A 5c ON the dollar return for unsecured creditors of Salena Estate, in the wake of the winery's sale, is "another devastating blow" for the Riverland wine industry according to senior local politicians.

Salena Estate creditors last week approved a sale of the vineyards, winery properties and equipment to an entity associated with China's Tianyu Wool.

However, Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone said a reported return of 5c on the dollar for unsecured creditors would have negative economic effects on the surrounding community.

"It's a changing of the guard for what has been a good Riverland business," Mr Whetstone said.

"But I want to make sure the new ownership does provide some certainty for the area... we've got to make sure that asset can be used to the benefit of the region.

"The dividend of 5c on the dollar... that really hurts. That hurts the region, and it hurts the individual.

"People that have been supporting that business, in some cases for a decade, are being hung out to dry. I would like to think those creditors, whether they be local or not, will be given some assurance."

Tianyu Wool, led by billionaire Qingnan Wen, has recently purchased numerous agricultural landholdings across Victoria.

Anti-social behaviour in Berri on the rise?

MADISON EASTMOND

THE Riverland's State MP has called for an increased police presence in the area, following reports of ongoing "anti-social" behaviour in Berri.

Over the past four weeks Riverland police conducted four arrests at Vaughan Terrace, in Berri, for disorderly behaviour, breach of bail, theft and outstanding warrants, while three fines were issued for drinking in a dry zone and possession of cannabis.

The Waikerie CFS was among the emergency services that attended the incident on Saturday.

Minor injuries in car rollover at Waikerie

POLICE were called to the Sturt Highway, east of Murbko Road, at Stockyard Plain, south west of Waikerie, at about 3.45pm on Saturday following a single vehicle rollover.

The Toyota Hilux ended up on its roof in nearby scrub.

A police spokesperson said two occupants in the vehicle, a 58-year-old man, from Parafield Gardens, and a 67-year-old man, from Paralowie, received minor injuries and were treated at the local hospital.

SA Ambulance, Waikerie CFS, and the Blanchetown SES also attended the incident.

Two vehicle incidents at Waikerie last week

EMERGENCY services attended two road incidents in the Waikerie area recently.

Police and the Waikerie CFS were called to an incident on the Sturt Highway at Lowbank, east of Waikerie at about 12.20pm, on Friday 11 October.

Police said a trailer that had been attached to a vehicle went down an embankment in the area.

They said the driver and the occupants were not injured.

In the second incident, the elderly female driver of a sedan was taken to hospital for an assessment on Friday after her car crashed into two rubbish bins and an unoccupied car in Waikerie’s CBD.

Waikerie CFS, SA Ambulance, and police attended the scene in White Street.

Police said on Monday no expiation notices had been issued in relation to this incident.

No injury after ute hits parked caravan

A 58-YEAR-old woman escaped uninjured after the Nissan utility she was driving crashed into a Stobie pole and a parked caravan, at Morgan, in the early hours of Sunday morning.

Police said the woman, who was the sole occupant of the vehicle, was taken to hospital for a check-up.

They said investigations were continuing into the cause of the incident.

Riverland drivers stopped during the weekend

ONE motorist was caught driving under the influence in the Riverland during weekend traffic stops.

On Sunday 20 October, Barmera police stopped a 41-year-old man driving on Bice Street, at Barmera.

The Smithfield Plains man was submitted to a breath test, which allegedly returned a positive reading of 0.077.

The driver was reported for driving under the influence and he will be summonsed to appear in the Berri Magistrates Court at a later date.

100 years of Renmark North Primary School celebrated

MADISON EASTMOND

THE centenary of Renmark North Primary School was celebrated by students, teachers, families and alumni last weekend, with generations of Riverlanders coming together to mark the milestone.

Renmark North Primary School hosted a weekend of community reflection and reminiscing, kicking off celebrations with the 65th continental last Friday, before holding a centenary dinner on Saturday night and finishing with a school open day on Sunday, including the showcase of classrooms filled with memorabilia.

Renmark North principal Mary Shannon said the event recognised “100 years of inspiring young minds, fostering a love for learning, and creating vibrant community”.

“Each generation has contributed to the rich tapestry of our history, and it is a privilege to stand here today and reflect on what we have achieved together,” she said.

“Throughout the years, Renmark North has been a place where dreams take flight, students discover passions, and develop life-long friendships.

“Today is a time to recognise the incredible strength of our community and the connections we share — that’s what makes our school truly special.”

Classrooms decorated with memorabilia from the last 100 years were opened to the public on Sunday, along with an unveiling of a student time capsule, set to only be opened again in 2049.

“Our school has been changing the lives and futures of generations for 100 years,” Renmark North Governing Council chairperson and former student Emma Mullin said.

“It has been a wonderful weekend of celebrations, and it has been really special witnessing the reconnections taking place, hearing the many stories and memories as reminiscing went into overdrive.

