THE Riverland's major theatre is set to share in $3.9m of grant funding, ensuring upgrades can be undertaken to the cinema projector and for the safety of workers.

Receiving the recently announced funding alongside art centres in Whyalla, Port Pirie, and Mount Gambier, Renmark's Chaffey Theatre is part of a three-year process aimed to replace ageing equipment and improve security of the facility.

HUGH SCHUITEMAKER

RATES for Renmark Paringa residents are set to rise by 11.25 per cent next financial year and wastewater charges will increase by 43 per cent – as council collects an extra $2.29m from its ratepayers.

Renmark Paringa Council this week released its 2025/26 Draft Annual Business Plan and Budget for public feedback, outlining a $29.3m investment in essential services and infrastructure in response to what it described as the pressures of inflation, and ongoing financial impacts of the 2022 Murray River flood.

Council's anticipated $2.29m extra in general rates in 2025/26 includes an average rates increase of $147 per household, based on an average residential property capital valuation of $393,000.

Snapchat warning for local students

MADISON EASTMOND

A RIVERLAND school is taking a proactive approach to providing “a safe and supportive environment” after students have faced scrutiny for their online activity.

A letter sent by staff at St Francis of Assisi College, Renmark — reported in last Sunday’s edition of The Advertiser — is said to have warned local parents about “some of the images being shared” through a Snapchat group of year 8 boys, which “could be classified as inappropriate and may be used to extort or exploit a young person”.

“Please speak with your child if they are active on Snapchat and other social media applications and, if they are part of large group chats,” the letter is reported to have read.

“Our advice is you instruct your child to exit these groups.”

St Francis of Assisi College principal Nathan Hayes said he could “confirm that (the school) sent a letter to parents of (the) year 8 students in the first week of Term 1, as part of (a) proactive approach to providing information about appropriate use of social media”.

“The letter was not in response to specific messages or content,” Mr Hayes said in a shared statement to The Murray Pioneer.

“The letter was intended to outline to parents what can happen, and what to be aware of when holding conversations with their children.

“We are committed to supporting our young people as they learn to navigate the digital world safely and provide students with ongoing social media education.

“Our College is committed to providing a safe and supportive environment for all (and) our highest priority is the pastoral care and wellbeing of our school community.”

Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone said although the incident was “concerning,” it must be recognised that “this isn’t an isolated issue for Renmark”.

“Sadly, these incidents reflect nation-wide challenges with image-based abuse and misuse among teens,” Mr Whetstone said.

“It is a stark reminder of the evolving digital landscape our teenagers navigate, and I commend the proactive steps taken by Principal Nathan Hayes and the College leadership.”

Renmark near miss sparks police action against truck driver

The truck overtook another vehicle in the 100km/h zone across a solid unbroken white centre line, causing the oncoming truck to avoid the accident by veering off the road.

A TRUCK operator has been reported for dangerous driving following a near miss on the Sturt Highway, at Renmark, earlier this month.

Just before 11am, on Wednesday June 4, police received a report of a truck driving dangerously on the Sturt Highway.

The truck overtook a cement mixer in the 100km/h speed zone across a solid unbroken white centre line and almost collided with a B-double travelling in the opposite direction. The B-double was forced off the road as a result.

The incident was captured on dash camera and police commenced an investigation.

A 36-year-old man, from Pasadena, was reported for driving in a manner dangerous and issued with a 12-month instant loss of licence. He will be summonsed to appear in court at a later date.

Man arrested at Morgan after police pursuit

ONE man was arrested at Morgan after assaulting a Hillbank resident and stealing his vehicle, followed by a pursuit with police last Thursday.

Just after 11.30pm on Thursday June 19, a man was allegedly assaulted and had his car stolen while at a service station on Main North Road, at Hillbank.

The stolen Toyota sedan was last seen travelling on to Stanbel Road, and police were able to discover the Toyota’s location through its GPS tracking system, being picked up on the Thiele Highway, approaching Kapunda, just after midnight.

PolAir commenced tracking the vehicle as it continued on the Thiele Highway through Eudunda, when it eventually stopped at Morgan after its tyres were spiked and the driver was arrested without incident.

A 30-year-old man, from Para Hills, was charged with aggravated robbery and traffic offences. He was refused police bail and appeared in the Berri Magistrates Court last week.

Drug and gun arrests at Loxton

TWO Loxton residents were arrested after drugs and weapons were found in their property.

About 8am, on June 16, police searched a property, on Coral Street, at Loxton, and located 45gm of methamphetamine, 140mm of fantasy and 81 MDMA (ecstasy) tablets, packaged for sale.

Police also located several items used for the consumption of drugs, along with $770 in cash, a home-made taser and a butterfly knife.

A 30-year-old man, and a 27-year-old woman, were charged with trafficking a controlled drug, possessing a dangerous article, possessing a prohibited weapon, and unlawful possession. Both were refused bail and appeared in Berri Magistrates Court on June 17.

Anyone with information regarding the sale or manufacture of illicit drugs is asked to call Crime Stoppers (1800 333 000), or online at the website (www.crimestopperssa.com.au).

Berri Barmera's future-proofing 7.9% rate rise to net... EXTRA $1.266 MILLION

MADISON EASTMOND

AN extra $1.266m is set to be collected from Berri Barmera ratepayers in 2025/26, after the local council unveiled an average rate increase of 7.9 per cent — and forecast more above-CPI hikes in the years ahead.

Berri Barmera Council councillors at a special meeting held on Thursday night voted to adopt council's draft 2025/26 Annual Business Plan and Budget for the purposes of community consultation.

The council said the increases were necessary to ensure it remained sustainable, able to renew its infrastructure, and capable of unlocking "future residential growth".

CEO Tim Pfeiffer told The Murray Pioneer the proposed 7.9 per cent rate rise comes as "(the) council is currently addressing a number of legacy issues".

"Within our Long-Term Financial Plan, there will be rate rises that will be in excess of CPI in the coming years," Mr Pfeiffer said.

"However, in the current budget, council has already made $1.1m worth of savings.

"In addition, Council is prioritising work to find further savings and different income streams, both next financial year and in the years beyond."

Mr Pfeiffer declined to reveal whether any councillors had protested the rate rise, but said the plan had been "very closely scrutinised by all elected members".

"Berri Barmera Council has taken the time to carefully consider all aspects of our Annual Business Plan and Budget, Long-Term Financial Plan, Strategic Plan and our Asset Management Plans," he said.

"Council has an obligation to the community here and now, but also to future generations of the Riverland community to ensure that Council has a good opportunity to be economically sustainable with a strong future."

A $1.653m operating deficit has been projected in the draft budget.

Hikes in service charges are also part of the budget.

The Waste Management Service Charge is set to increase by 7 per cent, rising to $274 for three-bin collection, and $232 for two-bin collection.

The charge for any additional red bins will rise to $251 for property owners.

"In recent years, Berri Barmera Council's waste management and wastewater costs have not been at full cost recovery, meaning they have effectively been subsidised by the remaining ratepaying community," Mr Pfeiffer said.

"The increases are aimed to get these services back to a full cost recovery basis so that the income equals the expenditure for the provision of those services."

In May, Loxton Waikerie council also adopted a rate rise — at 2.5 per cent — with both councils now linking aspects of the increase to the current challenges of cost-of-living, the drought, and economic uncertainty facing the region.

"Council understands there are economic challenges within the Riverland community at present," Mr Pfeiffer said.

"These effects individuals, businesses, farming enterprises — and council as well.

"Council has already tightened its belt and will be continuing to tighten its belt over the coming year and beyond."

A Special Council Meeting will be held on Monday, July 7, at 5pm to hear feedback from the community.

Community consultation on council's Draft Annual Business Plan closes at on Wednesday, July 16.

Community asked to help define path forward

THE Berri Barmera community is invited to have its say as council shapes the long-term financial position of the district.

A Draft Annual Business Plan for 2025/26 and a draft Long-Term Financial Plan have been released, outlining a strategy to restore financial stability and continue delivering essential services.

Council CEO Tim Pfeiffer said the plans "reflect a realistic view" of council's financial position and a commitment to moving forward.

"We're positioning ourselves to better serve the community, not just today, but for the long term," Mr Pfeiffer said.

"We've worked hard to balance essential services and infrastructure, while addressing legacy issues in depreciation and rating."

Council is proposing a 7.9 per cent residential rate increase that would, on average, result in an additional $148 per year.

Mr Pfeiffer said the adjustment is needed to meet rising costs and maintain essential community services such as roads, stormwater, waste, and community facilities.

"This is about building a sustainable future for generations to come," Mr Pfeiffer said.

"We're being transparent about the work needed and taking steps to improve our foundation.

"Council is shifting away from prioritising the development of brand-new assets in favour of maintaining and renewing existing community infrastructure.

"Taking this approach both now and into the future will ensure that roads, footpaths, stormwater, wastewater and community facilities remain safe, reliable and functional for current and future generations."

Major projects in 2025/26 include the Bruno Bay boat ramp renewal, Lyrup Road reconstruction and works at Lake Bonney — all funded either entirely or significantly through external grants.

"Berri Barmera Council is proactively chasing external funding to alleviate pressure for the renewal and replacement of community infrastructure," Mr Pfeiffer said.

"We've already attracted over $4m for 2025/26 for the renewal of council infrastructure."

Mr Pfeiffer said council has already made $1.1m worth of savings out of the draft 2025/26 Annual Business Plan.

"This shows council's commitment to tightening its own belt, so the full effect of returning to financial sustainability is not borne by the ratepayers," he said.

"We will continue working hard over the coming financial year to make further savings by reviewing service levels and property assets to ensure we are delivering what our community actually needs."

The plan also encourages development of vacant land to support housing growth and a stronger local economy.

"Residential growth means more families in our towns, more support for local businesses, and a more vibrant, resilient community," Mr Pfeiffer said.

Public consultation is open on the following draft documents:

- ☐ Annual Business Plan 2025/26.
- ☐ Long-Term Financial Plan.
- ☐ Strategic Plan 2025–2035.
- ☐ Asset Management Plan Summary.
- ☐ Asset Management Plan – Buildings and Structures.
- ☐ Asset Management Plan – Footpaths.

Public consultation will close at 9am on Wednesday, July 16.

To view the plans and provide feedback, visit the Berri Barmera Council website (berribarmera.sa.gov.au).

Opposition leader? Tim deflects poll results

HUGH SCHUITEMAKER

TIM Whetstone could be the state opposition leader this time next year – but the veteran Chaffey MP has rejected results from a poll published on the weekend showing the Liberals heading for an election wipe-out in March 2026.

The YouGov poll – published in The Advertiser – shows Labor holding a record 67/33 lead on two-party preferred stakes.

If those numbers held true on election day, Mr Whetstone would be one of just two remaining Liberal MPs to hold their seat – alongside Eyre Peninsula-based Member for Flinders, Sam Telfer.

As such, Mr Whetstone would be the logical choice as leader, as a former government minister and senior MP in the party.

However, this week he refused to buy into the doom-and-gloom scenario for the Liberals, who have pitted Vincent Tarzia against popular Premier Peter Malinauskas, following the departure of disgraced former opposition leader David Speirs.

“The poll is simply a

snapshot and while it highlights the challenges ahead, it doesn’t reflect what I’m hearing on the ground in Chaffey and across regional South Australia,” Mr Whetstone told The Murray Pioneer.

“Country people are increasingly frustrated with the government that simply doesn’t care about them.”

Mr Whetstone also declined to comment specifically on the chances of being elevated – albeit in Steven Bradbury style – to the position of opposition leader.

“My focus remains on representing the people of Chaffey, fighting for our fair share and holding this government to account,” he said.

The disastrous prediction for the SA Liberals resembles the 2021 WA State Election, when Mark McGowan-led Labor won 29.7 per cent of the two-party preferred vote.

Allocations straight to 100

RIVERLAND irrigators will be able to access 100 per cent allocations for the new water year from next week.

Renmark Irrigation Trust chief executive officer Rosalie Auricht said allocation security was beneficial during current low-rainfall conditions.

“Farmers relying on SA Murray high security entitlement are appreciative of the 100 per cent allocation for the 2025/26 season,” Ms Auricht said.

“The ongoing extreme dry conditions have been challenging for all farming communities in South Australia, especially those who do not have access to any SA Water supply.

“A good soaking rain to replenish soil moisture and refill tanks and storage within the state, and in the Southern Murray-Darling Basin, is top of the wish list.”

Minister for Water, and deputy premier, Susan Close said measures undertaken through the Murray-Darling Basin Plan were having a “positive impact on ecosystems, biodiversity and habitat quality”.

“Despite record low rainfall in some parts of South Australia, Murray River irrigators can go into another water year with the confidence of having full allocations available to them.

“The full opening of allocations is good news for river communities including those who rely on the river to make a living.

“The river is finally being properly managed for the benefit of irrigators, communities and the environment.”

In line with the Water Allocation Plan for the River Murray Prescribed Watercourse, irrigators will be unable to carryover unused water from the previous year, as the projected minimum opening allocation, announced on April 15, 2025, was greater than 50 per cent.

Further information is available by visiting the DEW website (www.environment.sa.gov.au/topics/river-murray/water-allocation-and-carryover/water-allocations-and-announcements).

PIRSA reminds travellers of fruit restrictions

RIVERLAND travellers are being reminded, that protecting our world-class horticulture industry starts with every traveller doing the right thing, whether it’s a quick road trip, a visit to the Riverland, or a return from interstate, holidaymakers are urged to check their bags and eskies for restricted fruit and vegetables before setting off.

The Department of Primary Industries and Regions (PIRSA) General Manager of the Fruit Fly Response Program Jason Size, said that school holiday travel means an increased risk of inadvertently spreading fruit fly into or across South Australia.

“School holidays mean more cars on the road – and more movement between regions,” Mr Size said.

“Whether you’re heading into the Riverland, returning from interstate, or road-tripping around the state, remember to eat it or bin it.”

Random roadblocks and roadside checks will be in operation across key travel routes, with on-the-spot fines issued for anyone caught carrying restricted produce through quarantine zones.

Quarantine bins are clearly marked at major entry points, regional boundaries, airports, and transport hubs. Importantly, produce should be placed inside the bin, not beside it.

“When we see bins overflowing, it’s usually because people have left fruit beside the bin – not because the bin is full,” Mr Size said.

“These bins are built to handle large volumes so if you’re disposing of fruit, make sure it goes inside.”

Restricted items include common favourites such as apples, bananas, citrus, tomatoes, and capsicums – all of which can carry fruit fly larvae or eggs.

Travellers looking for safer snack options can enjoy unrestricted produce like pineapple, watermelon, honeydew, and rockmelon.

“Disposing of restricted produce before travelling is a small action that makes a big difference,” Mr Size said.

“The more vigilant we are, the better protected our growers, communities, and economy will be.”

Visit the website (www.fruitfly.sa.gov.au/restricted-produce) for a full list of restricted items.

RPC looks at ‘cost-cutting’ budget as rate rise goes... INTO THE 11s

HUGH SCHUITMAKER

RATES for Renmark Paringa residents are set to rise by 11.25 per cent next financial year and wastewater charges will increase by 43 per cent – as council collects an extra $2.29m from its ratepayers.

Renmark Paringa Council this week released its 2025/26 Draft Annual Business Plan and Budget for public feedback, outlining a $29.3m investment in essential services and infrastructure in response to what it described as the pressures of inflation, and ongoing financial impacts of the 2022/23 River Murray flood.

Council’s anticipated $2.29m extra in general rates in 2025/26 includes an average rates increase of $147 per household, based on an average residential property capital valuation of $393,000.

The 2025/26 plan also proposes an updated Community Wastewater Management System (CWMS) charge of $793 – a 43.14 per cent increase on the previous year’s cost of $554 – per property unit.

Renmark Paringa chief executive officer Tony Siviour said the current economic environment had placed considerable strain on local government operations and budgets, which has required council to respond with a “disciplined, strategic approach to planning”.

“Like many households and businesses, council is not immune to rising costs,” he said.

“The impacts of high inflation, and escalating prices for construction, materials and utilities have significantly shaped our thinking. At the same time, the recovery from the Murray River flood has had an impact on our financial position.

“Prior to the 2022/23 flood, council was debt free. We estimate that we will commence the 2025/26 financial year with a minimum of $1.8m in debt.

“This is a financially responsible plan that takes seriously our duty to the community – both now and into the future.”

The draft budget allocates $21.4m to the delivery of day-to-day services, including waste collection, libraries, parks, community development and regulatory services.

