UNLOCKED FOR REPAIRS

RIVERLANDERS are being treated to the rare sight of an emptied lock in the region, with maintenance and repair work being done on the major water infrastructure.

Lock 3, near Overland Corner, was drained earlier this month and is undergoing essential maintenance works, allowing SA Water crews to undertake a detailed inspection and necessary repairs to structural and mechanical components.

A 'MODEST' 2.5% RISE?

LOXTON Waikerie residents can expect an average rates increase of 2.5 per cent this year – plus other increases to Kerbside Waste Management and CWMS service charges – after council adopted its draft budget.

The District Council of Loxton Waikerie recently released its Draft Annual Business Plan 2025-26 for public feedback.

The average Loxton Waikerie residential ratepayer can expect a $31 rates increase, due in part to land valuation increases, while council's fixed and service charges will also increase.

General rates raised in 2025-26 will be $12.14m, equating to 45.18 per cent of council's operating revenue.

Loxton Waikerie CEO David

Beaton said "the challenges facing our region remain significant, with rising living costs, ongoing economic uncertainty, and the continued impact of drought on our agricultural sector".

"These pressures are compounded by persistently low wine grape prices, which are placing strain on one of our most vital local industries. In response, council has adopted a considered and community-focused approach to its 2025-26 Annual Business Plan," Mr Beaton said.

"This year's rate rise has been limited to 2.5 per cent, a modest increase that reflects our commitment to maintaining essential services and infrastructure, while recognising the financial strain many households and businesses are experiencing.

Dust storms have caused numerous traffic disruptions and road closures around the Riverland. PHOTOS: Sebastian Calderon, Facebook

Weather causes highway closures

EXTREME dust storms earlier this week caused major disruptions to numerous roads within the Riverland, prompting police to issue traffic warnings.

Severe weather and winds caused dust storms that significantly reduced visibility on numerous roads throughout the region, with roads such as the Sturt Highway, between Blanchetown and Truro, closed to traffic during Monday afternoon.

Police also advised drivers in regional and country areas to exercise and drive to the conditions.

If drivers feel it is unsafe to drive, pull to the side of the road, activate hazard lights and wait for the storm to pass.

Police can be contacted in case of an emergency by calling 131 444 or triple-zero (000).

Truck driver smashes into cars during dust storm

A COLLISION involving a truck and another vehicle near Blanchetown during Monday's dust storm has led to a driver's suspension, after the incident was captured on video.

Footage obtained by 7NEWS shows cars pulled over on the Sturt Highway between Truro and Blanchetown, when a truck, appearing to overtake the stopped traffic, sideswiped a Volkswagen Amarok caught in the congestion.

Transport company Collins Transport confirmed the driver has been suspended pending an internal investigation, stating the incident would be “completely unacceptable if safety standards and driver expectations were not met”.

Risks in record China wine exports?

HUGH SCHUITEMAKER

THE Riverland’s State MP says returning to an “over-reliance” on exports to China is creating further risks for the local wine industry.

Recent ABS trade data revealed South Australia exported $855 million of wine to China in the year to March 2025 – a 200-fold increase on the previous year.

However, Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone said support to facilitate necessary changes within the state’s wine industry was still lacking.

“This really is an inadequate response for an industry that is still struggling,” Mr Whetstone said.

“While the Malinauskas Government is quick to claim credit for the rebound in wine exports to China, we are not hearing the full story.

“We are navigating a fragile recovery that continues to be hampered by government inaction, an over-reliance on a single market, and a lack of long-term strategy.

“We have seen no new policy put on the table and these numbers simply reflect a return to where we were in 2020.

“The government need to facilitate for structural adjustments into emerging opportunities.”

Mr Whetstone said economic challenges in the wine industry continued to put pressure on Riverland wine grape growers.

“The government’s $1.85 million attempt to fix the problem is a drop in the ocean for an industry that was decimated by years of trade disruption and our local growers and producers have borne the brunt of uncertainty,” he said.

“The opposition will continue to work with our producers to ensure that our wine industry is not only the largest exporter, but also resilient and innovative.

“I would remind both (Minister for Trade and Investment Joe) Szakacs and the SA Wine Industry Association that the Riverland’s commercial wine sector has historically been the industry’s engine room nationally and is now experiencing decimation with very low-value sales that fall well below the cost of production.

“Our growers are facing another vintage with an uncertain future ahead.”

South Australian Wine Industry Association chief executive Inca Lee said “continued investment to grow demand in China and other markets (is) needed to ensure the industry’s long-term success”.

“South Australia’s premium wines are once again capturing the attention of Chinese consumers, solidifying the state’s reputation for world-class winemaking excellence,” Ms Lee said.

“The results are strong.

“At a time when we are seeing a global decline in wine consumption and an unpredictable trading landscape, we acknowledge the Malinauskas Government’s commitment to rebuilding our exports into China, and supporting diversification efforts into other key export markets.”

Mr Szakacs said federal government efforts to “repair our trading relationships with China” had benefited South Australia.

“The rapid recovery of South Australia’s wine export industry has exceeded even the most optimistic predictions of a year ago when tariffs were removed,” Mr Szakacs said.

“The $855m in wine exports in the past year is an exceptional result. It’s just reward for the patience and resilience that producers demonstrated through a very challenging and uncertain period of trade disruption.

“South Australia has done the heavy lifting for Australian wine, increasing both our size and market share of exports. The Malinauskas Government has stood with local wine producers, and the thousands of people that they employ, during the tough times.

“We are backing efforts to diversify, and ensure that renewed opportunities in China are seized. Thanks to these efforts, South Australia has recovered 90 per cent of the all-time peak wine exports to China, in just one year.”

Mr Szakacs said “our government recognises that uncertainty in global markets remains, and remains ready to act to protect local jobs”.

Councils free to pay CEOs more...or less

TWO Riverland councils are now free to pay their CEOs substantially more.

Following an SA Remuneration Tribunal ruling, the maximum Berri Barmera and Loxton Waikerie can now pay their respective CEOs has increased from $265,200 to $294,103 per annum.

However, both councils are also free to pay their CEOs less: a minimum of $226,400, down from the previous $235,040 figure.

The Tribunal has announced a revamp of remuneration “bands”, which are the groupings all 68 South Australian councils fit under.

From 2023, Renmark Paringa and Mid Murray councils were both in Band 6, which had a minimum of $272,480 and a maximum of $292,240, while the other two Riverland councils were in Band 7, which has lower payment figures.

However, following the latest shake-up, all four councils will soon be in Band 5, meaning Renmark Paringa could potentially pay its CEO around $45,000 less than previously.

The Tribunal’s determination takes effect from July 1, however councils have until the end of 2027 to comply with the minimum and maximum amounts.

In its determination, the Tribunal noted that mobile telephones and portable computing equipment, “fundamentally for work purposes, professional development costs directly related to the performance of CEO duties, membership of professional associations and relocation expenses are not included in the total remuneration package”.

The Riverland celebrates two years of Harvey Norman

HARVEY Norman Renmark celebrated its second-year milestone last Saturday, with crowds of Riverlanders gathering to enjoy the store-wide birthday party.

“It is always fun throwing a party, especially one when you can involve the community and your loyal customers,” Harvey Norman Renmark proprietor Nestor Beale said.

“On the day we gave away over $2000 worth of prices.

“The response to the second birthday was amazing, showing we, as a store, are offering the best products to the community, and really (have) established our presence here.

“I’m super excited for our third year of trade here in the Riverland.”

A large crowd of locals turned out to celebrate Harvey Norman Renmark’s second birthday.

HUGH SCHUITMAKER

A RIVERLAND sporting club’s past history was recognised alongside the unveiling of a major piece of new Renmark infrastructure.

Renmark Paringa Council and Renmark Rowing Club representatives gathered last Sunday for the naming of six new boats, and the official opening of the redeveloped Renmark rowing dock.

The boats – obtained through funding from the Federal Government Play Our Way program – were named after the club’s life members Max Burr, Steve Cornelius, Wayne Coombs, Clack John, Karen Trenwith, and Cora Seekamp, who was represented by relative Annette Crozier.

Renmark Rowing Club president Tony Townsend said these members had helped create the foundation’s for the group’s current success.

“Life members are the history of (the) club, and to be able to honour them this way pays tribute to what they’ve done,” Mr Townsend said.

“To have the two brand new boats we can put on the water... and to have that funded through the Federal Government Play Our Way program is just great.

“To have two female life members we named the boats after is significant. We’re 105 years old, and it’s important to honour your history.

“One of the big things we’re taking on board as a committee is the connection to community, and how we fit in. Hopefully we’ll be around for another 105 years.”

Mr Townsend said being able to utilise the new rowing dock would help overcome logistical challenges in the club’s events.

“Now we’re at about 220 rowers (for the Long Row) this year,” he said.

“We’re going to launch everyone from (the dock), whereas the caravan park has also been a launch site, because we just didn’t have the capacity.

“This asset allows us to do things we haven’t been able to previously.”

Renmark Paringa Mayor Peter Hunter said co-operation with the State Government surrounding the dock project had benefitted the whole community.

“It’s exceptional to think back and remember the work that’s gone into getting (here),” Mr Hunter said.

“For the rowing club to be recognising its life members by naming the boats after them shows they care about history, and the people who have contributed to this rowing community.

“I commend them in the highest terms for what they’ve done to create this 70m long, $1.7m project.

“It’s about the State Government working with councils, and local groups, to take the initiative, work through the partnerships and get this magnificent result. Our whole riverfront is a (testament) to that.”

Riverland SES volunteers recognised

RIVERLAND State Emergency Service (SES) volunteers have been celebrated during the annual Wear Orange Wednesday (WOW Day) this month, with locals donning their brightest colours to acknowledge those who respond to people and communities in need.

Held last Wednesday, WOW Day is a national initiative held on May 2, recognising and thanking SES personnel in orange uniforms.

In South Australia more than 1700 SES volunteers from 67 Units across the state have responded to more than 2600 requests for assistance from the public so far this year.

SES SA chief officer Chris Beattie said the commitment shown by volunteers to respond to people in need, and committing to undertaking thousands of hours of skills training every year, was something we should all be thankful for.

“The work SES volunteers undertake in our community can sometimes fly under the radar,” he said.

“Over the past 50 days our volunteers have been supporting the township of Innamincka and surrounding communities in rural South Australia as they struggle with incredible amounts of floodwater entering our state from Queensland.

“It is always challenging to be away from your family and work, and we should never take their dedication, and their importance to our communities, for granted.

“Wear Orange Wednesday is a great opportunity to show our appreciation for the hard work and dedication of SES volunteers.

“As an organisation we are also committed to helping build safer and more resilient communities through engagement and education, to assist in minimising the impact of extreme weather events such as severe floods and damaging storms.”

Unlocked for repairs

SEBASTIAN CALDERON

RIVERLANDERS are being treated to the rare sight of an emptied lock in the region, with maintenance and repair work being done on the major water infrastructure.

Lock 3, near Overland Corner, was drained earlier this month and is undergoing essential maintenance works, allowing SA Water crews to undertake a detailed inspection and necessary repairs to structural and mechanical components.

Completed in 1925, Lock 3 controls 85km of the Murray River and contains the most diverse range of flow conditions of all the South Australian River weir pools.

SA Water senior manager of River Murray Operations Garry Fyfe said “as part of our maintenance schedule, every decade we have a real strong aim to get into the bottom of the chamber, so we can actually look at the bits and pieces below water”.

“What we found is that corrosion rates are quite high in some locations, leaving us with a loss of metal in the structure, paint disappearing and loss of concrete materials and rubber seals at the bottom of the gates and the valves,” Mr Fyfe said.

“Over time, those components start to shred away with water pressure, so the process we’ve got is to put large coffer dams in place, which block off the upstream and downstream water and seal the chamber.

“We then pump the water out of the chamber and remove all debris from the bottom.”

Mr Fyfe said once the chamber – which allows vessels to travel through the lock – is free of water, the removal process can take between one or two days, before the engineers can really assess the necessary repairs.

“We take some assessments based on what we know,” Mr Fyfe said.

“This time, we knew we had to replace all the valves that actually allow water in and out, so they’ve already been purchased and procured

“From previous assessments, we expected a lot of damage to our valve and gate rubbers from the previous floods. That turned out to be true, which is approximately 700m of valve rubber we need to replace.

“We are now in the process of getting subcontractors and specialists, alongside the concrete company which is already onsite. The concrete has eroded faster than expected due to the damage on the rubber seals.”

The maintenance and refurbishing process of the chamber and its locks can take between 14 to 16 weeks, depending on the weather and other unforeseen circumstances, but according to SA Water, the

The lock 3 water chambers are essential to allow water flow, using gravity. PHOTOS: Sebastian Calderon chamber should be ready in mid-October.

“There is a lot of work going on in a short space of time, because once the works are finished, we have to test the chamber, locks, seals and make sure everything has been done correctly,” Mr Fyfe said.

“We will re-water the chamber by pumping water back in and if it’s all good, we’ll then remove the coffer dams and away we go from there.

“The weather can slow the process, depending if we get more rain during these months. There is a lot of hydraulics that have to be reconnected, so you want to make sure that the right gate opens when you push the button.”

SA Water authorities advise that river traffic in the area may be impacted during the closure, which is expected to last several weeks.

Completed in 1925, Lock 3 is drained and assessed every decade to ensure its efficiency and longevity, with current repairs taking between 14 to 16 weeks.

Riverlanders invited to explore benefits of the new Berri Community Centre

BERRI Community Centre’s purpose as a place for people to connect with others, learn new skills and seek support will be showcased to the Riverland community next week, as part of a community celebration.

Country agency ac.care will officially launch the Berri Community Centre as part of a free public celebration, from 11am, on Wednesday, June 4, officially marking the site’s status as a community centre.