“Renmark North School holds a special place in many hearts — this school has always been more than a place of learning, it’s a community that nurtures, inspires, and supports.

“It’s a connected village that would probably have many other schools in awe — this centenary isn’t just about looking back, but celebrating the legacy we are building.”

Renmark Paringa Mayor and former Renmark North Primary School principal, Peter Hunter said the community was fortunate some took the “punt” to establish the school a century ago.

“I just want to say thank you to those before us that put up with so much so we can be here today,” he said.

“There was also so many times throughout our history that parents and staff came together to make the place better, and improve what we offer to our children.

“It’s a time today to talk about memories and remember those who helped us to get where we are... not just those in the 1920s, but those present throughout our lives.”

Barker MP Tony Pasin says if elected next year, the Coalition will roll-out a $5 billion housing plan, which was informed by discussions with councils across the nation. PHOTO: supplied

Council chat key to Coalition’s housing plan

COUNCILS across Barker were among those consulted in formulating a new Coalition plan to boost home building numbers across Australia, Tony Pasin says.

The Liberal Barker MP says over the past two years the Coalition spoke to hundreds of local councils across the nation to discuss new housing supply constraints and practical ways to overcome these challenges.

“This consultation, including my own discussions with councils in Barker and across the nation, has made clear that one of the major impediments to new housing projects is the lack of funding support for critical enabling infrastructure,” Mr Pasin said.

“Whilst it is not the traditional role of the Federal Government to fund enabling infrastructure like water, power, sewerage, and access roads, the scale of Labor’s national housing crisis means the Coalition will, on a time-limited basis, unlock necessary new housing supply and keep the Australian dream alive.”

Under the Coalition’s plan, the Federal Government would invest in shovel-ready infrastructure through a new housing infrastructure program.

Mr Pasin said an elected Coalition government would commit $5 billion to get these projects moving, unlocking up to 500,000 homes to be delivered more quickly through a mixture of grants and concessional loans.

“We know there are hundreds of greenfield sites across the country ready for development, including here in Barker, but progress has been stalled due to a lack of funding for essential enabling infrastructure,” he said.

“Our approach is focused on investing in enabling infrastructure to unlock the supply of shovel-ready new housing developments.”

The funding will be offered on a ‘use it or lose it’ basis. This means if there is no progress on successful projects within 12 months of contracting, then the funding will be terminated.

“The Albanese Labor Government’s housing crisis is failing Australians,” Mr Pasin said.

“Labor’s promise to build 1.2 million homes over five years has already failed, with industry leaders confirming a likely shortfall of more than 400,000 homes.”

The Coalition has previously announced commitments to bring down demand and free up supply by reducing migration, a two-year ban on foreign investors and temporary residents purchasing existing homes in Australia, and capping the number of overseas students.

Mr Pasin said these changes would free up over 100,000 homes for Australians over five years.

Mobile Coverage audit ‘not serious about blackspots’

SEBASTIAN CALDERON

AN audit utilising post office buildings and delivery vans to assess mobile coverage data will fail to highlight issues in regional communities, according to a senior Riverland politician.

The Federal Government last week announced that mobile coverage data is being collected by posties, as part of a pilot program under the Better Connectivity Plan for Regional and Rural Australia, with testing meant to cover a significant portion of the Riverland and capture important data to determine actual coverage and capacity of mobile network signals.

Renmark is set to be one of the locations where mobile-measurement devices, aimed to at identifying current blackspots, will be installed on post office locations and on delivery vans.

However, according to Barker MP Tony Pasin, the coverage of Australia Post fails to reach many regional areas where mobile signal is known to be an issue.

“Prior to the 2022 Federal election, Labor announced an investment of $20m for an independent national audit of mobile coverage to establish an evidence baseline to guide future priorities, including using Australia Post trucks to measure signal,” Mr Pasin said.

“I wrote to the Federal Minister for Communications in June 2022 pointing out that Australia Post does not service many parts of regional Australia where mobile communications are an issue.”

“I also highlighted that local communities are best placed to inform government of mobile service, because they live it every day.

“No one knows the locations of blackspots better than the people impacted by it on a daily basis.

“The fact that the main audit has taken over two years to commence underscores that this government is not serious about addressing mobile blackspots.

Minister for Communications Michelle Rowland said “the government understands that rural, regional and remote communities value reliable mobile coverage, and that every Australian deserves access to reliable mobile coverage regardless of where they live”.

“The Albanese Government is delivering improved mobile coverage through our Better Connectivity Plan for Regional and Rural Australia,” Ms Rowland said.

“The National Audit of Mobile Coverage will provide important national data to help target future investment.

“Engaging Australia Post in the audit, and leveraging its networks, will help to ensure we get a comprehensive picture of mobile coverage across the country.”