Proposed Waste Management Service Charges for 2025/26 – based on the provision of a three-bin system – are $380 for ‘town residential’, and $285 for ‘rural residential’.

A further $7.85m is allocated to renewing and upgrading essential infrastructure and progressing key initiatives that support organisational efficiency and community outcomes.

Mr Siviour said the draft plan reflected goals of the community, the financial realities of the current economic climate, and the need to maintain long-term sustainability.

A comprehensive review of current year projects was undertaken in development of the draft, resulting in a “significant” reduction in planned capital expenditure, totalling $5.7m, deferred to future years.

Council also achieved a 6 per cent reduction in its materials and contracts budget compared to the previous financial year, while launching reviews into fees, service standards and staffing structures.

Cost-cutting measures have included a freeze on community grant funding and a reduction in community events, to be reviewed in 12 months’ time.

Council is also exploring the sale of a number of building and land assets, including the McCormick Centre for the Environment in Renmark.

Mr Siviour noted Renmark Paringa was the second-lowest rating council in the Riverland and Murraylands region for the 2024/25 financial year.

“This means our ratepayers already enjoy comparatively low rates compared to like-sized councils,” he said.

“Despite the increase, we are committed to ensuring that rates remain as affordable as possible while still allowing us to deliver high-quality services and maintain infrastructure.”

Mr Siviour said development of the plan addressed recent ESCOSA advice – released in February – regarding council’s position of being “potentially unsustainable”.

Council expects the CWMS charge to raise approximately $2.9m in revenue, fully recovering the cost-of-service provision and ensuring long-term financial sustainability for the system.

Increases to CWMS pricing follows a comprehensive external review in 2024/25, and aligns with ESCOSA’s 2018 pricing guidance, and the National Water Initiative Pricing Principles.

Loxton Waikerie council in May announced a proposed 2025/26 rate increase of 2.5 per cent, while Berri Barmera councillors last week endorsed a 7.9 per cent rise.

The monthly CPI indicator rose by 2.4 per cent in the 12 months to April 2025.

Public consultation on the draft plan, as well as the Long Term Financial Plan 2026-35 and Infrastructure and Asset Management Plan, is open until July 16, 2025.

The full documents and supporting materials, including FAQs, are available on council’s Engage RPC online consultation platform (www.engagement.renmarkparinga.sa.gov.au/renmark-paringa-council-annual-plans-202526).

Submissions can be made via the feedback form on the website, or in writing to PO Box 730, Renmark, SA, 5341.

A public meeting to receive community feedback will take place on Thursday, July 17, at the Renmark Club between 5pm and 7pm.

Hard copies of the plans will be available at the Renmark Paringa Council Community and Civic Centre, and the Renmark Paringa Library.

Bright future projected for Chaffey Theatre

MADISON EASTMOND

THE Riverland’s major theatre is set to share in $3.9m of grant funding, ensuring upgrades can be undertaken to the cinema projector and for the safety of workers.

Receiving the recently announced funding alongside art centres in Whyalla, Port Pirie, and Mount Gambier, Renmark’s Chaffey Theatre is part of a three-year process aimed to replace ageing equipment and improve employee safety.

Looking forward to working with local contractors and trades to deliver upcoming projects, Chief executive Anthony Peluso said Renmark’s Chaffey Theatre is set to receive upgrades to security, and the cinema projectors.

“Since the projectors are coming close to the end of their lives, this funding has allowed us to ensure we continue screening cinema (in the Riverland) going forward,” Mr Peluso said.

“(Also, by providing) security at the centre, it also means the (Chaffey Theatre) will be a safer environment for both our audience and our staff, who often work long hours in the night.”

Mr Peluso said the funding was “an important investment” to the regional spaces, which were “not just performance spaces”, but “cultural hubs that support local artists, bring people together to celebrate, and contribute significantly to the social and economic fabric of regional South Australia”.

“Going to the Chaffey Theatre is important for a multitude of reasons,” Mr Peluso said.

“It can be to tune-out from difficulties of cost-of-living, drought conditions, and the remnants of Covid — people can come together to enjoy something amazing, whether it’s on the screen, or the stage.

“You can’t replicate that in any other way, as these centres are really about community.

“This investment is a powerful statement about the importance of arts in every corner of the state and it will ensure communities in Renmark and surrounds can continue to enjoy high-quality performances and creative opportunities for years to come.”

Minister for Arts Andrea Michaels said “the (State) Government is committed to supporting arts and culture to thrive in our regions.”

“No matter where we are, we all look to the arts for inspiration, connection and entertainment,” Ms Michaels said.

“Our government is committed to ensuring all South Australians can enjoy arts and cultural experiences right across the state.

“These four art centres are hugely important in their local communities and these upgrades will ensure they continue to provide locals with world-class cultural experiences for a long time to come.”

Mr Peluso said Country Arts SA “was absolutely thrilled with this investment from the State Government, which recognises the immense value regional arts centres offer their communities”.

“This funding will allow us to make critical upgrades to ensure our local staff can continue their work in a safe environment with reliable, modern equipment,” Mr Peluso said.

“I want to thank Minister Andrea Michaels and the State Government for their commitment to regional arts.”

THE YEARS GO BY

BY PETER AND CARLA MAGAREY

Rising rates and tensions

THERE was once a vision of the future human society where everything was easy.

Science fiction classics from authors such as HG Wells and Arthur C Clarke imagined a utopian living for humans, where technological advancement – such as the utilisation of artificial intelligence – would result in readily accessible wealth for all, the elimination of menial tasks for employment and around the household, and easy travel across space.

However, in the time since the release of the film Blade Runner in 1982 – with a story set in 2019 – these expectations seem to have slowly been tempered, due to pandemics, ongoing international conflicts, and ever-rising cost-of-living-expenses.

Homeowners across the Riverland must be feeling those proverbial tides rising to uncomfortable levels, and that’s not just simply speaking of the costs of eggs, with our three local councils now having all put their proposed rate rise figures for 2025/26 into the public sphere.

Although Loxton Waikerie’s proposed rise of 2.5 per cent will undoubtedly be seen as relatively cheap compared to the 7.9 per cent announced by Berri Barmera, and Renmark Paringa’s proposed 11.25 per cent increase, all the numbers represent a bigger hit to the wallets and purses of Riverland homeowners, at arguably a time that is least-affordable.

With two of those increased numbers being – rather highly – above the increases seen to CPI, property owners will need to judge if there will be an increase in the services offered by their respective council to justify the rising costs.

It seems like uncertainty also surrounds the potential timeframe these tough conditions could last for. Some impact on the financial standing of these councils has been attributed and a lack of fair funding from higher up the political ladder, and it’s quite difficult to tell when that situation might be balanced out.

However, events of the past seven days have shown that it is not just local circumstances that can have major impacts on our lives.

Although political circumstances between Iran and Israel had deteriorated past a serious point some time ago, few would have expected to wake up on Saturday morning to the news the United States had made a strike against Iran.

Events that followed, such as retaliation from Iran in the form of strikes against US air bases in Qatar, are causing global nerves, and costs for necessities like fuel, to rise.

Although most Australians are a rather jovial bunch who can often get through tough circumstances with the crack of a joke, that sense of unease and growing uncertainty is also increasingly appearing in conversations with friends and families.

At times like these, it becomes evident that communities like ours in the Riverland need to support each other as much as possible.

Ian Babidge (photo) was a partner in the Loxton Chemist, ‘Norton and Babidge’ from 1967-1979. He and wife Meredith arrived in Loxton in 1967, with their first-born, Nicholas. Caroline and Matthew were born later. Norton and Babidge had a shop in East Terrace, and a second in Anzac Crescent, next to Schultz’s Deli. The family lived in Pine Avenue, and later in the house with distinguished design (photo), at 19 Edward Street. The children attended Loxton Kindy and Loxton Primary School, and Meredith became kindergarten director from 1975 to 1977. The Babidges were very community minded. Ian as a Justice of the Peace, president of Apex, and on the hospital board, and the family enjoyed family-life in Loxton making long-lasting friendships. Caroline recalls that they were involved in Mardi Gras, Arts Week at Loxton Primary School, Apex activities and kindy fetes. Growing up in Loxton was full of adventure. ‘We enjoyed the river and a great outdoor lifestyle’. The family moved to Adelaide in 1979, where Ian continued as a pharmacist until sadly passing in 2020, following a brave battle with cancer. Meredith still lives in Adelaide. Nicholas is a medical specialist in Sydney, Caroline a cancer nurse specialist in Adelaide, and Matthew, is a financial/IT specialist in Melbourne. ‘The years of the close Loxton community will always be remembered fondly’, says Caroline. WORDS/PHOTO: Caroline Whiteford.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Opinions expressed in Letters to the Editor are those of the writers, and not those of the Murray Pioneer.

Activities with more meaning

THE decision by Win and Channel 7 to ‘rob’ Riverlanders of free to air televising of AFL football is now, of no consequence to me.

Since returning from interstate where I lost complete contact with the sport for 12 years, it no longer has the appeal that captivated my interest as a former avid Crows fan.

I now regard the sport as something to watch as the last resort to beating isolation. I can watch it or leave it. To me, the game and the crowds have now changed to bordering on mass hype and hysteria.

When one distances oneself from an activity or people, emotionally, their true colours stand out. I can now focus on activities that have much more meaning.

Wage rises and business costs

AS predictable as the sun rising in the east, as soon as there is a wage rise for the lowest paid, the representatives of the highest paid start crying ‘the sky is falling’. (‘Wage decision a business blow’, letters, 11/6/25).

Surely anyone going into business knows that wages will be a cost, just as are “costs relating to gas, electricity, insurance, rent”. However, while the letter acknowledges costs other than wages have risen, the letter writer fails to lay the blame for those cost increases where it belongs, which is in my view with members of the SA Business Chamber and similar business groups around the nation. Those rising costs, imposed by businesses, also affect consumers and have the harshest effect on the lowest paid.

The SA Business Chamber and its ilk will argue that businesses need to make a profit, and I don’t deny that, but business profits are rising faster and higher than wages.

In June 1982 wages as a share of GDP were 54.16 per cent, while gross operating surplus sat at 16.77 per cent. Now, 40 years later, the wages share of GDP has declined by 20 per cent to just 44.09 per cent, while gross operating surplus had almost doubled to 29.92 per cent. This latest wage rise, which applies only to the lowest paid, will not shift the needle on that disparity.

Articles in The Murray Pioneer over the last few weeks have highlighted the work of Foodbank and the Salvos in providing food for the needy.

The growing necessity for these charitable services is an indication that wages are still too low.

No person in employment should have to rely on charity to feed their family, their wages should be sufficient to meet daily living needs and to put a little aside, without resorting to charities.

Meanwhile, business leaders and their supporters deride the poor for spending money on ‘frivolities’, while applauding the businesses who make excessive profits from necessities.

Hurdles with renewable energy

BRIAN Measday (‘Common sense in renewables’, letters, 11/6/25), makes it sound so simple for power generation by renewables as an answer to reduce carbon emissions, but glosses over the fact that there are many hurdles to overcome.

Firstly, over 90 per cent of solar panels are imported from China. Are they manufactured with renewable power?

Secondly, the current power networks have been engineered for a one-way flow of power from power station to homes and businesses.

There is a need for re-engineering the power network to now handle a diffuse source of power generation. The characteristic of solar power generation is that in the middle of the day the flow of power is often in the other direction.

Ah, but batteries can solve this problem by storing the excess power to be used at night. Are the batteries manufactured with renewable energy?

Solar panels, wind turbines and batteries have a finite life and need to be replaced. But has Australia a recyclable scheme in place? Currently, the Federal and State Governments don’t seem to recognise the need to do so.

What happens when the sun doesn’t shine, and the wind don’t blow? There needs to be base-load generation from coal and gas and as many countries have recognised nuclear is a zero-carbon emitter to fill that gap.

But, nuclear has a disposal issue. Australia having a zero-carbon policy is expensive tokenism as Australia generates about 1 per cent of carbon emissions. Money spent in going down the zero-carbon path may be better spent on adapting to climate change as Bjørn Lomborg, the Danish scientist, has been advocating for a long time.

So, there are many matters to be addressed and practical solutions to evolve. Don’t get me wrong, from a home-owner’s perspective, solar panels are a good investment, as I am about to upgrade my current solar panels and, also, install batteries.

Support for ban on gambling ads

IN a major win for public health and community wellbeing, the Malinauskas Government has agreed to ban gambling advertisements across public transport spaces.

The Legislative Council passed the motion last night with unanimous, multi-partisan support, in a rare but powerful show of agreement on the urgent need to reduce gambling harm.

The decision follows a motion brought earlier this year, urging the government to treat gambling harm with the same seriousness as alcohol, tobacco, and junk food advertising.

The upcoming ban will apply to all public transport advertising – including on buses, trains, trams, and associated infrastructure – bringing South Australia into line with New South Wales and Victoria, which introduced similar bans in 2024 and 2017 respectively.

The move is a long-overdue, but crucial step in reducing harm and protecting children and vulnerable people from the constant and normalising presence of gambling promotion.

Research shows that gambling advertising desensitises young people and contributes to risky behaviours. In Australia, one-in-three teenagers, and nearly half of those aged 18 to 19, are already gambling.

At the same time, the state reaps more than $670 million annually from gambling, including $460 million from poker machines, a profit that comes at the expense of community wellbeing.

This is a win for children, families and commuters.

But it’s only the beginning. If we’re serious about reducing gambling harm, we need systemic reform.

Our kids are being bombarded with ads that normalise gambling on their way to school. Our public transport should be safe, supportive spaces, not rolling billboards that promote addictive behaviour. That ends now.

The government has been profiting from pain – cashing in while vulnerable South Australians are targeted by a relentless cycle of advertising that normalises gambling. This ban is a vital step forward.

We don’t need gambling ads wrapped around trams rolling down North Terrace. We have better things to advertise than the products of an industry built on loss.

SA-BEST has long advocated for strong, sensible reform to reduce gambling harm — this is a meaningful step forward.

Equality needed for regional health

THE recent coronial findings into the tragic and preventable death of Kathleen Salter, at facebook/themurraypioneer

murraypioneer.com.au

Clare, are deeply distressing and I offer my sincere sympathies to her family.

Mrs Salter’s passing, after what should have been routine gall bladder surgery, underscores a glaring gap in our regional health system-access to critical diagnostic tools.

Deputy state coroner Naomi Kereru’s recommendation that CT cholangiograms be made available at all regional hospitals where elective gall bladder surgeries occur is both sensible and urgent.

This is not simply about technology, it is about equity. People living in regional communities deserve access to the same standard of healthcare as those in metropolitan areas.

Too often, regional hospitals operate without the tools that could save lives and prevent avoidable harm. In 2025, this disparity is unacceptable and the coronial findings are a wake-up call for the State Government.

I urge the Health Minister to act swiftly on the coroner’s recommendation and equip our regional hospitals with the diagnostic technology they need, starting with CT cholangiograms to ensure that no more families endure such a devastating loss.

Rural Australians still suffering

THE latest release of the Australian Institute of Health and Welfare (AIHW) data tables on Potentially preventable hospitalisations (PPH) in Australia by small geographic areas endorses the National Rural Health Alliance (NRHA) evidence showing rural communities are hospitalised at higher rates for preventable illness compared to people living in major cities.

According to the AIHW, rates of PPH were consistently higher for people living in remote and very remote areas, than those living in other areas. People living in remote and very remote areas had around twice the rate of PPH than people living in major cities.

When you live hundreds of kilometres from the nearest GP or primary care facility, you often have few options. These figures show how distance, combined with workforce shortages and limited flexibility of services, leads to unnecessary hospitalisations.

It’s a clear signal that the health system is failing to meet the needs of rural Australians. The re-elected federal government now has the opportunity to step up and implement the reforms and recommendations provided by the sector.

We can no longer ignore this discrepancy in access.

The figures endorse the NRHA’s evidence base for additional investment in rural health in Australia report, showing residents in remote and very remote communities were hospitalised for potentially avoidable conditions at approximately twice the rate of those in major cities.

AIHW data shows that this gap has remained consistent over recent years, with the rate ranging from 2.0 times higher in 2017-2018, to 2.2 times higher in 2021-22.

AIHW also shows people living in regional Primary Health Network areas have experienced persistently higher rates of potentially preventable hospitalisations compared to their metropolitan counterparts since 2017-2018.

