week that continues to “cripple” all three local councils.

The outage is continuing to impact Loxton Waikerie, Berri Barmera and Renmark Paringa councils, rendering them unable to complete almost all core functions.

District Council of Loxton Waikerie CEO David Beaton said the cloud service outage was “just not good enough”.

“To be out for six business days is an extraordinary long period of time,” he said.

“We haven’t had access to phones, people haven’t been able to ring the council, and people haven’t been able to get online to pay their rates.

All three councils use a Telstra cloud service, hosted from a data centre in Victoria.

A Telstra spokesperson said it was a “highly complex issue” to resolve.

“Our teams, together with our partners, have been working around the clock to bring it back online,” the spokesperson said.

“While we’ve done this work, we’ve also been working with our impacted customers to find alternative solutions with over 80 percent of all impacted customers now fully or partially restored.”

Renmark Paringa Council, along with Berri Barmera and Loxton Waikerie councils, have been experiencing a week-long Telstra service outage, leaving council staff unable to perform numerous functions. FILE IMAGE

The Telstra spokesperson said cloud service access restoration was under way.

“Renmark Paringa, Loxton Waikerie and Berri Barmera councils have been working with us and our partner on a transition to a Microsoft cloud platform and we expect the first of their services to be restored today (Monday),” the spokesperson said.

“This transition was planned prior to this issue as we will be closing the service that experienced the outage later this year, however, we’ve accelerated their move given the issue.

“We’re sincerely sorry for the impact this issue has had on our customers and their residents.”

As part of the outage, councils are without access to data and various phone, email and electronic systems.

“The staff are going back and doing manual tasks because they can’t get onto the system because it’s all in the cloud,” Mr Beaton said.

In a media release last Friday, Berri Barmera CEO Tim Pfeiffer said the outage was having “profound” effects on the Riverland community.

“It is astonishing in this day and age for an outage to last so long,” he said.

“We are currently at day six of this Telstra CSX outage, despite having a service level agreement that allows outages of no more than two hours.

“The three Riverland councils do not currently know when or even if Telstra will be able to restore our cloud services.”

Meanwhile, Telstra mobile users in Barmera may have temporary disruptions over the next week.

A Telstra spokesperson said third party works are being carried out at Barmera’s mobile base station.

“While Optus undertakes some upgrade works at the site, Telstra has been asked to shut down its mobile base station in Barmera during the hours of 7am to 5pm between Tuesday 11 June to Tuesday 18 June,” the spokesperson said.

“Telstra mobile customers will receive text messages advising them of the upcoming works.

“Landline services and NBN internet services will not be impacted.

“The site will be online at the end of each work day.”

Applications open for reconciliation grants

RIVERLAND community groups seeking to promote reconciliation outcomes are encouraged to apply for an annual funding program.

SA Water last month opened applications for its 2024-25 Reconciliation Partnerships Program, also known as Pirku-Itya.

SA Water manager of brand and community connection, Kellie McDonald, said promoting “stronger communities through reconciliation-based activities” was an ongoing goal of the initiative.

“Since 2020, we have worked together with 22 organisations across regional and metropolitan areas through Pirku-Itya,” Ms McDonald said.

“As we enter the fourth year of the program, we’re excited to continue our support for organisations committed to creating positive change within their communities.

“We’re looking for groups who are working towards positive reconciliation goals while also promoting the health and wellbeing of active, thriving communities through a cooler or greener environment, or are showcasing proactive environmental leadership.

“We recognise the important role that communities play in encouraging reconciliation within communities as well as caring for land and water, and we want to work collaboratively with these groups to achieve our shared vision of a sustainable future.”

The program provides grants of up to $10,000

Applications for the 2024-25 Pirku-Itya program close on 21 July, with further information available by visiting the website (sawater.com.au/).

A woolly good weekend in Barmera

ALEXANDRA BULL

THE Barmera Sheep Dog Trials concluded on Sunday, with “particularly good crowds” over the weekend.

Around 40 dogs competed over the five days, with 440 sheep coming from around the Riverland.

“It went well,” trial organiser Bob Clark said.

“We had particularly good crowds on Saturday and Sunday, especially all around the oval and they would all clap when a competitor got the sheep through an obstacle, which was really nice.”

Highlights over the five days included the iconic ‘Running of the Sheep’ event down Barwell Avenue, Barmera, and a sky diving tribute to two long-term trailers who had been working alongside Mr Clark for 42 years.

“The skydiver came down with a flag that said ‘Bill and Helen’, and we played a lovely song from The Titanic as he was coming down; that was a real tearjerker,” he said.

“The running of the sheep went well. We had a lot of the people there; the sheep did the right thing and we didn’t lose any.”

The winners of each category were:

- ❑ Young Handler – Charlotte Cross working Rivercoe Roy
- ❑ Novice – Rex Hocking working Washpool Genie
- ❑ Improver – James Cairns working Jones Jeff
- ❑ Open – Stefan Cross working Echo Park Bazza

❑ Trans Tasman – Tom Joyce working Oakdowns Sammy

“I just want to thank all the sponsors,” Mr Clark said.

“Smooth Flow Traffic Management, they were a great help. Anything I wanted I got from them, even signs on the road, the whole lot.

“All the local sponsors, they are great. They come up every year and I would like to thank them very much, we couldn’t run it without their support.”

THE YEARS GO BY

BY PETER AND CARLA MAGAREY

Budget of many sides

WAS the Riverland a state budget winner?

Last week’s release of the budget, while containing relatively few direct references to the Riverland, will still impact the area in a number of ways.

To first look at the big local win, the announcement of more that $40 million in extra funding for fruit fly will undoubtedly be of benefit.

Most of that funding has been earmarked for ‘the regions’, likely meaning the Riverland, and if directed correctly could expand upon the measures that are proving successful in the battle to eradicate the pest, at a crucial time when the tide appears to be turning in PIRSA’s favour.

This could mean further increasing the number of sterile flies being released around the Riverland, expanding baiting and trapping, or even increasing the monitoring of backyard fruit trees.

Ideally, the funding would also help create a foundation to ensure that after the current target of eradication is achieved, the Riverland’s protections against any new incursions of fruit fly are strengthened, perhaps with an increased presence at Blanchetown or Yamba, to keep highlighting the message that outside produce being brought into the region is a risk.

Somewhere in the middle of the Riverland budget scorecard lies the announcements surrounding the River Murray. A section of the local public will label investment into the health of the river, and its wildlife, as a wise directive.

There is logic behind this, as we all need the river ecosystem to be sustainable in the long-term.

However, an opposite side of the public will view that approach with scepticism, and weariness that initiatives to benefit the environment are being prioritised over the water resource needs for Riverland irrigation and primary production.

Finally, we get to the area where perhaps the Riverland fared less favourably in the budget. It might have been a little unsurprising, but the lack of economic support for local wine grape growers – outside of funding for the Family and Business Support Program – will be taken as a stark omission by some.

Although it seemed as though any support initiatives would need to be co-ordinated at both a federal and state level, the State Government will now have to stick behind its industry blueprint plan and, like many of the region’s growers, see what outcomes global market forces draw us toward.

More widely, we also saw funding announced for housing and agriculture, yet nothing to improve safety on the Sturt Highway.

It then seems answering the opening question is a bit dependent on personal perspectives, but there will be some key indicators down the track of whether or not these were successful investments.

Gottfried and Clara (née Ernst) Quast (1921), their house and outbuildings on river-slopes opposite Stanitzki Road, Bookpurnong, mid-1920s. Workers’ accommodation (right), and car-shed (centre). Gottfried (German for Geoffrey, ‘peace of God’), 10th of 13 children of Wilhelm and Ernstine (née Fielke) Quast, was born in 1876, in Oliventhal, near Birdwood, then known as Blumberg. Gottfried’s parents had separately migrated from Prussia in the 1850s. Gottfried came to Bookpurnong as a 20-year-old cereal farmer in 1896. He was the first of four of his family to come from farms near Mannum, to farms near Loxton’s Hut. The others were Paul (Bookpurnong, 1902), Minnie (Mrs AWR Drabsch, Loxton, 1902), and Charlie (Taplan Road, 1910). Gottfried, on his journey to Bookpurnong with a wagonload of equipment and supplies, became lost for a while, as so dense was the mallee scrub. Years later, he recalled the old Loxton Hut (which stood by the pepper-tree adjacent to the present-day Historical Village) was ‘practically in ruins’, while the tree ‘was flourishing’ and the township of Loxton was ‘a windswept hillside with a few pines, and bushes’. Gottfried and older brother Paul worked well together and endured some tough, droughted seasons. Gottfried’s house later became ‘Rivergum Holiday Home’. Vale ‘Buck’ Sylvia BAD news regarding the late John Sylvia’s accidental death last Friday.

His father, who worked for many years as a ‘Mr Fix-it’ on the old Loxton Council, was ‘old Buck’, hence John was commonly called ‘young Buck’.

I worked closely with him, as he was the go-to man when I was on the Loxton Recreation Grounds Committee.

He had followed his dad around as a boy and knew where all the valves, pipes and similar paraphernalia existed.

A sad end for an industrious bloke.

Response to latest leadership summit

THE Murray–Darling Basin Authority (MDBA) remains steadfast in the commitment to transparency and engagement as preparations continue for the 2026 Basin Plan Review.

Following the two-day Basin Leadership Summit in Sydney, on 16 and 17 April, the MDBA has released a report summarising discussions of approximately 100 participants with diverse views on the environmental, cultural, economic, and social outcomes for the basin.

The summit assembled more than 2400 years of collective experience in Basin water management to gather diverse perspectives to inform preparations for the 2026 Basin Plan Review.

The Basin Leadership Summit – Output Report reflects the variety of perspectives and aspirations for a healthy Basin as expressed by summit participants, which included Authority members, Basin Community Committee members, basin governments, First Nations peoples, representatives from the environment, industry, science, natural resource management and tourism sectors, and local governments.

In consideration of the Output Report, the Authority report to the Basin Leadership Summit responds to the reflections, suggestions and tangible ideas offered during the Summit.

The Authority recognises the significant opportunity afforded through the Basin Plan Review to build confidence in basin management by focusing on outcomes.

Significant goodwill was demonstrated by all parties during the summit to listen, hear, and accommodate different perspectives on future basin management.

While there are natural tensions in the outcomes sought at a local and basin scale, people are united in their passion for their communities and the basin, and acknowledge the value of an overarching, basin management framework.

The observations made regarding current progress and obstacles for Basin Plan implementation provide the Authority with a clear view of the challenges and the opportunities, both through the extended implementation of the Basin Plan and those to consider via the review.

The summit attendees identified a range of ideas to consider and areas of common ground that may be further pursued through collaborative efforts and will inform the Authority’s early insights to be shared at River Reflections this June.

The Authority will seek to incorporate as many of these proposals within the work supporting the Basin Plan Review, but note many ideas for co-operation, for example carp control or land use planning, extend beyond the remit and scope of the MDBA’s responsibilities.

The Basin Plan Review provides the opportunity to consider how we take an outcomes-based approach, including suggestions from the Summit to:

- ❑ Be clear on the assumptions that underpin our recommendations, as we include new information and knowledge
 - ❑ Move beyond a singular focus on water recovery and water volumes to achieve environmental improvement and sustainable communities
 - ❑ Consider a more integrated approach to improve basin health.
- The Basin Leadership Summit marked the key step in establishing open lines of conversation among diverse stakeholders.
- The Authority intends to hold two or three similar events to continue informing the 2026 Basin Plan Review and welcomes contributions from summit participants on how best to achieve this.
- As Chair of the Authority, I thank all involved for their courage and collaboration offered through the summit. I acknowledge the passion and commitment with which everyone engaged on matters affecting the basin and encourage that same passion to endure as we continue discussions informing the Basin Plan Review.
- I welcome basin communities to join us at the River Reflections conference in June to hear our early insights on the Basin Plan Review, workshop ideas for future basin management and the opportunity to continue discussions initiated at the Summit.