Anti-social behaviour in Berri on the rise

MADISON EASTMOND
and SEBASTIAN CALDERON

THE Riverland's State MP has called for an increased police presence in the area, following reports of ongoing "anti-social" behaviour in Berri.

Over the past four weeks Riverland police conducted four arrests at Vaughan Terrace, in Berri, for disorderly behaviour, breach of bail, theft and outstanding warrants, while three fines were issued, for drinking in a dry zone and possession of cannabis.

Meeting with the District's superintendent today to discuss the issue, Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone said he has a "concern for the whole region".

"As a regional centre, we are not seeing an increase presence of police on our beat," he said.

"We have the Renmark police station that is closed, we have more pressure put on our front-line responders — filling out paperwork more-so than being out there visible on the beat.

"And this is a concern right across the board.

"SAPOL are having issues with recruitment (and) they are having issues with retention of police officers, and in the regions, it is becoming more and more evident than ever that there is more pressure put on fewer officers to do the job of what should be one of many."

Anyone who witnesses any offending or requires police assistance, phone 131 444, or in an emergency 000.

Pasin calls out lack of frost support

HUGH SCHUITEMAKER

THE state's primary industries minister is "taking action" to support wine grape growers that suffered frost damage, however, the region's Federal MP says local producers are feeling "death by a thousand cuts".

Barker MP Tony Pasin last week criticised a lack of direct state government support for wine grape growers that suffered damage from recent frost conditions.

"The recent frost event resulted in significant losses for many across the Mallee, Riverland, Barossa and Mid-North and for South Australian Minister for Primary Industries and Regional Development (Clare Scriven) to deny support to wine grape growers in particular is simply ludicrous," Mr Pasin said.

"The minister knows very well that insurance against frost is not an option for most growers at the best of times, let alone when so many are already selling off assets just to stay afloat.

"Minister Scriven's lacklustre announcement about satellite mapping was nothing more than deflection coming from a government (that) has refused to support wine grape growers through one of the most significant shifts in market conditions in decades and is now running away from offering much-needed assistance for those staring down the barrel of reduced volumes as a result of frost damage."

However, Ms Scriven said numerous initiatives could be utilised for growers to access current support measures.

"I am acutely aware of the significant financial and wellbeing challenges in regional communities, resulting from the various compounding challenges our farmers are facing, and continue to be in conversations with producers and industry associations around the state," Ms Scriven said.

"The State Government is taking action on a number of fronts, including the activation of the Drought Advisory Group and convening of regional roundtables to hear directly from industry about impacts that are being felt by producers across the state due to drought, frost and other weather conditions, and to provide advice to government on support measures.

"Immediate assistance is available to help grape growers via a range of measures, including the Family and Business (FaB) mentors program. Funding has also been made available for immediate grants of up to $1500 through Rural Business Support for eligible grape growers to cover day-to-day costs, and is available in conjunction with Rural Financial Counselling.

"These grants aim to alleviate stress for grape growers who rely on agriculture for their primary source of income and have felt significant impacts from market disruption, severe weather events or natural disasters."

Leader prescribes community connection to Renmark tragedy

MADISON EASTMOND

A PACIFIC Island community leader says further practices focused on cultural integration are needed to help migrant workers settle in the local community.

Joe Koumera, 42, was working in the Riverland as a seasonal fruit-picker as part of the Pacific Australia Labour Mobility (PALM) Scheme, before he went missing in the Renmark area on Sunday 13 October.

After launching a search, SA police discovered Mr Koumera's body in the water at 6pm on Monday 14 October. Though police are still investigating the circumstance surrounding the man's death, and a report will be prepared for the Coroner, it is believed Mr Koumera had been drinking with friends shortly before the incident.

Pacific Islands Council of South Australia president Tukini Tavui said there were many challenges PALM Scheme participants face on their move to Australia, believing that alcohol contributed to the high number of 46 deaths in the program that have occurred in the last two years.

"The first component, that I have been speaking on for a number of years now, is the recruitment process," he said.

"The employers and the labour senders from each country are focused on skills and work capacity... but, the question that needs to be asked is 'how are they being identified as appropriate candidates to come and work in Australia'.

"Though they might have a strong work ethic, and skills, the component that does not receive a high level of attention, is the level of maturity and the character for the candidate that are coming to work in Australia... do they have the capacity to manage themselves in a foreign country, to manage being so far away from home?

"The level of support regarding cultural awareness also needs to be addressed then. The employer does talk to them about cultural difference in Australia and access to information, which is a start, but it's not sufficient — how can you fit into the culture if you don't understand the culture?

"These information sessions and training (about culture) need to happen on arrival, not once, but regularly.

Though Mr Tavui said managing the issues in the workplace is easier to tackle, it was "afterwork, that social space, where the problem is significant" and where workers can begin to have problems with alcohol.