This is particularly so in the Northern Territory (5600 hospitalisations per 100,000 population) and Western Queensland (5300 hospitalisations per 100,000 population).

The NRHA’s evidence base for additional rural health investment echoes these findings. It recognises that where primary care access is low, more patients access emergency departments.

The report also highlights that MBS utilisation, for example from GP consults, drops as areas become more remote, with an associated rise in emergency department attendances. In these regions, there are often no clinicians of any kind.

We now have years of evidence showing that lower access to Medicare-funded services and higher emergency presentations are closely linked. The AIHW figures back this up — now we need the funding to follow from the re-elected government.

We know the Minister for Health, Ageing and Disability Mark Butler understands the paradox of remote Australia’s great economic contribution, and yet worse health outcomes.

Over the years, the NRHA has provided flexible solutions to Australian governments through numerous consultations.

Now’s the time to implement those recommendations with better investment in rural primary care and allied health services.

Urging for free RSV vaccine

ON Respiratory Syncytial Virus (RSV) Awareness Week, and as Australia passes 60,000 RSV cases this year so far, GPs are urging federal, state, and territory governments to make the RSV vaccination free for at-risk groups and protect our most vulnerable.

RSV hits our communities hard every year, with serious and sometimes life-threatening consequences for babies, young children, older people, and people with chronic health conditions.

The Federal Government provides free vaccines for pregnant women to protect them and their babies, and state and territory governments have funded immunisation across the country for babies who do not already have protection from RSV through the mother’s vaccination.

At this stage free vaccines for other at-risk groups are not funded nationally, and they vary from state to state.

The Australian Immunisation Handbook recommends RSV vaccination for pregnant women, all people over 75 years of age, and anyone over 60 who is Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander, or who has medical risk factors for severe RSV disease.

With more than half of reported cases occurring in babies and children aged under four and almost 20 per cent occurring among over 60s, protecting these populations is crucial.

The Federal and State Governments must co-operate to ensure all vulnerable groups can access the vaccine for free to keep them safe and reduce the spread of the disease.

For those wanting to protect themselves from RSV and other vaccine-preventable illnesses this season, your family GP will be able to guide you in which vaccines are recommended and how to look after your health and wellbeing through winter.

There is no substitute for the quality care you get from a specialist GP who knows you and your history. Together we can reduce the spread of RSV.

Riverlanders reminisce on the flood

MADISON EASTMOND

HOPING to build community wellness and reliance, a physical collection of reflections on the 2022/23 Murray River floods was celebrated and launched last week. Funded by Commonwealth and South Australian Government to deliver a Riverland Recovery Stories project of podcasts, books, and exhibitions, the not-for-profit organisation Kintsugi Heroes launched the ‘Our River Murray’ book, last Friday, at the Renmark Paringa Library. As a physical collection — host to 10 local stories and experiences regarding the 2022/23 Murray River floods — ‘Our River Murray’ is one of multiple projects Kintsugi Heroes have undertaken that shares the life stories of those who have overcome adversity to encourage community resilience and inspire others who may be experiencing similar challenges.

Local figures who had their experiences put to paper include:

- Renmark Paringa Council CEO Tony Sivor.
- Berri resident Julie Ahrens.
- Mid Murray Council director of infrastructure and field services David Hassett.
- Murray River resident Graham Radford.
- Loxton resident Adele Johnson.
- Paringa photographer Grant Schwartzkoff.

- Mid Murray Council Mayor Simone Bailey.
- Renmark resident Ivan Smith.
- Renmark Paringa Council Mayor Peter Hunter.
- Renmark Paringa Council infrastructure services manager Shannon Baxer.

“We are certainly much better equipped to deal with another flood now than were before in terms of data and systems,” Renmark Paringa Council CEO Tony Sivor shared on a community-led panel. “We also earnt respect as a region with government, and also made very good connections that I am still finding useful — though a natural disaster, there was still a silver lining.” To access the free eBook of ‘Our River Murray’, or listen to the podcast ‘River Murray Recovery Stories’, visit the website (www.kintsugiheroes.com.au/river-murray-flood-series/).

Suicide and mental health of SA veterinarians... Riverland trip’s crucial input

HUGH SCHUITEMAKER

THE mental health scourge faced by veterinarians and their staff – including the shocking suicide rate – will be explored when a group of visiting SA politicians descends on the Riverland early next month. SA Parliament’s Joint Committee on the Mental Health and Wellbeing of Veterinarians in South Australia will visit the Riverland on July 3 to meet with local veterinarians and practice staff to learn about the issues faced by regional vet practices. Committee chair Sarah Game MLC – a former veterinarian before being elected in 2022 – will be among the touring group and said the industry desperately needed information and solutions. “There is something very concerning going on with the veterinary industry,” Dr Game said. “We have highly resilient, highly capable people, yet they are taking their own lives and leaving the profession. “I hope this inquiry will bring about real change to the extraordinary financial hardship, the very long hours and the incredibly high-pressure environment these people work in.”

Dr Sarah Game

Established by Dr Game, the committee is receiving evidence concerning:

- The causes behind veterinarian burnout, mental health, and suicide.
- Identifying preventative measures and initiatives to improve working conditions.
- The role of education in workplace preparation.
- Identifying the industry’s social and economic benefits.

Fellow upper house member and ex-veterinarian, Riverland-based Liberal MLC Nicola Centofanti, will also be part of the group, which will make various stopovers during the trip. “The mental health and wellbeing of our veterinarians, particularly in regional South Australia, must be taken seriously,” said Dr Centofanti, who is the State Opposition spokesperson for primary industries and regional SA. “These professionals play a vital role in our agricultural communities, yet they are facing extraordinary stress, burnout, and in some tragic cases, suicide. “I am delighted that the committee have chosen to head to where I practiced as a veterinarian. “This fact-finding visit is an important opportunity to listen directly to those on the front lines. “Vets in regional practices are dealing with unique pressures: long hours, professional isolation, financial strain, and an emotionally demanding workload. “It’s essential that their lived experiences inform practical reforms, whether that be through workplace support, education, or broader workforce planning.” Dr Centofanti said the regional veterinary sector was under “immense pressure”. “And without urgent action, we risk losing more of these highly skilled professionals,” she said. The committee is scheduled to visit the Riverland on Thursday, July 3, and will also spend another day in Murray Bridge.

The Long Lunch of a lifetime

THE next chapter in an ongoing journey to highlight the premium potential of Riverland-made wine will be written this weekend.

Ricca Terra will on Sunday, June 29 launch its new 2024 Una Vita white wine at a Long Lunch event, being held at the increasingly-popular Ricca Terra Wine Room, in Renmark.

Ricca Terra winemaker Ashley Ratcliff said the Una Vita white – made from grenache blanc grapes – showcased refreshing acidity in combination with bold textural richness

“With all our whites, we’ve always been looking for that distinct acid line through the wine, that’s fresh and zippy,” he said.

“I needed a variety that would hold that palate weight. Chardonnay is great, but I wanted something distinct.

“I wanted to use grenache blanc. We’ve got some of the oldest grenache blanc vines in the country in this state.”

The Long Lunch event will be filled with a hearty, warm Indian-inspired feast designed for sharing, beautiful river views, and Ashley’s reasoning of why the Riverland needed a super-premium wine. In addition, there will be an opportunity for lunch goers to secure Una Vita at a pre-release special price.

Ashley said expanding the outside perception of Riverland-made wines was an ongoing goal.

“We hand-pruned it, hand-picked it, and let it sit for 12 months in a brand new oak barrel,” he said.

“I’ve shown it interstate and it’s been very popular with wine enthusiasts and those looking to try a new, bold white wine.”

Tickets for the Long Lunch are limited, so make sure to visit the Ricca Terra website (www.riccaterra.com.au/merchandise/long-lunch-ricca-terra-wine-room) today to secure your seat.

Cemetery fees for babies and children waived

A RIVERLAND council has approved the waiver of cemetery fees for stillborn babies and children, aiming to allow grieving families to farewell loved ones at decreased, or no cost.

Loxton Waikerie councillors at last week’s general meeting voted to approve a proposed cemetery fee waiver for babies and children up to 10 years of age.

According to a letter from presiding Newland MP Olivia Savvas on behalf of stillbirth into South Australia, sent to Mayor Trevor Norton, said “the committee would like to encourage the Loxton Waikerie District Council to implement a similar policy to waive these fees in your local area to show compassion and support for grieving families, to provide the opportunity to farewell their loved ones at little-to-no cost during this difficult time”.

“In February of this year, the Berri

Barmera Council waived cemetery fees for babies and children and the City of Salisbury has followed suit by adopting that these fees will also not be charged in this local council area,” the letter said.

Councillors approved the request, with the agenda stating “this initiative aims to demonstrate compassion and support for grieving families by allowing them to farewell their loved ones at little to no cost during such a difficult time”.

“In the draft 2025–26 Fees and Charges, the cost for a stillborn or child burial is listed as $401.00,” the agenda said.

“Over the past 25 years, there have been 10 instances of children being laid to rest in council cemeteries, with only one occurring in the last five years. Therefore, the financial impact of implementing this waiver would be minimal.”

Waikerie retirement village will not have rate rebates

A RIVERLAND council has declined a rate rebate application from a senior citizens not-for profit organisation that runs a retirement village.

Loxton Waikerie councillors at last week’s general meeting, voted to decline a proposed rate rebate application from Waikerie Community Senior Citizens Home Inc.

The incorporated body had requested a 25 per cent discretionary rebate for 78 individual tenancies located at the Warrawee Lodge retirement village, stating on their rate rebate application from the village is “operated by a not-for-profit organisation which provides affordable independent housing to retirees and aged pensioners in the area”.

The application also said “the organisation is not in receipt of any government funding, and the rebate would allow to keep fees affordable to residents”.

Loxton Waikerie council meeting agenda, under section 14.1.2 mentioned “If council were to approve the current application, a discretionary rebate of approximately $13,060 would apply”.

“It is anticipated that approval of this rebate may result in similar applications from other retirement villages across the district, with an estimated further rebate impact of approximately $29,599,” the agenda said.

Finance access dries up for regional producers

SEBASTIAN CALDERON

A LOCAL finance expert says drought-induced debt, combined with tightening lender risk appetites, are making it increasingly difficult for growers to access the finance needed to keep their businesses running.

Completed by more than 130 producers, a recent Grain Producers SA (GPSA) survey revealed that one-in-two South Australian grain producers are currently facing difficulties accessing finance or credit during the drought.

GPSA chief executive officer Brad Perry said the results paint a troubling picture of grain producers being pushed to the brink in the second-consecutive year of a state-wide drought.

"This survey confirms what we are hearing right across the state – grain producers are being met with more hoops, stricter conditions, and slower processes to secure critical finance to get them through this season and beyond," Mr Perry said.

"The survey shows examples of grain producers being told they don't qualify for support due to the drought-impacted seasons, even if they've met their financial obligations previously. It's a precarious situation for grain producers across South Australia."

Riverland Lending Services senior manager Jeff McDonald said the current scenario is what most farmers have experienced with their banks.

"After the Royal Commission into Banking, new laws were introduced into business finance under the headline of 'Responsible Lending,'" Mr McDonald said.

"Similar laws have been in place when it comes to consumer lending (home loans) for over 20 years, designed to protect borrowers from banks lending to them when they don't have the financial support."

"This has been our life for the last 6 to 12 months – processing loan applications for our farming clients after some very disappointing weather events, and the major proportion of our client base is across SA.

"The biggest change in these laws is the heavy emphasis on repayment ability ahead of security/equity. It is now a requirement of all banks (audited by government bodies), that borrowers can demonstrate the ability to repay their loans from cash-flow/profits over a reasonable loan term."

According to the survey:

- ❑ Nearly 60 per cent cited issues with bank lending, followed by commercial lending (13 per cent), with key concerns raised about overdraft extension challenges.
- ❑ The most common challenges experienced by grain producers when seeking finance were a lack of cashflow (29 per cent), approval processes (24 per cent), increased interest rates (17 per cent) and stricter lending criteria (9 per cent).
- ❑ Almost 10 per cent said their bank required a formal drought declaration before assistance would be considered.
- ❑ Nearly 70 per cent of respondents said they have a dedicated bank manager, with 18 per cent stating they used to but no longer do, and 10 per cent do not have one.
- ❑ The overall average experience rating for grain producers dealing with their bank or financial institution during drought is five out of 10.
- ❑ Only 15 per cent of grain producers surveyed said their banks proactively offered drought related support options.

Mr Perry said a lack of consistent drought relief options through financiers was compounding financial stress.

"It is concerning that the survey found there are still financiers telling some grain producers they'll only consider hardship support if there's a formal drought declaration, while comments in the survey suggest others aren't even aware of the pressures growers are under," he said.

Mr McDonald highlighted the financial importance of income stability.

"This has always been the case in home loans, where someone's employment income is paramount to gaining approval, with the deposit/equity a secondary consideration," Mr McDonald said.

"In other words, someone who only wants to borrow say $100,000 on a $1m house, and has the rest in cash, cannot get a loan if they don't have any income to repay the $100k loan.

"The responsible lending laws in business now reflect a similar approach, with a borrower needing to demonstrate repayment ability, and not simply rely on their equity as they have always done so in the past.

"With some good seasons for most rural areas through the 2020–2023 period, these changes haven't been noticed by farmers as most haven't had to lean on their bank during the good times."

The survey also found:

- ❑ Just 33 per cent of respondents had used Farm Management Deposits (FMDs), with many citing they never had the sufficient surplus required to do so.
- ❑ Only 28 per cent had applied for concessional loans through the Regional Investment Corporation (RIC), with several noting the complexity or unsuitability of the criteria.
- ❑ A growing number of grain producers are relying on finance brokers, not banks, due to long delays and lack of agricultural expertise within financial institutions.
- ❑ Almost 20 per cent had used the Rural Financial Counselling Service in the past 12 months with only 2 per cent engaged in Farm Debt Mediation.

Mr Perry said GPSA will be providing the results of the survey to the State and Federal Government and writing to banks and financiers highlighting the feedback and concerns from grain producers.

"We need to ensure grain producers don't just survive this drought but are set up to recover when seasonal conditions improve. Access to finance is a critical part of that equation and these survey results demonstrate that much more needs to be done," Mr Perry said.

Mr McDonald said "many farmers purchased land in recent/good years at record-high values, at what were historically low interest rates (some around 2 per cent)," Mr McDonald said.

"The cost to service these debts has risen dramatically in the last few years as rates are sitting around 6-7 per cent now, a three-fold increase in interest costs.

"The cost of most inputs (fertiliser, chemical, fuel, power, rates, wages etc) have risen sharply in recent years, putting significant pressure on viability when commodities (wheat, barley etc) haven't increased in value."

Mr McDonald said farmers were struggling to demonstrate an ability to repay their debts.

"We (RLS Agribusiness) have seen many cases where a farmer is struggling to gain finance support from their bank," Mr McDonald said.

"A recent case saw a valuation of $22m on a farm with $3m debt, yet they couldn't access more money to cover their losses from the 2024 drought. The reason, despite all that equity, they cannot show they can repay the loan.

"This is the law and we need to work within the rules to get what we want.

"We at RLS Agribusiness see this as an opportunity to assist our clients to 'step up' a little with their business decisions, considering that no-one chooses to lose money and for most, they won't lose money in the long term against at least average seasons.

"It's about becoming more business focused and proving to banks that there is long-term viability in their operations."

Riverlanders warned to not eat wild mushrooms

POTENTIALLY deadly wild mushrooms are starting to pop up in parts of the state, prompting a warning to Riverlanders about the risks of picking and eating unknown fungi.

Poisonous wild mushrooms can usually be found across much of the state from late summer to early winter when the earth is still warm, and particularly after rain.

Despite the low rainfall this year, cooler weather and recent rainfall has triggered the start of the fungi season in parts of the Adelaide Hills.

Poisoning from several varieties may have a delayed onset of symptoms - up to 24 hours - and can cause life-threatening liver damage.

Early treatment can be lifesaving, act quickly if you think you have ingested wild mushrooms.

The death cap mushrooms, or amanita phalloides, have been found recently at a few locations in the Adelaide Hills. They are extremely poisonous even if only tiny amounts are ingested.

Death caps can be difficult to distinguish from other wild mushrooms and can resemble some edible species, so it is important to keep an eye on children and pets when outside.

Even the experts can have difficulty in identifying some species, so you should only ever eat mushrooms that have been purchased from a reliable green-grocer or supermarket.