Long-term Department of Human Services funding to support activities at ac.care’s Riverland service hub prompted the name change and provided additional resources to combat social isolation, promote a stronger sense of belonging for people who are seeking connection and foster inclusive, equitable and resilient local communities.

The centre, located at 5 Kealley Street, also remains home to all of ac.care’s Riverland services, including foster care, homelessness, emergency relief, financial counselling, Aboriginal services, family and youth support, and more.

ac.care Berri Community Centre co-ordinator Sue Dayman said the organisation was successful in its funding application after demonstrating a strong connection to the local community, as well as a proven capacity to deliver appropriate and quality services.

“People from all walks of life visit the centre each day and interact with the services and opportunities differently based on their circumstances,” Ms Dayman said.

“One of the newer, popular aspects has been the weekly interactive, fun activities that connect people through conversation, art, music, gardening, games and more.

“We know the negative effects of loneliness and social isolation on people’s health can be significant so these groups bring together a broad range of people to connect, have fun and learn new skills.”

Ms Dayman said ongoing improvements to the centre’s rear yard, supported by the Department for Human Services, Community Connections and Skylight

Mental Health, had created a vibrant, welcoming space, complete with community garden, shelter and a new outdoor kitchen.

She encouraged the Riverland community to attend next Wednesday and explore the opportunities available locally.

“We would love to see the community embrace and explore the Berri Community Centre on June 4 or another time by visiting us at Kealley Street and even jumping into a group activity,” she said.

Ms Dayman credited volunteers for their key role in providing support in daily centre operations.

The community celebration falls just short of the nine-year anniversary of ac.care’s move to 5 Kealley Street in June 2016.

Drop by the Berri Community Centre at 5 Kealley Street, Berri or call 8580 5300 to learn more about ac.care’s services.

Follow the Berri Community Centre noticeboard – ac.care, on Facebook, to stay connected to the latest news, events and opportunities at the centre.

THE YEARS GO BY

LoxStory, Peter and Carla Magarey

An important milestone

WITH a carpark crammed full of farm animals, kids going wild for pass the parcel, and a sausage sizzle, Renmark’s Harvey Norman had potentially the ultimate birthday party last weekend. After many years of rumours, the excitement was high among Renmark residents when the announcement was made that a Harvey Norman would occupy the former Woolworths building on Fifteenth Street. However, even in those early days there was a section of the community that had their doubts about the business’ potential success.

Would the Riverland’s local clientele be enough to support such a large company? Would such a large brand be accepted to the region? Even now there remains those with the rare opinion that expect the store to shut inside the next six months.

Therefore, it is probably a testament to the store’s leadership, and the service provided by employees, that the two-year anniversary has been crossed during a time when cost-of-living pressures are causing the majority of households to watch their budgets, particularly in agricultural-based communities like the Riverland.

Fears that the presence of Harvey Norman in the Riverland would take potential sales away from our smaller, family-run businesses have probably largely been put to rest as well, with all other providers of furniture and electrical goods continuing to operate.

Community growth is something difficult to put into perspective in real time. We can see houses being built, or a new business opening, but it can take years to see the full benefits.

In Renmark’s case, having Harvey Norman in town was likely a large factor in attracting the nearby BCF, and having both large stores nearby would also have potentially given the operator of the adjacent Foodland the confidence to renovate and expand its offerings.

It also seems like the best business days for Harvey Norman could still be yet to come. With improving housing availability a priority at both state and federal government levels, and a large appetite for many to relocate to regional areas still ongoing since Covid, it seems safe to say the Riverland is going to see a lot more new homes created in the coming years.

No doubt operators of the store would be keeping an eye out for updates regarding Renmark’s proposed Jane Eliza development for just this reason.

While it may not have been a sprint to success out of the starting line, it appears as though Renmark’s Harvey Norman has the necessary endurance to become a long-term Riverland business.

Joan Wachtel (née Smith), right, with her family crossing the Murray near Devlin’s Pound (about 1922). In an interview with young cousin Cameron Williams, Joan recalled that in 1919, when she was four, her family moved to virgin country north of the river at Devlin’s Pound. This was on the cliff-top across the river from Woolpunda. Joan’s dad employed men to cut the Mallee into lengths and cart it down to the river for the paddle steamers. The only communication with the outside world was the riverboats, which Joan recognised by their whistle and the beat of the engine. Several were store boats and ‘...you could buy anything from a bag of sugar, a bag of flour or even pretty hats for the ladies and these were the only shops, ...everything came by river’. In 1923 they opened a school at Woolpunda. Joan said that ‘one day my mother rowed my sister and me over the river, to quit school and collect our books. The school inspector was there, and he persuaded mother to take the school on as teacher. My father wasn’t happy. It didn’t matter how much work they did on the farm; the wives did not go to work. After 12 months my mother resigned, and we didn’t go to school anymore, but were among the first children to get correspondence lessons from Adelaide’. ‘I loved it’, said Joan. PHOTO: Janet Byrne.

Paringa Bridge

THE Paringa Bridge is approaching its 100 year anniversary in 2027. It was originally built for trains, and a ferry alongside it still took cars across the river. Later there were the road lanes attached either side of the rail bridge for cars.

I do not believe they would have envisaged semi’s or road trains in the future. Hence, what contingency plan is in place by the Department for Infrastructure and Transport, and the Renmark Paringa Council if the bridge was damaged or out of action for any length of time?

How would ambulances, the police, or MFS get to Paringa in an emergency?

How do residents/workers from both towns get to each town if the bridge closed? In a worst-case scenario if there was another major flood, there would be no Lyrup Ferry, no Loxton to Berri road, and maybe no Kingston-on-Murray road.

What inspections of the Paringa Bridge were done after the last flood? Maybe it’s time this bridge was for local traffic only, and no I don’t have a solution but I believe someone should be addressing this.

Commitment to effective action

JENNIFER Mattinson is right (‘Climate change to change voting’, letters, 21/5/25).

We need to elect politicians who understand climate science and have the commitment and capacity to take effective action.

While many believe nothing Australia does will make a difference, it’s important to know that the total emissions from the 190-plus countries like Australia exceeds 40 per cent of total global emissions, equal to China and the US combined.

As Desmond Tutu said, “do your little bit of good where you are; it’s those little bits of good put together that overwhelm the

Distant people, distant perspectives

WOMEN are the best economists. Never pay attention to what men say, women are the ones that pay. I was chatting after voting today, and the present is expletively bleak.

Distant people making policies that don’t work, for people who do.

They asked me why I don’t write letters any more. I do write, just not to newspapers so much.

I don’t mind annoying council staff who’ve never taken the time to talk to me. I only criticise what they do, not who they are.

In many ways, it’s systemic. All the council choices are implemented by outsiders, who have a distant perspective, which no letter will ever reach.

Homeless crisis and wellbeing crisis

HOMELESSNESS Australia is urging federal and state governments to act on the latest findings from the National Housing Supply and Affordability State of the Housing System 2025 report, released last week.

The 2025 report revealed households are under growing pressure, with increasing rental stress, and a sharp rise in people stuck in rental stress for over two years, and social housing as a proportion of all housing continuing to decline.

New data in the report reveals the direct impact of this crisis on people’s wellbeing, with renters in rental stress experiencing worsening mental health over the past decade.

New data also reveals that rental stress is increasing risk factors for homelessness, with one-in-four stressed renters not having savings to manage an emergency.

What’s scary about this housing crisis is there is no end in sight. This report is the latest indicator telling us how bad things are. It’s affecting people’s mental and physical health and it has to end.

The report noted the strong connection between rental stress, lack of social housing and homelessness. It cited data showing 280,000 people accessed homelessness services between 2023-24, and that persistent homelessness and the unmet need for homelessness services are growing.

Homelessness Australia supports the report’s recommendations to boost social housing to 6 per cent, with a long-term target of 10 per cent of all homes.

This report calls for bold action to address the housing crisis and provide all Australians with the stability and security of a safe, affordable home. We urge the federal government to act swiftly on this report, and to work with us to turn this crisis around.

Alongside growth in social housing we urgently need increased government investment in homelessness services to meet the growing need for support and ensure no one is turned away.

Batteries policy a winner?

BECAUSE it can moderate the price of electricity during peak demand, and simultaneously tackle emissions and cost of living, and start to do so relatively soon, Labor’s ‘Cheaper Home Batteries’ is a policy the Coalition would do well to match ASAP.

The main concern is that renters and other low-income households, once again, tend to miss out. Perhaps a minority government would be under strong pressure to do a deal to offset that inequality.

Regardless, it is past time government addressed the crippling effects of exorbitant prices, which benefit only a tiny number of companies during very pronounced lulls in wind and solar energy.

Communities can help cut power bills

REWIRING Australia says communities will play an important role in protecting households from price hikes, after the Australian Energy Market Operator warned of a surge in electricity infrastructure costs.

AEMO’s Draft 2025 Electricity Network Options Report has revealed transmission line costs have risen by up to 55 per cent because of skills and material shortages. It expects the costs to be passed onto the consumer.

This isn’t a doom and gloom scenario. We know harnessing the power of solar and battery storages can make individual homes, and their communities more resilient if they can also feed excess power back into the grid.

By using more of our local grid capacity with neighbourhood battery storage and smart EV charging, we can capitalise on the huge amount of potential rooftop solar we have space for.

We have local infrastructure. If we re-think where we invest, and target upgrading grid-sharing technology, we can help communities access cheaper and cleaner energy without expensive new poles and wires.

This isn’t a novel idea either. AEMO recommends this sort of local level consumer network distribution in its report, and in some communities, this sort of model is already operating.

The AEMO report proposes a re-evaluation of some large-scale transmission projects, flagging the increasing role of consumer energy resources that includes rooftop solar and household and community batteries.

It comes as the NSW Government launches its first urban renewable energy zone, which will focus on local solar, storage and more effective grid use to make communities more energy resilient.

Rewiring Australia is calling on all levels of government to prioritise community-led energy upgrades, fast-track support for grid modernisation, and scale up electrification as a national economic strategy.

If we give communities a leg-up to upgrade their homes with electric appliances, solar and batteries, and modernise their grids and rapidly increase the uptake of electrification nationally, we can cut more power bills, and rely less on mega transmission projects.

Energy reform must be made

TODAY’S final determination of the Default Market Offer (DMO) for 2025-26 by the Australian Energy Regulator further highlights how the DMO is failing to protect energy consumers – particularly those on lower incomes – from paying unreasonably high prices.

South Australian households will pay up to 3.2 per cent more under the DMO in 2025-26, after a massive 24 per cent increase in 2023-24 was followed by a small 2.2 per cent decrease in 2024-25.

South Australians already face among the highest power prices in the nation.

Even though today’s DMO determination means the increase for SA households is less than other jurisdictions, it’s still going to add to the hardship challenges faced by low-income and high-usage households with energy prices remaining at very high levels.

We don’t believe the current DMO framework is protecting customers from complex and unfair energy prices. We’d like to see the DMO reformed to be an efficient and fair price all South Australian households can default to.

We call on the Federal Government to urgently reform the DMO to better protect energy consumers and promote a fairer energy pricing system.

Misleading ads during election

A NEW poll conducted for The Australia Institute has found that 72 per cent of voters saw misleading political advertisements during the recent election campaign, with well over half of those exposed to misleading ads every day.

While Australia’s electoral institutions are among the best in the world – like an independent electoral commission, Saturday voting, full preferential voting and compulsory voting – they are not perfect.

Lies in advertising and text spamming are among six key problems identified by The Australia Institute from the campaign, which suggests reforms to fix these areas of concern to safeguard Australia’s democracy.

A poll of 1500 voters was conducted by YouGov in the final week of the election campaign, asking Australians whether they’d seen misleading advertisements.

The key findings show:

- New polling research from the Australia Institute shows that seven-in-10 voters (72 per cent) came across political ads they knew to be misleading during the election campaign, while only 4 per cent said they did not.
- Two in five (42 per cent) saw misleading ads daily during the election campaign.
- A further one in four (24 per cent) didn’t know how often they came across misleading political ads.
- This year’s federal election was marred by lies in political advertising, political parties inserting themselves in the postal vote process, mass text message spam, an unfair playing field for independents and minor party candidates, and confusion about how the electoral system works.

Six reforms would fix these problems:

- Truth in political advertising laws, like those in South Australia and the ACT.
- A ban on postal vote forms being bundled with partisan material and routed through party headquarters.
- Making political parties subject to the Privacy Act and Spam Act.
- More senators for the ACT and NT, if not all states and territories.
- Fair political finance reform.
- Better education of children and adults on how the Australian political system works

Australia is a democratic innovator. By some counts, the first liberal democracy in the world, Australia was distinctive for its secret ballot, voting on the weekend and independent electoral commission.

With democracy in decline around the world, it is more important than ever that Australian democracy is safeguarded.

Disturbingly, most Australians report that they came across misleading political advertising during the election campaign, including 42 per cent who came across such content daily.

The election was marred by misleading political advertising, political parties inserting themselves in the postal vote process and spam messages on an industrial scale – but solutions exist.

Truth in political advertising laws have worked for 40 years in South Australia, a multi-party committee has proposed getting parties out of the postal vote process, and it would be simple to make privacy and spam laws apply to political parties as they do everyone else.

Causing global anxiety?

The advent of Donald Trump to become President of the United States Of America has certainly caused many Americans to reconsider major life events.

This is because widespread uncertainties created by the actions of Donald Trump have caused much economic anxiety. Examples of this are marriage, starting a new business, buying a home, and having children.

It unfortunately appears that a return to economic stability in the United States can only be achieved when Donald Trump can be convinced that his actions are many times not working for the economic benefit of the people of the US.

Nikki gifts dignity

MADISON EASTMOND

HOPING to reduce period poverty in region, Berri Regional Secondary alumni Nikki Pfitzner has been awarded a grant to help supply local students in need of vital personal products with dignity.