"They are left to their own devices," he said.

"That's why those early stages of their move to Australia is so important and critical — it sets them up to establish and integrate in the community.

"Employers can definitively help with this, discuss the activities they can do outside of the workplace and connect them with people, and we have seen some do it incred-ibility well.

"There have been a number of initiatives employers have taken to mitigate (alcohol consumption), but we need to create self-agency and the workers can manage the adjustment. If we have good leaders and good structure, issues can be dealt with, and we have groups in PALM around Australia that are a testament to this."

Though combating the challenges that arise for PALM Scheme participants is a work-in-progress, Mr Tavui said the Riverland community could also lend a helping hand.

"These are communal people in which living in a community is critical for them," he said.

"These workers love to be part of things, help out, be part of a church or a local sports club, so, the general community can be really beneficial."

"The success of the program is not just what the (participants in the program) do at work, but how they fit in the community and that can only happen if there is a collaborative approach."

For more information, or if a program participant would like further support through the PALM scheme, visit the website (www.palmscheme.gov.au/help-workers) to access advice and contact information for a support line, or a country liaison officer.

Anyone with information that may assist the investigation is asked to contact Crime Stoppers on (1800 333 000), or online at (www.crimestopperssa.com.au).

THE YEARS GO BY

BY PETER AND CARLA MAGAREY

Going once, twice... sold

THE news confirming the Salena Estate winery had been sold – somewhat ironically to a Chinese buyer – is the latest headline in an ongoing story many across the Riverland have kept a keen eye on.

It is also a saga that has been somewhat illustrative of the last two years for the Riverland wine industry as a whole.

There was a time when much local excitement surrounded Salena Estate and the modern, Mediterranean styled, easy-to-drink wines they were producing. Equally exciting was the opening of the Cucina 837 restaurant where – at the risk of alienating some sections of the audience – possibly the Riverland’s best pizzas were served for a time.

It would have been during this period where wine sales into China were also very beneficial, not just for Salena Estate but evidently South Australia as a whole.

However, the imposition of China’s tariffs sent quick and resounding shockwaves across the state’s wine industry, resulting in a winery such as Salena Estate – which many would have considered as ‘in vogue’ among Riverland producers – now being sold to overseas interests.

So, what effects will this have on the rest of the Riverland?

As pointed out by our local State MP in today’s edition of the Pioneer, perhaps the most concerning aspect of Salena Estate’s sale for the region is the revelation that unsecured creditors may receive just 5c on the dollar for the amounts they are owed.

Without gazing into a crystal ball-esque list of such unsecured creditors, it would still stand to reason a decent proportion of them would be locally based.

Therefore, while a sale was necessary to progress the situation, this outcome could result in further dollars exiting the Riverland economy, from businesses that are already struggling due to the wine industry picture.

Another less-than-ideal aspect of the sale is that the current stockpile of wine will still need to be sold off by administrators, although money reportedly being put aside to ensure redundant employees receive full entitlements will be a relief for those families.

As touched upon further in today’s edition – by the region’s federal member – does this strengthen the case for economic support to be provided to growers in a region like that Riverland that has seemingly taken punch after punch to the value of its wine production?

While we may only be seeing a somewhat isolated case when it comes to Salena Estate at the moment, without mitigation and support, the closures and sales will start becoming more frequent.

Dedicated, friendly, and community-minded, former Renmark, Riverland and South Australian distinguished rural journalist, Arch Grosvenor, was born in Victor Harbour, in April 1911. His family were early settlers in Encounter Bay and the young Arch began working life sweeping floors for the local newspaper, the Victor Harbor Times. His talent for writing was soon recognised and he rose rapidly through the ranks, becoming rural journalist and editor of the Times. A keen and talented sportsman, he rode his horse on Saturdays from Victor to Adelaide to play cricket for Glenelg. In the early hours of Sunday 3 April 1938, Arch was riding the overnight ‘mail’ bus to Renmark on his first visit to the Upper Murray (now, the Riverland). He came as editor of The Murray Pioneer, a position he loved and excelled in until his departure in 1965. At Renmark, he and wife Judy, from Maitland, were associated with most aspects of community and sporting life. He was a councillor on the Corporation for six years, a Justice of the Peace, and a delegate to the Murray Valley Development League. Accountability for Loxton library?

JUST wanting to know what was the original cost of the Loxton library and how much is it costing now, with how many blow-outs in the budget?

Plus, who is accountable for these costs and who is paying for them, as in my view the library is used minimally and there was nothing wrong with the old one.

Are staff involved going to be sanctioned because of what has happened?

Well, as a ratepayer, like many of us, someone or management should be accountable, as in these times us plebs have to count our dollars daily.

Taking the right path to net zero

Regional Australia is worse off under Labor.