Kneecapping future of agriculture?

THE Federal Budget is out and the Federal Government is pedalling a $22.7bn Future Made in Australia package, which is rather ironic, when on the other hand they are stripping the guts out of one of their key economic drivers for rural communities and our country – irrigated agriculture.

The Federal Government and Minister for Water Tanya Plibersek are determined to plunder another 700GL away from productive agriculture via their restoring our rivers bill and other basin plan program shortfalls.

Albo’s government can’t have it all. On one hand they want Australia to be an indispensable part of the global economy and yet they are taking water away from irrigation and our ability to produce staple food and generate wealth by wasting water out to sea at South Australia.

Labor need to change their colour from red to green.

Irrigation underpins so many facets of our rural communities, from small local business and transport to major industry and manufacturing.

I can’t see how Australia can become a huge player in the global economy when agriculture is continually kneecapped.

It is a well-known fact that every dollar generated by agriculture has a flow on effect of between $4 to $7 into the wider community, depending on the commodity.

I would like to know what the Albanese government is going to replace this major economic driver with, when they buy back the majority of productive water we have in our irrigation footprint.

It is just absolute madness in my view. Not only does the Labor government want to shut irrigation down, they are also refusing to enlighten the public on the real cost of buying this water, suppressing this information in the budget and stating it is not for publication.

Not only do you have the initial cost of buying back water, you will also lose billions of dollars of potential economic generation year after year and its radio silence.

We can hardly become an economic powerhouse when we won’t even be able to produce enough food to feed our nation

More needed to ease pressure on elderly

THE State Budget has not gone far enough to ease the pressure on older South Australians amid a cost of living and housing crisis, according to COTA SA, the state’s peak body for 700,000 South Australians aged over 50. Older South Australians on low incomes will appreciate the additional $243.90 cost-of-living payment this month. COTA SA is also pleased to see that renters and Commonwealth Senior Health Card holders will have their concession amount doubled to match that of homeowners.

This is particularly important for the growing population of older renters, who are among the most financially-disadvantaged as they juggle the increasing costs of housing, food, energy and fuel, often on low and fixed incomes.

While any relief is welcome, older people will be aware that in reality, this relief is at a similar level to what they received last year through state and federal budget measures.

While the relief level has barely increased, their energy bills and household expenses are continuing to skyrocket.

COTA SA’s 2024-25 State Budget submission outlined three key priorities for investment to address the needs of older South Australians across health, housing and ageing well in regional South Australia.

We are glad to see the ambulance electronic patient management system is finally on its way. This is something that we have advocated for strongly and agree that will make a difference and improve patient safety and quality of care by transferring crucial information to first responders.

We were disappointed that our call for free ambulances for South Australians on the full age pension was overlooked, yet again. South Australia is one of the last states to provide free ambulance services to aged pensioners, who are among our most vulnerable health consumers.

With the highest ambulance call-out fees in Australia, cost is a real barrier that prevents older people from calling an ambulance, even when their condition is serious.

At a time when the State Government is reaping record levels of stamp duty from rising home values, this money is not finding its way into investment in public housing stock, when it is so desperately needed.

We acknowledge the announcements about new housing developments, however the net increase in public housing stock is simply not sufficient to meet the demand. We join with SACOSS in calling for at least 1000 new public housing properties a year to have any chance of keeping up.

Given the growing risk of homelessness for older women, COTA SA was surprised to see this group were not named in either the housing or women’s budget announcements.

We will continue to advocate for the State Government to invest in implementing the recommendations from the Improving Housing Security for Older Women report.

Older people living regionally will be left wondering what was in this Budget for them.

COTA SA will continue to advocate for much-needed investment in transport, health access and digital connectivity, so that South Australians can age well in the regional communities that they love.

PRIMARY Producers SA (PPSA) has welcomed the State

Government’s ongoing support of biosecurity measures to eradicate fruit fly in yesterday’s State Budget, as well as renewed funding for rural financial counselling to support farming businesses.

While there are limited headlines for primary industries arising from the budget, PPSA has also welcomed a relatively stable operating budget and workforce for the Department of Primary Industries and Regions (PIRSA).

PPSA was particularly pleased to see programs that focus on economic development, international trade and market access continue to be part of PIRSA’s work program over the next 12 months.

We welcome the total package of $686.4m of new measures that support regional SA in this year’s budget. PPSA acknowledges the broader economic challenges facing the government in casting the budget, including the need to address cost-of-living pressures and persistent inflation impacting households.

With SA unemployment reaching the lowest level in five decades, the tight labour market remains a challenge to the agribusiness, food, and wine sector. PPSA will continue work with government to address workforce planning issues facing the sector, while the $9m to support skills and training programs in regional areas will be of great benefit.

To boost regional workforce participation, we want to ensure budget measures that focus on health services, public education, housing affordability, and reforming early childhood education also benefit rural communities.

Additional funding of $17.5m over three years was a welcome step to address the chronic backlog of road maintenance in regional SA.

Agriculture plays a critical role in the state economic agenda to strengthen SA’s green economic credentials, including the state’s target to achieve net zero emissions by 2050.

To this end, we are pleased to see the ongoing commitment of $24.4m over five years towards net zero agriculture. This funding aims to develop and deliver innovation and on-farm solutions, and to support the upskilling of the agricultural sector to reduce emissions through low emission intensity farming systems.

We look forward to seeing SARDI play a key role in helping the farm sector adapt to climate change and support carbon farming initiatives, by delivering research to inform a future low-emission intensity farming systems strategy.

90 years of smiling and laughing

ALEXANDRA BULL

A PARINGA resident is getting ready to celebrate his 90th birthday this weekend.

Alby Godfrey, who was born in June 1934, will celebrate the milestone at the Berri Hotel this weekend, with over 100 of his nearest and dearest.

Mr Godfrey who first came to the Riverland in 1948 to pick grapes, stayed here for three months before moving on to work in Broken Hill, but has been permanently based in the Riverland for 30 years now.

“It’s been beautiful, the Riverland is a lot better than the city,” he said.

“I am still going fairly good at 90.”

Mr Godfrey was married for almost 62 years, sadly losing his wife, Val, in August last year, and has two children and six grandchildren.

“Back in the old days I played tennis,” he said.

“I played football for Morgan in 1955 and 1956 and claimed back-to-back flags.

“I also loved playing table tennis.”

Since he retired, Mr Godfrey has taken up woodwork and craft making, and said his favourite thing about living in the Riverland is the “peace and freedom”.

“You can’t just sit down and do nothing, you have got to find something to do and keep doing it,” he said.

The secret to a long and happy life according to Mr Godfrey is to just “keep smiling and laughing”.

“Just plod along and keep doing something,” he said.

A RIVERLAND council’s project to upgrade a major Renmark road and increase safety in the town’s CBD has been finished. Renmark Paringa Council recently completed the final stage of the Government Road Strategic Freight Route Upgrade. The final stage of the project included realignment of intersections, improved drainage, undertaking a full pavement reconstruction including sealing shoulders, increasing the seal width and aligning the road to create improved road geometry. Renmark Paringa Council chief executive officer Tony Siviour said the completed upgrade would divert heavy vehicles away from Renmark’s town centre. “Council has been working on the Government Road heavy freight bypass project for the past five years,” Mr Siviour said. “The aim of the project is to reduce heavy freight traffic in the Renmark town centre by providing linkages from the National Highway to Ral Ral Avenue.

“This project has been made possible by securing $5m in external funding from the Special Local Roads Program (SLRP). “A significant improvement in the functionality of Government Road has been achieved by increasing the sight distance for drivers and widening the road from 6.4m to 9m. We are currently conducting our final road safety audit, which includes reviewing the current speed limit of the road.”

WHY WAIT?

Elders expo back for 2024

THE team at Loxton Elders are looking forward to hosting producers and local town folk to their second Annual Ag Expo, being held tomorrow 13 June.

Rural products sales manager Donna Felder said “it is set to be a massive day with something for everyone and we can’t wait to show one and all what we can now offer”.

Having been at our new site for almost two years, the store’s product range has been expanded to include many items for those who have smaller hobby-type properties, and even for the everyday homeowner.

The expo is not only product focused, there are many services that we can offer and this is a great opportunity for people to speak directly to the experts and explore the many ways we can help. Now offering home lending, personal finance and insurance, Elders are here to support both those in ag and throughout the greater community.

There will also be a door prize on offer, with a UE Boom speaker up for grabs for one lucky attendee. Check out Elders Loxton Facebook page for a sneak peak of the catalogue.

The Elders Loxton Annual Expo will be held tomorrow, from 12pm to 5pm, at 23 Badcoe Road, Loxton.

After repeatedly repairing a section of Hoskin Road, in Berri, the local council has decided to upgrade the surface from bitumen to concrete. PHOTO: Paul Mitchell

Concrete plan for bad Berri road

A RIVERLAND-first concrete road – that will require little or no maintenance – is being constructed at a Berri trouble spot.

A section of Hoskin Road, running between Bunnings and Foodbank, is undergoing a major upgrade from bitumen to concrete, after the local council grew tired of having to perform patch-ups.

Work began on the road late last month, and council said staff “repeatedly repairing” a section of the road – situated at the entrance to the bulk fuel site behind Bunnings – prompted the decision to use concrete.

“It is more financially efficient for council to do the job properly and build this small road section from reinforced concrete than to be frequently repairing the bitumen,” council CEO Tim Pfeiffer told The Murray Pioneer.

Contractors were engaged to start removing the damaged section of road and road base from the final week in May, with a completion date of 5 August.

During the redevelopment access along the impacted section of road is down to single-lane traffic and controlled via electronic stop/go traffic lights.

The section leading up to and beyond the building site is also under speed restrictions and the work zone itself is 25km/h for the duration of the project.

Berri Barmera Council said it apologises for any delay the restrictions may cause.

Planning approval for roundabout servo

PLANNING permission has been granted for the development of a new service station between two main Riverland towns.

The Riverland Regional Assessment Panel at its meeting held on 18 April passed a motion to grant planning consent for a retail fuel outlet and motor repair station, to be located just before the roundabout between Monash and Renmark, at 19128 Sturt Highway, Monash.

The development application was put forward by Adelaide-based company Woolcock Construction.

Conditions placed upon the development included:

- ❑ Signage shall not contain any element of LED or LCD display, except for the fuel prices on the pylon signs. The fuel prices shall be white characters on a black background.
- ❑ Signage shall not flash, scroll, move or change, with the exception of the LED fuel price signs, which may change on an as-needs basis.
- ❑ Signage shall not be permitted to operate in such a manner that could result in impairing the ability of a road user by means of high levels of illumination or glare. Accordingly, all illuminated signs visible from the arterial road network shall be limited to a low level of illumination, except in the case of electronic signage, which shall be limited.
- ❑ Any floodlighting associated with the site shall be positioned and/or shielded so as to not produce glare or create a distraction for passing motorists on the abutting roads.

Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone says Riverland roads and health service issues were missing from last week's state budget. PHOTO: supplied

Riverland issues missing in budget, says Tim

IMPROVEMENTS for Riverland roads and health services were overlooked in the State Budget, according to a senior local politician.

Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone said the new state budget – released last week – failed to address issues on a number of major local roads.

“The $20m funding for flood-affected Riverland roads is a four-year planning exercise with no commitment to upgrades and no real action,” Mr Whetstone said.