Awarded the EdStart Social Impact grant of $1500 last year, Ms Pfitzner has used the funds to install a dignity vending machine — that dispense free period products — in the Berri Regional Secondary girls’ bathroom.

Delivering the fully stocked dispensers for students from 2025 and beyond, Nikki said her grant application was inspired by a passion to “help end period poverty”.

“(As of 2024), 64 per cent of Australian (menstruators) find it difficult to buy period products due to cost,” she said.
“So, when I saw a (period product dispenser) in Adelaide, it just seemed liked such a good idea and I applied for the Social Impact grant because we had a lot of good projects happening around the school, but nothing really on this topic.
“There is still a lot of stigma around asking for period products, so this is a great way, given the cost of living, or even if someone has just forgotten a product, to access them.”

A LONG-time Barossa Valley winemaker showcased the ideas behind his modern wines to a group of locals last week.

The Ricca Terra Wine Room last Thursday hosted the first of its In-house Winemaker tastings, featuring Barossa Valley-based winemaker Andrew Quin, of Quin Wines.

Ricca Terra winemaker Ashley Ratcliff said the event provided an insight into the differing approaches of creating wine.

“It was very intimate, and there was a lot of interest in the wines, and the winemaking,” Mr Ratcliff said.

The Ricca Terra Wine Room will next host a tasting by Coonawarra-based winemaker Sue Bell, on Thursday, June 19.

Mr Ratcliff said the tasting events were structured to be casual and enjoyable for all locals with an interest in wine.

“You don’t need to be intimidated whatsoever because there’s a winemaker there,” he said.
“They are there just to explain different wine styles, and different wine-making from other regions.
“You should walk out not just having had a good night, but also gaining more information.

Retiring with a lasting legacy

CHRISTINE WEBSTER

THE Riverland community is bidding farewell to Waikerie Hotel Motel manager Andrew Tyson, who will officially retire on June 30.

He has been at the helm for almost 14 years as a respected leader, and leaves a lasting legacy of rebuilding and transforming the venue into one of the region’s top hotels after a devastating fire in 2011.

Mr Tyson, who had spent just 14 days in the role and had yet to find permanent accommodation, was staying at the hotel when an electrical fault caused the fire at 4.30am on Father’s Day, September 4, 2011.

In his previous posting in Far North Queensland, he had been accustomed to preparing his staff and guests for cyclones, which was completely different to a sudden fire.

“With a cyclone you have warning, and you are able to put safety nets in, but with a fire it is instantaneous,” he said.

“You are just woken up to the fire alarm and you have to move straight onto it and gather everyone together at emergency evacuation points.”

The fire caused $1.5m damage and destroyed the original Waikerie Hotel building where the café, bar and bottle shop were.

Mr Tyson said it cost $3m to rebuild the damaged section of the hotel and refurbish it.

“First we had to get what we had left of the hotel up and operating,” he said.

Mr Tyson said they were able to get the bottle shop operating again about three weeks after the fire, and the rest of the hotel took about three months to open.

He said the following three years after the fire were spent working with the banks, architects, and the hotel’s insurance agency to rebuild and refurbish the premises.

The Waikerie Hotel Motel was able to obtain grants for the project.

This included $1.35m funding from the Federal Government’s tourism industry regional fund, the SA Government’s Riverland Sustainable Future’s Fund, and the South Australian Tourism Commission.

Mr Tyson said this enabled the hotel to be built onto one level, instead of being split level, and for the accommodation to be refurbished.

“We think it has become one of the best hotels in the Riverland and it has gone from strength to strength,” he said.

“From being a struggling hotel back in 2011, it is now a hotel that is financially successful today.”

“You could say it is like a phoenix rising from the ashes.”

Mr Tyson said he was happy that the Waikerie Hotel Motel was in a position to support the local community through sponsorships and in-kind donations.

“The hotel has to make a profit to return to the community,” he said.

“We have been able to do that year after year, and it is not just the sporting clubs, but smaller clubs such as the Waikerie Horse and Pony Club and those involved in the arts or literature.”

Mr Tyson is in the process of handing over the reins to Brenton Franks, who will take over as the new manager of the Waikerie Hotel Motel.

Mr Franks has extensive experience in the hospitality industry and has spent many years in the Riverland.

Mr Tyson will continue to live in Waikerie following his retirement.

He is looking forward to travelling, spending more time with his family and brother in Adelaide, and fishing in his boat on the Murray River.

Board praises outgoing hotel manager

Long-serving chairman of the Waikerie Hotel Motel board Graeme Thompson was among the board members behind Andrew Tyson’s appointment as manager in August 2011.

“I have had the privilege of working with one of the best managers I have ever been involved with in my working life,” Mr Thompson said.

“He has worked incredibly well with an experienced board of directors,” he said.

Mr Thompson said Mr Tyson had been a dedicated and inspiring leader working with his team and the board to develop the Waikerie Hotel Motel into “the flourishing business it was today”.

He said farewelling Mr Tyson was a sad moment.

“But the reality is that he is very keen to retire and go fishing,” Mr Thompson said.

“The board wishes him well in his retirement, as I am sure those who have been involved with him in the community, wishes him well.”

Renmark welcomes a world champ

MADISON EASTMOND

A WORLD rowing champion has made his way to the Riverland this month, sharing training and experience with local clubs and aspiring athletes. Italian lightweight world rowing champion Patrick Rocek arrived in Loxton earlier this month, with the athlete using his time in the region to train with the Renmark Rowing Club, share his experiences with aspiring rowers, and enjoy his own program on the Murray River. “I was (previously) in Melbourne as a coach, but wanted to have a new experience,” Mr Rocek told The Murray Pioneer. “I just wanted to see something different — Renmark, the countryside, and all of the Riverland is so different. “It’s been great.” Mr Rocek said one of the highlights of his Riverland trip was spending time with the St Francis of Assisi College rowing team, at a social night held by Renmark Rowing Club. “I was speaking with them, and I told them they have everything (in the Riverland) to make them champions,” he said. “They have good boats, and proper water (space) which they can put a lot of effort into. “They just have to believe in it.” Renmark Rowing Club president Tony Townsend said

Mr Roceks — who has spent the past four years training for Olympics, a winner of the 2022 world championships, and most recently a 2024 world cup event — has been “an amazing person for local rowers to learn from”. “It’s been great to be able to have someone like Patrick roll up and impart his knowledge and skill set on the younger generation, and our local rowers,” he said. “It has given our young people an opportunity to aspire to be someone like Patrick. “We don’t often get opportunities like this, so it’s just great to see what is possible to achieve, especially as we are on the right track with a great coach, equipment, and dedication in our rowers. “It takes time, but for us, we feel like we will definitely begin to see the rewards of our efforts over the next couple of years.” Heading back home last week to compete in the Italian championships, Mr Rocek, with his Murray River training, is once again hoping to score gold. “I just want to thank everyone at the Renmark Rowing Club, the Berri Rowing Club, and the family of (Riverland Olympian Rower) Alex Hill who I have been staying with,” he said. “I was welcomed so well by everyone, so it has been absolutely great.”

Ovation to our local volunteers

SEBASTIAN CALDERON

A RIVERLAND council last week formally acknowledged the significant role volunteers play in supporting and strengthening the local community. Renmark Paringa Council held a ceremony at Hotel Renmark to recognise the district’s volunteers, as part of National Volunteer Week. Renmark Paringa Mayor Peter Hunter said everyone in the community has made it through with help from others. “That resonates to me in terms of our families and where volunteering might begin,” Mr Hunter said. “All of us have probably had children that sometimes might have pickled us, but obviously moments where they supported each other too. “And whether it be at the school or whether it be as they go into employment or into the community, those small acts of kindness, I think, are the beginning of people and their willingness to volunteer. “The question to all of you, what was the trigger? What if you look back through your history... and your life to know that encouraged you to volunteer, or why do you volunteer? Was it a particular person? Was it a particular issue?”

Mammoth Markets a big hit

Monash Primary and Preschool held its annual Mammoth Market last Sunday, with the annual school tradition “bigger and better than ever”.

Monash Primary and Preschool principal Vanessa Wainwright said the 2025 Mammoth Market was “a great event that involved the whole community”.

“We had so many members of our school community, and the wider Riverland come along,” she said.

“So many local businesses and groups also took part in the market — it was just brought everyone together.”

From 9am to 2pm, market goers enjoyed “fantastic weather”, along with 50 stall holders, a variety of Riverland food trucks, a raffle, a range of free activities and displays from local clubs, and performances from the Loxton High Rock Band, Rosie Clark Dance School, Riverland Gymnastics, Fit to Fly, and the Riverland Brass Community Concert Band, in collaboration with the West Torrens Concert Band.

Monash Primary School and Preschool students also performed a day-long set of singing, ukulele, and dancing for the whole Riverland to enjoy.

“It was so lovely to have such big and great audiences for the kids to perform to,” Ms Wainwright said.

“There were a lot of proud parents.”

The event has been held annually for the past two decades.

Council focus on enhancing ‘community liveability’

MID Murray Council’s draft business plan and budget for the next financial year will focus on enhancing community liveability, prosperity, and sustainability.

The document has been released for public comment, along with the council’s draft long-term financial plan for 2025-26 to 2034-35.

Mid Murray Mayor Simone Bailey said council had worked hard to find a balance between continuing to deliver essential services and projects, while also keeping rates as low as possible during challenging economic times.

“This year’s draft budget is about building on the strong financial foundations we’ve created over the past couple of years, while ensuring that we’re supporting our community and delivering the services, programs, infrastructure and opportunities they need most, she said.

“In planning for the year ahead, we’ve had to balance our community’s needs with the financial impacts we’re still experiencing from the Murray River flood.

“We’re mindful, too, that many in our community are currently struggling with cost-of-living pressures, compounded by the current drought conditions.

“This has also been front of mind in our planning, as has our need to be as efficient and prudent as possible to avoid shifting any financial burden onto future ratepayers.”

The council is proposing an average rate increase in the draft budget of 4.94 per cent, consisting of a forecast CPI increase of 3.2 per cent and a sustainability increase of 1.74 per cent.

It is also expecting a further 0.5 per cent increase in rate revenue from new development.

The council said this equated to an average increase of $70 for the year for existing property owners – noting that the exact figure was dependent on individual property valuations.

It said, overall, the proposed rate increase was lower than expected in previous long-term planning for 2025-26, as a result of council’s significant cost reduction effort, sustainability measures, and additional recovery of costs through service charges.

In its proposal, council said “pleasingly, there had also been a 3.3 per cent reduction in the residential rate in the dollar (RID) (0.3815 cents in the dollar compared to 0.3944 cents in the dollar in 2024/25), which was a 3.3 per cent reduction”.

Primary production land in the Mid Murray district will continue to receive a 10 per cent reduction (0.3434 cents in the dollar compared to 0.355 cents in the dollar in 2024/25) compared to the base RID.

“Council also has a hardship policy in place for ratepayers experiencing financial difficulties, and State Seniors Card holders may be eligible to have their rates postponed on a long-term basis,” Ms Bailey said.

“Council has made more than $1.12m in savings since November 2024 through Stage 1 of our sustainability measures,” she said.

“These include $546,000 in one-off savings, $462,000 in recurring savings and $115,000 in efficiency gains. This has helped us keep the proposed general rate increase lower than initially expected.”

Mid Murray Council is proposing an adjusted budget deficit of $402,000, including capital expenditure of $11.645m.

It plans to spend most of that ($10.1m) on renewing existing assets, including $924,542 in upgrades to the Mannum Oval Complex, supported by a Federal Government Play Our Way program grant.

A further $1m is being proposed to be spent on renewing existing sealed roads, and more than $1.8m on maintaining unsealed roads.

The council’s forecast borrowings for 2025/26 are $8.9m, down substantially from the previously forecast figure of $13.6m.

It said looking ahead, council’s net financial liabilities ratio was expected to reduce in the longer term from 30 per cent ($9.3m loans) in 2026/27, to 2 per cent ($47,000) in 2034/35.

Ms Bailey said council would continue its advocacy efforts for equity in the Federal Government’s Financial Assistance Grants, so that councils with smaller populations and higher needs for assistance were not disadvantaged by the current funding model.

Consultation on both the draft annual business plan and budget and draft long term financial plan 2025-26 to 2034-35 opened on May 21, and closes at 12pm, on June 11.

Mid Murray Community Grants Program open for applications

MID Murray community groups and organisations are encouraged to apply for grants to help deliver local recreational, cultural, community and environmental activities.

The annual Mid Murray Council's Community Grants Program offers three main categories for grants to assist with community events and projects.

An additional grant category is offered year-round to help locals with the costs of attending sport, music, art or other cultural events.

Past grants have supported community groups in a wide range of activities such as enhancing sporting, recreation and community facilities, running events of all sizes, replacing equipment, and creating programs and initiatives that connect locals.

Mid Murray Mayor Simone Bailey said the Community Grants Program supports local groups and projects that enrich the community through increased participation, connection, and diverse opportunities.

"Through the Community Grants Program, council can provide additional support to our community groups, sporting clubs and other organisations to help them deliver opportunities for participation, recreation, social inclusion and connection, tourism and events, and so much more,” Ms Bailey said.

“Each year these grants assist with projects that provide recreational, cultural, community and environmental benefits across the Mid Murray.

“The program is also a way for Council to acknowledge and support the incredible work of our community groups and individuals who are proactive in their efforts to provide our residents with a broad range of activities to enjoy.”

The three categories open for grant applications are:

- ❑ Small Community Grant – up to $1000 to support community-based organisations in providing a service to the community that encourages participation and social inclusion.
- ❑ Community Event Grant – up to $2000 to support local community groups and clubs that make a positive contribution to the community and encourage tourism and social inclusion within the Mid Murray district.

❑ Community Project Grant – up to $5000 to support local community groups and clubs that make a positive contribution to the community through projects that develop and enhance their group's facilities.