The rising cost of energy is not only hurting households, but putting increasing pressure on primary production and processing sectors at a time when they can least afford it.

Labor’s all-eggs-in-one-basket renewables only approach to energy policy is throwing a future made and grown in Australia into doubt.

Regional communities are feeling it first-hand as the food and fibre grown and processed here depends on reliable and affordable energy.

From irrigating crops, milking cows, milling timber, or processing our meat and seafood, dairy, grain or horticultural products, reliable and affordable energy underpins the entire supply chain.

There are many paths to net zero and if we take the wrong one, the consequences will be dire. Unfortunately, we are already seeing the consequences of bad energy policy play out right here in Barker.

I believe the right path for Australia’s energy security includes a combination of energy sources, while we transition in a measured and considered way that won’t cripple our economy in the process.

A path that includes zero-emissions nuclear energy to complement renewables and gas.

Under a Coalition Government, we can lower emissions, support our regions and ensure a strong economy for Australia’s future, made and grown in Australia.

Find out more about how zero-emissions nuclear energy can re-energise the Australian economy, build our sovereign capability, support our regions and set the nation up for a new era of economic prosperity at the website (www.australianeedsnuclear.org.au/our-plan).

River navigation sticking point

OVER the last couple of months after getting the PS Industry stuck at Settlers Bend, below Lock 5, I have been trying to get something done about navigation issues on the River Murray.

I have been met with a complete lack of interest by the State Government, and the Department of Environment and Water (DEW) handballing it to the Department of Infrastructure and Transport (DIT).

They say that because in 1995 the River Murray was omitted from the list of harbours and ports in SA, that it is no longer any government department’s concern.

We currently have houseboat companies not allowing vessels to go below Lock 5 as they end up getting stuck at Settlers Bend and the SES is called out to assist.

The PS Industry volunteer group has taken time off from their normal daily lives to take the vessel to Mannum for the celebrations of the PS Marion in November and while it looks like we will have enough water at this stage, it would be a complete shame to only get to Settlers Bend and have to turn around.

There were many vessels who could not get to Wentworth for the Junction Rally in June because of Warrakoo only being 400mm deep in sections.

So the PS Industry, the Oscar W and other smaller vessels missed out on a great opportunity to put money into the historic vessels’ coffers for their upkeep.

Now they are spending upwards of $5 million to run up to 200 megalitres a day down Bookmark Creek to make it canoe accessible and a habitat for native fish.

Bookmark Creek runs out right into the middle of Settlers Bend and when asked about the impacts of this, there was no answer from DIT or DEW, as they hadn’t considered the long-term impacts.

I can tell you the impacts will be a complete obstruction of what little channels remain there, with a lot of the water bypassing it already to go down Pike Creek and already further reducing the flow down the main channel.

When are we finally going to say enough is enough and get the government to fix up the dozen or so shallow spots on the river to allow navigation from Goolwa to Mildura, as was originally in the 1915 agreement between states?

This is slowly getting worse every year and it won’t be long before we are locked above each lock and weir, even though pool levels are normal.

This is costing money in lost tourism, as houseboats cruising to different towns to spend more money does not happen anymore.

I am all for environmental efforts to assist in helping the native fish thrive once more, but how much of the $5 million is to allow canoeists down a small creek, when we have hundreds of kilometres of creeks above Renmark?

I do not want to see navigation on the River Murray cease to exist unless we have floods.

It used to be the Kings Highway, and for the sake of a dozen or so spots it could be again.

Seeing the world in crayon colours

IT’S odd how we boil all of our lives’ complexities down to colours.

Red, blue, green, and teal colours, standing in for our political parties and their philosophies.

Or combinations of colours, like the red, white and blue, representing nations of hundreds of millions of people.

It’s almost like we prefer to think in crayon.

I get it. Life is difficult enough without having to read every End User Licence Agreement, Terms and Conditions, Privacy Policy or read how important cookies are.

For the world, probably the most complex issue is the war in Ukraine that has seen us pay more for fuel, and that war spread to Africa, the Middle East, Eastern Europe and Western Asia.

For Australia the most complex issue is housing.

What is the simple answer? Is there a colour that will fix all the problems? I don’t think so.

But doing what we have been doing is not going to fix anything.

My frustration is the eternal query, what can one person do? Write letters to the editor?

I don’t think I can do anything for world peace, but perhaps I can help create more housing in Australia. I would like that.

To help people get a house they can make a home and have children in.

Or perhaps I’m dreaming. Like a child drawing a house with crayons. A tree in the yard, a sun in the corner, and smiling faces.

Petition for rural Australian health

AUSTRALIANS from across the country are being asked by the National Rural Health Alliance to exercise their right to sign a petition to the Federal Government to ensure a healthier

facebook/themurraypioneer

murraypioneer.com.au

rural Australia.