“The Truro Freight Route, Wentworth Road, the Lyrup Causeway, Old Sturt Highway and others are all in need of urgent repair.

“I am committed to working with the community and all levels of government to see these roads improved through to completion.”

Mr Whetstone said resources were also needed to increase access to local health services.

“Healthcare in the Riverland and Mallee is an issue of ongoing concern that people speak to me about right across our region, and the State Budget has not delivered certainty for our regional health services, particularly mental health,” he said.

“The government has spruiked $2.5bn into the health system, prioritising metro Adelaide, yet there is little commitment for additional money to flow to our Riverland and Mallee hospitals.”

Mr Whetstone said a lack of direct support for Riverland grape growers “failed to recognise the enormous contribution made to the state’s economy”.

“I was hopeful we would see funding to support the Wine Industry and struggling grape growers, and I am disappointed this did not eventuate,” he said.

“Agriculture is one of the biggest contributors to the economy, yet this government fails to invest in the future of one of the state’s largest economic exports.”

“This is another budget full of empty promises from the State Government. People in Chaffey should ask themselves, are they better off under this Labor government?”

Mr Whetstone said more cost-of-living relief was required for Riverland families.

“While every household and family face a cost-of-living crisis, Labor is collecting more taxes,” he said.

“Cost-of-living pressure will balloon through an increased Emergency Services Levy and government fees – levies expected to disproportionately impact regional ratepayers.

“My biggest concern is that while Labor racks up almost $50bn in debt, it leaves our future generations to clean up their mess.”

PAGE 15 Budget’s regional benefits

SA Budget ‘short-changes’ region

LAST week’s State Budget has been described as “city-centric”, leaving regions like the Riverland “short-changed”.

Riverland-based Liberal MLC, Dr Nicola Centofanti, claimed the Malinauskas Government’s third budget offers little for the regions.

“Peter Malinauskas and his Labor Government continue to turn their backs on our regions, who are the lifeblood of our state,” Dr Centofanti said.

“The former Cross Border Commissioner left last year, leaving border communities in limbo. Labor’s budget provides no certainty about the future of this important position, which is meant to serve as a voice to more than 140,000 people.

“SARDI’s world-class research is vital in supporting our primary industries, particularly when it comes to managing risks such as pests and diseases, so it’s concerning Labor’s not investing more in this area.

“(In addition) agriculture is the backbone of South Australia’s economy, yet we see the Agricultural Services sub-program in this budget slashed.”

Dr Centofanti, the Opposition’s spokesperson for regional SA and primary industries, said just $60 million had been set aside the state’s regional road network outside the $250 million provided for highway upgrades between Mount Barker and the city.

Her Liberal Party upper house colleague Ben Hood also claimed a lack of new investment in regional health and education.

The Opposition duo said the budget provided “no relief” for struggling small businesses across SA regions.

“The Liberal Party has been calling for the payroll tax threshold to be increased to $2.1 million from $1.5 million, and is committed to payroll tax reform should it form government in 2026,” they said in a joint media release.

Funding formula means disadvantaging our regional councils

SIMONE BAILEY
Mayor
Mid Murray Council

THE disparity in funding between metropolitan and regional councils has reached a critical point, underscoring the urgent need for fairer distribution of resources.

For councils like Mid Murray, the issue is particularly stark.

This year alone, Mid Murray Council was shortfunded by $7m, receiving only 36 per cent of the necessary untied Financial Assistance income.

This significant shortfall highlights the broader challenges faced by many regional councils across Australia.

Federal legislation mandates that 30 per cent of the Financial Assistance Grant be distributed on a per capita basis.

This formula benefits metropolitan councils, which often receive more than their assessed need, while regional councils like Mid Murray struggle with a fraction of the necessary funding.

Over the past decade, Mid Murray has experienced a cumulative shortfall of $58m.

To put this into perspective, covering this deficit would require a 44 per cent increase in local rates, a burden that would be unsustainable for residents.

This funding gap forces councils to make difficult decisions, such as selling assets and reducing essential services.

However, this is not a long-term solution. Without resolving the underlying funding disparity, regional councils will eventually have nothing left to cut.

The inequity in funding has far-reaching implications for regional communities.

While metropolitan areas continue to thrive, regional councils are left with limited resources to maintain infrastructure, provide essential services, and support community wellbeing.

This disparity contributes to a cycle of decline, making it harder for regional areas to attract and retain residents and businesses.

If income tax were based on where you live rather than what you earn, there would likely be a significant public uproar.

This analogy illustrates the current situation: regional residents pay higher rates (essentially higher local taxes) to their councils, but receive fewer services compared to their metropolitan counterparts.

This imbalance not only affects local governance but also exacerbates issues of regional inequity and social wellbeing.

Raising awareness of this funding disparity is crucial.

Policymakers must recognise the unique challenges faced by regional councils and advocate for a more equitable distribution of resources.

Ensuring that regional councils receive their fair share of funding will help sustain essential services, support community development, and promote overall regional stability and wellbeing.

The path forward requires collaboration and a commitment to fairer funding practices.

By addressing these disparities, we can ensure that all communities, regardless of their location, have the resources they need to thrive.

Impact of flood highlights mental health services gap

CHRISTINE WEBSTER

THE aftermath of the River Murray flood has highlighted the need for more mental health support services in the Mid Murray and Riverland.

Mid Murray Council’s wellbeing officer Shelley Rose was appointed in April last year to assist residents impacted by the flood in the Murraylands and Riverland access the services they require.

Her role is funded by Wellbeing SA, the Department of Premier and Cabinet and local government.

She said recovering from the natural disaster would be a slow process, especially for those whose primary homes were inundated and were either underinsured, or without insurance.

“There were a lot of people that thought they had flood insurance and then found out afterwards that their policy did not include this,” Ms Rose said.

“Then they found themselves in dire straits.”

She said in Paisley many residents had still been unable to return to their homes.

“Seventeen months after the flood, a lot of people I have been working with especially in Paisley have not been able to return back to their primary properties,” Ms Rose said.

“These people are living in caravans or rental accommodation if they can afford it,” she said.

Ms Rose said in the Mid Murray area about 3500 homes were affected by the flood.

She said in country areas, people were reluctant to ask for help and the older residents who had suffered flood damage to their homes were finding it hard to recover.

“Some who have lived in the area their whole lives have told me that if this had happened 20 years ago, they would have been in a better position to clean up themselves,” Ms Rose said.

She said mental health services were limited between Mannum and Waikerie.

“Along this distance of 130km there are no services of this kind whatsoever,” Ms Rose said.

“There is a once-a-fortnight service in Mannum and that has a four-month wait list and in Waikerie there is a once-a-fortnight service,” she said.

Ms Rose said a high number of referrals were being received for mental health services from along this stretch of the River Murray.

She said it was hard to determine if this increase in demand for support services was related to the flood, or whether it was due to accumulative pressures experienced by residents in the area.

“We had Covid-19 and then we had the floods and people may have had other things happening in their lives as well,” Ms Rose said.

“The Riverland is still dealing with a fruit fly outbreak and the difficulties experienced by the wine industry,” she said.

“It is a layering affect that is starting to fatigue people.”

Ms Rose said more local baseline wellbeing centres and psychosocial support services were required to make community access easier.

“We have minimal public transport in this area,” she said.

Ms Rose said to attract more clinicians to the area, more locally based support services were needed.

Volunteers helping Paisley recovery

VOLUNTEERS have banded together in Paisley to paint some of the homes damaged in the 2022/23 River Murray flood.

Mid Murray Council’s wellbeing officer Shelley Rose said Australian paint company Taubmans had donated four pallets of prep-coat mould blocker to help home owners repair their flood-affected primary homes.

She said the paint was offered to homeowners who were attempting to repair their homes and were underinsured or without insurance for flood damage.

“We had a small group of people that were unable to paint their homes themselves due to not being able to physically do so, or who did not have time to do it,” she said.

Ms Rose then worked with Disaster Relief Australia volunteers and home improvement retailer Bunnings to organise a recent working bee to help these home owners.

She said a clean up was also conducted around public areas in Paisley.

“The group of volunteers and community members all helped,” Ms Rose said.

“A barbecue was then held in the evening and it was a great community event.”

SA Health warning for wild mushrooms

RIVERLANDERS have been advised against foraging and eating wild mushrooms growing during winter.

SA Health earlier this month issued a warning regarding the risks associated with picking and eating potentially deadly wild mushrooms.

Chief Public Health Officer Nicola Spurrier said symptoms of mushroom poisoning included severe stomach cramps, nausea, vomiting and diarrhoea.

“There is no reliable way of telling if a wild mushroom is safe to eat or not so my very clear advice is to not take the risk – don’t eat wild mushrooms,” Prof Spurrier said.

“Even experts have difficulty in identifying some species, so you should only eat mushrooms that have been purchased from a reliable grower, green-grocer or supermarket.

“If you or someone you know has eaten a wild mushroom, do not wait for symptoms to appear. It’s important to seek immediate medical advice in case the ingested mushroom is toxic.

“If you suspect your pet has eaten wild mushrooms, seek veterinary attention immediately.”

Symptoms of mushroom poisoning include severe stomach cramps, nausea, vomiting and diarrhoea, which may take several hours to appear and can last up to three days.

Poisoning from several varieties, including Death Cap mushrooms, may have a delayed onset of symptoms – up to 24 hours – and can cause life-threatening liver damage.

Botanic Gardens and State Herbarium of South Australia senior botanist-mycologist, Teresa Lebel, said potentially fatal mushrooms were “difficult to distinguish from other wild mushrooms and can resemble edible species”.

“It’s very important to know that if you cannot reliably identify a mushroom, it’s not safe to eat,” Dr Lebel said.

“Wild mushrooms are fascinating, but some have a special toxic protection to ensure they flourish by not being eaten – including by humans.

“If you are seeking medical attention after coming in contact with a wild mushroom, you should take photos of the mushroom and the general location.

“You should also try to take one of the mushrooms with you, if possible, to help experts identify what species it is to determine the most appropriate treatment.”

Further information on mushroom poisoning is available by visiting the website (www.sahealth.sa.gov.au/wps/wcm/connect/public+content/sa+health+internet/conditions/poisons/mushroom+poisoning).

WORKS to the Loxton Hotel’s final upgrade are under way, with the beer garden expected to be completed in the coming months.

The Loxton Hotel has undergone extensive renovations in recent years and manager Darren Morrison said the beer garden would complete the venue.

“It will just finish the pub,” he said.

“We’ve got good dining areas and café and the functions rooms are good and now the beer garden will just finish it.”

Mr Morrison said the beer garden would be split over two levels, with works to be completed in the coming months.

“It will be as good as there is in the state,” he said.

“It’s due to be completed in the first week of August, so we are working towards that.”

Mr Morrison said the beer garden would have its own toilets and a lift for wheelchair and pram access.

“We will have sporting events live on the screen in the new beer garden, along with things like Melbourne Cup and probably look at private functions as well,” he said.

Mr Morrison said he expected it would be a popular spot for acoustic music on Sunday afternoons and major sporting events.

Local business Michael Kregar Building is completing the works.

Teachers ‘ice bucketed’ for a cause at Waikerie

WAIKERIE High School students enjoyed the thrill of ‘ice bucketing’ their principal Craig Griffiths and some of their teachers in a Big Freeze fundraiser to help find a cure for Motor Neurone Disease.

The school raised almost $1150 from its efforts.

Fundraisers for FightMND have been held across the nation to coincide with the traditional Big Freeze event at the MCG, during the annual AFL clash between Melbourne and Collingwood.