Council also runs a year-round Individual Sport and Cultural Grant program. This provides grants to assist locals to attend sport, music, art or other cultural activities at a State, National and International level. This grant has a sliding scale of contribution amounts including $100 for events in SA, $200 for interstate events and $400 for international activities.

Applications for the Community Grants Program close on June 15, 2025. For more information, including how to apply, visit the website (www.mid-murray.sa.gov.au/community/grants).

Monash celebrate Reconciliation Week

MADISON EASTMOND

A RIVERLAND school has begun its celebrations and commemorations for National Reconciliation Week.

Hosting a special assembly last Monday, led by the school's Murrundi Mob, Monash Primary and Preschool students came together to share what reconciliation means, take part in a smoking ceremony, and then a whole-school community walk to promote and celebrate National Reconciliation Week.

Held from May 27 to June 3 each year, Reconciliation Week is a time for Australians to learn about shared histories, cultures, achievements, and explore ways to achieving reconciliation, with the dates commemorating significant milestones for First Nations peoples, including:

- ❑ National Sorry Day, May 26: Remembering and acknowledging the Stolen Generations.
- ❑ 1967 Referendum anniversary, May 27: When Australia voted for a change in the Constitution, allowing Indigenous people to be included in the census.
- ❑ Mabo Day, June 3: Anniversary of the 1992 decision to overturn Terra Nullius, led by the work and activism of Eddie Koiki Mabo.

With this year's theme of 'Bridging Now to Next' — calling on Australians to step forward together, to look ahead, and continue to push forward — Monash Primary and Preschool Aboriginal education officer Teagan Wigg said this week's event was only one of many celebrations of culture at the school.

“At Monash Primary School we have our Murrundi Mob, where (First Nation) students come together, connect, and learn about Aboriginal culture,” she said.

“It's been great leading up to Reconciliation Week — the kids have been so excited and did a fantastic job making the banner to walk with, and speaking at the assembly.

“For me, as an Aboriginal woman from Tasmania with the Palawa people, it's been fantastic being able to show and share our culture, and I feel there is only room to have kids learn even more.

“Times like today show how wonderful it is.”

Monash Primary and Preschool students came together to share what reconciliation means, take part in a smoking ceremony, and then a whole-school community walk to promote and celebrate National Reconciliation Week.

CHARITY MATCH

LOXTON NORTH VS RENMARK - SATURDAY, MAY 31

LACHLAN DAND

WHILE winning will be the key objective on Saturday afternoon at Renmark Oval when the Rovers welcome Loxton North, both clubs will be playing for special causes.

Loxton North will switch its usual navy and white for a red-and-white design, in support of Red Nose Australia.

Meanwhile, the Rovers will change their blue-and-white stripes guernsey design, adding a red strip, in support of the Heart Foundation, in what will be a special day for both clubs.

100% OF THE PROFITS FROM THIS FEATURE WILL BE DONATED TO RED NOSE AUSTRALIA & THE HEART FOUNDATION ON BEHALF OF LOXTON NORTH FOOTBALL CLUB, RENMARK FOOTBALL CLUB & THE MURRAY PIONEER.

The Panthers' connection to Red Nose Australia was brought about following the stillbirth of Fletch Arnold Pannell in 2023, at the Loxton Hospital Complex. Following the birth of Fletch, parents Mike Pannell and Sarah Arnold were referred to Red Nose Australia, and the Hospital to Home program. It was there where the pair received bereavement support, as well as professional counselling. Ms Arnold said the partnership with the Loxton North Football Club was brought about from an initiative of the Panthers. "North do a charity game every year and usually choose a cause close to one of their members," she said.

"This year they approached us and asked if we were keen to be involved. We were honoured to have been chosen, and it went from there. "We just want to give back to Red Nose after what they've done for us, and by raising money we can hopefully ensure other bereaved families can get the same support we did."

“ We just want to give back to Red Nose after what they’ve done for us. ”
Sarah Arnold

As a side project, Ms Arnold and Mr Pannell have sold more than 270 t-shirts of a special design, with proceeds going to the Loxton Hospital Complex. "Last year, some friends started a little side project to go with the day, and that was to raise a bit of money for the family that the day was supporting," she said.

Over the past six matches, which started in 2018, the club has generated and donated in excess of $45,000 to charity.

Hayden Brown
Renmark Rovers President

“Obviously this year the day was for us, and they wanted to raise money for us through some sort of merchandise.

“Mike and I refused the kind offer and instead have chosen to donate the funds to the Loxton Hospital, as a thank you from us.

“We got our friend Sarah, who owns a clothing shop in Robe, to draw up a design with a neutral theme.

“We wanted it to appeal to everyone, hoping to get more orders, and in turn raise more funds for the hospital.

“The money is still being counted, as we’re still selling a few other bits of merch, but we’ve hit over $3000 for the hospital already.”

Ms Arnold said making sure people are aware of Red Nose Australia’s support is imperative, promoting the service that the charity offers.

Red Nose is Australia’s leading authority on safe sleep, and safer pregnancy advice, as well as offering bereavement support for anyone affected by pregnancy loss, stillbirth, or the death of a child.

The design of the Panthers’ guernsey was chosen to promote the services offered by Red Nose Australia, outlined by three circles on the back showing ‘safe sleeping’, ‘grief and loss support’, and ‘safer pregnancy’.

“We were fortunate enough to get that support and counselling, and we think it’s important for other families going through something similar in the future to have that same opportunity,” Ms Arnold said.

“We also feel like people need to know more about Red Nose’s services, as they do offer a lot more than what the general knowledge of them is.

“So, we’re trying to promote that a bit more, and share that they are much more than just Red Nose Day and wearing a silly red nose.”

Following the trip to Renmark Oval, Loxton North will complete the day with a Charity Auction Night at the Loxton North Sports Club, with a two-course meal from Salt and Pepper Catering on the menu.

“The auction night is always a good night, and it raises a decent amount for both the club and the charity,” Ms Arnold said.

“Mike and I have managed to gather a few extra items this year to add to the list, and I’ve heard we’ve sold quite a few tickets already, so it’s looking to be another successful night hopefully.

“We don’t have a total goal in mind, it’s just about raising whatever we can and knowing it will help make a difference.”

Renmark will also hold a Goods and Services Auction in support of The Heart Foundation, raising money for the charity.

Every donation will go under the hammer, raising money for life-saving heart research and support.

Renmark’s connection to The Heart Foundation came after long serving club patron Mark Ceracchi, and past player, and long-time sponsor Sam Pearce both had recent heart conditions that required specialised emergency treatments.

Renmark Rovers president Hayden Brown said the club thoroughly recognises the importance of Charity Day, in what is a meaningful weekend for the club.

“The club has a long and proud history of supporting various charities, and recognise that funds are much needed, and if we can generate some extra money through local footy and our club then that is fantastic,” he said.

“Over the past six matches, which started in 2018, the club has generated and donated in excess of $45,000 to charity, so after this weekend it would be great to break the $50,000 mark.

“The RRFC would also like to acknowledge and support the Loxton North Football Club with their chosen charity, Red Nose Australia, and the importance of this charity to their football club.”

Renmark and Loxton North will do battle in the A grade at Renmark Oval from 2.40pm, on Saturday afternoon.

New CEO announced for Vinarchy

INCREASING global business opportunities to benefit the Riverland wine sector is a focus for a new senior industry figure.

Vinarchy – operators of the Berri Estates winery – earlier this month announced Danny Celoni had been appointed as the company’s chief executive officer.

Mr Celoni said “driving core category growth” in the wine sector was a goal.

“I am both honoured and excited to embrace this remarkable opportunity,” Mr Celoni said.

“I believe Vinarchy is well positioned to play a leading role in the future growth and expansion of the wine category.

“Our rich heritage, combined with our established brands, capabilities, and unwavering commitment to customer and consumer centricity provides an exceptional platform for... differentiated innovation and value creation.

“I look forward to collaborating with the board, our management team and our outstanding workforce of dedicated individuals, as well as building strong collaboration with our customers and partners worldwide, as we shape our exciting evolution and next phase of growth together.”

Executive chairman Ben Clarke – who will become non-executive chairman with Mr Celoni commencing as CEO in August 2025 – said Mr Celoni’s previous experience, including as CEO of Carlton and United Breweries, would be an asset.

“On behalf of the board I am delighted to welcome Danny to Vinarchy,” Mr Clarke said.

“He is a leader who champions a growth mindset and has a strong track record in driving transformational growth and category leadership through exceptional customer relationships.

“Danny is the right person to lead our business as we capture the opportunities as a global wine leader.”

Vinarchy, which operates the Berri Estates winery, recently announced the appointment of Danny Celoni as CEO.

Social housing considered in all planning decisions

EXPANDING social and affordable housing across South Australia, including in the Riverland, is the goal of new state policy changes.

The State Government last week announced SA Housing Trust would be formally consulted on all new planning code amendments.

Minister for Housing Nick Champion said the change would ensure social housing opportunities are considered on a case-by-case basis where possible.

“We are leaving no stone unturned in the search for more social and affordable housing opportunities,” Mr Champion said.

“We are making sure SA Housing Trust has a seat at the table for every code amendment and keeping social housing as part of every conversation that we have around urban development and renewal across the state.

“Public housing is vital to the social fabric of our community – social and affordable housing is and will remain a key part of every major development in South Australia.”

New code amendments and government housing developments currently require consultation with several agencies to ensure the changes are thoroughly assessed for their impact on essential services, infrastructure, environmental standards, and community needs.

SA Greens leader Robert Simms – who advocated for the change – said “fairness in housing opportunities” was necessary to overcoming challenges regarding availability and affordability.

“The Greens have been advocating for the Government to boost the supply of social and affordable housing for some time,” Mr Simms said.

“This new code amendment process will ensure that this is front of mind for new developments.”

FISHER CUP

Saturday May 31
@ Berri

Who will reel in the Fisher Cup?

LACHLAN DAND

ARGUABLY the biggest rivalry in the Riverland Football League will resume for the 23rd time this weekend in Berri.

The first edition of the Fisher Cup was in 2002, making it the oldest cup clash in the competition, and Berri narrowly leads the head-to-head battle at 12-10, largely thanks to taking out the first four editions.

Despite a recent period of success in the modern era for Barmera-Monash, the Demons currently hold the cup after a shock win at the Lakeside Oval last July.

Added to that, Berri has won three of the last four contests, with the Roos' only win in that time coming in 2023, the year they tasted the ultimate glory.

Looking back at round one, it was Barmera-Monash under the lights that secured a 60-point win on home turf in a comprehensive display.

A second quarter run of five goals to one had the Roos in control by 38 points at the major break, and it proved a bridge too far for the visiting side.

Despite getting some momentum in the third quarter, Barmera-Monash again piled on five goals to one in the final term, helping notch up the big win.

Berri took until round 12 last season to win its first game of the year, and although it secured back-to-back wins, those were the only ones for the campaign.

However, things are turning at Demonland under new coach Henry Labastida, and confidence is sky-high following a two-goal win in Waikerie, last Saturday.

It was Berri's first win at Waikerie in a decade, and all of a sudden, it has the Demons in finals calculations, sitting in third spot with five weeks in the books.

One of the key reasons behind Berri's sudden rise up the ladder is key forward Darcy Minchella, who is providing a presence inside attacking 50, and also converting his opportunities, with the likes of ex-SANFL player Tyson Lindsay also giving opposition coaches headaches.

But perhaps Berri's biggest asset is the way its back six is working, utilising experience to stop opposition scores.

The Demons recently held Loxton North to just two majors, and last weekend, the Pies managed just six goals.

Brad Rosenzweig, Peter Safralidis, and Adam Langford are all combining well with the youth of Archie Holtham to drive Berri into attack, and limit opposition scores.

Defence has become a formula of success in the RFL across recent seasons, highlighted by Renmark and Barmera-Monash's recent premiership glory.

It's clear Labastida has a plan for his side to spring out of the RFL's doldrums, but it faces a significant test this weekend.

On the other side of the highway, the visiting Barmera-Monash is on a rare two-game losing streak, having suffered defeats against both Loxton and Loxton North.

Missing spearhead Jono Beech, the Roos have been forced to find alternative avenues to goal, and as a result, scoring has dried up.

Beech's absence has given the likes of Mitch Wellington opportunities to flourish under a new system, and young forward Lucas Warnett has been one of the biggest surprises of the year so far.

Barmera-Monash have turned to youth to guide it through the early portion of the 2025 campaign, and the likes of Jameson Whitbourne, Rory Moore, and Warnett have all been shining lights.

Despite the two-game slide, the Roos are hardly in crisis mode, still sitting second on the ladder, and hoping to time their run into the finals.

Berri's Dion Brauer won the medal in last year's contest, but he has since departed the club, so a new player will etch their name into the history of the battle this Saturday.

The Demons will enter in better form, and will be confident on home deck, but the juggernaut of Barmera-Monash will be hoping to get the trophy back to the Lakeside.

The first bounce will occur at 2.40pm, and the game will be commented live by 5RM radio for those looking to tune in remotely.

Riverlanders to have say on MRLB plan

Local looking for Low Bank School history

A PROVISIONAL school, called Holder School, was opened in a building next to the Lowbank Lutheran Church at the beginning of the 1913 school year. The teacher was William R Patrick. Soon after opening, the name of the school was changed to Low Bank School.

The building, constructed of galvanised iron and lined with boards, was owned by Gottlieb Schmidt, and was leased by the education department.

In 1918, a new stone building was completed. It was a one-classroom school, with one teacher responsible for children from grades 1 to 7.

The school ground was very bare and windswept, and a brush shed provided the only shade for students to have their lunch, and shelter on hot or wet days.

The school had a little lean-to porch on the northern side. There was a garden that had been fenced in, and some flowers and plants from seeds the children brought along were grown. The garden mainly only grew in winter.

There was a tin whistle band and they always whistled themselves into school early in the morning, and again at dinnertime.