The petition calls for a 10-year National Rural Health Strategy which ensures federal and state governments and territories make an agreement to ensure rural Australia receives better healthcare access.

Currently, rural people receive less access to health care and spend less on their health care per person than those who live in the cities.

Every Australian citizen is being called on to join with the National Rural Health Alliance and sign this petition to the House of Representatives.

It will let politicians know that Australia needs improved rural health care and ensure that every person, regardless of their location and postcode, has access to the quality care they deserve.

To sign the petition, visit the website (www.aph.gov.au/e-petitions/petition/EN6617).

Signatures can be collected until 10 October 2024.

Nearly 7,000,000 Australians living and working outside of cities are being denied the basic human right to health care and wellbeing and are dying 12-to-16-years younger than their urban counterparts.

This petition underscores that rural health has been neglected in policy, budgets and priority settings for too long and that Commonwealth and State investments and policies are neither co-ordinated, nor sustained.

Rural Australians make up 30 per cent of the Australian population, bring in two-thirds of Australia's export earnings, 50 per cent of tourism income and produce over 90 per cent of Australia's food.

Yet, governments spend $848 less per person, per year, on the health of a person living rurally than someone who lives in the city.

The Alliance's three-point plan for building a healthier future for rural Australia includes:

- A National Rural Health Strategy under the National Health Reform Agreement to co-ordinate Commonwealth, State and Territory investment, policy and service delivery for rural Australia to be funded through.
- A $1 billion National Rural Health Fund for blended health delivery payments and infrastructure for rural communities where they have difficulty attracting and retaining the health workforce they need and where costs are higher for rural businesses. This makes it more difficult to access health services when needed and to receive care that can help prevent more serious illness. supported by.

■ Long-term funding of the National Rural Health Alliance to work as the enabler and conduit between communities, grassroots clinicians, entities and Governments and specific funding for a Rural Health Innovation and Evidence Hub, hosted by the Alliance to learn and share the lessons from rural innovation across Australia.

The anniversary to forget?

MY hope is that this first is the last Voice anniversary to be given oxygen.

It was no.

No nationally and absolutely no in the state of South Australia, where the no referendum verdict was 64 per cent and more than 90 per cent of SA's eligible voters participated.

It was the yes side with all its money, all its institutional support and the full backing of the Albanese Labor Government that lost and is fixated on not accepting this true version of history.

The yes vote was proven to be on the wrong side of history. There is no need for a re-visit, no need for distortion, no need for a different trojan horse.

Can we just get on with focusing on the economy because jobs and opportunities improve lives – not a divisive, risky advocacy group talking to everyone on pretty much everything.

For more than 12 months the Albanese Government was wholly focused on the 2023 Voice to Parliament Referendum while cost-of-living issues were front of mind for everyday Australians – yes, even the most vulnerable and disadvantaged were concerned about that.

I've not seen examples of the misinformation or disinformation with which the yes side remain obsessed, but I do recall ever-changing narratives from the Voice being non-justiciable to justiciable, able to talk to parliament then to government, and that this unknown concept would change lives.

Yet over the same period this Labor Government took away the Cashless Debit Card from those communities who wanted it. It also refused to act on organisations of which serious questions related to governance and service delivery were being asked and who were obviously requiring audit.

Instead, this Albanese Government was focused on the wrong priorities, with the wrong approach, and spent $450 million on their failed Voice.

This was not a no to improving the better opportunity for the most vulnerable. It was a big no to the path the yes side was pushing.

It was time and money wasted. Neither the government, publicly and philanthropically funded organisations, nor the corporates can deny their money could have been used to do good in different ways.

Now let's get that audit of service providers who make up the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander service delivery sector to start making a difference where it will count and that is from the very day we get one.

Voters to seek real climate action?

It is now apparent to myself, and I am certain also to a great many people in Australia, that our federal government has dropped the ball, to a large extent, in relation to countering human-induced climate change and related matters.

The last federal election result was greatly influenced by the large volume of voters' climate-related concerns.

It now is glaringly evident that many of those concerns remain current, or have not been dealt with in a satisfactory manner since the last election.

Delaying action concerning the phasing out of burning coal and natural gas to produce energy is a prime example.

It seems to be obvious that the next federal election will again be greatly influenced by climate-related matters, but this time voters will be no doubt seeking real action, not only promises.

Aldi eyes Riverland

ALDI EYES RIVERLAND: DISCOUNT supermarket chain Aldi has confirmed it has spoken with two local councils as it eyes the Riverland as a location for one of 50 new South Australian stores. An Aldi Australia spokesperson told the Pioneer yesterday it had spoken with both Berri Barmera and Renmark Paringa councils about possible locations for a store in the region. A local store could support 15 to 20 employees in a 1500sqm space.