Waikerie High School’s Student Representative Council has spent the term organising fundraising events and activities for the organisation, that was established in 2014.

Year 7/8 teacher and SRC co-ordinator Hope Winter said a target of raising $800 was set to ice bucket the principal, and a goal of $1000 had to be achieved to ensure year 12 specialist maths teacher Wayne Tyler also received a soaking.

She said $700 was raised from selling beanies, while other activities included guessing the number of lollies in a jar, making a gold coin donation for a casual day, and a sausage sizzle.

Students put their names into a hat to win the opportunity to dunk the teachers or principals.

Ms Winter said the SRC was proud of how the fundraiser went.

“They really enjoyed organising it and worked really hard on it,” she said.

“This was their major event for the term.”

Fruit fly, financial counselling boosted in budget

INCREASING measures to eradicate fruit fly from the Riverland, and supporting primary producers, were focuses in the State Budget.

The State Government last week announced – as part of the State Budget – an extra $43m in funding, with $41.5m to be spent in the regions, to combat fruit fly.

The budget also included $19.5m over four years to develop on-farm solutions and support the upskilling of the agricultural sector, to reduce emissions through low emission intensity farming systems, and $4.4m for the Family and Business Support Program, including the family and business support mentors and rural financial counselling service

Minister for Primary Industries and Regional Development Clare Scriven said supporting primary producers and regional communities to be more prepared for managing the future impacts of adverse events and industry challenges was an ongoing goal.

“South Australia’s regional communities and agribusinesses are central to the economic growth of our state,” Ms Scriven said.

“Our regions keep our state moving, and I’m delighted that this year’s budget will address key issues focussed on cost of living, housing, health, and education.

“This budget continues to build on the significant investments we’ve made since coming into government.”

A total of $30m will also be spent over three years for regional housing, enabling Renewal SA to partner with local governments and regional employers to unlock prioritised regional housing projects.

Treasurer Stephen Mullighan said support was being provided in key areas to ensure regional growth.

“Our regions are critical to the prosperity of this state,” Mr Mullighan said.

“They contribute $37.5bn to the SA economy – approximately 26 per cent of gross state product.

“This budget invests in health, housing, roads, primary industries, police and cost of living relief to build better regions for today and tomorrow.”

Budget investment in river sustainability

ENSURING long-term health of the River Murray – to benefit regional areas such as the Riverland – is a key state government goal.

Last week’s state budget announcement included $26.3m over five years to support River Murray operations, maintenance and monitoring programs, aimed at sustaining “the ongoing health of the river system and surrounding environments”.

The measures include $4.8m in funding on the state’s new water licensing system and register, mywater, which is a 24/7 online water management system and customer portal.

The system can assist growers, irrigators, water traders, brokers, financiers, bore drillers and dam builders manage water assets.

Treasurer Stephen Mullighan said “a strong, sustainable environment is vital for all South Australians”.

“We need to invest in and protect our resources today, so that future generations can enjoy and benefit from them in future,” Mr Mullighan said.

“These investments are also important for our economy, jobs and tourism.”

Another $6.5m a year will be spent ensuring vulnerable biodiversity is protected when making planning decisions, rising to $7.9m a year by 2027-28, targeting toward investments in conservation science, data collection and mapping capability to support decisions for the transition to renewable energy, fire and emergency management, economic development and conservation investment.

Minister for Environment Susan Close said increased preparation for climate challenges would benefit communities.

“Our investment in the River Murray... will ensure our bird and aquatic life continue to have the habitat they need, particularly as we face drier conditions and climate change,” Dr Close said.

“By improving the way we collect data, undertake mapping and capture imagery, we will be able to improve the environmental assessment process for industry and better understand where we direct conservation investment.”

Last week’s state budget included $26.3m over five years to support the River Murray.

Volunteering for the love of it

STEPHANIE THOMPSON

A LOXTON woman was recently recognised for her countless hours of volunteer work at a local tourist attraction. Roselyn Sincock, who volunteers at the Loxton Historical Village, was recently a Joy Noble Medal nominee, with the award being South Australia’s highest distinction for an individual volunteer member. “It was an honour to be nominated,” she said. “I feel very proud of the fact that someone thought enough of me to nominate me.”

“I like doing things that keep me busy and occupied and I love the camaraderie that’s here...” Roselyn Sincock

Mrs Sincock collected her nomination certificate at the SA Volunteer Awards dinner in Adelaide recently. The Loxton Historical Village curator began volunteering about four years ago and has now entered over 4000 items in the computer archive system. During the 2022-23 River Murray flood, Mrs Sincock organised a team to pack up items and worked with History SA to ensure The Historical Village’s most vulnerable items were safely offsite. “It’s my forte,” she said. “I like doing things that keep me busy and occupied and I love the camaraderie that’s here.”

Our local bridal history on show

WEDDING dresses from the ages will be front and centre at a special event in Loxton this weekend. The Loxton Historical Village is hosting a Bridal Gowns of Yesteryear event this Sunday, showcasing wedding wear from 1920s to 1960s. Loxton Historical Village’s Roselyn Sincock said the event is now sold out. “We are thrilled to pieces with the response,” she said. “We’ve got a lot to display. “We’ve got 12 models and we will display certain frocks on mannequins.” Mrs Sincock said a number of models will wear dresses that have a family connection. “We found a lot of the dresses hidden away in drawers and cupboards,” she said. “It’s been fun and a lot of hard work, too.” Following the parade and display, attendees will enjoy afternoon tea.

Renmark woman caught drink driving

LOCAL police have detected a driver committing a traffic offence earlier this month. The driver, a 35-year-old woman from Renmark submitted to a breath test, returning a positive result. She was reported for category two driving, received an instant six-month loss of licence and her motor vehicle was impounded. She will be summonsed to appear in the Berri Magistrates Court at a later date.

Driving young Riverlanders to safer decisions

EDUCATION programs being run in the Riverland have been targeted at improving safety among young local drivers. The State Government last month released the Road Safety Action Plan Annual Report 2023. Riverland Football League clubs are among groups nominating to become involved with the Department for Infrastructure and Transport’s THINK! Road Safety Partnerships Program. Risk-Related Trauma in Youth program sessions were also run in the Riverland by the Central Adelaide Local Health Network, aimed at addressing historical over-representation of young people in road crashes. Minister for Police and Emergency Services Dan Cregan said the initiatives were helping young motorists “make safe decisions when on the road”. “This plan forms an integral part of the (State) Government’s commitment to reduce road trauma, which “These programs have grown and reached more young South Australians in the past year, empowering those starting out behind the wheel to make informed decisions to keep themselves and other road users safe...”

too often devastates young people and their families,” “Education remains a key pillar – delivering programs that hit home and positively influence driver behaviour for the next generation on our roads. “These programs have grown and reached more young South Australians in the past year, empowering those starting out behind the wheel to make informed decisions to keep themselves and other road users safe. “We know there’s much more to be done, but the first annual report of the Road

Safety Action Plan 2023-25 marks an important step for the (State) Government to assess progress on its targets and inform future measures to help save lives.” A total of 117 lives were lost last year on South Australian roads, while 824 people were seriously injured. Grant program aiming to improve mental health RIVERLAND community groups aiming to improve mental health and wellbeing in the region can apply for a national grant program. Applications opened earlier this month for Australia Post’s 2024 Community Grants program. Australia Post general manager, community and stakeholder engagement, Nicky Tracey, said supporting projects to “help people connect to improve mental health and wellbeing” was a continual goal. “Each year there is a great diversity of mental health support projects across our Community Grants applications From groups that keep elderly Australians connected, to supporting workers with mental health first aid training and even surf therapy, we encourage applications from all local communities”, Ms. Tracey said. “We know that when we connect, we feel better, which is why projects supported by Australia Post share a common thread and a commitment to improving mental health and wellbeing through the power of connection. “Since 2013, more than 800 projects have been awarded a Community Grant from Australia Post, and we are proud to continue our support of these often-unsung heroes of our communities.” University of Melbourne Centre for Wellbeing Science director, Professor Dianne Vella-Brodrick, said the initiative “empowers local groups to develop initiatives tailored to their specific needs, in turn fostering ownership, motivation and collaboration”. “When communities design and implement their own projects, they build local skills and competencies, which strengthens social bonds and overall wellbeing.” Ms. Vella-Brodrick said. “This initiative is essential in supporting community-led projects that enhance mental health and wellbeing across Australia particularly in communities where mental health issues are a growing concern.” Applications for the 2024 Community Grants program will remain open until 1 July, with successful applicants to be notified in September. Guidelines for the program can be viewed by visiting the website (www.auspost.com.au/content/dam/auspost_corp/media/documents/2024-australia-post-community-grants-guidelines.pdf).

Funding to boost Riverland telecommunications service

TELECOMMUNICATIONS infrastructure will be upgraded across the Riverland in an attempt to minimise potential service outages caused by natural disasters.

The Federal Government last week announced two power generators would be installed in Berri – through the Mobile Network Hardening Program (MNHP) – to provide five to seven days of back-up power.

Federal Minister for Communications Michelle Rowland said reducing the risks of service outages during natural disasters, and throughout the response and recovery period, was a goal of the program.

“While no telecommunications network can ever be 100 per cent disaster-proof, the (Federal) Government is reducing the risk of communications outages during natural disasters,” Ms Rowland said.

“More than 1000 projects to strengthen telecommunications resilience have now been funded under the Program.

“Projects across South Australia will support community safety by helping to mitigate the impacts of service outages during natural disasters and throughout the response and recovery phase.

“The MNHP is another example of the Albanese Government delivering on its commitment to improve connectivity for regional, rural, and remote Australians.”

also be undertaken at the following Riverland locations:

- ❑ Blanchetown
- ❑ Berri
- ❑ Barmera
- ❑ Waikerie
- ❑ Cadell
- ❑ Morgan

South Australian Senator Don Farrell said improved telecommunications reliability would increase “productivity, economic and social participation for rural, regional and First Nation’s communities, and helping to narrow the digital divide”.

“Access to reliable communication is crucial for residents and businesses across the Riverland and Murraylands, and these critical telecommunication infrastructure upgrades will benefit local communities should natural disasters strike,” Mr Farrell said.

“It will help people stay connected with friends, family and emergency services during their greatest time of need.

“The (Federal) Government continues to improve connectivity and deliver the resilience measures that rural, regional and remote communities across the electorate of Barker demand and deserve.”

Further information regarding the program can be found by visiting the website (www.infrastructure.gov.au/mnhp).

Applications still open for young grain growers group

YOUNG Riverland grain growers have been encouraged to join a new industry committee aimed at “driving positive change within the agricultural community”.

Grain Producers SA (GPSA) last week opened applications for its new Young Grain Producers Committee.

GPSA chief executive officer Brad Perry said young farmers provided “invaluable insights and fresh perspectives” for the industry.

“At GPSA, we understand the importance of cultivating and empowering the next generation of grain producers to not only become leaders but most importantly, contribute to industry policy and initiatives,” Mr Perry said.

“The establishment of the Young Grain Producers Committee underscores our commitment to ensuring that young farmers have a seat at the table, where their voices can contribute to the future direction of our industry.

“Members of the committee will play a vital role in contributing to GPSA’s policy agenda, advocating for the interests of young grain producers, and driving positive change within the agricultural community.

“We encourage all grain producers aged between 18 and 45 years who are passionate about the future of the South Australian grain industry to apply and join us on this exciting journey.”