The school provided an education for students of the surrounding farming district. Children travelled up to 7 miles to attend, with some crossing the river.

For most of the children who attended, schooling was not compulsory due to the distance they lived from the school.

However, they still attended on a regular and punctual basis in order to receive an education.

Numbers fluctuated, beginning at 14 students in 1913, and reaching up to 27 students.

In 1941 student numbers dropped to five, and in April 1942 the school was closed due to the low number of students.

The school building was later given to the Lowbank Lutheran Church, who enlarged it and use it as their church hall.

The school had 21 teachers over its short life, and provided an education for at least 119 students.

Some students received their full education at the school, while some were only there for a short time.

Unfortunately, the whereabouts of the school admission book is unknown, so the exact number of students who attended the school is unconfirmed.

A list of students known to have attended the school has been compiled, but is not complete.

A history of the school is being compiled. If you have any information or stories about anyone who attended the school as a student, or anyone who taught at the school, or have any photos relating to the school, please contact Cheryl on 0490 048 118, or email (paschke5330@gmail.com).

A national tragedy we can no longer ignore

One woman is killed by her current or former partner every 11 days. It is a national tragedy.

It's important to note however, that not every case of domestic violence is physical.

Domestic and family violence is any act used to exert power and control. It includes sexual, psychological, physical, spiritual, financial and social abuse against another person.

Every Australian has a right to live free from harm, violence, abuse, neglect or exploitation.

Everyone should be respected in their homes, their workplaces, their community, at school and online. It's incredibly upsetting that in 2025, women and children are still enduring or being exposed to violence and trauma at the hands of those close to them.

In fact, reported incidents of domestic and family violence continue to rise in Australia.

Recorded sexual assaults reached a three-decade high in 2024 and 45,000 children remain in out-of-home care. Women are calling helplines every four minutes, with police responding to a domestic violence incident every six minutes.

Everyone has a role to play in calling out family and domestic violence, remembering that it's not always physical and other signs may be present. The cornerstone of domestic violence is power and control. While it's harder to spot, coercive control and emotional abuse can often be the most difficult aspect of abuse to escape and recover from.

Raising awareness in community of all types of abuse is important to enable more people to assist in recognising, advocating and addressing the factors that lead to the increasing incidence of domestic violence.

DOMESTIC Violence Awareness Month is observed in Australia each May to highlight the pervasive issue of domestic and family violence (DFV) and to promote prevention, support survivors, and to honour victims.

It is a time for communities, governments, and organisations across the country to come together to raise awareness, advocate for change, and encourage conversations that can help reduce stigma and drive social and cultural transformation.

Domestic violence is a significant problem in Australia, affecting people regardless of age, gender, background, or location. However, women and children are disproportionately impacted.

According to recent statistics, one-in-six Australian women has experienced physical or sexual violence from a current or former partner, while one in four has experienced emotional abuse. The impacts of domestic violence are profound and far-reaching, contributing to homelessness, poor mental health, substance abuse, and intergenera-

During Domestic Violence Awareness Month, numerous events and campaigns are held nationwide. These include candlelight vigils, community walks, educational seminars, art exhibitions, and social media campaigns, all designed to inform, support, and mobilise.

A key feature of the month is the National Day of Remembrance, which honours those who have lost their lives to domestic violence. This solemn day serves as a powerful reminder of the human cost of abuse and the urgent need for prevention and early intervention.

In addition to awareness-raising, the month is also a time to spotlight the services and organisations working tirelessly to support victims and hold perpetrators accountable.

Services such as 1800RESPECT, Women's Legal Services, and local shelters play an essential role in crisis response and long-term recovery. The month often sees a push for increased government funding, improved legal protections, and better training for professionals who may encounter DFV in their work.

Importantly, Domestic Violence Awareness Month encourages everyone to take part in creating a safer society. This may involve checking in on loved ones, educating oneself about the signs of abuse, or advocating for respectful relationships in schools and workplaces.

Ending domestic violence is a collective responsibility. While one month of awareness cannot solve the problem alone, it serves as a vital platform for change, solidarity, and support.

Through continued education, advocacy, and action, Australia moves closer to a future where everyone can live free from fear and violence.

Further information can be found by visiting the website (www.domesticviolence.com.au/).

It's time to act

We see it on the news far too often—another case of domestic violence, another life cut short, another family devastated. It's no longer happening “somewhere else.” It's happening in our suburbs, our towns, our communities. Chances are, someone you know has been affected.

In October 2022, all levels of government in Australia came together to launch the National Plan to End Violence against Women and Children 2022–2032. It was a necessary step. A roadmap to drive real change over the next decade.

While people of all genders can both perpetrate and experience family, domestic and sexual violence, most perpetrators are men and victims are women and children. The Australian Institute of Criminology (AIC) report that in 2023–24, 43 women were victims of intimate partner homicide, compared with 34 in 2022–23. In this year already, 14 women have been killed as a result of domestic violence.

It seems we are not just falling short. We are failing.

These are not just statistics. Behind every number is a life that mattered, and a family left shattered. And these numbers also don't reflect those who suffer in silence; people living with emotional, psychological, financial, or sexual abuse, too afraid or unable to speak out. They don't count those who have taken their own lives as a result of prolonged harm behind closed doors.

We need to confront this issue not just with words, but with action. That means stronger funding for support services, better protection for victims, and earlier intervention before abuse escalates. It also means challenging the cultural attitudes that allows this violence to persist in silence.

Every one of us has a role to play. Whether it's calling out sexist jokes in a group chat, checking in on a friend, standing with survivors, or supporting reforms that hold perpetrators accountable, this isn't about pointing fingers. It's about everyone taking responsibility.

This is a moment for all of us—governments, communities, individuals—to say: enough is enough.

Time to check your smoke alarm

RIVERLANDERS have been urged to participate in the upcoming Smoke Alarm Action Day by checking their home smoke alarms ahead of winter.

Smoke Alarm Action Day, being held on Saturday, June 1, is an annual initiative aimed at raising awareness about the critical role of smoke alarms in home fire safety.

In South Australia, smoke alarms play a crucial role in enhancing home fire safety. Recent statistics show:

- Approximately one-in-five South Australian homes are not compliant with smoke alarm regulations, either lacking them entirely or having non-functional units.

- In 2023, nearly half of all significant house fires in South Australia occurred in homes with disabled, flat, or absent smoke alarms.

The Metropolitan Fire Service (MFS) emphasizes the importance of having interconnected smoke alarms. In the event of a fire, interconnected alarms activate simultaneously, providing early warning to all occupants, regardless of their location within the home. This interconnected system is particularly crucial in larger homes or multi-level dwellings.

To support residents, the MFS provides resources such as the “Smoke Alarm Quick Guide,” which offers information on the types of smoke alarms suitable for different home layouts and guidance on their proper installation.

By participating in Smoke Alarm Action Day, South Australians are reminded of the simple yet vital step of checking their smoke alarms. This proactive measure can significantly enhance home safety and potentially save lives in the event of a fire.

Laurie keeps the Royal Doctor flying

A RIVERLAND charity has received $3500 this month thanks to a local fundraising effort.

Royal Flying Doctor Service (RFDS) Riverland Support Group treasurer Laurie Guppy raised $3500 earlier this month, as part of a haircutting fundraising event.

Cutting his hair and beard he had been growing for 12 months, Mr Guppy organised the event, at the Monash Club, at the beginning of May, which also included sponsors, raffles, and a donation from the club.

Riverlanders asked to report dying trees

FLINDERS University is encouraging Riverlanders to assist with providing data on local tree dieback to assess the recent environmental strain on native vegetation and streetscapes.

With South Australia experiencing record-breaking high temperatures and low rainfall in the past year, Flinders is encouraging the general public to help in their assessment of the progressive decline in tree health, and mortality.

Residents can now lodge a photo and details on a survey page to help the environment and prepare for further climate extremes in future.

“With climate change upon us, and local water supplies running low, we will need to closely monitor current conditions and be better prepared in the future to protect our trees,” Flinders University environmental science and hydrology Professor Huade Guan said.

“Knowledge of which trees, where, and why, do not cope with droughts would be useful for informed urban forest management to keep our city greener and cooler.

“The drought over the past summer, with only one-third of average rainfall, provided an opportunity to obtain such knowledge.”

To contribute to the survey, visit the website (qualtrics.flinders.edu.au/jfe/form/SV_eVBIFh0N4Vmhj4a).

Caring a ‘rewarding and humbling’ experience for SA volunteer Bili

VOLUNTEER Biljana ‘Bili’ Vitor says premature baby *Lucy just melted into her arms when she began nursing the newborn being cared for through the child protection and family support system.

Bili is among about 180 volunteers whose duties include assisting children by driving them to school, co-ordinating visits with family members, supporting them with homework and attendance at community events.

Along with two colleagues, Bili visited Lucy’s crib for more than two months, providing the baby with love, care and cuddles.

Lucy was in need of some special attention, and Bili had the joy of visiting up to four times a week, spending a couple of hours cuddling the infant and reading stories.

Bili’s usual role with the department’s volunteer team involves driving children to school and appointments, as well as helping with visits with family members.

The 37-year-old governance, risk and compliance management worker is currently studying a Diploma of Counselling, and she has a particular interest in trauma-informed care in early childhood and child protection reform.

Baby Lucy now lives in kinship care with family members, and Bili says she feels lucky to have played such an important role in the first part of her life.

She encourages anyone interested in volunteering, to take the next step. Bili says volunteering is an incredibly rewarding experience, providing support not only to the children but also to the frontline workers who tirelessly work around the clock to support and protect the most vulnerable in our communities.

Ms Vitor said “knowing I was able to assist this young child in some way at the most vulnerable time of her life was one of the most rewarding and humbling experiences I’ve had”.

“It was just an instinct to pick her up and cuddle her and care for her. It felt as if she just melted into my arms – she was so calm and comfortable and would just snuggle and sleep,” she said.

“When I would walk toward her crib and call her name, she almost seemed to recognise my voice and she would make little noises – it was really cute.

“In terms of the future direction of the volunteer program, I do hope to see an increase in sports and recreational activities for the children, supported by our efforts. We are currently discussing how we can further assist the children and their families in this space.”

Minister for Child Protection Katrine Hildyard said “volunteers like Bili provide an extra layer of love and care to children who most need support, and they are an essential part of our child protection and family support system”.

“Volunteer Week gives us an opportunity to acknowledge and thank the really generous people who give their time and energy to help others,” Ms Hildyard said.

“It’s an opportunity to reflect on volunteering and the vital role it plays in our community and to encourage those who have been thinking about lending a hand to find out more.

“Supporting children and young people to be safe, loved and nurtured is up to everyone. The almost 200 volunteers helping children in care offer extraordinary support and compassion.

“I thank them on behalf of the Government and all South Australians for stepping up and playing their part. Their efforts are deeply appreciated.

“For anybody considering volunteering to support children and young people who’ve gone through some pretty difficult circumstances, please reach out – it may be one of the most rewarding things you ever do and it will absolutely make a difference.”

For more info on volunteering with Department for Child Protection, visit the website (childprotection.sa.gov.au/volunteers).

Funding open for our community sheds

COMMUNITY sheds across the Riverland are invited to apply for up to $30,000 in funding to support the growth, connection and sustainability of local facilities, through the latest round of the Grants SA Community Sheds program.

Designed to strengthen grassroots community organisations, the funding helps sheds create and enhance inclusive spaces where people can connect, share skills, and find purpose to support wellbeing and reduce social isolation.

The grants can be used for a broad range of projects including minor infrastructure upgrades, new tools and equipment, safety measures, sustainability projects, communal kitchen and garden resources, and volunteer or mentoring programs.

“This funding helps ensure sheds remain welcoming, inclusive, and safe spaces for all members of the community,” Minister for Human Services Nat Cook said.

“We’re investing in local solutions to combat loneliness, support mental health, and create stronger communities.

“Whether it’s through mentoring, volunteering, or just sharing a cuppa and a chat, sheds can change lives, and this program helps make that possible.”

This funding round prioritises support for sheds that foster inclusion and engagement among Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities, people from new and emerging culturally diverse communities, people with disability, those experiencing financial hardship, and individuals living in rural or remote areas.

Applications for the Grants SA Community Sheds 2025–26 round close at 3pm, on June 19.

To apply, visit the website (dhs.sa.gov.au/grantsSA), or contact the Grants SA team on 1300 650 985.

Helping Riverland travel safely

KIDSAFE SA is providing access to free child restraint fitting services for Riverland families next week.

In partnership with the charitable foundation Cops for Kids, Kidsafe SA will be hosting free child car restraint fittings and checks at the Berri Community Preschool on Wednesday June 4, from 1pm to 4:30pm, and Thursday June 5, from 9am to 1pm.

Each fitting day offers invaluable opportunities for families to receive hands-on demonstrations, personalised guidance, and safety education.

Kidsafe SA data consistently shows that 70 to 80 per cent of children are travelling while incorrectly restrained in vehicles. Children who are improperly restrained are up to seven-times more likely to be injured in the event of a crash.

During recent fitting days, Kidsafe SA observed 75 per cent of restraints had at least one issue with installation or use. Regional families often displayed less awareness of the risks of improper restraint use, and greater confidence in self-installation, with the most common issues including:

- ❑ Twisted harness straps or harnesses positioned too high above the child’s shoulders.
- ❑ Loose or incorrectly routed seatbelts or ISOFix attachments.
- ❑ Top tether straps incorrectly attached to cargo barriers or incorrect anchor points.

EXPLORE! exhibition open at the Chaffey

THE Renmark Chaffey Theatre will be hosting the official opening of a new exhibition next week.

EXPLORE! exhibition by Helen Stacey and Kathleen Cain, will have its official opening next week, on Tuesday June 3, from 4pm, at the Chaffey Theatre.