$21.4M SALT SCHEME: Work on the $21.4 million Loxton Salt Interception Scheme began on Wednesday. The new scheme will prevent more than 70 tonnes of salt from reaching the River Murray each day. The project follows on from the Bookpurnong Salt Interception Scheme, on which construction began in August 2003. River Murray Minister Karlene Maywald said once the two projects were complete more than 150 tonnes of salt would be removed from the waterway each day.

It is brilliant that the three Riverland councils worked together on the fixing of Lyrup Road. Ella, Trevor, Peter, Tim, Tony and David should achieve great things for our region of the next few years if they keep working together as a team.

I was alarmed by Con Poulos' statement we are free from a permanent fruit fly presence ('Safeguarding for South Australia's $1.3bn horticulture industry', Murray Pioneer, 16/10/24). After four years with an ever-growing number of outbreaks, that can only mean fruit fly is continually being brought into the region. If PIRSA is unable to prevent this from happening, then in my eyes all other measures are futile. If their strategy is so effective, then why have none of the 53 outbreaks been downgraded from red areas to yellow or green?

Celebrating 30 years of roses

MADISON EASTMOND

NOW fully in bloom, the 30th anniversary of the Riverland Rose and Garden Festival began its region-wide celebrations last week.

The 2024 program kicked off on Friday with a number of popular returning components, including the Waikerie and Districts Community Flower Show, Renmark Institute floral display, Gala Dinner, and the Festival Fair.

Riverland Rose and Garden Festival Committee president Michelle Dominic said the opening of the celebrations “couldn’t have been better.”

“The weather has just been absolutely perfect,” she said.

“Waikerie started off the celebrations with the community flower show... and the Gala Dinner held on the Friday night has received fantastic feedback.

“We had over 90 stalls at the Festival Fair on Saturday — it was a day of gorgeous weather, and (ABC television Gardening Australia presenter) Sophie Thompson gave a great talk to those who attended and officially opened the festival for us.

“The Renmark Institute also had magnificent displays of arrangements and the bus tour with Sophie was just brilliant — those attending loved it, Sophie is just so down to earth and made it very successful.

“And now it will just continue with open gardens and other events taking place throughout the week.”

Ms Dominic said that the 30th anniversary has been “much bigger and busier” as compared to the rose and garden festivals held before.

“We have met lots of people from interstate, even those who changed their itineraries to attend the festival, so the economical impact would have been great.

“People have really embraced the Festival this year.”

Attending the weekend of rose festivities, Riverland-based SA Liberal Senator, and niece of the late rose expert David Ruston, Anne Ruston, said it was “fantastic to be back to celebrate the 30 years of Rose Festivals”.

“It just seems like yesterday we were organising the first one, and then here we are at number 30 — it’s brilliant,” she said.

“Obviously, the festival has been a huge part of my family life over the years. Unfortunately, I didn’t inherit a green finger, but I just love coming back into the community and seeing everyone come together and getting into nature. Community is something that is often overlooked in city areas, so it is wonderful to be back in the Riverland and feel and see its importance.”

Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone said the weekend included “people from far and wide enjoying the region, and driving the economy”.

“Everyone I spoke to commented on how well presented the Riverland was,” he said.

“Which was good, because we want everyone that visits the Riverland to be an ambassador. If they are good ambassadors, it will drive the visitor economy.”

For more information on the Riverland Rose and Garden Festival, visit the website (www.riverlandrosesandgardens.com.au), or pick up a full program at any Riverland visitor information centre.

Riverland rosarian pair honoured

HONOURING long-term contributions and passion towards the annual Renmark Institute floral display, the Riverland Rose and Garden Committee celebrated local women Jill Knight and Lorna Taylor, as they finish their final festival.

Presented with a gift of gratitude and thanks last Friday night at the Riverland Rose and Garden Festival Gala Dinner, Ms Knight and Ms Taylor announced they would be stepping back from their long-term roles of co-ordinators of the Renmark Institute floral display.

“(Ms Knight and Ms Taylor) were the engine room of the Institute,” Riverland Rose and Garden Festival Committee president Michelle Dominic said.

“They have been instrumental to the continual running of the Institute floral display, and integral to keeping the display to its high and beautiful standard.”

When The Murray Pioneer asked how long Ms Knight and Ms Taylor had been involved with the institute’s floral display, Ms Knight said she “wasn’t too sure”.

“You forget where all the years go.”

Similarly, Ms Taylor believes she has been involved in the display for “around 25 years”.

Though an incredible amount of work was required putting the display together, each year with different themes, Ms Knight and Ms Taylor said they returned annually for their “love for the festival... and the rose.”

“We get a great satisfaction when people come in and say how lovely it is,” Ms Taylor said.

Proud to be recognised for their efforts,

Stepping down from their roles of co-ordinators of the Renmark Institute floral display, Lorna Taylor and Jill Knight have been honoured for their long-term contributions and passion. PHOTO: Madison Eastmond both Ms Knight and Ms Taylor said they would like to thank the volunteers they “rely heavily” on.