Around 46 per cent of the calls made to the Poisons Information Centre last year about mushroom poisoning involved children under the age of five.

Symptoms of mushroom poisoning include severe stomach cramps, nausea, vomiting and diarrhoea, which can take several hours to appear. This can progress to life-threatening liver failure, depending on the species.

“There is no reliable way of telling if a wild mushroom is safe to eat, and you can’t tell if a mushroom is poisonous by its taste or if an animal has eaten it,” Chief Public Health Officer Nicola Spurrier said.

“I can’t be clearer – don’t eat wild mushrooms.

“Don’t risk your life or the life of your loved ones - only eat mushrooms from a reliable grower, greengrocer or supermarket.

“Wild fungi may look beautiful to look at and by all means, take a photo, but don’t touch or eat them. People born overseas should be aware that these highly toxic mushrooms can look like edible mushrooms that they may have gathered in their home countries.

“If you or someone you know has eaten a wild mushroom, don’t wait for symptoms to appear. Seek immediate medical advice in case the mushroom is toxic.

“You can contact the Poisons Information Centre on 13 11 26 for advice, or call 000 in an emergency.”

For more information on mushroom poisoning, visit the SA Health website (www.sahealth.sa.gov.au).

Community connected through Mobo

MADISON EASTMOND

A RIVERLAND disability service provider held a new event last week, with the session working to help support its clients build potential employment connections.

Berri-based Mobo Group held its I.C.A.R.E event last Wednesday, providing local clients with disability an afternoon of “valuable connections, insightful conversations and new opportunities”.

Providing employment and related support services across the Riverland, Mobo Group employment services officer Tyson Linsday said “the day was about showing participants that (Mobo) wants to know them better and make sure they feel included on their journey (to employment) and within the community”.

“It’s a reference point for a client and a service provider to show what Mobo does, and why it is important to work with local services,” Mr Linsday said.

The first event of its kind for the local Mobo Group, employment services officer

Renae Agius said the “highlight of the day was (local clients), who have recently begun work, attending the event”.

“It’s just great hearing the experiences of our participants,” Mrs Agius said.

“We would love to continue providing these sessions to the community.

“Moving forward our main goal is to start having smaller version of the session with certain employers and certain participants — you really begin to create connection that way.”

Have your say on our draft Clinical Services Plan!

The Riverland Mallee Coorong Local Health Network (RMCLHN) has developed a draft Clinical Services Plan 2025-2035 to guide clinical service development in our region over the next five to ten years.

A Clinical Services Plan is a document that outlines the current and future health needs of our communities, the health services required to meet those needs, and a plan to make it happen.

Everyone is invited to have their say.
Visit www.sahealth.sa.gov.au/RMCYourVoiceMatters to read the draft Plan then complete the short online survey at bit.ly/DraftCSPconsultation or scan the QR code.

The survey opens on Wednesday 25 June 2025 and closes on Wednesday 16 July 2025.

Hard copy versions of the draft Plan and the survey can be made available upon request by emailing Health.RMCLHNClinicalServicePlanning@sa.gov.au

Search for Nemo brought to the stage

IN the vibrant depths of the Great Barrier Reef, clownfish father Marlin sends his son Nemo off to school.

An educational outing turns dangerous when the curious clownfish finds himself captured by a diver and taken to Sydney, sparking an ocean-wide fish hunt to find Nemo.

This beloved Disney Pixar story has been adapted for the stage and will be presented by Rivergum Christian College, at the Chaffey Theatre, over two nights next week as their annual whole-school musical.

From the junior primary class transforming into a jellyfish cloud, to SACE Creative Arts students choreographing and set designing, every student plays a role either onstage or off as part of the College's Performing Arts program.

The production has been guided by the combined talents of artistic director Jenni Sander, production manager Joanna Whitehead, and primary director Cheryl Burgemeister throughout the semester.

"Student hands and ideas are on show throughout, from marketing, making, music and movement," Mrs Sander said.

"They are all ready to shine in their various areas. I've been so inspired as the show has progressed through auditions and rehearsals at just how creative and talented our students are."

Multiple subject disciplines underpin the creative process, as props and sets are constructed from recycled materials in Visual Arts and classes study the reef and its inhabitants in science.

"The enthusiasm for this learning has been a joy to watch," Mrs Burgemeister said.

"We are blessed to have a team of staff who are passionate about, and skilled in, the arts."

As Marlin and his forgetful friend Dory traverse the East Australian Current in pursuit of Nemo, they meet sharks, turtles, jellyfish and all manner of sea creatures.

"There are 24 featured roles from singing, dancing and solo lines. The quality and professionalism of the students has given me goosebumps during the rehearsal process and I can't wait for everyone to see and hear this show," Mrs Sander said.

The college will perform Finding Nemo Jr. on Wednesday, July 2, and Thursday, July 3, at the Chaffey Theatre, in Renmark.

Support needed for RYT

A RIVERLAND community theatre group is seeking support to keep a much-loved flagship program afloat.

Riverland Youth Theatre (RYT) is asking for community support to keep their ensemble workshops available for local teens as they seek long-term project funding.

Launching an online fundraiser earlier this month, artistic director Sam Wannan said RYT has "already seen tremendous support".

"It just goes to show how much the community value the work we do," he said.

"We hear from our young people on the ways that RYT has transformed their lives, so we are tremendously grateful to everyone who has donated to support this program."

Over the past 18 months, the ensemble has created multiple short films and two acclaimed theatre productions, with the first — The Bacchae — winning the Adelaide Fringe Youth Award, and the second — War of the Worlds — part of the Adelaide Festival.

The program has also worked to build the confidence, wellbeing and self-esteem of its local participants, with young Riverlanders able to "find their tribe and their voice".

"Being accepted as a part of RYT was something that I never expected," RYT youth participant Levi said.

"As soon as I joined, I felt a sense of belonging and a sense of family with the people and staff there.

"Ensemble has allowed me to meet so many new and amazing friends along the way, while also providing the opportunity to work with talented and creative people like us."

Providing opportunities to attend major festivals and conferences at no cost, Levi said such experiences have allowed them to "gain skills in working with others, and improve (their) public speaking abilities and self-confidence by participating in the performances".

"Performing in the Bacchae and War of The Worlds is something that I will never forget — the lights, the crowds, and overall just sharing the stage with so many talented people," they said.

"Truly, the RYT ensemble is an amazing opportunity, and I am so glad that I can take part in it."

2026 ABC Heywire Competition now open

YOUNG Riverlanders can now participate in a major national initiative, with the 2026 ABC Heywire storytelling competition open for submissions.

Now in its 27th year, the ABC's Heywire Competition invites Australians aged 16 to 22 — living outside the capital cities — to submit true stories reflecting their lives in regional, rural, or remote communities.

Winning stories are produced by the ABC and broadcast across ABC TV, Radio National, triple j, ABC Local Radio, and ABC iview.

ABC managing director Hugh Marks encouraged young Australians living in regional communities to share their stories.

"Heywire continues to serve as a dynamic platform for the ideas and experiences of young regional Australians," he said.

"The ABC is proud to offer these emerging leaders and storytellers a national platform to amplify their voices.

"For more than 27 years Heywire has provided unique avenues for young rural Australians to express their views and perspectives, fostering the storytelling and leadership skills of this next generation. We're excited to discover the new stories that will be revealed this year."

AgriFutures Australia chairperson Ms Cathy McGowan said the "partnership with Heywire reflects a deep commitment to empowering young Australians in regional, rural, and remote communities".

"By supporting this vital program, we amplify unheard voices, nurture leadership, and help drive meaningful change where it's needed most," Ms McGowan said.

"These young people are already creating impact — and that's exactly what AgriFutures is here to support: bold ideas, backed by bright people, shaping a thriving future for Australian Agriculture and its communities."

Submissions close September 1.

For more information, visit the website (www.abc.net.au/heywire/competition).

Are you ready to Join the Team in Green?

SA AMBULABCE Service (SAAS) is looking for ambulance volunteers in the Riverland to join local teams in green and support the community when they need it most.

SAAS needs people to join the green team at the Morgan station.

“We are looking for people who want to get involved and help their communities,” Murray Mallee operations manager Paula Parker said.

“When you join the team in green, you don’t need any specific experience or skills, we will teach you everything you need to know.

“All you need is a willingness to learn and participate.

“In the Murray Mallee we need volunteers today and there are friendly crews who would love to welcome new people into their team in green.”

SAAS volunteers wear the green uniform with pride and are respected in their communities. By joining SAAS, volunteers will receive a nationally accredited qualifications, free Ambulance Cover and can be reimbursed for travel and childcare.

Volunteers work towards a Certificate IV in Health Care (HLT41120) qualification at their own pace, with both online and in-person training.

To apply, visit the website (saasvolunteer.sa.gov.au), or call 1300 175 584.

The lost digger arrives in Renmark

MADISON EASTMOND

AN AUSTRALIAN veteran recently arrived in the Riverland to raise awareness for mental health.

Walking from Perth’s Cottesloe Beach to Sydney’s Bondi Beach, Victorian veteran, Bruce Bolger, reached Renmark earlier this month on his journey to raise awareness for The Black Dog Institute.

“I was in the army for 25 years — serving throughout Australia and overseas in East Timor, Iraq, and the Sinai Peninsula, between Egypt and Israel — and in 2023 I was medically discharged from defence,” Mr Bolger said.

“Within those last three years of being in the army, 13 people up until now have died by suicide — all friends of mine.

“So, I decided to sell everything I had, and walk from Cottesloe Beach to Bondi to raise awareness for the Black Dog (Institute) and mental health.”

With only a cart holding a few possessions, water, and a tent, Mr Bolger reached Renmark on day 72 of his cross-country journey, before setting off to Mildura the following day in hopes of reaching his destination before July 20.

“I have had some problems with my feet, and currently on my third pair of shoes, and getting used to the cold has been a challenge,” he said.

“Normally, when I am finished walking for the day, I pull off to the side and set up my tent and try to rinse and repeat — it’s been one foot in front of the other.

“The journey has also been very lonely, but has been made up by all the people I have met along the way”.

Receiving a dinner from the Renmark RSL and a free night of accommodation from Hotel Renmark, Mr Bolger said he has been “blown away” by the constant generosity of each community he has visited.

“I am funding everything on my own, but people have been so generous,” he said.

“Organisations like the (Renmark) RSL and places like Hotel Renmark have been amazing.

“Even the truckies who give me care packages, or those in cars who stop for a chat — it’s all been so great.”

Mr Bolger said “the daily reset” that has allowed him to get this far in his journey, is the message he wants to pass on to anyone who may be struggling.

“One thing I want to stress is resetting,” he said.

“I wouldn’t be able to do this walk if I didn’t reset here in Renmark, and then again in Mildura, and so on.

“If people are finding their mental health difficult, they should stop, think about what they’re doing, relax, and take the time for themselves to change their lifestyle and what they’re doing.”

Next year Mr Bolger said he is walking from Adelaide to Melbourne, via Hobart, and hopes more people join him when he reaches the Great Ocean Road for a 110km challenge, or a Tasmanian trek from Devonport to Hobart.

“I am inviting anyone who has never camped or doesn’t want to walk by themselves,” he said.

To follow Mr Bolger’s journey, follow (@lostdigger) across all social media platforms.

BUILDING YOUR 2025 LOXTON DREAM

AS we move through 2025, building a new home in Loxton — a thriving Murray River town — comes with its own unique combination of regional context and broader Australian trends. Here are the key themes emerging this year:

Strong regional demand and growing infrastructure support

Loxton’s housing market remains robust, with strong buyer interest drawn by affordability, regional incentives, and lifestyle appeal. The South Australian government continues to push policies that encourage growth outside Adelaide — through reduced red tape and expanded development zones—making areas like Loxton especially attractive to investors and homebuyers.

We couldn’t be happier with the landscaping Josh and the team have done for our new home! Their attention to detail was impeccable. Josh respectfully gave his opinions and ideas, which helped enhance our vision and created a space that we love and enjoy all year round. He was always happy to answer our questions, even after the job was completed. The competitive price didn’t compromise the quality of work or materials used. I haven’t found a more level and square retaining wall than the one Josh built at our place. Highly recommend!

LOXTON HOME +lifestyle

Energy efficiency and sustainability at the core

Nationally, 2025 building trends emphasise energy-efficient homes: solar-ready roofs, high-performance insulation, double-glazed windows, and orientation designed to optimise passive heating and cooling. In Loxton’s climate, such designs help control summer heat and reduce cooling bills — an ideal match for both comfort and sustainability.

Modular and prefabricated methods

Modular, prefab, and panelised building techniques are gaining momentum, thanks to faster construction times and improved quality control. For Loxton’s smaller contractors, this translates to upfront prefabricated wall or pod systems that reduce on-site labour needs —critical given Australia’s ongoing construction workforce shortage.

Smart home integration

Home automation — thermostat control, LED lighting, and security monitoring via apps — continues to become standard even in regional builds. In Loxton, this means farmers and those moving from the city can remotely manage irrigation, lighting, and security — offering both efficiency and peace of mind.

Navigating cost pressures and regulatory shifts

While private house approvals have lifted slightly (up 3.1 per cent nationally), South Australia faces new regulatory costs — such as proposed larger garage size requirements — that may raise project costs by $60,000 to $110,000. It’s a pivotal 2025, one where smart planning, clear budgeting, and savvy design decisions will be essential to managing build viability in Loxton.

- Building in Loxton during 2025 calls for a thoughtful blend of:
- Sustainability: energy efficiency and eco-smart design
 - Efficiency: modular construction, smaller smart footprints
 - Local character: regional materials and artisanal detailing
 - Tech-integration: home automation tailored for rural living
 - Cost and compliance navigation: managing evolving SA regulations

By embracing these trends, new homes in Loxton can offer modern comfort and aesthetic appeal — while capitalising on regional momentum and staying future-ready. The result? Beautiful, resilient homes that truly fit their place in the Riverland.

Tim helps honour Albert’s legacy

HUGH SCHUITEMAKER

A SOUTH Australian initiative is continuing to ensure the legacies of Riverland former soldiers – who had been in unmarked graves – are recognised. Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone earlier this month attended a Headstone Project SA grave unveiling event, for Albert Ernest White, held in Swan Reach.

Mr Whetstone said properly honouring locals who had served in the military was crucial to preserving the Riverland’s history.

“It was a privilege once again to be involved in honouring the lives and service of our local veterans,” Mr Whetstone said.

“The Headstone Project ensures that no story is forgotten and that every sacrifice is remembered with dignity.

“The headstones are lasting memories of the people who served our country and returned to rebuild their lives in our region.

“I’m always proud to be part of the Riverland community when they come together to recognise this legacy.”

The Headstone Project SA have previously held unveilings for numerous unmarked war graves at the Renmark Cemetery.

Tony wants the region’s best farming pictures

RIVERLANDERS are encouraged to showcase local “world class” produce and wines through a photography competition run by the region’s Federal MP.

Entries opened earlier this month for the 2025 Barker’s Best Photo Competition, run by Barker MP Tony Pasin, with the theme ‘Barker’s Primary Production – Tears and Triumph’.

Mr Pasin said showcasing “unique and unseen angles of this world-class region and those who live and work here” was a goal of the competition.

“As regional farming communities know, our primary producers work incredibly hard and face immense challenges,” Mr Pasin said.

“Since our very first farmers tilled the soil, they’ve faced the challenges of this largely arid land and they have continued to succeed over generations because they are resilient, efficient and innovative.

“While our farmers are struggling through one of the worst droughts on record, I want to highlight and celebrate that Australia, and indeed Barker, has some of the finest farmers in the world.

“Let’s tell the story in pictures. The good, the bad, the trials and the triumphs.

“Whether it is fished, farmed, fresh or fermented, let’s go behind-the-scenes of getting our food and fibre from paddock to plate.”

Entries will be displayed on Mr Pasin’s website gallery before being judged by an award-winning agricultural photographer. Some of Mr Pasin’s favourite photos will also be printed to feature in a travelling exhibition visiting each of Barker’s diverse but magnificent regions.

The Riverland region winner will receive a $250 voucher from a local business of their choice.

For full details on how to enter, or to submit images, visit the website (www.tonypasin.com/barker_best_photo_competition).

Entries close at 5pm, on Friday August 29.

Your local hub for great smallgoods

ROLLBUSCH Quality Meats, at Barmera, is the wholesale production site for its international and national award-winning smallgoods.

The gourmet butcher recently won a Platinum Award for its boneless ham at the 2025 International Deutscher Fleischer-Verband Quality International Competition for Sausages and Ham in Frankfurt, Germany.