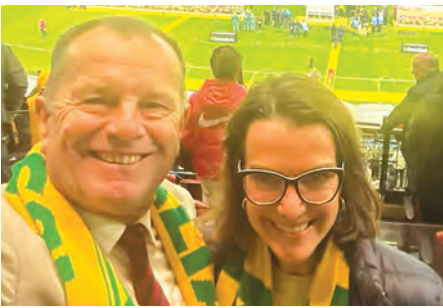

Mr Perry said the committee would serve as a platform for young farmers to actively engage in policy development, leadership initiatives, and industry advocacy.

Applications for the committee will close on 30 June, with up to six positions available to active grain producers, and two positions available to grain industry members in the supply chain.

For further information regarding the Young Grain Producers Committee, or to apply, visit the website (www.grainproducerssa.com.au/).

IT'S MEN'S HEALTH WEEK

Support available when needed most

ALEXANDRA BULL

A FREE mental health service is encouraging Riverland men to take charge of their mental health this Men's Health Week.

Mental Health Partners offers help and strategic planning for workplace mental health and provides accredited or custom-designed mental health training courses that come with complimentary 24/7 support and aftercare from experienced professionals.

Fully accredited and highly knowledgeable, the Mental Health Partners team is always there when you need them, and they will help you create and maintain a mentally healthy and productive work environment.

Mental Health Partners CEO David Moran encouraged men across the Riverland to engage with any of the free courses the organisation offers.

"When I say to people, what if I told you, you don't actually have to ring your doctor, what if I told you there was completely free, completely professional mental health support available to you right now, any person can access right now for free, people don't even believe me," he said.

"Support can be accessed as long as you're prepared to talk to people who actually know what's going on."

Dedicated, compassionate and knowledgeable, the Mental Health Partners trainers have first-hand, lived experience of dealing with mental health issues every day in the field or in personal situations.

The specially selected trainers have been on both sides of the fence, having experienced both mental health issues and having come through the other side. They know exactly how to respond to the real-life situations people could be facing, and how to approach those suffering.

The trainers will provide you with the skills and confidence to spot the signs of a potential mental health issue, show you how to approach and support a sufferer, and where to go for professional help.

Some of the feedback the team at Mental Health Partners have received includes 'Thank you for everything you are doing for us, please let the other trainer know that I appreciate everything she has done for me and I am doing so well, thank you guys from the bottom of my heart'.

"That's the sort of feedback we get. I would like to tell everybody just to call us and engage with us," Mr Moran said.

"It's frustrating for us to know we have got all these appointments available. It's all paid for and we have got all this great information.

"You don't know what you don't know. The one thing you can be sure of is that the people you are going to be engaging with are going to give you all the help for free, which is wonderful.

"It's still the most detailed and professional outcomes that you can expect from fully qualified and decent people who want to make a difference in our community.

"Our goal is strengthening our community and that's why we operate in the Riverland."

Mental Health Partners regularly follows up with participants after courses to support and encourage them and gain feedback so they can maintain their high-quality standards.

"We are just passionate about making a difference," Mr Moran said.

Mental health support courses for Riverland males can be accessed through Mental Health Partners

"What we see is people engaging with us and once we finish sessions, what we find is people coming up to us going 'Oh my goodness, I did not know that it was so easy to make such big differences'.

"We really can help and we are not going to ask for anything in return, and when we walk away we are going to leave you with two completely free 24/7 services that will support you once we have left."

For more information about Mental Health Partners visit (<https://www.mentalhealthpartners.com.au/project>).

Spotlight on men's health this week

MEN'S Health Week (13 to 19 June) is a time to pause and reflect on the health challenges facing the men in our lives.

Male life expectancy is, on average, four years shorter and they are more likely to suffer from lifestyle-related health conditions that women of the same age. Sadly, men also have a four times higher risk of dying by suicide*.

On top of this, research has revealed that two thirds of men who are struggling or in crisis, don't feel confident and empowered enough to ask for help^.

This Men's Health Week, R U OK? is encouraging everyone to look out for the signs that a man in their life – a husband, partner, brother, colleague, teammate or gym buddy – is struggling, and to reach out and ask 'are you okay?'

Some of the signs to look out for include:

- ❑ Are they becoming withdrawn?
- ❑ Have they experienced big changes in their personal or professional life?
- ❑ Are they confused, irrational or moody?
- ❑ Have they lost interest in what they used to love?
- ❑ Are they experiencing health issues?

- ❑ If you are concerned about someone, trust your gut and ask 'are you okay?' Listen with an open mind to what they have to say and ask them what you can do to help.

Men's Health Week focuses on not just physical health, but also men's mental health and emotional wellbeing. During the week, we highlight the health challenges faced by men in Australia and worldwide and run events that can be replicated year-round to improve the physical, emotional and mental health of men and boys.

Through a series of promotions, events and publicity around the country, Men's Health Week is designed to provoke thought and discussion about what needs to be done to improve male health.

For more information about the signs someone might be struggling and how to have an R U OK? conversation visit (<https://www.ruok.org.au/how-to-ask>).

Riverlanders urged to prepare for winter weather

AS the winter season gets underway, the SES has launched a storm preparedness campaign, in partnership with NRMA Insurance, to raise awareness of severe weather risks and help Riverland residents get prepared.

It comes as new research from the insurer reveals the majority of South Australians are concerned about the increased frequency and severity of extreme weather, yet more than one in three (38 per cent) do not feel prepared to respond.

Over the past three years, SES volunteers have responded to more than 6600 requests for assistance from the public during the winter months.

According to NRMA Insurance data, last winter was the worst for wild weather damage in South Australia in the past six years, with 40 per cent of all home claims caused by extreme weather.

Despite the increased frequency and severity of extreme weather events, the organisation’s research shows 31 per cent of South Australians do not know what steps to take to prepare.

SES chief officer Chris Beattie said the organisation is “committed to building resilient communities through ongoing engagement and education”.

“This will be the largest, targeted public education campaign we have launched and we’re hopeful that, in combination with our well-prepared volunteers, it will help to minimise the impacts of severe weather across our communities as we come into winter,” he said.

“We encourage people to visit the SES website to undertake some simple, proactive steps to help minimise potential damage to their homes and properties.

“We are also very aware of the record-breaking dry spell South Australia has experienced over the past three months.

“Prolonged dry spells can add to the stress on trees, increasing the likelihood of dropped branches and when followed by a sudden increase in rain, along with strong winds, will increase the instability of soil, increasing the likelihood of further stress on trees.”

Minister for Emergency Services Dan Creagn said the new campaign would “highlight the need for South Australians to prepare themselves this winter and do their bit for volunteers”.

“SES volunteers work tirelessly to respond to calls for help across the state, often in the most challenging of weather conditions,” he said.

“This campaign shows how communities can be better prepared for storms and floods, allowing volunteers to prioritise where they are needed most.”

To prepare for severe weather and storms the SES advises:

- ☐ Trimming any overheard branches around your property
- ☐ Cleaning your gutters and downpipes of leaves and debris
- ☐ Checking and clearing drains on your property
- ☐ Tying down loose outdoor furniture
- ☐ Checking adequacy of insurance coverage

To learn more about how to prepare for storms visit (www.ses.sa.gov.au/storm).

Riverlanders contributing to help frog observation initiative

RIVERLAND environmental enthusiasts were among those contributing to a state-wide census of frog populations.

The Murraylands and Riverland Landscape Board (MRLB) – in partnership with Green Adelaide – last week conducted the winter FrogWatch SA Seasonal Census.

Green Adelaide board presiding member, Professor Chris Daniels, said data such as frog call recordings are crucial to monitoring local populations of the species.

“Frogs are a vital part of many of our ecosystems,” he said.

“They’re a natural pest controller by eating insects, and an important food source for their predators.

“They’re also a great indicator of ecosystems. They’re sensitive to pollution, so if we find their numbers decreasing in an area, it’s a sign that the whole ecosystem is in trouble.

“Anyone with a smart phone or computer can record frog calls via the FrogSpotter smartphone app or FrogWatch SA website. You’ll be helping us understand how frogs and their ecosystems are tracking.”

Uploads to the FrogSpotter app or website are added to state and national databases to be used by scientists, ecologists and conservation experts. FrogWatch SA will share the amount of frog calls achieved and interesting findings they gain from the data.

Future rounds of the FrogWatch SA Seasonal Census will be run in the first week of every season.

Riverlanders can begin participation in the census by visiting the website (www.frogwatchsa.com.au/about/seasonal-census).

EASY

The no-rules twice baked potato

PREP TIME

15 MINS

COOK TIME

SERVES 2

For this edition of Hugh Cooks With Hugh, Hotel Renmark executive chef Hugh Hazelwood has crafted the ultimate baked potato, combining everyone’s favourite flavours and textures.

INGREDIENTS

- ❑ 2 large baking potatoes
- ❑ 4 slices bacon
- ❑ 1/2 cup sour cream
- ❑ 4 tablespoons butter
- ❑ salt and pepper
- ❑ 1/2 cup cheddar cheese, shredded
- ❑ 1 spring onion, chopped

METHOD

1. Bake potatoes in a preheated oven until tender, about 1 hour, depending on the size of the potatoes. Set aside until cool enough to handle.
2. Cook bacon over medium-high heat until evenly brown. Drain, crumble, and set aside.

3. Slice potatoes in half length-wise and scoop the flesh into a large bowl, saving the skins. Add sour cream, milk, butter, salt, pepper, 1/2 cup cheese, and 1/2 of the spring onions to the potato; mix with a hand mixer until well blended and creamy.

4. Spoon the mixture into the potato skins; top each with remaining cheese, green onions, and bacon.
5. Return potatoes to the pre-heated oven and continue baking until the cheese is melted, about 15 minutes. Serve hot.

Rollbusch Quality Meats team member Brad Graham competed in the recent Australian Meat Industry Council's SA Butcher Apprentice of the Year awards, at Regency Park, in Adelaide. PHOTOS: supplied

Mr Graham working hard to impress the judges at the state apprentice of the year awards.

Butcher apprentice carving his place

CHRISTINE WEBSTER

A SECOND year butcher apprentice from Waikerie is hoping to receive a placing in the industry's state competition for apprentices.

Rollbusch Quality Meats team member Brad Graham, 17, recently competed in the Australian Meat Industry Council's SA Butcher Apprentice of the Year awards, at Regency Park, in Adelaide.

About 20 participants from across SA took part in the contest, requiring them to carve up a side of lamb, a pork mid-loin and present a mystery box consisting of a beef knuckle, a whole chicken, pork loin fillets, and pork fillets.

Brad is hoping he has earned himself a place in the contest and the opportunity to possibly represent SA at the national awards.

He will not find out the result until August when the winners will be announced.

The teenager first began working for Rollbusch Quality Meats, which has operations in Waikerie and Barmera, about two years ago as a cleaner.

After just a week in the role he asked the owner of the business, Nigel Rollbusch, for an apprenticeship.

"I was watching everyone doing the cuts of meat and all the cool stuff and I thought, 'Gee that looks like fun'," Brad said.

"Within about a month, I was engaged as an apprentice.

"I am glad I started earlier because I will be qualified by the time I am 18."

Brad said he has no regrets and has developed a passion for his chosen trade.

Mr Rollbusch said his young apprentice performed well in the competition and should hopefully be placed third or fourth.

"Brad was nervous before the competition, but by participating it has boosted his confidence," he said.

Recently qualified Rollbusch Quality Meats butcher Vicky Yates who came third in the competition last year, took part in the event as a trainee judge.

Mr Rollbusch said having Ms Yates as a judge in the annual apprenticeship awards would help encourage the female entrants.

He said the butcher trade was becoming popular with women, who tended to have strong meat presentation and shop display skills.

Mr Rollbusch said taking part in the awards gave Brad and Ms Yates a chance to network and learn from their peers in the industry.