Including afternoon tea, Riverlanders will be able to enjoy a collection that reflects on the loss of land, lives, and wildlife on First Nation country, bringing together acrylic landscape paintings by Ms Stacey, and realist pastel and graphite studies by Ms Cain.

Free artist talks — lasting for 30 minutes — on Tuesday June 3, from 10:30 to 4pm, are also available for booking.

2025 Premier’s NAIDOC Awards open

NOMINATIONS are now open for this year’s Premier’s NAIDOC Awards, recognising Riverlanders who have made an extraordinary contribution to the lives of Aboriginal South Australians.

NAIDOC Week this year will be held from July 6 to 13, with the theme ‘The Next Generation: Strength, Vision & Legacy’.

Coinciding with NAIDOC Week, the Premier’s Awards are a celebration of the achievement of those Aboriginal South Australians who have made a real difference in communities around the state.

This year’s awards also include the Dr Alice Rigney Prize, which is open to Aboriginal students in years 10 to 12 who are enrolled in a public school or state-run education, and celebrates their commitment to education.

“It’s truly heartening to see the great work being done by Aboriginal people across our State, and this award is a great way to celebrate and acknowledge their work while encouraging others to follow in their footsteps,” Minister for Aboriginal Affairs Kyam Maher said.

“The Premier’s NAIDOC Award is a great honour and a terrific way of highlighting the tremendous, positive achievements of outstanding Aboriginal leaders each year during NAIDOC week, when all Australians can celebrate the history, culture and achievements of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people.”

Nominations for the Premier’s Award close on June 6.

SA's first Biodiversity Act introduced to State Parliament

IMPROVING protections for native Riverland animals and plants, and building resilience to the effects of climate change, are among targets of new major South Australian legislation.

The State Government earlier this month introduced the Biodiversity Act into Parliament.

Minister for Environment, and deputy premier, Susan Close said the legislation improves recognition for threatened species and provides opportunities for investment in restoring nature.

“We not only have to stop harming nature, but we also have to restore nature to create a stronger collective future for all South Australians,” Dr Close said.

“The new Biodiversity Act will establish the framework to deliver environmental wins by safeguarding threatened animals and plants, restoring valuable habitat and ecosystems, while supporting billions of dollars in economic activity.

“The act aims to better balance environmental protection and restoration with economic growth.”

The Biodiversity Act includes:

- ❑ A new general duty ensuring all South Australians play a role in protecting biodiversity.
- ❑ Stronger native plant laws providing clearer regulations to safeguard native vegetation.
- ❑ Tougher penalties to create stronger deterrence against environmental harm.
- ❑ Critical habitat protections – by introducing a new process to identify and safeguard habitats vital for the survival of threatened species.

❑ A new process for listing threatened species and threatened ecological communities, which aligns with other Australian jurisdictions and receives expert input from the scientific committee.

❑ A nationally consistent process to assess and recognise threatened native species and ecological communities.

Penalties for people that harm or traffic native animals or illegally clear native habitat will also be increased to a maximum $500,000 for businesses.

The new act would include a maximum $250,000 fine or five years’ jail for individuals convicted of illegally killing, catching, restraining, injuring, keeping or interfering with a protected animal.

Biodiversity Act ambassador Tim Jarvis said biodiversity loss and ecosystem collapse had been identified as the second-highest long-term risk facing the globe – after extreme weather events.

“Creating the state’s first Biodiversity Act is a wonderful initiative and an example of South Australia again taking leadership on a critical environmental issue,”

“The state’s focus on renewable energy shows that, by taking action, we’re not contributing to issues like climate change, but we also need to restore nature to look after us and physically remove excess carbon dioxide from the atmosphere.

“It’s about thinking differently and focusing on regeneration, rather than just sustainability. It’s also about showing that South Australia is a great place to do business if you are concerned about the environment – and businesses and our trading partners will regard that as a positive step.

VOLUNTEER APPRECIATION: Loxton North School celebrated the contributions of Heather Zimmermann, also known as Mrs Zimmy, as a generous volunteer for many years. Mrs Zimmy has been present at the school's Breakfast Club and Playgroup every Wednesday, always with a warm smile and a helping hand. She also has been a big contributor to the schools fundraising events alongside her legendary doughnuts, which are part of Loxton North's history. The school and all members would like to thank Mrs Zimmy for her ongoing commitment, kindness, and community spirit. Mrs Zimmy is pictured alongside Loxton North School student Zeplyn Morris. Murray Princess unable to reach Morgan

LOW water levels in the Murray River have meant that the PS Murray Princess has been unable to reach Morgan so far this month. Sealink Marine & Tourism, which operates the boat said its cruise from May 9 to May 16, was modified due to the low water levels.

“In place of upstream travel, guests have enjoyed a complimentary tour to Monarto Safari Park, as well as coach visits to Waikerie, Banrock Station, and Burk Salter Wines at Blanchetown,” a spokesperson for the company said.

“The Murray River is a dynamic water system that requires ongoing monitoring by our crew,” she said.

“Where itineraries need to be adjusted, alternative arrangements are made to ensure guests continue to enjoy key land-based experiences.

“The safety of our guests, crew, and the vessel remains our highest priority, as well as ensuring our guests can experience the beauty of the region.”

Sealink Marine & Tourism said the Murray Princess continued to cruise the Murray River, but was currently unable to reach Morgan due to river levels.

“We hope to resume our normal itinerary soon, when the rain arrives,” the spokesperson said.

The PS Murray Princess will hopefully visit Morgan soon when the rain arrives as this is expected to increase river water levels. PHOTO: supplied

“The safety of our passengers, crew, and the vessel remains our top priority and guides all operational decisions.”

The SA Department for Infrastructure and Transport said the safety of river users was paramount, and it continues to mark any reported or discovered hazards that cause a risk to navigation.

“Floating trees, branches and other debris can be brought into waterways by increased flows or after heavy rain and flooding,” a spokesperson for the department said.

“While all priority channels and hazards such as sandbars are currently marked, conditions can change quickly,” she said.

“Some hazards may not be marked immediately after they appear and removing them is not always feasible.

“Signage is currently in place at the Berri boat ramp alerting boaties to low water levels.

“Mariners should travel with caution on the river, maintain a safe speed, and take care when passing obstructions such as ferry cables and water intake pipes.

“Under the Harbors and Navigation Act, the department is responsible for the safety of vessels in South Australian waters.

“Mariners are encouraged to report any safety issues to Marine Safety SA.”

Elderly Riverlanders are being urged to be wary of the impacts of RSV this winter. PHOTO: supplied

Experts urge vigilance with RSV this winter

AUSTRALIAN experts are urging greater RSV (respiratory syncytial virus) vigilance and awareness among older Riverlanders ahead of the winter season.

While RSV is recognised for its seriousness in young babies, the virus can also cause significant health issues in older adults, including pneumonia and hospitalisations.

“We know older adults are familiar with influenza – but less aware of RSV and the serious health challenges this infectious respiratory virus can cause,” Lung Foundation chair, Sydney Respiratory physician Lucy Morgan said.

“We really want older Australians, particularly those caring for grandchildren, to become much more informed and aware of RSV.

“They need to know about their risk and not assume it’s just a problem in babies,”

RSV is a common, infectious respiratory virus that generally peaks in autumn and winter but can occur all year round,

By the age of two nearly every child — and therefore every grandchild — will have had RSV at least once.

Infected individuals can stay contagious for up to 10 days, placing older Australians, notably those caring for young children, at risk of RSV and the adverse health consequences that can result.

Although often mild, for older adults the RSV virus carries a similar risk to influenza in causing serious illness.

RSV can result in hospital stays for older adults lasting six days on average. Compared with children under 5 years, older adults hospitalised with RSV may spend twice as long in hospital and fatalities from the virus are four times higher.

Following hospital stays for RSV, older adults may experience long-term health complications, need increased care, and feel a loss of independence.

“The impact of RSV can be very serious for older Australians who may struggle to regain their health and conditioning after the virus has cleared,” Associate Professor, and senior geriatrician, Michael Woodward said.

“Unfortunately, some may have significant delays in regaining their former health and independence after RSV.”

Asthma Australia consultant respiratory physician, and medical advisor, John Blakey said “older adults with existing heart or lung disease are at higher risk of being admitted with RSV — they are five to 10 times more likely to end up in hospital”.

“People with conditions like asthma therefore need to be particularly aware of RSV and how to minimise their risk,” he said.

RSV generally starts with mild symptoms, similar to other respiratory viruses such as influenza and Covid-19, including cough, headache, tiredness, runny nose and congestion.

RSV can survive on hard surfaces for up to six hours and is easily spread, including between family members of all ages.

Australia commenced recording RSV cases under the Notifiable Diseases Surveillance System in 2021. The tracking is beginning to build a picture of the real numbers and impact of the virus. For older Australians, last year’s reported RSV cases were 32,156, compared with 56,561 influenza cases.

Older Australians are being urged to become more informed and alert to RSV ahead of winter, especially when caring for young grandchildren, and talk to their doctor or pharmacist about RSV and prevention options.

Demons end their drought in Waikerie

Berri skipper Shay Hawkins impressed in Saturday's drought-breaking win over Waikerie. PHOTO: Grant Schwartzkopff

LACHLAN DAND

A DROUGHT lasting 10 years was broken on Saturday afternoon in Waikerie, when Berri secured a thrilling two-goal win in an upset victory over the Magpies.

Berri entered Saturday's clash at the Magpies Nest having not won at the venue since 2012, but were on the hunt for back-to-back wins after getting the better of Loxton North the previous week.

Waikerie also returned home for the first time since round two, hoping to get back in the victory circle after recent defeats to Barmera-Monash and Renmark on the road.

However, it was Berri that got the jump in the opening quarter, kicking four goals to one to shoot away to a 17-point quarter time lead.

Berri goaled early through Regan Kruger and Tyson Lindsay, but when Callan Lloyd went off the ground at the 14-minute mark, the Demons were in complete control.

Shaun King put through Waikerie's first of the afternoon, but when Darcy Minchella clunked a strong mark in the dying stages of the first term, Berri had the momentum into quarter time.

While the Magpies did manage to kick three goals to one in the second stanza, they failed to convert some of their opportunities, leaving them trailing by three points at the major break.

Ryan Turner and Kade Hilton booted goals early in the term, and although Berri jagged a settler back through Lindsay's second, Shaun King cut the deficit just before half time.

The third quarter saw the home side plague itself through inaccurate goalkicking, converting just two of its seven opportunities.

While Hilton put through two in the back half of the quarter, Waikerie was forced to chase its tail after the Demons booted goals from Brody Thompson, and Darcy Minchella took his tally to three for the afternoon after back-to-back goals.

With just five points the difference at the final change, Lindsay sealed the deal in the final term, converting from 25m to help the Demons secure the points.

Berri captain Shay Hawkins starred for the visiting side, mopping up through the midfield and across half back in a backline that faced pressure for a bulk of the afternoon.

Defensive pair Brad Rosenzweig and Jacob Grieger also generated a high amount of run for the visiting side out of half back, while Patrick Minchella was key through the middle of the ground.

For Waikerie, recruit Sam Haniford put together a strong performance across half back, working well with Tristan Geehman and Jake Spencely, repelling a bulk of the Demons' attacking play.

Hilton proved the Pies' most dangerous asset in attack, finishing with three goals, while Shaun King finished the day with two majors.

This weekend sees Waikerie make the journey to Loxton, hoping to snap a three-game losing streak, in a twilight clash at The Precinct that kicks off at 4pm.

Berri will return home for a massive Fisher Cup clash against Barmera-Monash, and a full preview of that game can be found on page 21.

Bulldogs shine on Schulz's special day

ON an afternoon where Wunkar celebrated superstar midfielder Tarquin Schulz breaking a club record, the Bulldogs sent out a warning sign to the competition.

Schulz, the reigning Duthie medalist, played his 103rd-consecutive game on Saturday against BSR, notching up the most-consecutive games in club history.

In a tight start, Wunkar held a seven-point advantage over BSR at the first change, before extending the gap to 29 at the half.

However, Wunkar's accuracy in front of goal was far from ideal in the third term, finishing just one of 11 opportunities, and failing to put the Redbacks to the sword.

The Bulldogs did manage to finish the game well with four goals to one, however, eventually running out 54-point victors.

sive season.

Schulz rose to the occasion in his milestone match, and hit the scoreboard, but it was Kyle Worsfold's four-goal effort that stole the show.

For the Redbacks, Matt Gibson finished with three of the four goals, while Zane Hedley, and playing coach James Mapstone fought valiantly.

Over the border, a second grand final rematch between Murrayville and Brown's Well again went the way of the Blues to the tune of 54 points.

A blistering start from Murrayville saw it hold a 23-point quarter time lead, but it was the second half that changed the momentum of the match.

With Brown's Well fighting hard to stay in the battle across the first half, Murrayville put the foot down in the third term with six goals to one.

Blues captain Ryan Lewis finished with three goals in a dominant midfield showing, while Sam Magnisalis proved classy.

Yet, there were again no answers for Nathan Bramfit, who finished the afternoon with six goals, taking his season tally to 27.

For the Bombers, Troy Braun showed his smarts around goal with three majors, while Jeremy Sumner and Digby McNeil worked hard in a tough afternoon, with Brown's Well now set for an extended bye.

This weekend sees Ramco and Paringa back in action in Ramco, while Sedan-Cambrai also return from a week off for a trip to Swan Reach to take on the Redbacks.

Meanwhile, Murrayville will cross the border for a trip to Wunkar, in what is the final round of action before a competition-wide bye for the King's Birthday Long Weekend.

Riverland Superdogs reclaim Ebert Cup

IN an electric battle that paid tribute to the late, great Russell Ebert, the Riverland Superdogs and Peninsula once again faced off in the annual Ebert Cup, raising funds for Novita in the process.

With Riverland eager to reclaim the trophy and Peninsula making a monumental effort to travel for the fourth-consecutive year, the scene was set.