He also won gold with its chicken jalepeno kabana and two silver awards with its maple cured mallee smoked bacon, and spanish bacon.

Rollbusch Quality Meats owner Nigel Rollbusch says his Barmera business is the powerhouse for his smallgoods operations.

Demand for his award-winning smallgoods, sausages, and fresh locally sourced meat continues to grow.

All these products are available at the Barmera shop, which officially opened in 2021.

Ready-made meals using the butcher's meat and locally produced fruit and vegetables are also available.

The Riverland butcher has also won state and national awards for several of his continental and lamb sausages.

Nigel is planning to install a new smoker with a larger capacity at his Barmera premises, to meet the high demand for smallgoods during the Christmas season.

Rollbusch Quality Meats also has two sites at Waikerie, with a retail store next to Woolworths, in White Street, and a meat production hub in McCoy Street.

The award-winning sausages are made at the production facility, at Waikerie, with meat sourced from local cattle and sheep producers cut into portions, or minced at the location.

The internationally recognised butcher also supplies Koch's Foodland at Loxton, and Renmark, with bacon, fritz, and boneless ham.

A number of supermarkets in Adelaide and the Barossa Valley also stock the smallgoods and sausages.

Local cadets shine at championships

CADETS from Barmera, Moorook, Morgan, Tailem Bend and Mannum CFS brigades participated in the Region 3 CFS Cadet Championship, at the Swan Reach Area School, on Sunday, June 15.

CFS Region 3 encompasses brigades in the Riverland, Mallee, Mid Murray, Murraylands and Upper South East regions of the state.

The single-day event featured four cadet firefighting drills, sourced from CFS fireground practices and previous firefighting competitions.

The drills were timed and judged, with pennants and medals presented to the winning teams at the end of the day by CFS deputy chief officer Paul Seager.

“This event is a fun and exciting day that highlights firefighting skills and teamwork among our cadets,” regional volunteer officer Michelle Egel said.

“All 30 cadets in attendance really enjoyed the experience of competing and showing off the valuable firefighting skills they have learnt.

“We hope the event may also help in growing our overall cadet numbers and by showing the meaningful experiences our youth can receive.”

GPs to diagnose and treat ADHD

THE State Government is introducing reforms to make it more accessible and cheaper for Riverlanders to receive a diagnosis and treatment for attention-deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD).

Backed by the Royal Australian College of General Practitioners, the reforms will allow GPs to diagnose and treat ADHD in children and adults, significantly reducing costs and lengthy wait times associated with having to go through a paediatrician or psychiatrist.

From 2026, additional training will be made available to South Australian GPs, enabling them to diagnose ADHD, provide support to patients and families and prescribe medication to assist with learning, development and workplace challenges without the need for specialist appointments.

The new approach will ensure South Australians receive faster personalised holistic care, with shorter diagnosis wait times and cheaper overall treatment.

It will also allow greater access to this important health care in regional areas.

Currently, adults seeking a diagnosis in South Australia must first see a psychiatrist for assessment and children must see a paediatrician.

Specialist appointments are often expensive, with many patients paying upwards of $2000 and waiting months or years to receive a diagnosis for the complex condition.

It is estimated that one in 20 Australians has ADHD, with the condition affecting an individual’s thinking, communication and behaviour. Symptoms include difficulty paying attention, impulsiveness, and restlessness.

In recent years, greater understanding of the condition has led to increased demand for ADHD assessments across Australia.

Importantly, the reforms will allow specialist GPs to provide holistic care for their patients with ADHD. This includes addressing other key aspects of care, such as sleep hygiene and screen time, co-ordinating referrals to educational and behavioural management programs, counselling and support groups.

Accredited training will be provided through the Royal Australian College of General

Chris Picton

Practitioners, with additional ongoing support to be provided post-training.

“We are making it cheaper and easier for South Australians to access life-changing treatment for ADHD, by allowing GPs to treat and diagnose the condition,” Minister for Health and Wellbeing Chris Picton said.

“We know many South Australians currently face lengthy wait times and huge costs to access a diagnosis and treatment.

“Children can struggle academically and socially as a result of ADHD and we want to reduce any delays in them receiving help.

“These game-changing reforms will improve the lives of children and adults across the state.

“People’s access to this important health care should not be determined by their post-code or their bank balance.

“And likewise, we should allow our specialist GPs to practise at the top of their scope of practice.”

Royal Australian College of General Practitioners (RACGP) SA chair Siân Goodson said “an ADHD assessment and diagnosis can cost thousands of dollars and months of waiting”.

“Health data shows families in more rural and lower socioeconomic status areas are missing out on this care at significantly higher rates,” Dr Goodson said.

“As specialist GPs, we care for our patients throughout their lives and are the most accessible medical practitioners.

“GPs with an interest in ADHD are supported by appropriate clinical guidelines and well-placed to provide an assessment, diagnosis, and ongoing care.

“Early intervention for children with ADHD sets children up for success at school and throughout their lives.

“For adults, a diagnosis and access to treatment by a GP who knows you can be life-changing.”

Insights reveal breathing techniques could help counter stress epidemic

A FORMER world-ranked athlete is spotlighting a potential solution to rising global stress levels, one that costs nothing and is accessible to all Riverlanders, proper breathing.

As stress-related health issues escalate worldwide, researchers and coaches are turning attention to how breathing influences the body’s nervous system. Studies show that dysfunctional breathing habits, such as mouth breathing or rapid, shallow breaths, can keep the body in a heightened state of stress by overactivating the sympathetic nervous system.

Alexia Clonda, a certified Buteyko breathing and mindset coach, and former world-ranked squash player, is calling for greater public awareness around breathing as a tool for managing stress.

“Most people don’t realize that the way they breathe can either amplify or relieve their stress response,” Clonda said.

Scientific findings support this approach. A study involving 400 participants demonstrated that 10 minutes of coherent breathing daily over four weeks reduced cortisol levels by up to 20 per cent. The vagus nerve, which regulates critical functions including heart rate, digestion, and emotional balance, responds directly to the way one breathes.

“Breathing through the nose and engaging the diaphragm has a calming effect on the nervous system,” Clonda explained.

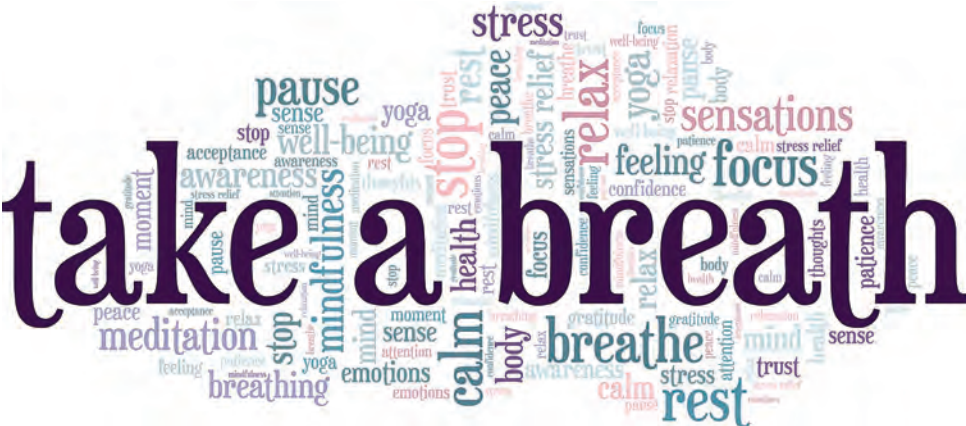

“It increases oxygen efficiency, slows the heart rate, and can activate the parasympathetic system — shifting the body into a state of calm.”

According to Clonda, techniques such as Box Breathing, 4-7-8 Breathing, and Physiological Sighs have been used successfully in both athletic and clinical settings. She now advocates for their use in workplaces, schools, and mental health interventions as part of a broader public health conversation.

The renewed interest in breathwork is emerging alongside a wider recognition of the vagus nerve’s role in chronic stress, anxiety, and burnout. When properly stimulated through techniques like diaphragmatic breathing and nasal inhalation, the vagus nerve may help restore physiological balance and reduce the duration of the “fight-or-flight” response.

Clonda says these five simple breathing techniques help to support nervous system recovery:

- 5-5 Paced Breathing – Inhale for five seconds, exhale for five seconds
- Box Breathing (4-4-4-4) – Inhale, hold, exhale, hold for 4 seconds each
- 4-7-8 Breathing – Used to aid sleep and anxiety reduction
- Physiological Sigh – Two short nasal inhales followed by a slow exhale
- Humming Exhale – Nasal exhale with audible humming to enhance calm

Loxton’s planting community spirit

SEBASTIAN CALDERON

COMMUNITY members gathered for a local environmentally friendly initiative, with hundreds of trees planted alongside a heritage park in Loxton.

The Murraylands and Riverland

Landscape Board (MRLB), alongside the Loxton Waikerie council hosted the ‘forest of hope’ event earlier this month, on the Loxton Community Conservation and Heritage Park, in honour of Dr Jane Goodall’s 90th birthday.

Families and community members planted more than 400 trees from 9am, with MRLB senior education officer Cindy Kakoschke saying “it was heartwarming to see 45 passionate community members – including 24 enthusiastic children, come together to plant more than 400 native trees and shrubs”.

“This ‘Forest of Hope’ not only adds beauty to the Loxton Community Conservation and Heritage Park but also honours Dr Jane Goodall’s 90th birthday with a living legacy of care and connection,” Ms Kakoschke said.

“Working together with the District Council of Loxton Waikerie and our incredible volunteers made this event truly special. Planting a ‘Forest of Hope’ to honour Dr Jane Goodall’s 90th birthday showed what we can achieve when we come together for a meaningful cause.”

Yorke Peninsula

Now is the perfect time to discover Yorke Peninsula

With 700 kilometres of stunning coastline, a rich cultural history and an abundance of local produce, Yorke Peninsula has long been one of South Australia's favourite holiday destinations.

Just a few hours' drive from Adelaide or the Riverland, the peninsula is perfectly placed for a weekend getaway or a longer escape.

Explore Dhilba Guuranda-Innes National Park, wander through the historic Cornish mining sites of Moonta Mines, or relax on pristine beaches like Berry Bay and Flaherty Beach. From young families to retirees, there's something to enjoy all year round.

Whether you're embarking on a road trip to take in the breathtaking scenery or spending a day at one of the renowned distilleries or microbreweries, each and every visitor helps keep the local economy strong.

However you choose to spend your time, the natural beauty, welcoming communities and unique experiences of Yorke Peninsula will ensure a trip to remember.

Headed for World Heritage Listing

South Australia's historic copper mining towns of Moonta Mines and Burra have joined forces in a bid for UNESCO World Heritage Listing.

After years of dedicated work, both sites were added to Australia's World Heritage Tentative List in 2024, with hopes of full listing in the near future.

Rich deposits of copper attracted skilled Cornish miners and their families from across the world, helping to fuel South Australia's growth in the mid to late 1800s.

Profits from copper mining were instrumental in funding some of the state's early institutions, including the establishment of the University of Adelaide.

Step back in time at Moonta Mines and experience what life was like in the early days of European settlement, through exploring the new trails within the mines area.

From historical buildings to traditional Cornish pasties, the stories of the 19th century immigrants are waiting to be explored.

WALK THE YORKE

Walk the Yorke: explore the coastline, one step at a time

Stretching over 500 kilometres, Walk the Yorke offers an unforgettable way to experience the natural beauty, rich history and coastal charm of Yorke Peninsula. This world-class trail links the peninsula's many coastal towns, beaches, headlands and fishing spots — from Port Wakefield all the way around to Port Hughes — creating endless opportunities for walkers, cyclists and nature lovers.

Walk the Yorke caters for a leisurely stroll or a multi-day adventure. The trail winds through coastal dunes, rugged cliffs, secluded bays and native bushland, offering panoramic views of Gulf St Vincent, Investigator Strait and Spencer Gulf.

Interpretive signs share stories of the Narungga People, early European settlers, and the region's maritime heritag. Well-maintained campsites, shelters and amenities make it easy to plan your journey.

Every step showcases Yorke Peninsula's unspoiled beauty.

PONDALOWIE SURF BREAK

South Australia's coastal playground

Yorke Peninsula is home to some of the state's most spectacular beaches, offering something for every kind of coastal escape. With more than 700 kilometres of coastline, you'll find sheltered swimming bays, world-class surf breaks, pristine white sands and hidden coves waiting to be explored.

Families will love the calm, shallow waters of Port Vincent and Ardrossan, perfect for swimming, paddling and sandcastle building. For surfers and thrill-seekers, Berry Bay and Daly Head serve up consistent waves and stunning backdrops. Those looking to unwind can stroll along the peaceful stretches of Flaherty Beach, Moonta Bay and Balgowan, where crystal-clear water meets soft sand.

Fishing and crabbing are local favourites, with many beaches offering easy access to jetties, boat ramps and rock fishing spots. Snorkellers and divers can explore underwater reefs teeming with marine life.

Every beach tells its own story, with many connected to Narungga Country and rich in cultural significance. As you soak up the sun, swim or cast a line, you'll find there's no better way to experience the relaxed pace and natural beauty that makes Yorke Peninsula a favourite holiday destination.

Out and about: enjoying the sights and sounds

Yorke Peninsula offers an incredible variety of things to see and do, no matter your interests.

You could start at the Top of the Yorke, a stunning region where land meets the sea. Immerse yourself in the beautiful natural environment and take in the best sunsets in South Australia. Continue to discover some of the best fishing spots in the state, pull up a seat at one of the region's historic pubs or stroll through the streets of friendly small towns, including the quaint Fisherman's Bay.

Step back in time at one of the many museums, including the Moonta Mines Museum, Farm Shed Museum at Kadina, and the Wallaroo Heritage and Nautical Museum. Each tells a unique story of the region's mining, farming and maritime past.

Art galleries and exhibitions across the peninsula showcase contemporary works and local talent, while workshops and artisan classes invite you to roll up your sleeves and create your own masterpiece alongside skilled craftspeople.

Food lovers will be spoilt for choice with an array of local produce, seafood, cafes, pubs, breweries, distilleries and farmgate experiences. Whether it's freshly caught seafood, locally roasted coffee or small-batch gin, there's something to tempt every palate.

For those keen to get active, enjoy a round of golf or join a friendly social bowls game at one of the local clubs. Anglers can take advantage of fishing charters, offering expert local knowledge, fully equipped boats and access to the peninsula's rich fishing grounds.

Whatever your pace, Yorke Peninsula offers unforgettable experiences for every visitor.

Hit the roads, tracks and trails

Yorke Peninsula is made for exploring, with a range of walking, cycling and self-drive trails showcasing the region's stunning coastline, rich history and natural beauty.

As well as Walk the Yorke track that stretches around the peninsula's coast, there's the Coastal Way Road Trip, that starts from Port Wakefield down to Ardrossan through Stansbury to Dhillba Guuranda-Innes National Park, then north to Moonta, Kadina and Wallaroo finishing at Port Broughton. It's recommended to allow at least four to five days to really experience everything the peninsula has to offer.

The Copper Rail Trail follows the old railway line corridor between Moonta, Wallaroo and Kadina, with sealed paths, bike repair stations, shelters and interpretive signs along the way.

Moonta Bay, Moonta and Port Hughes are also connected by family-friendly shared pathways.

For something different, follow the Thomson-Pfizer Plaster Trail Hike at Dhillba Guuranda-Innes National Park or embark on the Salt Lake Trail, with four self-guided routes showcasing salt lakes that shift from white to pink and blue depending on the season. Interpretive signs explain the region's geology, birdlife and heritage.

Don't miss the Southern Yorke Peninsula Water Tower Mural Trail, where eight striking murals in coastal and inland towns tell the stories of local communities, culture and nature.

There's even an underwater shipwreck trail for dive enthusiasts!

The following account has been provided by Riverland traveller NEIL HOCKING, regarding his time spent with local iconic bush figure POSSUM...

Learning from the Possum

I WAS 11 years old and I was at Mannum, where we had a shack during the 1974 flood. We came from Broken Hill.

One day I saw this gentleman hanging out behind a tree and I busted him. He said hello to me and said name was David James, but they called him Possum. I told him my name was Neil Hocking.

Many years later, at the end of 1982, I was at Lock 5, having just got off the highway, and I was at this stump I always sat on in the morning. It was in the most unusual place, in a bush. I was eating chicken and this bloke comes charging through the bloody bush.