Recently qualified Rollbusch Quality Meats butcher Vicky Yates (right), is training to be an Australian Meat Industry Council's SA Butcher Apprentice of the Year judge.

Renmark Men's Probus Club June update

THE last meeting of the Renmark Men's Probus Club, held on the 20 May, was a huge success, with Renmark Paringa Council CEO Tony Siviour as guest speaker.

Mr Siviour gave a very in-depth account of all the current council projects including the new wharf, the open space area replacing the old Westpac Bank building and of course the major Twentyfirst Street bridge replacement.

Following his interesting and informative talk he took several questions, including a couple of curly ones.

Upcoming meetings

Monday 17th June: Hotel Renmark Function Room and our guest speaker will be Sharyn Moll, from Riverland Funerals.

Monday 15th July: Hotel Renmark Function Room and our guest speaker will be our own member, Brenton Morrell, to talk on U3A and his personal history.

Monday 19th August: Hotel Renmark Function Room and our guest speakers will be our own members Kevin Schopp and Allan Maddocks.

It should also be noted that as an added bonus our club arranges one-day trips visiting various places of interest, with these events being arranged on a day other than the usual meeting days.

Sometimes some of these events are organised in conjunction with other Riverland Probus clubs.

If any of these activities sound interesting to you and you are retired, then feel free to contact one of our members for further information, or come along to Hotel Renmark at 10am on the third Monday of the Month.

Thought for the day: life isn't about waiting for the storm to pass, it is about learning to dance in the rain.

Volleyball victory for the Waikerie High School girls

CHRISTINE WEBSTER

WAIKERIE High School's year 10 volleyball girls team has made it to the finals of the statewide Pool B competition later this month. The girls won all their games in the School Sport SA Statewide Schools Volleyball Division 2 competition. Waikerie High School health and physical education co-ordinator Matthew McDonald said it was the first time a volleyball team from the school had made it to the finals for many years. The year 10 boys volleyball team won two games out of three, losing to eventual winners Temple Christian College. Mr McDonald said the teams wished to thank Sarah and Asha, who attended the competition as umpires, scorers, and reserve players. He said other year levels would also compete in state volleyball competitions later in the year. The year 11/12 team will play in term 3 and the year 7/8 team in term 4. Mr McDonald said the competition forms part of the school's whole volleyball program. “This involves students training each week for terms 2, 3 and 4,” he said. “We have approximately 60 students sign up to this program, who train once a week at 7.30am before school, or after school. “We started this program last year with around 40 students, and it has grown again this year.” Mr McDonald said all of the training and smaller competitions lead up to a week-long volleyball event at the end of the year, known as the Volleyball SA School's Smash tournament. Waikerie High School won two silver medals at last year's competition. This included the same Waikerie High School girls team that enjoyed success last month in their category of the state school competition. Mr McDonald said the program was a fantastic way of enhancing students' connection and sense of belonging to their school. SCHOOL SPORT SA STATEWIDE SCHOOLS VOLLEYBALL DIVISION 2 COMPETITION Year 10 Girls Waikerie defeated Renmark year 10 2-1 (60-44) Waikerie defeated Kildare 2-0 (59-46) Waikerie defeated Clare 3-0 (75-35) Waikerie defeated Renmark year 9 3-0 (67-36) Year 10 Boys Waikerie defeated Clare 3-0 (70-44) Waikerie defeated Renmark 2-2 (102-99) Waikerie lost to Temple 3-1 (70-95)

Sue’s Fox-tastic netball contribution

LACHLAN DAND

IN the 75-year history of the Barmera Netball Club, few have had as big an influence as current club patroness Sue Fox.

Sue has been involved with the club for 52 years, amassing several roles including player, coach, mentor, and committee member throughout her time.

Currently, Sue undertakes the skills development coach for junior players, coaches the club’s B1 and B2 sides, and supports the 15C coach.

The 76-year-old said her journey at the Barmera Netball Club began following her move to the Riverland for teaching.

“I first started playing netball in high school and really enjoyed it, and from there I played for the college, and it all went from there,” she said.

“I coached and played A2 after my time with the A1s for many years, and if a talented junior came along I would go down to B1 to help the girls get the experience they needed.

“Being a teacher, I could see what the girls were doing wrong, and I wanted to help the girls improve in the process.”

Sue said one of the most rewarding aspects of her current role was seeing the juniors at the Barmera Netball Club develop and move into a high standard of competition.

“It was suggested to me that I help coach the coaches out and focus on developing skills, rather than have a junior team myself which is what I’ve had in the past,” she said.

“I don’t have a lot of family commitments so I can dedicate myself to the club and I really enjoy being there.

“Seeing the players succeed is great, and to be able to make friendships along the way is humbling, and it’s great to be in the position I am.

“I joined the committee, and had roles such as president and treasurer, and they had challenges that have rewarding aspects along the way too.”

Sue was awarded life membership of the Barmera Netball Club in 2005, and has been the club’s patroness since 2008.

“It was quite an honour, and I was initially surprised to receive it, but it’s nice to have that recognition,” she said.

“I just took it in my stride. You don’t do it for accolades, and you do it because you love being involved.

“The thrill of seeing players go on and do great things with netball is the thrill of it all, and I love helping them achieve their goals.

“I’m coaching grandchildren of the first people I coached, and it’s great seeing people in the future and know I’ve had an impact on them and they still remember you.

“I’ve always been an enthusiastic person, which is how I approach games and training, and I hope the sessions are really enjoyable.”

Currently five teams compete in the Riverland Netball Association’s A1 competition, and Sue said Riverland netball is in a strong position.

“It would be good if we could send an A grade team down to the SA country competition to see where we’re at in comparison to other regions,” she said.

“I would like to think we can get bigger and better, and sending a team would only make us better in the long run.

“We’re on the right path, and I’m still seeing the talent come through so it’s certainly a strong association.”

Evergreen Sue Fox has held many positions at the club over the years.

Local stars in action at SA Country titles

THE long weekend saw the return of the annual Netball SA Country Championships held at the state netball stadium in Adelaide, with three Riverland sides in action.

The under 17s, under 15s, and under 13s all competed in the division one quarter finals for their respective grades in a successful weekend.

The under 17s side competed in Pool A, finishing in second spot in the group stages before bowing out in the division one semi-final at the hands of Limestone Coast.

Loxton’s Bailey Hahn was particularly impressive, finishing in the top 10 best players in the grade, as voted by opposition sides.

Hahn has been a mainstay in defence for Loxton in 2024.

Elsewhere, the under 15s side finished fourth in Pool B with six wins and three losses, ultimately exiting the competition in the division one quarter final against Barossa, Light & Gawler.

Meanwhile, the under 13s also finished fourth in Pool B, exiting in the quarter finals fixture against Yorke Peninsula.

Riverland A1 netball resumes this Friday night when Berri takes on Barmera at the Toyota Arena, and Renmark plays host to Loxton North at the Alan Coulter Recreation Centre.

The long weekend marked the 36th edition of the Riverland Paddling Marathon. PHOTOS: Facebook

MARATHON paddlers from around the nation converged on the Murray River last weekend for South Australia’s premier long-distance event, the Riverland Paddling Marathon (RPM). Run by the Marathon Canoe over the June long weekend each year, the RPM has become a staple of the marathon calendar since its inception in 1988.

The event attracts paddling enthusiasts in all types of craft including kayaks, canoes, surf skis, surf boats, dragon boats and stand-up paddle boards.

Martin Finn has been volunteering as the race director of the RPM for the last 25 years and is a major advocate for the event. “The Riverland Paddling Marathon is the event of the year for us. It brings the marathon community together and is a fantastic celebration of paddling,” Mr Finn said.

“We’ve had nearly 1500

paddlers nominate for the race over the past 36 years, and while most of our paddlers are from South Australia, we do get a large contingent from Melbourne and from Lane Cover River Kayakers in Sydney, as well as the occasional paddler from Queensland or Western Australia.

“The Murray 200 race is a continuous paddle over three days and is the backbone of the original event, but we also have several other races people can take part in if they are not interested in the longer distance.”

Held across three days, The RPM incorporates the Murray 200, the Murray 100, and the Riverland mini-marathon which runs from Berri to Morgan.

Mr Finn said the community inspires his selfless service to the RPM.

“I have been running the event for 25 years and it’s been fantastic to watch the event grow, and it’s part of what keeps me coming back each year,” he said. “Numbers dropped away during COVID, but we’re seeing it grow back, and it’s joyous to see the older paddlers come back every year and younger paddlers develop the love for paddling on the Murray.

“We’re supported by the Amateur Radio Experimenters Group, which do communications, and also the Victor Harbor Goolwa Sea Rescue Squadron, which provide safety and rescue boats, so it’s a real community effort.”

With a long history in marathon and ultra-marathon paddling, Adelaide-based Bill Robinson took to the water over the weekend for a record-breaking 25th Murray 200.

Bill completed the event alongside grandson Archie, and said it was a special occasion.

“In my opinion the Riverland Paddling Marathon is one of the best marathons in the whole country,” he said.

“I have paddled for a bulk of my adult life and still absolutely love it, and no matter where I go, something about the Murray River keeps me coming back.

“Martin has been volunteering for 25 years and is a wonderful person, and the Riverland Paddling Marathon and its paddles owe a lot to him.

“We have some serious paddlers turn up looking to break records, but we also have people who come along looking to paddle more socially.

“This year I’ll be doing it with my 18-year-old grandson Archie which is very special, and it’s going to be fun to be part of his first Murray 200.

“The Murray 200 takes you through some beautiful country, including spectacular cliffs near Waikerie, and each morning we go through a lock which are incredible things.”

Desperados prevail in top-of-the-ladder table tennis clash

A TOP-of-the-ladder clash occurred in the latest round of Riverland table tennis when Desperados pushed past Bit Edgy.

Both sides entered the season undefeated, and Bit Edgy showed its strength, enabling it to secure a 16-8 victory.

Chris Gaskin and Matt Chappell starred for Bit Edgy, winning each singles clash, and faltering in just one of the four doubles clashes.

Elsewhere, Short Straws powered past Crushers on the back of a strong run in the singles clashes via Laura Hoffmann and David Badman.

The win brings Short Straws to third spot on the ladder, narrowly sitting outside the top two.

Locals wrap up triathlon season

MEMBERS of the Riverland Triathlon Club recently attended the Australian Triathlon South Australian awards breakfast at the Lakes Hotel in Adelaide.

The club reached the finalists list for the club initiative of the year award, having hosted the Bushy’s Triathlon event earlier in the year.

Many of the club’s juniors have been successful throughout the season, and club spokesperson Mark Pfenning said a win was on the cards.

“The club unfortunately were unsuccessful in winning the club initiative award, but one of our juniors had great success,” he said.

“Jarred Lawrie had an amazing season, and was selected for the South Australian School Sport State team which went to Rockingham in Western Australia.

“Jarred finished 32nd in that event, and as part of the triathlon SA national pathways state team, competed in Runaway Bay in Queensland, where he finished 15th for his age group.

“On the night, Jarred took home the age group state championship and the male youth/junior triathlete of the year awards.”

Digging his years with the ‘Dogs

PAUL MITCHELL

BEING rolled out of a bus and left in his front yard after an away game is among Lance Gum’s many colourful – and treasured – Riverland Superdogs’ memories.

Forging lasting friendships has been the highlight of Lance’s 20-year association with the local AFL Masters club, among the road trip “adventures” he enjoyed – or endured – back in the early days.

“It’s been a huge part of my life,” Lance said of the Superdogs, who are celebrating their 40th anniversary in 2024.

“To the point where after some bus trips the boys would roll me out into my front yard, and my wife would come out and put a blanket over me and leave me there.