The opening minutes were far from pretty, as both sides fought tooth and nail for control of the game.

As the dust settled, the Superdogs began to assert their dominance, and making every opportunity count.

Evergreen goal sneak Robbie J was at his elusive best, weaving through defenders and finding the big sticks with ease.

With the scoreboard tight, the Superdogs dug deep, finding another gear just when it mattered most.

As the final siren rang out, Riverland had done enough to secure the win, lifting the trophy, and evening up the historic Ebert Cup tally at 2-2.

Sportsmanship and camaraderie also reigned supreme, as both sides came together post-game.

The team songs rang out loud and proud (helped along by the fact that they share the same tune), and drinks were raised to toast another successful edition of the Ebert Cup.

With the ledger now squared, next year promises to be even bigger, and both sides will be ready to battle for bragging rights in 2026.

Rovers run rampant in strong second half

LACHLAN DAND

A SCINTILATING second half from Renmark was enough to secure the points in Saturday afternoon’s Riverland Football League A grade action at Loxton. Wasting chances in the opening term, the Rovers trailed by nine points at the first break after Nickos Katsaitis and Talyn Eagle both converted. Loxton got as far as 28 points ahead with five minutes remaining in the second quarter, after Kale Smith, Harley Campbell, and Eagle all kicked truly. However, Liam Jackson and Matt

Smith bobbed up with crucial goals for the Rovers just before the interval, cutting the margin to 15 points. The third term largely told the story of the second half on its own, with Renmark kicking three goals unanswered through Declan Johnson, Brody Rover, and Cody Cornelius. Renmark were able to capitalise on Loxton’s inefficient ball movement throughout the afternoon, conceding crucial turnovers in important positions. With the visitors in front by four points with one quarter remaining, the game proved to be in the balance, and the Rovers rose to the occasion. Renmark kicked three goals in the first five minutes of the final quarter, first through returning player Lachie Lellmann, who starred across the day. Lellmann’s goal was followed by playing coach Josh Vater’s finish on the run from 40m out, and Brody Rover also put one through to push the margin to 22 points. Loxton missed back-to-back chances, and Jackson ultimately put the game to bed with a little more than nine minutes remaining, helping the Rovers soar to top spot.

Potential late consolation goals from Carter Wright, and Brandon Tregeagle, were cut out by Smith’s second, as the Rovers ran home a 21-point win. Vater showed his class across the entirety of the afternoon, driving the Rovers forward at every opportunity, and even making a scoreboard impact. Lellmann, Ricky Garrett and Dan Woolford impressed in the middle of the ground, and Jackson provided a spark around goal when the Rovers required it most. Tigers playing coach Nathan Brown fought valiantly in defeat, getting into important positions, and finding the ball well, while Campbell and Jesse Will failed to give in on what was a difficult second half. This weekend is the final one before the first competition-wide bye of the season, and it sees Loxton in a twilight match, again at home, against Waikerie, in a crucial contest kicking off from 4pm. Elsewhere, Renmark will return home for a massive match against Loxton North for the 2025 Charity Game, and the full story for both club’s causes can be found on pages 14-16.

Raising the bat for 750 games

LACHLAN DAND

AS sporting milestones come and go, notching up 750 games is effectively in the realms of untouchable, yet back in round three of the 2025 RFL season, veteran umpire Tony Florance marked that achievement. Reflecting on an umpire career which has spanned three-decades, Mr Florance first took up umpiring in the RFL after an injury brought somewhat of a sudden end to his playing days. “I broke my hand playing football, and then work commitments took over so I pulled the pin on playing,” he said. “I was playing tennis with Neil Martinson, and he said to come out and have a run, and that was back in around 1991. “He just said to come out and have a go... and it’s just something that I’ve stuck with ever since.” In a world of umpiring that has new interpretations, and new rules almost every single week, Mr Florance has to stay on top of what’s occurring around him. He said keeping things simple is what helps Riverland football flourish, and watchable for fans of the competition. “We keep it basic out here in the country, which is a good thing, rather than trying to run with the AFL stuff that people see on TV,” he said. “Us as country footballers, and country umpires keep it basic, and don’t try to over-umpire and that’s so important. “It’s certainly not a popular job, but when I started myself and Todd Charlton were unable to get a gig in the under 13s or under 15s, so our numbers have dropped off.” Mr Florance said the camaraderie between the officials in fluoro green keeps him coming back.

RFL umpire Tony Florance recently notched up game 750 of his umpiring journey, in a career that has spanned three decades. PHOTO: Grant Schwartzkopff

He said he recommends umpiring to anyone wanting to get involved, mentioning anyone is welcome. “We have good programs in place, it’s a great social thing, and I think a lot of the young umpires don’t realise how welcome they’d feel,” he said. “We help them if they would like to go a little bit further, and if they have any questions, we’re there to support them to keep the umpiring fraternity in the country going. “We’ve got some good young kids in there, and hopefully we might get a few more out to the middle, so they can phase the older ones like myself out. “I’m a mentor to them, and I try my best, but it is getting harder every year as you keep getting older.”

AROUND THE GROUNDS

ON an afternoon where Loxton North celebrated one of its greats breaking a club record, the Panthers made it back-to-back B grade wins. Club legend Anton Cook officially crossed the Panthers’ most games ever threshold, clocking up number 360 in the reserves’ 19-point victory over the Roos at Panther Park. In a day that saw both sides kick accurately, North held a 21-point lead at the major break and were able to keep the Roos at bay for the remainder of the day. Fellow club legend Ryan Proud continues to enjoy his time in the B grade, finishing with a five-goal haul, while performances from Liam Bastian, Seb Uzzell, and Jonah Wooldridge were impressive. From a Barmerra-Monash perspective, Dan Westley continued to press his claims for a return to the ones, finishing with two goals in the defeat. Elsewhere, Waikerie piled on the pain for Berri, smashing the Demons by 57 points in a strong display on home deck. Waikerie held the visitors scoreless in the first half, and finished with 11 scores of its own, but largely failed to capitalise, leaving a 31-point separation between the sides at the half time break. The Pies ramped up the heat in the final quarter, kicking four goals to one to round out the victory. Ben Haynes led the goalkickers for the hosts with three, while Harvey Dearman and Kaleb Messenger kicked two apiece. Meanwhile, reigning B grade premier Loxton proved too good for Renmark, keeping the Rovers goalless in the second half to record a 17-point victory in a low-scoring affair. Forward pair Nathan Flight and Luke Pontt finished with two each, while Braden Falting also performed admirably. Under 18s action saw North take home its first win of the 2025 season, getting the better of Barmerra-Monash by 57 points. Holding the Roos to just two goals for the afternoon, the Panthers’ 11-goal out-ing was produced largely through Mackenzie Hall and Archer Lloyd, who both finished with three. Meanwhile, Berri and Renmark both took home wins over Waikerie and Loxton respectively, pushing further ahead at the top of the ladder in the process. This weekend sees a rematch of the under 18s decider, with Berri hoping to exact revenge in the build-up to a massive Fisher Cup. The biggest winning margin of the weekend came through the under 15s, where Barmerra-Monash took home a massive 118-point win over the Panthers. Finishing the afternoon with a whopping 18 goals, Ivan Ness was the star of the show with four, while Nathaniel Dyer, Shep Humphries, and Cooper Klingbiel each kicked two. Humphries and Kane Ogle impressed for the high-flying Roos, with North’s only goal of the match coming through Aston Burgess.

Panthers get season back on track

LACHLAN DAND

A STIRRING final quarter from Loxton North on Saturday afternoon saw the Panthers take home a thrilling four-point win against Barmera-Monash in RFL A grade action.

Both sides headed to Panther Park hoping to bounce back from losses to Berri and Loxton, respectively, the week prior.

In a slow start to the game, both sides failed to kick a goal in the opening term, leaving the Roos ahead by two points at the first change.

However, scoring opened up in the second stanza, and the Panthers made the most of their opportunities, wrestling back the lead to hold a three-point advantage at the half time interval.

Yet, Barmera-Monash took control again in the third term, this time converting its opportunities to flip the lead, cutting back a 15-point Panther lead after two late goals from Jack Austin, and one from Max Pietrolaj.

Loxton North coach Dave Higgins said he was pleased with the way his side performed, in what he described as “a hard fought-out game.”

“There was a bit of wind to start off with, which we supposedly had the advantage of, but the pressure was pretty high from both teams, so it was a pretty contested first quarter, and it was just the way it rolled out,” he said.

“The message was to keep grinding it out, because we’d played without a little bit of luck, so we just needed to keep doing what we’d been doing, and hopefully things would turn our way.”

Loxton North stormed home in the final quarter, coming out of the break with goals from both Jarrod Buckley and Brok Viney-Obst.

However, young Roo Lucas Warnett again cut the deficit to three points, before Scott Meneghetti put the game beyond doubt.

Matt Wutke did pinch one back late for Barmera-Monash, but it proved to be too little, too late, and the Roos ultimately fell short.

Higgins said he was pleased with the way his side fought out the final term, in what was an important win for Loxton North.

“The idea was to come out and hit it pretty hard at the start of that last quarter, and put ourselves in as good of a position as we can, and then try and hold on, knowing that we were up against a really good opposition,” he said.

“Every week is really important with how close the competition is, and the fact we’re bottom, but only one win from second, just shows how tight it is, and how important every win is.

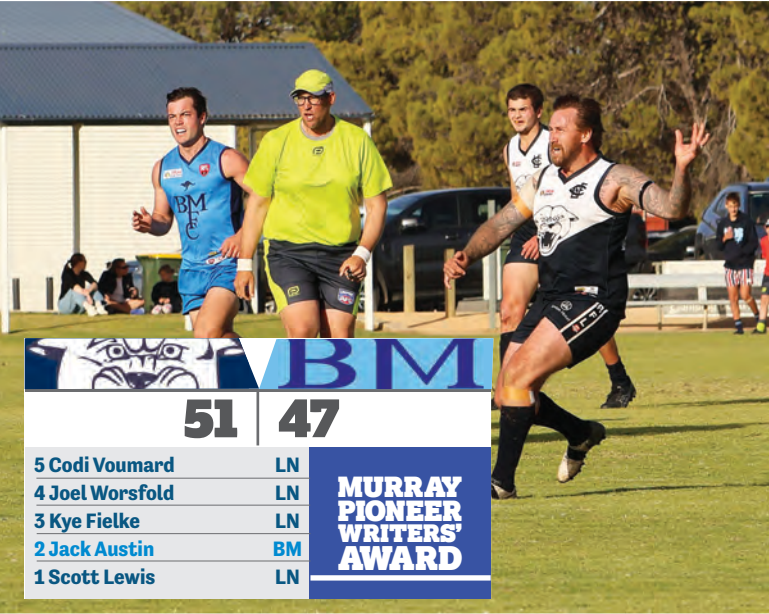

“So much has changed from last year within our squad, and from team to team, so we’re rolling out the old cliché of one week at a time.”

Kye Fielke found form in attack for North’s side in a three-goal showing, while Tyler Wagner also continues to impress.

Codi Voumard starred across half-back, showing the competition how consistent he can be, while experienced midfielders Joel Worsfold and Scott Lewis also shone in the win.

Barmera-Monash took a depleted side to Panther Park, including missing playing coach Fraser Sampson, and key forward Jono Beech.

However, Mitch Wellington again stood tall in Beech’s absence, while Warnett finished the day with two majors.

The Roos will be hoping to regain some of their more experienced senior players ahead of this weekend’s huge Fisher Cup in Berri, with a full preview found on page 21.

Loxton North will head to Renmark Oval for a special Charity Day game against Renmark in support of Red Nose Australia, and Higgins said his side is looking forward to the challenge.

“We just know how important this weekend is against Renmark away, and they’ve certainly had the wood over us the last few years,” he said.

“Renmark is the standard bearer over the last couple of seasons, and we know how tough of a challenge it is over there.

“It was a tough day there last year, but we’re keen for the challenge, and to see how it all rolls out at the end.”

The full story behind Loxton North’s connection to Red Nose Australia can be found across pages 14-16, and both A grade clashes will kick off from 2.40pm, this Saturday.

Cook serves up game 360

LACHLAN DAND

IT is rare in country footy that game records are broken, but that is exactly what occurred at Panther Park last Saturday.

Loxton North legend Anton Cook etched himself further into the history of the Panthers, crossing the white line for the 360th time, now a club record.

A key cog at full back for North in the glory years of the club, Cook surpassed previous games-record holder Phil Saint in the B grade clash with Barmera-Monash.

Having been at the club for 32 years, Cook said crossing the record was a good feeling, but he knows it’s unlikely that the record will last forever.

“It’s been a long time coming, and I guess you don’t think about that when you first start playing footy, but to finally get there and do it was awesome,” he said.

“We had a win which was good on a milestone as well, but a record is never broken, and there’s always someone who could beat it, but it’s good to finally get there.

“I got to 350 games last year, and we asked about it then, and we were trying to work out what the actual figure was, and they told us 359 was the record at the start of this year.”

Cook said the thing that makes Loxton North such a special place is the family aspect of the club, noting the important people involved at the Panthers.

The club produced a video on Saturday morning of tributes for the now games-record holder, featuring messages from those involved in the club.

“I guess it’s just the people that have been in and out of the club, we all get on really well, and it’s very family orientated,” he said.

“You can talk to anyone at the footy club no matter who you are, and everyone makes you feel welcome and part of it.

“We have fun on the field, and even better fun off the field, so I guess that’s what has kept me there for so long.

“There were a few things in there that make you think back and they hit the spot, and my wife (Kelly), and Tracy Proud were part of making that video come together.

“But it was a bit of a weird week, I didn’t really know what to think, it was just about getting through and playing the game.

“I have to speak to a lot more people and thank them for the messages that they sent, but it was good to hear, and a pretty cool idea.”