He said hello, and again told me they called him Possum. I told him that I knew him, and had met him in Mannum when he was behind the tree.

I stayed with Possum for a while in a tin hut, and he would pass on knowledge and skills of the bush that I hadn't seen.

We would travel around farmers' properties. One day we were picking flannel weed around Lake Victoria. I asked Possum, what are we doing this for?

His reply was 'what else is there to do?'. I remember that one day Max Jones, who I used to call Uncle Max, was out looking for Possum in the bush. He was calling his name out, and we were right there in a burnt-out stump maybe 11 feet below him. I was about to burst out laughing.

I went away to Queensland for a while, but I came back and we were doing the same old thing, but we went to Lock 8. This is where he would sleep, and that's where I found him sick. I left my swag and bag with him and I had to go back to Renmark.

I got into the police station, and Max Jones – who had just retired from his duties – was there. I said we needed to save the life of David James, who they called Possum. His eyes went wide.

Uncle Max asked Possum if he wanted to go to hospital, so we took him, and then I went back up to Queensland. When I came back again I heard Possum had passed away.

Some time after all that, while in Adelaide, I heard on the news by chance that Possum's daughter was coming to Australia to pick up her father's diaries.

When coming back from Adelaide, where I had been to see my mum, and a Toyota Landcruiser stops and picks me up. I began talking to the woman who was driving about my time with Possum, and she suddenly pulled off the road and stopped.

She told me she was Possum's daughter. I told her I had to get something from my bag in the back, and I knew exactly what to do. I had Possum's diary for at least four years, because he had told me to get it out of his tree stump, and I gave it to her.

I met him when I was 11, unknowingly, and he remembered for so long. I recently felt his presence when I was at Lock 5. I miss him.

I've never told anyone because I didn't think it mattered, and maybe it doesn't matter, but I feel robbed because I knew him..

Parents urged to protect kids against flu

RIVERLAND parents are being urged to vaccinate their children against the flu as cases this year continue to rise across the state.

Currently, less than one-in-five SA children under the age of five have had a flu vaccine.

So far this year, 781 children under the age of five have been diagnosed with the flu in South Australia, with 87 of those diagnosed resulting in hospitalisation.

Across the state there have been 6754 flu cases reported so far this year, compared to 4267 cases at the same time last year.

The flu vaccine is free for at-risk groups including children under five years, people aged more than 65 years, pregnant women, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people and those aged more than six months with certain health conditions.

“Protecting young children from the severe impacts of the flu is so important, which is why we are urging all South Australian parents to get their kids vaccinated this winter,” Minister for Health and Wellbeing Chris Picton said.

“Young children are especially vulnerable to the serious impacts of flu and more likely to end up in hospital.

“We’re listening to the health experts by providing an excellent program that provides free flu vaccines to around 600,000 South Australians including children under five, people over 65, pregnant women, all Aboriginal people over six months of age, and those with underlying health conditions. South Australians have a strong record for rolling up their sleeves.

“Overall, our flu vaccine uptake is higher than the national average and better than any mainland state – we just need more parents to get their young kids vaccinated.”

Chief Public Health Officer Nicola Spurrier said “with the onset of colder weather, think about prioritising the health of your family.”

“Getting a flu vaccine and ensuring your little ones are vaccinated is one simple measure to give you peace of mind as coughs and colds set in,” Prof Spurrier said.

“Respiratory infections such as flu spread quickly in childcare and kindy particularly over the colder months when kids spend more time indoors.

“Prioritising a free flu vaccine for your child will ensure your child is not the one that ends up in hospital.”

For more information on flu vaccines for children under five years, visit the website (sahealth.sa.gov.au/kidsflu).

THUNDER TIME: The Barmera Netball Club (BNC) was fortunate to attend the Thunderbirds game against Giants, at the Adelaide Entertainment Centre, on Sunday June 8, as Club of the Round. More than 80 BNC members were in attendance at the game. A group of 20 members were lucky enough to receive a pre-match VIP tour behind the scenes, and eight junior players had a post-match photo with the Thunderbird players. A BNC spokesperson said it was a huge honour and successful day for the club.

Youth art lights up Blanchetown

BLANCHETOWN Primary School students have collaborated with the Riverland Youth Theatre (RYT) to create a series of mural panels for stobie poles around the town. The students helped develop the mural concepts and painted them. RYT said emerging

Riverland artist Devin Crowhurst, from Loxton, led the project designing the murals with the students and finalising the panels for installation. The theatre group thanked all the people involved in the project including Alysha Herrmann for initiating and producing the project during her role as a community and digital artist, Kat Bell for her insights into community art and for mentoring Devin. RYT members Sam, Li and Kirste also painted and installed the bright and colourful panels. Mid Murray Our Town and Variety SA also supported the project.

A Quiz Night fundraiser for the Morgan Elf Magic Christmas event will be held on Saturday July 26. PHOTOS: supplied

Elf Magic Quiz Night fundraising event returns to Morgan in 2025

THE Morgan elf magic elves are excited to announce the return of our Quiz Night fundraiser, following the success of last year's event. It will be held on Saturday July 26, commencing at 6.30pm, at the Morgan RSL Hall. 'Tinsel' (aka Kay Bruce) has agreed to be our Quiz Master once again and the questions will also be projected onto the large TV screen. There will be lots of prizes, including a door prize, prizes for each round and an overall winners' prize.

We will run a silent auction, with lots of interesting items and experiences to bid on, and a trading table with some delicious baked goods for sale. Round up your friends and book a table of eight, or join a table of other singles and couples. The bar will be open (no BYO) and you are welcome to bring a basket supper. Tickets are $10 each, with all proceeds assisting to make Elf Magic 2025 even bigger and better. Phone Shirley Hissey on 0422 317 337 to secure your tickets.

The Quiz Night will be held at the Morgan RSL Hall, and hosted by elf 'Tinsel'.

THE Rotary Club of Waikerie's new president for 2025-2026, Ian Sutton, has been inducted into the role.

He takes over from past president Peter Wilson who served in the position from 2024-2025.

The club recently held its annual 'Change Over' dinner at the Waikerie Hotel.

Rotary International's theme for this year is Unite for Good.

Australia Post Community grants open

ELIGIBLE Riverland organisations can now apply for grants up to $10,000 aiming to support projects that improve connection and mental wellbeing.

Australia Post has announced a significant expansion for the Australia Post 2025 Community Grant Program, with an additional $250,000 allocated to support grass-roots initiatives that enhance mental wellbeing, foster connection, and build resilience in disaster-impacted communities.

Since 2020, Australia Post has awarded more than 350 grants to community groups across Australia. Last year, the program awarded 71 projects across the country, contributing more than $500,000 of funding. More than half of successful applications were in regional areas.

Australia Post general manager Nicky Tracey said "in times of disaster, it's local organisations that are best placed to support the recovery process, they understand their communities, know what's needed, and are there for the long haul".

"That's why we're proud to offer an additional allocation of up to $250,000 in community grants this year, to support projects in disaster-impacted communities across Australia that promote mental wellbeing, strengthen social connections, and build resilience within their communities," Ms Tracey said.

Not-for-profit organisations interested in applying are encouraged to review the Community Grant guidelines carefully to check eligibility requirements, with eligible organisations able to apply until July 7.

To check eligibility, visit the website (www.auspost.com.au/grants), with successful applicants notified in September 2025.

Loxton Ladies Probus Club happenings

MEMBERS of the Loxton Ladies Probus Club have enjoyed three outings in recent weeks.

In May the group visited Trevor and Rodney Andary's gardens, in Glossop, prior to enjoying lunch at the Lavendar Café, at Winkie.

The brother's gardens are very different and the ladies were amazed at the beautiful plantings of many and varied species thriving in the Riverland's hot and dry, and/or very cold climate.

Morning tea at the end of the month was a visit to the newly formed and opened Anglican Parish Hall Gallery, on Edward Street, in Loxton.

The gallery is open by appointment but also on specific weekdays where patrons can watch the artists paint their pictures on canvas or other mediums.

Artwork is displayed on the walls and is available to buy.

A delicious morning tea was supplied by members of the church and gallery committee.

Last week at the regular June meeting, members enjoyed hearing guest speaker Jacque Zagotsis, from Monash, talk about her journey with kidney dialysis, until she was the lucky recipient of a kidney transplant late last year.

This is the first time Jacque has spoken publicly about her transplant and Probus members were enthralled with her story, what she and her family had to go through, and finally success with a fully functional kidney at last.

Members are excited about having the club's 39th birthday next month in the dining room of the Murray River Queen, with owner Donna Neale being guest speaker regarding her journey buying the vessel, and having to stay moored at Renmark when either too high, or too-low rivers kept her there, until finally she could move the queen to Loxton late last year.

The hassles with ticking all the boxes to have the cafe and dining room opened has been a difficult time, but thankfully the beautifully renovated bedrooms, along with 'The Fruit Packers Daughters' café, and lastly the dining room, are all functional and open for business. We look forward to hearing Donna's story of the Queen.

The club will celebrate its 40th birthday next year.

Aged care staffing on the rise, but is the South Australian quality of care?

EFFORTS to increase direct care staffing levels in aged care homes, in areas like the Riverland, are working, but a new study from Flinders University has questioned if it is enough to improve quality of care for older people.

Led by Flinders University, researchers from the Registry of Senior Australians (ROSA) Research Centre analysed data from over 2000 aged care homes across Australia, looking at how well care staffing targets were being met, and whether this impacted residents' experiences and quality measures.

"Since October 2022, Australia has set individual targets for total care and registered nurse minutes for aged care homes, based on the assessed care needs of their residents," Flinders Caring Futures Institute and South Australian Health and Medical Research Institute (SAHMRI) lead author associate Stephanie Harrison said.

"These targets are a positive step, but these are the minimum levels of care that homes should be providing, and it remains unclear whether they are sufficient to drive meaningful improvements in care quality."

Looking at data from January 2023 to March 2024, the study found that the proportion of aged care homes meeting or exceeding their total care minutes target rose from 41 per cent to 53 per cent.

Government-run facilities were more likely to meet their targets, compared to for-profit and not-for-profit facilities, with metropolitan and smaller facilities also performing better.

"The data suggests that location and facility size play a crucial role in the ability of an aged care home to provide adequate staffing levels," Professor Harrison said.

"Government-run facilities were also more successful in meeting and exceeding care minute targets.

"As smaller, government-run facilities are replaced by larger, for-profit services, this is an important area to monitor."

Despite the rise in care staffing levels, the authors found no association between care minutes and residents' experiences or quality measures.

"This challenges the assumption that simply increasing staffing will automatically improve care quality," Professor Harrison said.

The researchers emphasise that high-quality care depends on more than just staff numbers, as it requires a skilled, well-supported workforce with strong clinical leadership.

The findings highlight the complexity of aged care reform and the need for further research to understand the right balance of care minutes, skill mix and models of care to enhance care quality and resident safety.

"A holistic view to care quality is needed, beyond just meeting staffing targets," Professor Harrison said.

"Adequate training, staff retention strategies, and tailored models of care that meet individual resident needs are all important for policymakers to consider.

"Improving care means investing in workforce development, especially in rural and remote communities where staffing challenges are more pronounced.

"Recent initiatives to support the provision of aged care staff in rural and remote areas should be monitored to see if this helps to improve equitable access to care in these regions.

"Monitoring staffing levels in aged care homes remains essential, it provides vital data, but to truly improve the quality of aged care, we must also strengthen the evidence base and address the ongoing challenges facing the sector."

MONASH Primary and Preschool students celebrated Gratitude, Empathy and Mindfulness (GEM) Day last week. Learning and practicing emotional literacy, Monash Primary and Preschool students enjoyed a day of crafting, fun activities, and kindness for GEM Day last Friday.

“We have been having a lot of fun,” Monash Primary School student Lewis said.

“It’s all about being kind to others.” Writing gratitude letters to classmates and members of staff, Monash Primary and Preschool student Madi said she wrote to her friend Chester.

“It was about how energetic he is,” she said.

“That is what I am grateful for.”

With the help of their student audience, Zoe, Logan, and Milla had to guess what emotion they were.

Monash Primary and Preschool students had to work together to untangle themselves from their ‘human knot’.

Kandance completed a gratitude letter addressed to a fellow classmate.

Magpies raise funds for breast cancer care

CHRISTINE WEBSTER

WAIKERIE Magpies' annual Ladies Day has raised about $4000 to support those affected by breast cancer in the Riverland.

The event raises money for a different charity organisation each year.

About 100 women of all ages from across the area dressed in pink on Saturday for the traditional fundraiser, at the Waikerie Football Club.

The theme for the day was the 'Pink Pony Club' and a competition was run for the best dressed, which was won by Judy Matthews, of Waikerie.

Organising committee member Jen Nitschke said the area near the grandstand and Waikerie Riverfront Community Hub was a sea of pink.

Ms Nitschke said the key to the fundraiser's success was the strong support received from the many local businesses that donated prizes for the two raffles run to support Riverland patients with breast cancer and their families.

A general raffle was run for everyone attending the Waikerie vs Barmera games, with three major prizes on offer.

The participants in the Magpies Ladies Day also had their own raffle featuring 14 prizes.

Ms Nitschke said the aim of the fundraiser was to support people in the Riverland who may be impacted by breast cancer, both patients, and their families.

She said the money would be donated to a breast cancer supporters group in the region.

"We want the money to help families in the area," Ms Nitschke said.

Ashlee Lockett, from Waikerie, donated her time and made player supporter badges for $10 each for the Ladies Day event, and raised about $1000.

Ms Nitschke said the women could order a badge with a photo and number of the A and B grade players they support.

"You could have a photo of your child, boyfriend or husband placed on a badge, like you do at the AFL," she said.

"This enables you to also wear the badge at other events, and hopefully, a grand final," she said.

Marschall First National also donated pink socks for the Magpies A and B grade players to wear, to increase awareness about breast cancer.

Ms Nitschke said the traditional Magpies Ladies Day event brought women of all ages including some who were newcomers to Waikerie together to raise funds.

"What was really amazing was that people who never come to footy came to Ladies Day and met people," she said.

"Some who had only moved to Waikerie in the last 12 months reached out and said they would like to come."

Ms Nitschke said it was an ideal way for these people to meet members of the local community.

"I received messages from some of them the next day telling me what a great day they had and how they loved meeting everyone," she said.

"Hopefully now they will feel more comfortable to come to footy every Saturday."

The Ladies Day participants took part in activities such as line dancing and the limbo dance, entertaining onlookers and themselves and enjoying the social part of the event.

They were also able to capture memories of the day by having their pictures taken at a photo booth.

Ms Nitschke said the fun continued until late into the night and after the dinner service was completed a DJ played music and the Ladies Day participants and others took to the dance floor at the Hub.

Some of the men also donned cowboy hats in support of the 'Pink Pony Club' theme.

PUBLIC CONSULTATION

Representation Review

Pursuant to s12(7) of the Local Government Act 1999

The District Council of Loxton Waikerie invites members of the community to provide feedback on its future composition and structure, required as part of the Representation Review currently being undertaken.

A representation review is a statutory responsibility of councils under section 12 of the Local Government Act 1999, generally undertaken every eight (8) years. This process requires council to consider if the community would benefit from altering the composition or ward structure of the council.

As part of the review, Council is proposing no changes to the future structure and composition of Council: to not operate within a ward system, and to retain the same number of elected members (10 & 1 mayor).

A feedback form and more information on the consultation is available online via <https://engagement.lwdc.sa.gov.au/representation-review/>.

Public Consultation will take place between Wednesday 25 June and 5pm Wednesday 16 July 2025.

Submissions from the community are encouraged

- online at engagement.lwdc.sa.gov.au, or
- by email at council@lwdc.sa.gov.au, or
- by post to PO Box 409, Loxton SA 5333, or
- in person, in writing, at the Council's offices at 35 Bookpurnong Road, Loxton or Strangman Road, Waikerie.

If you wish to present your submission to the Council in person or by advocate, please indicate that in your submission.

Written submissions will be accepted until 5.00 pm on Wednesday 16 July 2025.