“If you go back through the club’s history, those really early guys would take a big bus away and sometimes not get home till the next day, but their partners were usually with them.

“They’d think nothing of pulling over on the side of the road and having a big bonfire.”

On the wrong side of 40 when he played his first game of Aussie rules, Lance always enjoys his time on the field, but says he and many of his teammates have been gifted something more valuable from their Superdogs’ experience.

“It’s the best Men’s Shed ever,” he said. “Over my journey there’s been a lot of guys across the Riverland who didn’t necessarily have support when they were going through a hard time.

“But after Wednesday night trainings at the footy club (in Lyrup), guys just talk, have a few drinks and find someone to listen, without being judged.

A Riverland Superdogs team from 2004.

“I’ve made some great mates.”

Realisation of the club’s value – beyond being an outlet to continue playing football in a less-competitive environment against similarly ageing bodies – comes with maturity, Lance suggested.

“It’s just a bond you form and it’s amazing,” he said.

“Some of the younger guys, the 35 or 40-year-olds, don’t realise how important that is just yet, but they will.

“Because you soon learn that if you ask for help, it’s there. You may not be bringing any skills (to the team), you’re just bringing yourself and your life experiences.”

Lance was Riverland Superdogs president for nine years and has also acted as the club’s historian. In addition, his association with the club encouraged him to become a qualified sports trainer, and those skills have seen him involved with SA Masters teams.

He said the local club is in relatively good shape, however it has experienced its challenges in the years since he joined.

“We’ve had our moments and some of us just dug in and kept going,” he said.

“A few Masters clubs drop off because the younger guys all expect it to be like Saturday afternoon competition footy.

“They’re in it for the footy, not for the club, so it falls apart.

“The footy’s not the criteria (for sustainability).”

Lance is among four Riverland Superdogs who are life members of SA AFL Masters, along with Leon Warren, Brenton Goldsworthy and Trevor Bedson.

Lance Gum has been involved with the Riverland Superdogs since 2003/04

Latecomer Lance knee-ring the end

THANKS to his ailing knees, Riverland Superdogs’ stalwart Lance Gum will play his final game for the club this year.

A non-footballer as a younger man, Lance’s first on-field experience with Aussie rules was in the SA over 35s AFL Masters competition for Gawler, before he and his family moved to the Riverland.

Since 2004 he has been a Superdogs’ mainstay, both on and off the field, fulfilling various roles, including trainer.

“But life’s too short,” he said. “So I decided to keep having a kick while I can.”

Now approaching 65, Lance is resigned to finally hanging up his boots.

“I’ve got a couple of new knees coming in January,” he said. “I’ve seriously worn them out, but up until the last year or two I’d been quite consistent in playing.

“I still sneak in a game or two now, but after (the knee replacements) I reckon that’ll be it.”

Lance has seen many players come and go during his time with the Superdogs, and reflects fondly on those who first welcomed him to the club, including Peter Hoffmann, Rob Romeo, Steve ‘Goof’ Smith and Trevor Bedson, plus long-time umpire Brian Pitt.

Loxton North multiple premierships player and Berri women's premierships coach JASON WILLSHIRE says he might have a solution to falling participation number in the RFL WOMEN'S COMPETITION.

Action from a RFLW match earlier this year. Former Berri women's premierships coach Jason Willshire says the competition should move to Sundays, and be played at Moorook.

Let's play women's footy on Sundays...at Moorook

I CONGRATULATE every female Aussie rules player in the Riverland, but it's sad to see how far the local competition has slipped in recent years.

Only three teams left, and players having to line up against their own teammates because the opposing team doesn't have enough players.

It wasn't that many years ago that we had a relatively thriving local women's footy competition.

Sure, it wasn't perfect. It had its share of one-sided results, and wildly varying skill levels (the gap between the best players and novices was often enormous), but at least we had better numbers.

Enough numbers to run a proper competition.

I'm not going to play the 'what went wrong' game, because I know the organisers are trying everything to get the RFLW back where it belongs.

Instead, I am going to suggest some changes I think could turnaround the whole situation.

Firstly, I think we should make Moorook Oval the designated home base for women's footy right across the Riverland.

Why Moorook?

Well firstly, have you been out there lately? I have, and the oval is still in amazing condition. It's always been one of the Riverland's best playing surfaces, and although it doesn't host sport anymore (how sad is that?), that fact remains.

Secondly, Moorook is relatively central, certainly when you include Waikerie in the picture.

Thirdly, as mentioned above, it's not being used. I'm sure the Loxton Waikerie council would love to see the oval being used again, given council rates are being used to maintain it.

Also, it would give the RFLW its own unique identity – like the Riverland Superdogs have with Lyrup Oval, their home base.

I know the scoreboard has gone (to where?) and the changerooms are being knocked down, but the oval itself is unreal, and the Moorook Club is still open for socialising after games.

And finally, let's play all women's footy on Sundays (at Moorook).

Let's make it a truly standalone competition.

alone competition.

RFL clubs probably support women's footy as much as they feel they can, but obviously it's not enough.

And before you ask, I've spoken with women involved in RFWL who totally embrace this Moorook idea.

They feel they're being pushed aside and agree that they are better off being in their own standalone comp. They don't want to play in a Mickey Mouse competition.

Ideally, we would have a junior competition – or matches at least – running immediately before the open women's games. That would make it easier for supporters and volunteers to get on board.

Because without those juniors coming through, women's football doesn't have a future anyway.

So, how about it: Sundays at Moorook.

Why not? What do you think?

ED: Let us know your view, either by email (editor@murraypioneer.com.au) or text (0439 261 337).

“ It would give the RFLW its own unique identity – like the Riverland Superdogs have with Lyrup Oval, their home base....

RAY OF LIGHT: Moorook Oval would make an ideal home base for Riverland women's football, Jason Willshire says.

RFL MID-SEASON REPORT CARDS

Barmera-Monash

Premiership defences don't get much better than what Barmera-Monash has given its supporters across the opening seven weekends.

Barmera-Monash was the most active club throughout the off-season period at the signings desk, bringing in star power such as Jono Beech, Mason Middleton, Chris Bonney, Luke Thomas, Jack Austin and Dain Austin among others.

The work throughout the off-season has paid dividends on the field, with many playing a pivotal role in the season so far.

Barmera-Monash's only mishap of the season came in round one, when a slow start saw it defeated by 35 points against the Rovers.

However, since that clash, it has been one-way traffic for the Roos, who are currently on a six-game winning streak, largely thanks to the efforts of Beech.

Beech leads the RFL A grade goal kicking leader board with 21 to his name, despite missing three of the seven fixtures.

He's been well supported by Mason Middleton, Matt Wutke, and Jack Austin in the Barmera-Monash forward half, making it a difficult proposition for defenders.

Playing coach Fraser Sampson has been at his classy best for the Roos, finding the football with ease along with captain Sam Butterworth, while Thomas has been crucial across half-back in his return to the club.

The only scare after round one for Barmera-Monash came in round four against Waikerie.

The Roos have done enough to be the premiership favourite as the competition reaches its halfway point, but the challenge will be maintaining the momentum in the second half of 2024.

LACHLAN DAND

THE magnet boards were put to the side last weekend during the RFL's competition-wide bye, giving punters a chance to assess where each A grade team is at with seven rounds in the books.

The ladder is beginning to take shape, and it's looming as one of the closest finishes to the finals in recent history, while the minor premiership is far from settled.

Considering the statistics, storylines, and changes, Murray Pioneer sports editor Lachlan Dand has pieced together a mid-season report card for each club as we springboard into the second half of the season.

Berri

Disappointingly for Berri supporters, a coaching change is yet to bring about any victories in 2024, but there are positives nevertheless.

Berri finished season 2023 winless in the A grade, B grade, and under 18s competitions, but has broken the duck in the B grade and under 18s, sitting fourth and second respectively.

The Demons have been competitive in a bulk of their fixtures, despite their smallest losing margin being 38 points.

The club has been hampered by injuries in 2024, but as some players return to the side in the back half of the year, Berri will be hoping to snap the losing streak.

In positive signs, Regan Kruger has been somewhat of a lone hand up forward, and has shone in the role, having booted 18 goals to this point, putting him in third spot on the RFL leading goal kickers list.

He has created a genuine presence ahead of the ball, combining well with the likes of Angus Dayman and Evan Penaluna.

Patrick Minchella has produced a strong season in the middle of the ground, combining well with Shay Hawkins, while Peter Safralidis has been at his classy best across half back.

While the Demons are rooted to the bottom, and winless thus far, the bleeding of youngsters has been a step in the right direction, as the club continues a rebuild back towards the RFL finals, with a victory getting closer.

Loxton

Having missed a spot in the final four in 2023, the Tigers came into the year as one of the biggest storylines, and they haven't disappointed.

Currently holding the longest A grade premiership drought, Loxton supporters house a sense of optimism as the 2024 season heads into the second half, with the side currently sitting in third spot.

Two of Loxton's three defeats throughout the season came against Barmera-Monash, and while the defeat to Waikerie would have been seen as a winnable game, the Tigers squandered opportunities in front of goal.

However, following the loss to the Magpies, Loxton put together an impressive three-game winning streak, including claiming scalps such as Renmark, and Loxton North in the Proud Cup.

The Tigers are arguably the most exciting team in the competition to watch when they get up and going, boasting weapons all over the ground.

Harley Campbell and Bailey Boughen have been excitement machines in midfield, combining with Jesse Will, while Lachlan Evans and Drew Kassulke have given Loxton a bulk of running power.

Ahead of the ball, Loxton possesses a number of avenues to goal, with the likes of Will Gutsche, playing coach Luke Harder and Rogan Kennedy among those making a scoreboard impact.

Harder has booted 12 goals across the season to this point, rounding out the top six on the leading goalkickers list.

Excitement surrounds Tigerland as the club gears up for a big finish to the season, with a top four finish well and truly on the cards.

Loxton North

Following a busy off-season period, which included a coaching change in February, Loxton North started the season with back-to-back wins. However, the Panthers quickly headed on a four-game slide, with each loss coming against the current top four. The Panthers had eight players depart the club throughout the off-season period, but they have still found goal scoring options. Zac Wooldridge has 17 goals for the season so far, putting him in fourth spot on the leading goal kickers list, while Caleb Koehne and Ryan Proud have all been consistent. Alek Kudra started the season strongly for Loxton

North in the middle of the ground, but has missed the past three matches, while Joel Worsfold and Masud Akaso have stood tall in his absence. Meanwhile, Codi Voumard continues to stake his claim as one of the best small defenders in the competition. It's no secret Dave Higgins wants his side to play an attacking brand of football, which will need to be shown more often, starting with this weekend's clash against Renmark. But, the fact remains that five teams have a genuine shot at playing finals football this year and for now, the Panthers are at the back of that pack.

Renmark

Coming off a grand final loss is never easy, but Renmark has responded particularly well under playing coach Josh Vater's guidance. A round one win over the Roos in the grand final rematch was a confidence builder for the Rovers, and as it stands, they are the only team to achieve the feat so far in 2024. Renmark possesses weapons all over the field, with the likes of Zach Gartery, Matt Woolford, Dan Woolford and Vater all spending time in the middle of the ground. Along with this, the Rovers made one of the most impactful off-season signings with Nick Gillard joining the club, while the decision to have Alex Haynes spend more time ahead of the ball has paid dividends. Renmark started the season with four straight wins, and despite back-to-back losses against Loxton and Barmera-Monash, appear to have season 2024 back on track. The Rovers' adoption of a defensive style of game has continued in 2024, limiting options ahead of the ball for opposition sides, while producing big scores themselves. Questions remain over the kennel as to whether Renmark can overcome the might of Barmera-Monash and have enough to claim the 2024 RFL premiership, having split the season fixtures to this point. That being said, the Rovers are well placed to get back to the decider, and while it's still too early to predict a premiership winner, they're well and truly in the mix in the second spot position.