Loxton North tasted the ultimate success three times in six years between 2011 and 2015, and Cook said they were some of the fondest memories of his career, along with an under 18s premiership.

Now a staple of the B grade side, Cook said helping the youngest generation of Panthers is something he sees as an important role at the club.

“I’ve had some good coaches through that time, obviously with Craig Wooldridge being the coach during 2011, 2013, and 2015,” he said.

“My first year of under 18s in 1999 was a premiership win, and we won by one point, so that was a pretty good one to remember too.

“I’ve had some pretty good coaches that guided me in the right direction, so that’s the main thing.

“The older ones can’t hang on forever, but in B grade footy it’s good to have some speed, and some kids that haven’t played a lot of footy together.

“It’s just about trying to teach those kids the basics of footy, and make it fun, and making sure they want to rock up every week and play the game.”

Set to turn 42 this year, the dreaded ‘R’ word of retirement is hanging around for Cook now, but he insists that his body is currently feeling at a manageable level.

“For me, I’ll just keep playing until I can’t and this is my second year of B grade footy and I feel okay,” he said.

“Some weeks I’ll go out and play Superdogs footy on a Sunday at Lyrup, but at the moment I’m going fine, so I’ll just keep playing until everything let’s go I guess.”

Barmera players celebrate Tony Mitchell’s opening goal in the tense 2-2 draw with Loxton last Sunday in Riverland A grade men’s soccer.

United, Pelicans held level in Loxton

IN one of the most anticipated matches of the 2025 Riverland A grade men’s soccer season so far, Loxton and Barmera were held level in a thrilling two-all draw on Sunday afternoon.

Both sides came into the match full of confidence following recent strong form, in what was also a rematch of last season’s top four cup semi-final.

Pelican Tony Mitchell opened the scoring at the half hour mark, but Barmera’s lead lasted just two minutes after Hayden Stevens equalised, leaving the sides deadlocked.

Coming out of the break, Stevens again found the back of the net, putting United ahead, but crafty Barmera attacker Dimitri Kanakaris evened things up on 69 minutes.

Stevens and Masud Akaso were among the best for Loxton, while James Wallace and Liam Ransley helped an improving Barmera side put in a competitive showing.

Elsewhere, Renmark trounced Berri by six goals to nil in a dominant afternoon, largely brought about through a four-goal second half.

While Renmark opened the scoring just five minutes in through Vincent Vu, who again scored on 35 minutes, the margin was at two goals at the interval.

Yet, the second half saw the floodgates open through four individual goalscorers, with Kyle Collinson, Alex Cartwright, Andy Son, and George Tsolomititis all on the scoresheet.

Cole James and Jason Stokes impressed for Olympic in the big win, with Berri again forced to lick its wounds, remaining winless after four matches.

A grade women’s action saw the biggest winning margin of the weekend notched up, with the Pelicans securing a 15-goal win over Loxton.

Holding United scoreless in the process, Amelia Koumbarakos continued her rich vein of form, backing up last week’s 10-goal effort, this time with eight.

Chaima Bouglada also produced a strong effort in attack, finishing with a hat-trick, while Matilda Mitchell and Anastasia Kondoprias both recorded braces.

Renmark made it a weekend double from its top senior grades, following a Maggie Lock-inspired win over Berri.

Lock scored five goals in Olympic’s thumping of the River Rangers, and was well supported by Bec Ward.

The biggest junior result of the weekend was seen in the under 16s grade, after Barmera smashed home a 13-goal win against Loxton, largely thanks to an eight-goal performance by Jack McCracken.

This weekend’s Riverland soccer action will be held in Renmark, with A grade men’s action to be held on Friday night, while the remainder of the association will play matches on Sunday.

Net Ninjas suffer first defeat of the season

ROUND three of the Renmark Table Tennis Association saw Net Ninjas suffer its first defeat of the season at the hands of Backhand Bandits, and Bit Edgy score its second win of the season against the winless Bats ‘n Bits.

In the first match Backhand Bandits beat Net Ninjas 14-10. After being all equal after the doubles, it was the singles that proved to be the difference in this match.

Scott Bornholm (Backhand Bandits) led the way and is still undefeated in his singles this season, winning most of his rubbers comfortably.

The best rubber saw Dennis Robinson, of Backhand Bandits, win a five-gamer against Barry Williams (Net Ninjas).

In the second match, Bit Edgy proved far too strong for the winless Bits ‘n Bats, securing a comfortable 16-8 victory.

Led by captain Frank Sullivan, it was a consistent effort by the whole team.

Bits ‘n Bats players Graeme Dyer and Asher Harris are both undefeated in the singles this season, but need more support from fellow teammates.

Geoff Haby (Bit Edgy) had a big night of singles. In his first rubber with Peter Rogers it went game for game, with Rogers eventually winning in the fifth 11-7.

His second rubber, against Paul Haenen, saw Rogers dominate early, winning the first two games, but the experience of Haby allowed him to alter his game and win the next three comfortable to claim the rubber 3-2.

Berri smashes Sunraysia in 11-goal rout

RIVERLAND hockey saw one of the biggest winning margins of the 2025 season, as reigning A grade men’s premier Berri thumped Sunraysia by a whopping 11 goals.

Sunraysia was without answers in what was the biggest defeat of the season, as Logan Bowers stuffed the stats sheet with four goals.

Bowers was well supported by Dan Shawyer who recorded a hat-trick, while Jarryd Roberts and Kyle Radloff each scored twice.

B grade men’s action saw Waikerie run rampant against Loxton Punjab, scoring eight goals, and it was Ryan Edwards who scored a hat-trick.

Under 18 men’s action saw Berri and the combined side of Loxton/Renmark play an eight-aside match due to low numbers, in a game not played for points with mixed teams.

A grade women’s action saw a comprehensive team performance from Loxton, getting the better of Waikerie by three goals to one.

Sunraysia did taste some success on the evening, getting the better of Berri by four goals to one, largely thanks to a pair of goals from Paige McInnes.

This weekend’s action sees Riverland hockey played in Waikerie, while both A grade men and women action will head to Sunraysia, with the home side welcoming Loxton over the border.

Riverland Dinghy Club holds 2025 Woolshed Brewery Amazon Sprint

THE Woolshed Brewery Amazon Sprint round four was held on Saturday in near perfect conditions, leaving from the brewery for three long laps, and one short lap.

This race requires competitors to complete one long lap, before making the strategic decision to fit in the one short lap.

Up to 65 boats and 130 competitors registered to race in six classes, from 25hp to the top sports class.

Run entirely by volunteers, it was timely during National Volunteers’ Week that all Dinghy Club volunteers were thanked for their enormous efforts throughout the Championship Series.

Star duo Scott Pogorecki and Nathan Wilson finished at the top of the 30hp Sports grade, finishing ahead of Matt Thur, and Tom Azzopardi.

The 30hp Rookies grade saw Jesse Morena and James Bannear get the better of Jeremy Morrison and Riley Schwarz, while Tim Cumming and Jake Bradtke settled for third spot.

The 300cc Modified class was won by John Chigros and Thomas Pilgrim, finishing ahead of Joey Heeps and Dylan Weir.

Home sides shine in A1 netball’s Grey Round

ON a weekend where the Riverland Netball Association celebrated the 2025 edition of Grey Round, the A1 grand finalists from 2024 stood tall on Friday night.

With both clashes played at The Precinct in Loxton, it was the Tigers who got the night started with a blistering 18-goal win over Renmark.

A strong opening quarter from the hosts opened up a six-goal margin at the first change, yet the difference was just seven by the half time interval.

Loxton put the foot down in the third quarter, pushing the gap to 15 by the final break, and ultimately putting the game to bed.

Shifting the bibs around, veteran goalkeeper Leah Uren spent the majority of the second half in attack, and finished with 27 goals, while boom recruit Tarnie Shinnick recorded 21.

Bailey Hahn produced a strong intercepting game at goal defence, while curbing the influence of Sonja Modlinski in the process.

Captain Elise Lange also showed why she is one of the competition’s best players, running out a strong game in the centre position.

For Renmark, Anita Modlinski worked hard with 31 goals in a strong effort, while mid-courter Ashlea James, and defender Demi Johnson, worked hard across the evening.

With five rounds now in the books, the win leaves Loxton a game clear in top spot, ahead of a bye this Friday night.

Meanwhile, Loxton North is proving to be a step ahead of the remaining pack, dismissing an improving Barmera outfit by nine goals.

A dominant opening half from North saw the margin at 10 goals at the major break, and Barmera ultimately never recovered.

Although the visiting side ran out the second half well, Loxton North remained in control for much of the contest, enabling the victory.

Ellie Thomas dominated underneath the ring, scoring a massive 38 goals, with Barmera running out of answers.

Youngster Maddie Groth also kept the scorers busy with 18 goals, despite the best efforts of defenders Khaleisha Barnett and Jemma Kassulke.

Yet it was North keeper Kiara Harman who impressed majorly, working alongside centre Brooke Pietrolaj to help the hosts rebound on multiple occasions.

This weekend will see two early A1 games, with Renmark welcoming Loxton North to town, and local rivals Berri and Barmera battling it out in a council clash at the Toyota Arena.

Out of this world

BRINGING together the best of Australia's Lego builders with pairs of contestants from Canada, China, Finland, Sweden, New Zealand and the United States, the seventh season of this family-friendly competition is more captivating than ever.

Host Hamish Blake is still in his element as he oversees the epic builds alongside judge Ryan "Brickman" McNaught.

"We've been lucky enough to see the best Lego builders in Australia build off," Brickman says.

"What if we added them into the best of what the world has? Then tell Hamish it's intergalactic.... The sum of all of that is a whole lot of ludicrous, creative and amazing fun."

The awe-inspiring creations and world-class challenges are sure to thrill viewers of all ages, and perhaps even surprise long-time Lego Masters viewers, with the international contestants introducing a fresh angle to the competition.

"Whilst Lego bricks are the same the world over, countries around the world have different processes and cultures with which to draw inspiration from, so watching that process [unfold] live in front of us was incredible," enthuses Brickman.

"In all the years I've been doing Lego Masters,

I thought I had seen it all, literally - Hamish has worn every fancy dress outfit there is! - but it turns out I hadn't. This year's contestants are just awe inspiring."

The competition begins on Sunday with the infamous Great Ball Contraption challenge, which requires the 10 teams to transport a small globe from one side of their table to the other in the most extraordinary fashion possible.

May 2025: week 4

Horoscopes

ARIES
MAR 21ST - APR 20TH

A favourable aspect to Mercury at the beginning of the week will help to improve your powers of communication. Misunderstandings have been creating problems in your life recently—make sure that you get your message across clearly this time. Romance. Wait until your partner is on your side before you make a major decision.

TAURUS
APR 21ST - MAY 21ST

You are good at organising the people around you. However you should do your best not to boss them around more than is absolutely necessary. Romance. A favourable aspect to Venus will give your relationship an important boost. A discussion later in the week will go well.

GEMINI
MAY 22ND - JUN 21ST

You will be very on-the-ball mentally at the moment, and should make sure that you get the most out of this period. Romance. It will be difficult to see the advantages of some recent changes in your relationship. One change in particular may seem to be for the worse.

CANCER
JUN 22ND - JUL 23RD

A friend who is a long way away from home will help you to see your present life from a different perspective. This person has some important advice to give you, which you should make a note of. Romance. A chance meeting in a place you have never been to before will surprise you.

LEO
JUL 24TH - AUG 23RD

You will have to trust to your gut instincts. This will be a good time to take a gamble, so long as you know when to call it a day. Romance. You will need to spend some time by yourself this week. You have some important decisions to make and must decide for yourself how you feel about them.

VIRGO
AUG 24TH - SEP 23RD

Support from your friends will help you to get over a recent crisis. You will find that these people care about you even more than you thought! Romance. This will be an especially good period for romantic adventures: just make sure that you don't overdo it early in the week.

LIBRA
SEP 24TH - OCT 23RD

An agreement with a friend may start to break down. Do what you can to remedy the situation before it is too late. Romance. You may meet someone new through a mutual acquaintance. Don't be afraid to make your feelings known to this person, but try to do so in a way which is subtle.

SCORPIO
OCT 24TH - NOV 22ND

This is not the time for half measures! Grab an opportunity as soon as you see it. This won't come again, and you will be sorry if you miss it. Romance. A misunderstanding with your partner will be resolved so long as you are willing to go more than half way. If you make a concession now you will get your rewards later.

SAGITTARIUS
NOV 23RD - DEC 21ST

An overheard remark could change your opinion about the person concerned. This acquaintance may not be quite as straightforward as you thought. Romance. An outlet for your excess energy should give you a chance to relax. You might be a little tense at the moment.

CAPRICORN
DEC 22ND - JAN 20TH

Respect your colleague's point of view, even if you don't agree with it. A difference of opinion will be solved so long as you are not too forceful. Romance. A dream may depress you at first. However there will be a bright aspect to the dream which you must make a note of and act on.

AQUARIUS
JAN 21ST - FEB 19TH

A challenging aspect to Neptune could make you a little unfocussed at times, especially towards the end of the week. Put off any decisions which require clear thinking and logic. Romance. When you have decided what you are going to do just do it: any more delay will damage your credibility.

PISCES
FEB 20TH - MAR 20TH

You may not get as much credit for your recent effort as you expect. Romance. Your partner will be very understanding, even if you are a little bit erratic yourself. A romantic get-together later in the week will help to make up for a recent misunderstanding which may have created some tension.

Travel Guides will go head to head for the chance to win the $40,000 jackpot and donate it to their chosen causes.

Matt and Brett, partners for 23 years, bring their wit and heart as they compete for Stuart House, a charity that supports the education and wellbeing of disadvantaged children.

The boys, Dorian, Kev and Teng, best mates who met working at Target and now travel the world together, are bringing their energy to play for the Type 1 Foundation,