NOTES
1.	The fixed and variable charges of this Schedule of Charges relate to the River Murray and are covered by the South Australian River Murray Water Allocation Plan.
2.	All fixed and variable charges are billed quarterly as follows: <table><tr><td></td><td>Billed</td><td>Due for Payment</td></tr><tr><td>Third Quarter</td><td>1 July 2025</td><td>30 September 2025</td></tr><tr><td>Fourth Quarter</td><td>1 October 2025</td><td>31 December 2025</td></tr></table> All amounts outstanding for more than 90 days from the date of invoice will have interest charged at 1% and then additionally at 1% each month thereafter on the accumulated total outstanding. Accounts that remain unpaid after 180 days without a payment plan will have their Supply Connection locked down. Customers who are experiencing financial hardship are encouraged to contact the Trust to organise a payment plan.							Billed	Due for Payment	Third Quarter	1 July 2025	30 September 2025	Fourth Quarter	1 October 2025	31 December 2025
	Billed	Due for Payment
Third Quarter	1 July 2025	30 September 2025
Fourth Quarter	1 October 2025	31 December 2025
3.	All charges are GST free unless specified.
4.	The Water Levy for the remainder of the year is payable in full if any volume of entitlement is transferred (i.e. sold).
DESCRIPTION OF CHARGES/TERMINOLOGY
Access Charge (Water Delivery Right)	Fee to access Renmark Irrigation Trust's water delivery infrastructure.
Assessed Customer	A person or entity that owns or occupies land that has been assessed by the Trust.
Domestic (Non-Irrigator)	A domestic supply connection service on land not assessed by the Trust.
Drainage Fee	Fee to customers who do not pay Access Charges to use drainage infrastructure for the removal of excess water from a property.
Water Transfer Authorisation Fee	Costs for authorising water transfers.
Meter and Chamber Removal	Costs for removing a meter and associated Supply Connection infrastructure.
Meter Only Removal (Irrigation Meters only)	Relates to removing the meter only. All other Supply Connection infrastructure remains in place. There is no charge to have a meter removed or put back in.
ML	Megalitre (equivalent to 1,000 kilolitres or 1 million litres).
New Supply Connection	Costs for installing infrastructure and meter at a new water supply point.
Service Charge (Domestic, Industrial, Private Diverter)	Recovers the cost of operating and maintaining Supply Connections. The charge applies to each Supply Connection at a property.
Supply Connection	An irrigation, domestic, industrial or private diverter water supply delivery point incorporating a water meter.
Supply Connection Lock Down Fee	Costs for isolating Supply Connections from Trust infrastructure. Applicable upon non-payment of accounts after final notice given.
Termination Fee	Charged to a customer who holds a right of access to Renmark Irrigation Trust's Infrastructure, in relation to that right or part of that right being terminated or surrendered.
Water Delivery Fee	The cost associated with delivering water to a supply point.
Water Levy (formally NRM Levy)	As per section 76 of the Landscape South Australia Act 2019 , all water entitlement holders contribute to the Water Levy. The Levy is determined by the Minister for Environment and Water and is collected by the Department for Environment and Water (DEW) on behalf of the Murraylands and Riverland Landscape Board. The Levy is charged to the Trust in July and is recouped quarterly, at the same rate, from customers who hold water entitlement. Visit the Landscape for Murraylands and Riverland website for further information.
OTHER INFORMATION
Determination of Charges Discussed at Annual General Meeting of Members and approved by the Member elected Board of management.
Dispute Resolution Disputes regarding charges can first be rectified by contacting the Trust's main office. If a customer is unsatisfied with the result then they can be referred to the Chief Executive Officer. If a resolution cannot be reached, it can be referred to the board of management for final determination of the Trust position.
Interpretation of this Schedule of Charges Information contained in this Schedule of Charges should be read in conjunction with all other Trust policy and procedure documents available at the Trust Office or online at rit.org.au.
Location of Renmark Irrigation Trust and its assets All Renmark Irrigation Trust assets, including land and infrastructure, are located on the River Murray or its anabranches in South Australia (predominantly in the Renmark/Paringa Council District) and are covered by the South Australian River Murray Water Allocation Plan.

DEATHS

BAKER, Ross.

Friend for over 40 years.

Kind, gentle, loving, humble and generous.

You never let me pay for lunch or drinks.

Enjoying the simple life, never chasing fame just fun.

While my heart was being fixed, yours was fading.

Next life we will be playing hearts together, maybe instead of guitars.

We do not sorrow as others who have no hope.

Forever in my heart.

Marlene ‘Marle’.

BAKER, Ross ‘Gummy Bill’.

In deepest respect, a long-time friend of ours.

Ross will be remembered for his kindness and generosity, having been the chosen entertainer at numerous nursing homes and fundraising events, as well as being a sponsor at the Riverland’s country music festival.

A competent songwriter of ballads and comedy, Ross was respected by some of our most well-known national entertainers.

May you rest in peace, dear friend.

Robyn and Bill.

Loved husband of Jill.

Loving father of Clinton and Loren.

Father-in-law of Janelle and Adrian.

Loved poppy to Eddie, Madelyn and Adele.

Step-poppy to Laney, Scarlett, Klancie, Jake, Ellie and Kai.

“Will be sadly missed and forever in our hearts”.

JAEGER, Valerie Aura (née Briesse).

8/8/1957 – 21/6/2025

Aged 67 years.

Passed away surrounded by loved ones.

Always in our hearts, remembered forever in our memories.

Beloved wife of Chris (deceased).

Loved mother to Theresa, Jeremy, Phillip and their partners, Jason, Lisa and Nikki.

Loved nan to Nikita, Hunter, Jackson, Zara, Brody, Adriana and Nadia.

May you now rest in peace and forever know that you were loved and cherished by us all.

Thanks for always being there, for your love, support, guidance and kindness.

We will miss our chats, you were so special to us all, no one will replace the hole left in our hearts.

You fought hard till the end and we never left your side, we love you more than words can say.

Coach Brown inspires the Tigers

LACHLAN DAND

IT was a shock to some RFL fans in the off-season when Loxton North junior, and premiership hero Nathan Brown accepted the coaching role at Loxton.

Yet, perhaps the biggest heart-ache of it all came on Saturday afternoon as the Tigers' playing coach inspired his side to the win in an entertaining local battle in the A grade competition.

Hoping to return to the winning circle for the first time since round four, and snap a three-game losing streak in the process, Loxton welcomed the Panthers to Tigerland.

Out for revenge from the Proud Cup, and more importantly attempting to remain in touch with the top four, Loxton started in perfect fashion.

The Tigers slammed on six first quarter goals to two, opening up a 25-point quarter time lead, despite the first goal of the game coming via Panther Jai Drake.

Loxton quickly kicked four in a row, with goals from Brown and Kaiden Evans sitting alongside a pair of Harley Campbell majors.

James Neale pinched one back for Loxton North, but the Tigers continued to get out the back, and goals from Brayden De Prinse and Brown into the break had the home side humming.

In a relatively low-scoring second term, the hosts found the big sticks through Talyn Eagle and Brown, with the Panthers facing a 35-point deficit at half time, and midfielder Scott Lewis out of the game.

Brown kicked his fourth of the day, and when Riley Walton slammed one through from 30m out, the lead grew as far as 47 points in the shadows of three quarter time.

Playing for pride in the final term, Loxton North sprung to life, and had the home fans worried in a massive surge.

Recruit Liam Bastian got a perfect bounce to get things started, and less than a minute later, Tyler Wagner suddenly had the margin back to 33 points.

Neale proved to be the most dangerous Panther on the ground, using his dashing pace for two goals in a minute, trimming the deficit to 21 points.

Noah Paull kicked a superb goal out of the pack just moments later, cutting the margin to 15 points, and leaving the crowd stunned.

However, Loxton found the settler through a Talyn Eagle strike from the arc, putting the game beyond doubt, and securing a 22-point win for the Tigers.

Brown proved to be the most valuable player on the ground, finishing with four goals, and looming dangerous each time he went near the football.

Young midfielder Kaiden Evans enjoyed what was arguably the best game of his emerging career with a strong performance in midfield, while De Prinse gave his midfielders first use, and proved a genuine marking target.

Down back, Che Lange and Brodie Rollins repelled on several occasions, and kept Loxton in control of the game.

For Loxton North, Judd Tschirpig had a lot of the football, and gave the Panthers plenty of run across half back, while Neale finished with three in attack.

This weekend sees both sides at home, with the Tigers set to welcome a struggling Barmera-Monash to town in a clash with major finals implications.

Meanwhile, Loxton North will hope to keep its fading finals hopes alive, when Berri visits Panther Park in the 5RM Game of the Day.

Sharks circle in Superdogs' Lyrup loss

AN undermanned Riverland Superdogs outfit recently welcomed the Henley Sharks to Lyrup Oval, in conditions perfect for football, on Sunday, June 15.

In what was a disappointing afternoon for the hosts, the Sharks were quick to score, and opened up a 50-point half time lead.

After half time, the Superdogs rallied, and players such as Shane Healy, Dale Lellmann, Matt Recchia, Colin Packer, Stan Lowcock, and Chris Garafoulis got the upper hand, resulting in an improved result for the Superdogs.

However, it proved to little avail, as the Sharks ran out 66-point victors, in a game played in good spirits, with umpiring at a high standard.

In what was the play of the day for the Superdogs, Robbie Johnstone kicked a chaotic major from the goal square of the ground, while Darren Kennedy booted his first career goal.

Renmark's Liam Jackson, and Brad Rosenzweig of Berri compete for a ground ball in Saturday's RFL A grade contest.

Experienced Rovers hold off brave Berri

LACHLAN DAND

IT was nearly one of the biggest upsets of the Riverland Football League season last Saturday afternoon when Berri visited Renmark.

Coming off of a premiership, Renmark is currently sitting in top spot, and with the grand final to be held at the kennel, the Rovers are in good shape.

However, Berri is the biggest improver in the RFL in 2025, and got the jump on the Rovers throughout the first half.

The Demons converted opportunities better in the first quarter for a four-point lead at the first break, which grew to 10 points at half time, after kicking seven goals from eight attempts.

Renmark got over the line by seven points in Berri in round three, and Rovers playing coach Josh Vater was particularly complimentary of the Demons' efforts.

"I take my hat off to Laba (Berri coach Henry Labastida), and the work he's clearly been doing, and as an outsider it seems they have a real system about how they approach the game," he said.

"They're probably getting really good contributions from all of their players, which instantly improves performance.

"If teams are relying on individual players they can be a lot easier to shut down, and easier to expose, whereas if you're getting good performances from everyone you're harder to stop.

"They've obviously been through some tough times over the last few years, but it's good to see some of their kids coming through and getting exposure to senior footy, and they're setting themselves up to have good depth over the years to come."

Renmark turned up the heat particularly throughout the third quarter, kicking four goals to one, wrestling the lead back, and growing it to seven points in the process.

The Rovers continued their momentum in the late stages, finishing with two goals to one in a low-scoring final term, conducive to how they have approached tight situations in previous seasons.

Sitting on top of the ladder with seven wins from eight matches, Vater said the morale around the group is high, as his side prepares for another premiership tilt.

"Morale is pretty good, and it's always nice to chalk up wins, and it is a bit of a double-edged sword because we're able to grind out wins," he said.

"On the weekend Berri were really good, and they didn't allow us to get going too much, which was a credit to them.

"At the same time for our group it's really nice to be able to show that we can still get the wins, even when it's not overly pretty which has been the case the last few weeks.

"We're not playing overly dominant football, and we've got plenty to improve upon, but wins are always important to try and give us the best chance at a top two spot.

"You can't buy experience, but at the same time we spoke heavily at the end of the game about the start of games, and understanding that our opposition will generally always come in up and about."

Lachlan Lellmann continues to shine bright for Renmark through the midfield, and across half back, producing another impressive performance, while Adren Herrador goes from strength to strength each week.

Dan Woolford impressed through the middle of the ground, while Zach Gartery got the better of his rucking opponents throughout the day.

For Berri, Jacob Grieger fought hard in defence, getting his hands on the ball a lot, as did captain Shay Hawkins.

Rory Moroney loomed dangerous in a return to form with three goals, while key forward Darcy Minchella extended his lead at the top of the leading goalkickers list for the competition, with 21 overall.

Blake Henderson was the Rovers' only multiple goalkicker, finishing with two for the day, as the home side finished with 10 individual scorers.

Vater said while it was nice to have a range of players hit the scoreboard, Renmark is largely unbothered by who applies the finishing touches.

"Right from when I started coaching in 2019, I was big on the fact I didn't care who kicks the goals, or how much we win by, it's just about how we go about it," he said.

"Someone like Liam (Jackson) who has been in really good form this year, has probably not benefitted from getting on the end of kicking a big bag, but is certainly playing a role to help provide opportunities for us.

"The small forward role can be really challenging because it can bounce the wrong way, but I'm really happy with how he's going in particular, but we're not relying on one or two players, and that's really pleasing as a coach."

This weekend sees Renmark travel to Waikerie for the biggest road trip in the RFL in a top-two clash, while Berri visits Loxton North in the 5RM Game of the Day, with both matches kicking off at 2.40pm.

Sturt star Snelling trains with the Rovers

RIVERLAND Football League club Renmark is currently using the services of having an ex-AFL player train at the kennel each week.

Will Snelling played one game with Port Adelaide's AFL side in 2016, but is most known for his time at Essendon, amassing 28 goals from 64 games at the highest level between 2019-2023.

Now, the reigning Magarey Medallist, and current SANFL Sturt star is training at the kennel, while he completes a medical degree in the Riverland.

With the Rovers currently in top spot after eight rounds, Renmark playing coach Josh Vater said it has been 'awesome' having Snelling on the track.

"He's fit in really well with our group, and simply feels like one of us, and we're really keen to be able to support him with training," he said.

"For our players to be around someone that's at the top of their game and see how he goes about it at training is amazing, and has benefitted our players.

"Not to mention he's just a really good guy and we love having him around."

AROUND THE GROUNDS

THE top of the Riverland Football League's B grade competition is proving particularly tight, and the pressure for first spot was ramped up following last weekend's action.

Barmera-Monash is sitting in top spot, following a percentage boosting 88-point win over the Magpies in Waikerie.

The Roos blitzed the hosts in the opening quarter, slamming on eight goals to two for a 40-point lead at the first break.

Ben Bryant and Austin Karpany were the beneficiaries of the Roos' forward half dominance, each kicking four, while Cohen Harris and Zak Galvin worked hard.

Elsewhere, reigning premier Loxton proved it will be hard to beat yet again, derailing the momentum of Loxton North, with a tense 15-point win at home.

In a low-scoring affair, Loxton failed to make the most of its opportunities, but when the margin was 25 points at the final break, it proved the Tigers had done enough.

Midfield pair Owen Joerin and Michael Demchenko roamed free around Loxton Oval, while Nathan Flight finished with two goals.

With forward Ryan Proud called up to the A grade, Panther Sam Holbrook filled the void, kicking all four North goals.

Elsewhere, Renmark took another step towards a return to finals football, delivering a 24-point win against the winless Berri at the kennel.

Toby Johnson was classy with ball in hand, while A grade premiership hero Nathan Zunic enjoyed a successful first game of the season.

Berri's success of the day came through the under 18s, enjoying a six-goal win over the Rovers in a top-two clash.

The Demons proved they are a step ahead, with last year's grand finalists doing the damage with a three-goal-to-one final term to seal the deal.

Callan Lloyd and Brayden Pankhurst again proved valuable for the visiting side, while up forward Slater Marsden and Cohen Robertson each kicked three.

Loxton jumped into the top four following a 39-point win over rival Loxton North, while the Roos took out a 21-point win in Waikerie, continuing to close in on a top-two finish.

The biggest win of the weekend came through the under 15 competition, with Renmark taking out a massive 149-point win over Berri.

In what was a 22-goal outing, with 46 scoring shots to two for the day, it was Harry Leesue proving to be the star of the show.

The closest fixture of the day took place in the under 13s, with Barmera-Monash holding on for a two-point win in Waikerie.

Trailing by four points at the final break, the Roos found a late winner, as goals for the day came through Cyrus Close, Judd Ivanovic, and Connor Tsonis.

Young gun Van Koch worked hard for the home side, and goals came through Reginald Gosse, and Serenity McDonald, but the Magpies ultimately fell short.

Waikerie cruises past Loxton in round six

IT was a successful weekend for Waikerie in the latest round of Riverland hockey, enjoying wins in the B grade competition for both men and women.

Waikerie’s women’s side entered the round coming off of a three-goal to nil loss to Berri, but Loxton proved no match for the Knights.

Waikerie found the back of the net on five separate occasions in what was a rout, with Jade Kroehn proving the star, scoring twice.

The men’s outfit also enjoyed a successful outing against Loxton, securing a 3-1 win in a full team effort.