Waikerie

Of all RFL sides, Waikerie is the most difficult to get a genuine read on, and its win loss record is reflective of that fact. The Magpies had a slow start to season 2024, and were winless after the opening two weekends, but Mick Kilsby's side announced itself to the competition with a gritty 30-point win over Loxton in round three. Other than the win over Loxton, arguably Waikerie's best performances of the season came in round four against Barmera-Monash, where the Magpies took the reigning premiers to the brink. One of the biggest stories coming out of the Magpies has been the positional switch of long-term defender Steven Braun to the forward line, providing a genuine presence in attack. Elsewhere, Kade Hilton has been one of the competition's most impressive youngsters in his splits in midfield and up forward, while Mitch Hahn's presence has been clear, as he finds himself fifth on the leading goalkickers tally. Jarrad Bee continues to lead from the front in the middle of the ground, while smooth movers Tim Bevan and returning recruit Jake Spencely will need to continue to play a key role in the finish to the year. Waikerie's form build across the past month has been exciting to watch, and although it was defeated by 20 points against the Rovers, there is no doubt the Magpies can continue to cause a scare in 2024.

ON an afternoon where local leadership was present all over the ground, Barmera-Monash midfielder Sam Butterworth stood tallest for the RFL interleague, earning the side’s best on ground medal.

Co-captaining the Riverland alongside Renmark’s Tim Woolford, Butterworth was joined by several leaders in the side, including RFL playing coaches Fraser Sampson and Josh Vater, while Loxton North captain Codi Voumard undertook the role of vice captain.

Butterworth said he enjoyed teaming up with some of the best players in the competition, despite the Riverland’s 64-point defeat.

“The group we had are all good mates, so we just try and get around each other because we’re only playing one game together,” he said.

“You’re not going to change too much as a captain, it’s just about showing extra leadership and we had a lot of it out there.

“The spine of the ground had a lot of leadership and experience which was handy, but you can always do with more.”

Butterworth also spent time across half back, finding the football with ease throughout the afternoon’s entirety.

“I was going forward a bit, but I was comfortable rotating between half back and the midfield so that worked really well,” he said.

“I feel like half back is one of the best positions on the ground because you’re usually with the footy and that always helps.

“They were catching us ahead of our half forward line and just releasing straight back in, and they were finding entries when the sting got taken out of it.

“I look at the scoreboard more so than individual player performance, but it’s always a nice thing to receive.

“If we won on the day I’d feel a lot happier, so you don’t think about it too much when you’re on the end of a bigger defeat.”

Vice captain of the side Codi Voumard bursts through traffic for the Riverland side.

Interleague side falls short

LACHLAN DAND

THE King’s Birthday long weekend marked the annual return of interleague football, with a Riverland side defeated by 64 points against the best of the Barossa, Light & Gawler football association.

Although it only trailed by 21 points at the major break, the damage to the Riverland side was done in the third term, when the visiting side booted eight unanswered goals, extending its lead to 73 points at the final change.

Quality was littered all throughout the Riverland side with all six clubs represented, which coach Damian Stevens said was a key factor in the selection process.

“To be a true Riverland side you need to get guys from every club represented, but in saying that I wouldn’t have picked someone if they weren’t up to the level,” said Stevens, a former Whillas medalist.

“Everyone on the team was selected for a reason, and we had full confidence everyone we picked was ready, and it worked out well that we had someone from every club.

“We wanted all of the communities and clubs to be 100 per cent on board with everything, and to do that you need to have good representation from everyone.

“One of the big things we noticed this year was that the group gelled very quickly.”

The game was broken open in the third term on the back of a 55-2 quarter in favour of the Barossa, Light & Gawler side.

Stevens said he felt the experience of the Barossa, Light & Gawler side shone through, and ultimately proved too strong for the youthful Riverland side to handle.

“It was the first time a lot of these guys have played representative footy and came up against a lot of bigger bodies,” he said.

“They made a genuine effort to put the bigger, more experienced bodies around the ball towards the latter half of the second quarter which just shook us a bit and we went away from our structure.

“To our younger players credit they really stood up well on the day, particularly Bailey White and Kade Hilton.

“We reacted to doing what they wanted to do after they got it on their terms, and they’ve got a lot of good players who can do that to you.

“Those guys went into the middle and started to win more contested football and spread from the contest, and that was probably the telling tale in the end.”

Stevens was supported in the coaching box by current players Josh Nelson (Loxton North), and Trevor Thorpe (Renmark), who he said he leaned on throughout the build-up to the clash.

“I found connecting to the players really easy because I still had a good relationship with a lot of the senior players in the league which came from my playing and coaching days,” he said.

“I like to spread around and make friends in different areas, and I’ve got a lot of contacts at the clubs, so it wasn’t a challenge.

“I’d coached the under 18s a couple of times in the past. A lot of those guys are now the younger players in the senior side, so I’d already developed those relationships.

“Leadership was something I was looking for going into the game because we knew we were coming up against a tough opposition.

“We wanted to make sure we were bringing through a lot of youth, but to balance that out we had the seniors there which was really important.

“Having guys like Josh Vater, Fraser Sampson, Sam Butterworth, Tim Woolford, and Codi Voumard all out there who have spent time in the A grade gave me a good depth of experience on the day.

“I deliberately approached Trevor and Josh to be my assistant coaches, because they built relationships too, and that made life a lot easier.”

Stevens said he feels as though interleague football is on the rise, following a change of mindset from the clubs, with more players keen to be involved.

“The league made a conscious effort this year to give us quality opposition and that brings our high-end talent to the core too,” he said.

“We’re starting to work back, and although we are still a touch short, the guys who played this year will go back to the clubs and talk to the teammates about the enjoyment they had and the quality of football on show.

“I’m hoping that’s going to spread further into the future, and we’ll continue to build even more so after this year.”

The Riverland under 18s side was the only victorious side of the afternoon, winning by 71 points, largely thanks to Lucas White’s three-goal effort.

Meanwhile, the under 15s and under 13s side suffered 13-point and 94-point losses respectively, with the likes of Archie Kent, Hugh Riedel, and Lucas Deren impressing.

INTERLEAGUE ‘ON THE RISE’

LACHLAN DAND

THE return of Riverland interleague football occurred on Saturday afternoon, and although the RFL side was defeated by Barossa, Light and Gawler, coach

Damian Stevens is forecasting a positive change for the future. The Riverland side was one of the strongest fielded in recent memory, with star power across the ground. Stevens said one of the reasons the side had such quality was down to a change of mindset from the RFL clubs. “We’ve started to return back to where we were 10 years ago, and encouraging players was a lot easier back then,” he said.

“In the last five-six years representation from our high-level players had dropped away, and the league made a conscious effort to give us a quality opposition this year. “We’re still building on what we’ve got but we can get recommendations from some of the guys this year and I’m hoping we can just keep getting stronger.”

Fashion forward

YOU needn't don your Sunday best for this sophisticated new six-part series, but you'll probably be inspired to pull out some of your fancier duds after falling for this heartwarming tale of a bygone era.

Blundstones and activewear may be unpalatable after enjoying this female-led '60s world of fashion directed by Gracie Otto. Based on Madeleine St John's 1993 book and set six months after the 2018 movie, this glamorous Aussie drama unwraps the moving stories of the women running the ladieswear department of Sydney's chic Goodes Department Store in 1961, a time of great change and societal upheaval.

American bombshell Debi Mazar (Entourage, Younger) leads the charge as Magda Szombathelyi, a woman with a strong vision for the future of Australian fashion. Magda's dreams of opening her own boutique are dashed when her husband Stefan makes a risky investment, landing her back at Goodes, where she clashes with her newly hired replacement.

Enter Ms Ambrose (Miranda Otto), freshly arrived from Harrods of London, whose traditional approach to customer service and conservative design rub Magda the wrong way. The pair are joined by sales assistants Fay (Jessica De Gouw), Lisa (Clare Hughes) and Angela (Azizi Donnelly).

Filmed in Adelaide, which retains more heritage buildings than Sydney, this lavish series sings with period-accurate costumes, sets and department store details; while offering a modern, multicultural take on post-war Australia that is certainly set to sizzle.

Solution No. 482

June 2024: week 2
Horoscopes

ARIES

MAR 21ST - APR 20TH

At times this week, you may express your feelings a little more forcefully than is really necessary. A powerful aspect to Mars might be making you more aggressive than usual. Romance. An office romance could gradually become more serious. Tread carefully, until you are sure of both yourself and the person in question.

TAURUS

APR 21ST - MAY 21ST

A surprise visit from a friend may not be quite what you had in mind this week. You may be a little surprised at some of the things which this person says! Romance. You need a lot of independence at the moment: one person in particular seems determined to keep you under control.

GEMINI

MAY 22ND - JUN 21ST

A challenging aspect to Mercury could lead to difficulties with communications, especially around the middle of the week. Don't let a disagreement dominate your thoughts! Romance. This will be an excellent time for romance, so long as you don't over-react to a comment from your partner.

CANCER

JUN 22ND - JUL 23RD

Don't write anything off just because it's unfamiliar! You will be rewarded later in the week if you are prepared to take a chance early on. Romance. A favourable aspect to Venus will help to put you back on track after a recent lull. Be careful to say what you mean, and stick to it!

LEO

JUL 24TH - AUG 23RD

A strong aspect to Neptune around the middle of the week will give you the inspiration you need to solve a problem which you have been trying to solve for ages. Don't let other people push you off course: you have the right idea. Romance. A romantic dinner you have planned will go well, so long as you allow yourself to relax a little.

VIRGO

AUG 24TH - SEP 23RD

Your curiosity will be sparked by an article which you read in the paper. At some point in the future this information will help you enormously. Romance. Your ability to understand what your partner is thinking will help to bring you closer together after a recent misunderstanding.

LIBRA

SEP 24TH - OCT 23RD

Don't get lost in dreams: there's an important problem which needs to be solved. A challenging aspect to Neptune may make you a little unrealistic at times. Romance. Try to be sensitive to your partner this week. They may not be ready to confide fully in you, but have patience!

SCORPIO

OCT 24TH - NOV 22ND

A challenging aspect to Mercury could create problems with communications. Don't take an innocent comment the wrong way. Romance. A phone call from a close friend will help you to disentangle your feelings about a recent get-together. Listen to your friend's advice!

SAGITTARIUS

NOV 23RD - DEC 21ST

You will be glad that there is someone who cares for you. You may be feeling a little vulnerable at the moment, and will appreciate all the attention you are getting from friends and animal companions. Romance. Your partner may have ideas which you disagree with. Try to find some common ground this week.

CAPRICORN

DEC 22ND - JAN 20TH

You may be feeling a little overwhelmed this week. Your friends will be there when you need them most! Romance. A favourable aspect of Jupiter at the end of the week will help to give your relationship a subtle push in the right direction. Take things slowly and you won't be disappointed.

AQUARIUS

JAN 21ST - FEB 19TH

A small concession will help you to get what you are after. Don't be afraid to give up something of value if necessary: the chances are that it will pay off in the end. Romance. Don't be annoyed if your partner does not agree with everything you suggest this week. Your feelings are not being ignored!

PISCES

FEB 20TH - MAR 20TH

Although you will be concerned about your finances, you must be careful not to let things get out of perspective. Romance. You will be able to "pick up" on your partner's ups and downs much better than usual this week. Take advantage of the situation to mend bridges after a recent disagreement.