Josh and Tim Ridley were electric all ocer the pitch, while Jason Micke, Brenton Kroehn, and Rowan Hope all scored.

For the Tigers, Ethan Grosse provided the only relief on the scoresheet, with his goal, while Brendan Schultz failed to give in across the match.

A grade men’s hockey saw reigning premier Berri pinch a 3-2 thriller over Sunraysia, largely due to a brace from Jarryd Roberts.

Roberts’ goal was matched by Josh Fleming’s finish, while Scott Moldovan also enjoyed a positive night out.

Sunraysia’s goals came via Andrew Giddings, while its women’s side played out an entertaining draw, which finished three apiece.

Under 18 men’s action saw the Berri hand out a 5-0 thrashing to the combined side of Loxton and Renmark in a comprehensive display.

Logan Bowers dominated yet again for the Demons in the win, finishing with a hat-trick, while Jude Vallelonga and Ryan Hill showed their class, each finding the back of the net.

All Riverland hockey action will be played at Glassey Park this weekend, headlined by a massive A grade women’s clash on Friday night between Waikerie and Loxton.

Please note all results from round five have been included in this week’s edition due to being omitted from the June 18 edition of The Murray Pioneer.

Riverlanders compete in zone carnival

OVER the June long weekend, Riverland-based hockey teams attended the Barossa Valley, playing games at the Stockwell Turf Facility.

In wild weather, the poor conditions impacted the competition on day one, with games called off in the afternoon session due to wet pitches, however, play resumed on Sunday with a facility at Trinity used.

The Riverland had under 13 boys and girls’ teams and under 15 boys and girls’ teams, with some Riverlanders playing in a combined Eastern Eagles zone team for the under 17 men and women.

The Riverland under 15 men were successful in winning the country junior championships, without conceding a goal all weekend.

Riverland boys also tasted success in the under 17 boys’ team, winning the state junior country championship.

Riverland players featured in the South East Eagles under 17 boys side, with players from Lower South East, Tatiara and Naracoorte, with the team coming away with the win.

Riverlanders selected for zone championships

HOCKEY players from all over the region, and in Sunraysia have been selected for zone championships, which will be held in Adelaide from July 7-9.

Two players from the Riverland make up the under 17 boys’ side, while a massive seven players will feature for the under 15 girls.

Elsewhere, six players are confirmed starters in the under 13 boys side from the Riverland, while two players will join the squad as train on players.

Under immense pressure from a Renmark opponent, Berri's Daniel Greer plays the ball back in Sunday's match.

Olympic produces a five-star showing

RENMARK produced an outstanding five-goal effort in the latest round of Riverland soccer, dominating Berri in the A grade men's competition, with the weekend's action held in Barmera. It was a match dominated by star striker Gareth Johansen, who slotted four goals, with the River Rangers seemingly without answers. Mitch Cawse and Constantine Vallelonga fought hard for Berri, finding a lot of possession, but failed to produce a score. The loss leaves Berri without a point after seven matches, with eight now remaining ahead of the top four cup semi-final. Elsewhere, Loxton stunned the Pelicans on their home deck, in a professional 2-0 win that keeps it in touching distance of the top two. Loxton found goals in each half, firstly through Masud Akaso, before Hayden Stevens doubled the lead after 65 minutes, leaving Barmera with no answers. Geordie Franks and Ulysses Carney were impactful for United, and James Wallace tried hard for Barmera, but the damage was done on the scoreboard. The Pelicans are now a game behind first-placed Renmark, with the two set to meet in Loxton this Sunday afternoon. A grade women's action saw Renmark make it a double delight, as a four-goal haul from Maggie Lock helped it gain a 7-0 victory over Berri. The River Rangers had little answers for Renmark's dominance, and currently only sit behind Barmera on goal difference. The Pelicans enjoyed their own successes over the weekend, with a stunning eight-goal effort from Amelia Koumbarakos taking them to the win. Koumbarakos helped Barmera to the biggest winning margin of the weekend, with Emily Passmore enjoying a terrific afternoon at the office. This weekend's Riverland soccer action will be held in Loxton, as the season continues to heat up ahead of the home stretch.

Trials triumph for racing club

A DOUBLE dose of good news has been delivered to the Mindarie-Halidon Racing Club (MHRC) ahead of its annual September meeting.

For the first time in its 109-year history, the volunteer-run club will stage official barrier trials at its Halidon racecourse, bringing industry additional participants, potential upgrades and other benefits to the club.

After working with local officials on the proposal, the sport's state governing body, Racing SA, has announced the trials for Monday, September 29 – just over two weeks after the 2025 Mindarie-Halidon Cup meeting.

In addition, Racing SA has confirmed this year's meeting will see the club stage three 1200m events, utilising a renovated chute that allows bigger fields than the existing 1000m 'on-track' start.

Using Halidon for barrier trials – conducted under race-like conditions to prepare thoroughbreds for race starts – acknowledges the club's ongoing pursuit of facility improvements, according to Racing SA.

"Racing SA recognises the efforts of the MHRC to present an excellent alternative to the metropolitan and provincial tracks to stage barrier trials in the early part of spring, alleviating the pressure on other tracks following winter," said Racing SA's racing operations manager, Greg Rudolph.

"Racing SA will assist MHRC in the provision of resources to stage barrier trials and ensure the track surface is well prepared following the cup meeting.

"Racing SA recognises the importance of utilising MHRC as an alternative trial venue given its proximity to Murray Bridge and these trials will serve as an opportunity to assess whether further trials may be scheduled in the 2025/26 racing season.

"Racing SA welcomes and is appreciative of the club's co-operation in making MHRC an alternative venue for barrier trials, leading into important spring carnival preparations for SA horses."

MHRC president Geoff Redden said the committee was "pumped" to secure barrier trials shortly after its cup meeting.

"We've been working towards this for a while now, and we're rapt to be able to make this joint announcement with Racing SA," Mr Redden said.

"These trials on September 29 will give further exposure to our track and they'll also indicate that we're 'open for business' to industry participants.

"Importantly, Racing SA has indicated it will provide all the resources we require to stage these trials. It means it won't cost the club a cent, and it could well mean further on-site improvements in future.

"Club committee members and volunteers will naturally be on site on the day."

Mr Redden said track would still be in "prime racing condition" for the trials after its 2025 meeting, set down for Sunday, September 14.

Mr Redden also said the club was pleased its "hard work" upgrading the 1200m chute start would see six-furlong races return to the cup day program for the first time in recent history, in place of 1000m races.

Using the 1200m chute start – which adjoins the course's main circuit – allows more width for both the barriers and the compulsory ambulance that follows horses around each race. This in turn will allow more horses to race over the sprint distance, with Mr Rudolph confirming that three 1200m events would be staged on this year's Cup day program.

Mr Redden said the change would be welcomed by trainers and jockeys, while the potential for larger field sizes was better for wagering turnover and the subsequent trickle down to the industry and club.

Racing SA officials travelled to the Halidon racecourse last Friday to inspect the facilities as the club steps up preparations for the September meeting.

"The progress report was good, and it's all systems go now for September 14," Mr Redden said.

"We're having regular meetings, planning, working bees and upgrades, and the track is already looking in good condition."

Tickets for the 2025 Mindarie-Halidon Cup meeting will go on sale from July 7.

RENMARK TABLE TENNIS ASSOCIATION

ROUND seven of Renmark Table Tennis saw Bit Edgy move above Whack-a-Ball, with a good win, and Net Ninjas move to the top of the ladder with a comfortable victory over Bits 'n Bats.

This sets up a big top-of-the-table match next week between Net Ninjas and Backhand Bandits, who had the bye.

In the first match Bit Edgy beat Whack-a-Ball 13-11. The top part of the drawer was very even with a 6-6 score.

Two new Renmark Table Tennis Association (RTTA) members and improving Bit Edgy players Salih Kalyoncu and Daniel Vincent proved to be the difference, falling in one rubber out of the four singles, and three doubles they were involved in.

A great sign of how the improvement of new, lower-ranked players can make and the effect this can have on the overall result of the team.

Vincent worked especially hard for his two singles wins, requiring five games to win his rubber against Don Erceg, and 18 points to seal the rubber against Nate Perry.

In the second match Net Ninjas were too consistent against Bits 'n Bats, winning 14-10. While Bits 'n Bats welcomed back their captain, Darren Nitschke, it was not enough to stop Net Ninjas winning their second game in a row, and moving to the top of the RTTA ladder.

The doubles proved to be the difference, with Net Ninjas only dropping two of the eight rubbers.

Alex Lau of Net Ninjas has turned around his poor early season form, where he managed only one win of the first six rubbers.

Since round four, Lau has, only dropped one of his last seven rubbers, to the undefeated Asher Harris.

Students involved in the St Francis of Assisi College rowing program hit the water over the weekend as part of the 2025 Wharf to Woolshed Long Row. PHOTOS: Grant Schwartzkopff

An oar-inspiring weekend on the water

LACHLAN DAND

A COLD Saturday morning failed to dampen the spirits of more than 200 rowers in 44 crews who hit the water for the annual Renmark Rowing Club’s Wharf to Woolshed Long Row.

Completing its eighth year, following the first event in 2017, the Long Row had competitors from all over Australia take on the 36km journey.

With two stops along the way, the event is particularly popular among masters rowers, and Long Row co-ordinator Anna Petersen said a June timeframe works.

“It’s really appealing to masters’ rowers, because the regatta season is from October to April, so that’s when you have all of that racing as your focus,” she said.

“This is an opportunity for people to keep their training up, and it’s a social event, so I think people enjoy that aspect of it.

“We had people on the weekend who were teenagers, right through to people in their 80s, so it combines a huge age bracket.

“For the first time we had rowers participate from St Francis of Assisi College, and they had their coach Stephanie Turnbull rowing with them which was nice, and they loved it.

“We had some clubs we haven’t had before, including an Australian Defence Force crew, and they came for the first time.

“Participants hit the water from New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, and the ACT, so they came from everywhere.”

Planning for the Long Row kicks off in the early stages of each year, with approximately four months’ worth of work going into making the event happen.

Ms Petersen said it’s an ‘enormous’ amount of planning, but members at the club band together to make it happen.

“Generally, we’ll start planning in February, and then entries open in March, and there’s about a six-week window for people to get them in,” she said.

“Running the event itself requires an enormous number of volunteers, and we had 12 support boats on the water on Saturday, including a local doctor who donates his time to be available on the day.

“We had people manning the morning tea stops, and providing baked goods, and people helping the support boats, so we couldn’t do it without them.”

In what was a special moment, the St Francis of Assisi College’s rowing program has been in effect for several years, and now has rowers competing a 36km journey in partnership with the Renmark Rowing Club.

In another local highlight, the recently renovated rowing dock was also in use for the first time, with the club launching all 44 crews from the one location within an hour, which was a significant positive.

Cup stays in the jungle

THE highly sought after Obst/Warneke Cup is with Loxton once again, following a 21-goal victory on Friday night in Riverland netball’s A1 competition.

Loxton burst away to a strong start at The Precinct in an early fixture, opening up a nine-goal margin at the opening break, with that margin remaining at half time.

The Tigers ramped up the heat in the second half once again, scoring 19 goals to nine in the third term, effectively putting the result beyond doubt.

In what was a rematch of the 2024 decider, and a top-two clash, Loxton coach Jono Hartley said the win meant a lot to his playing group.

“It means so much to the players, but also the community who come out and support us every week and support the girls,” he said.

“It’s more than just winning the cup, because it’s the camaraderie and sportsmanship, and acknowledging those who have come before us, and that we are the present and the future.

“It’s always a great rivalry against Loxton North but the girls wear it with pride, and every time they take the court they make a statement about who we are and what our identity is as a club.

“Most of the girls are friends, and Loxton North have some amazing netballers and people in their club, and we’re lucky this time to be on the winning side of it.

“As much as we talk about hard work and what it takes to be an A1 netballer, sometimes it comes down to a bit of luck, and we know every time we play them it’s going to be a good game regardless of the ladder.”

Mackella Hogan was the dominant force for Loxton underneath the ring yet again, this time scoring 46 goals, while Aimee Holmes finished the game superbly with 15 of her own.

Loxton faced adversity throughout the game with superstar Elise Lange succumbing to injury, and Bailey Hahn also on the sidelines.

Shenae Rucioch filled the void of Lange’s absence in a terrific performance, while defensive duo Leah Uren and Tarnie Shinnick defended brilliantly.

Shinnick, who is new to the club in 2025, took out the best player award, and Hartley said she has slotted in seamlessly.

“She’s just slotted in as if she’s part of the furniture, and she’s brought every bit of skill, talent, and poise, and she’s the ultimate package on and off the court.

“We’re very lucky as a Loxton Netball Club to have her suit up for us each week, and seeing the smiles and mateship on our group at the moment... everything just feels so connected.”

For Loxton North, Lori Sandland and Brooke Pietrolaj worked hard in midcourt, while Ellie Thomas (22) and Maddie Groth (18) kept the scoreboard ticking over.

Elsewhere, Renmark rose off the bottom of the ladder with a much needed 10-goal win over Berri at the Alan Coulter Recreation Centre.

With the scores level at the half, Renmark flung the game wide open in the third term with 15 goals to nine to set up the victory.

Cloe Westhoff was terrific for Renmark at the goalkeeper position, while Anita Modlinski led the way in attack with 34 goals.

For Berri, young defender Amelia Morgan gave her best efforts, while centre Layne Fenwick was strong in midcourt.

This Friday night sees all A1 action at The Precinct from 8.15pm, with Loxton North playing host to Berri, and Loxton welcoming Barmera to town.

child's play

OFTEN thought-provoking, sometimes controversial, this parenting panel program returns for a third season with eight new families keen to get to the bottom of their child-rearing quandaries.

Over four episodes, they'll tackle screen time, peer pressure, body image and mental health – working through real-world challenges designed to test their at-times polarising parenting philosophies and discussing with the group other ways a situation could have been handled.

"Parenting is constantly evolving," explains the show's resident expert Dr Justin Coulson, himself a father of six and grandfather of one.

"This series continues to provide a unique opportunity to observe different parenting styles and methods in action and understand the reasoning behind them. It's less about judgement and more about learning and understanding the diverse perspectives into navigating parenting in the modern world."

Gold Logie nominee and mum-of-two Allison Langdon returns alongside Coulson to lead the conversations and take a closer look at the issues on the table.

"The show resonates so deeply with audiences because it tackles the universal, yet very personal, journey of parenting," enthuses Langdon.

"This four-part format allows us to focus on each specific topic in depth and the challenges faced by families today, giving viewers insight and reflection."

Shining a spotlight on the dangers of technology and the importance of online safety, Monday's premiere is a must-see.

NINE EXPANDS NORTH AMERICAN PRESENCE WITH...

NEW WASHINGTON DC BUREAU

NINE is significantly strengthening its international news gathering capabilities with the launch of a new, dedicated bureau in Washington DC. This expansion will provide audiences with unparalleled access to the epicentre of American politics.

Positioned just 300m from the Oval Office, the 9News Washington DC Bureau will take viewers from the White House to their house, offering a front-row seat to one of the most significant periods in modern political history.

As the United States grapples with the aftermath of a deeply consequential election, alongside escalating global tensions and pivotal social and economic shifts, Nine's presence in the capital will ensure Australians receive comprehensive, on-the-ground coverage of the decisions and events that increasingly shape our world.

The new Washington DC Bureau will complement Nine's long-established Los Angeles Bureau, which has served as a hub for more than 40 years, attracting Australia's most experienced and respected journalists. The US bureaus provide extensive coverage for 9News, 60 Minutes, A Current Affair, Today and all of Nine's digital and social platforms.

Nine's director of news and current affairs Fiona Dear said "this expansion takes our viewers to the doorstep of the White House and offers a front-row seat to the news and decision making that is increasingly shaping our lives back home".

"We are committed to bringing Australians the most comprehensive and insightful coverage of global affairs", Ms Dear said.

Nine is also thrilled to announce that accomplished journalist Lauren Tomasi will be the new Washington correspondent. Ms Tomasi is perfectly placed to lead this new venture.

During her time as a US correspondent based in Los Angeles, Tomasi has reported from the heart of major events, from the glamour of red carpets to the devastation of natural disasters, mass shootings and terror attacks. She has been a vital part of Nine's acclaimed US election coverage, reporting live from campaign rallies and pivotal courtroom moments across the country.

The 9News Washington DC Bureau is set to launch later this month.