“Without those girls, we wouldn’t be able to do it,” Ms Knight said.

“It has been a great success... volunteers have always come across the Riverland to help and we have been very lucky to have them.”

Hopes rain will break drought pattern

CHRISTINE WEBSTER

THE organisation representing farmers in the Mallee is hoping the arrival of the first decent downpour of rain since January has broken a pattern of drought conditions.

Mallee Sustainable Farming (MSF) delivers Research Development and Extensions services to farmers based in low-rain-fall areas of the Riverland, Murray Mallee, north west Victoria and south west New South Wales.

MSF communications and extension manager Tanja Morgan, who is based in Geranium in the Murray Mallee, said for growers who had sowed their crops a bit later in the season, last week's rain may have been beneficial.

"For anyone who still has some green crops, it would probably help fill the grain that is there a little bit better," she said.

"But in terms of improving the outcome of a poor year, we are way too late for that.

"It will only help whatever is not yet ripe to finish properly."

According to the Bureau of Meteorology, 32mm of rain fell between 9pm on Thursday, until 3am on Friday, at Loxton.

A total of 25.2mm of rain was recorded at Renmark between 3pm on Thursday, to 9am on Friday, and Glue Pot Station, at Waikerie, received 29.2mm of rain on Friday.

Ms Morgan said for farmers who had already started harvesting their crops, the rain had arrived far too late and was probably more of a "nuisance".

She said some grain producers had also started making hay and too much rain could cause damage.

But Ms Morgan said farmers would welcome more rain in summer to replenish the soil moisture for next year.

She said the Bureau of Meteorology rainfall records indicated many Mallee farming areas in SA had experienced six months of drought conditions.

Ms Morgan said she had experienced her lowest rainfall season on record on her grain and hay-producing property at Geranium.

"It has pretty much written off the growing season," she said.

Ms Morgan said farmers that were able to put in place good practices, such as storing fallow moisture with good summer weed control, had managed to sow early.

She said those that had established seed on better soil types would have had some crops come up early.

But Ms Morgan said the devastating frost last month wiped out a lot of the wheat, canola, pulses and some barley.

She said it would assist farmers if Australian governments publicly acknowledged a drought.

State and federal governments no longer officially make drought declarations.

"It is important that governments acknowledge what farmers are going through," Ms Morgan said.

She said she understood why they no longer made drought declarations.

"I see why they do it as they don't want it to come with requests for a hand out," Ms Morgan said.

"However it is really important that farmers feel validated with what they are going through and the flow on effect it has on rural communities.

"In the past, exceptional circumstances have been declared after two years of drought."

Ms Morgan encouraged farmers going through financially tough times to reach out for business support through rural financial counselling.

"That would be the first point of call," she said.

"When those services are used a lot, that gets fed back to government departments and can trigger a response in terms of validating current hardship."

Farmers in NSW and Victoria will donate hay to struggling livestock producers across SA.

Aussie Hay Runners, operated by the Heyfield Lions Club, in Gippsland, Victoria, is expected to arrive in Tailem Bend early next month.

The trucks will then deliver hay to farmers in areas that include Morgan, Mt Mary, Loveday, Parilla, Truro and the Mid North.

A total of 25.2mm of rain was recorded at Renmark between 3pm on Thursday, to 9am on Friday, and Glue Pot Station, at Waikerie, received 29.2mm of rain on Friday.

Key issues heard at Bush Summit

CHALLENGES surrounding increasing power and agricultural input costs were among the main topics at a recent regional forum.

Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone was among attendees of the recent Advertiser Bush Summit, held in Maclaren Vale.

Mr Whetstone said the forum provided an opportunity to highlight the key issues facing regional communities.

“The Bush Summit is aimed to give regional Australia a platform, and particularly for (regional) South Australia,” he said.

“It highlights where we see blockages, (and) where we see government intervention having an adverse impact.”

Mr Whetstone said difficulties resulting from increasing farming input costs were highlighted at the forum.

“The cost of producing food now has gotten to a point where it’s really impacting on the viability of a farm,” he said.

“There’s input costs and power costs, and sometimes they can pass the costs on, but a lot of the times they can’t.

“That’s a real conundrum for farmers, and what does it mean for the future of farming?”

Mr Whetstone said increased support was needed for South Australian farmers to grow international trade and lower energy costs.

“A lot (of discussion) was focused around trade,” he said.

“If the farmer is going to continue to invest... they need to have the confidence they can do that.

“The majority of the primary industries have been proactive, they’ve put in solar power, more efficient pumps... doing everything they can in the shed.

“Everyone’s playing their role to reduce costs, the only one who isn’t playing that role is the government.”

Mr Whetstone said discussions at the event illustrated more information was also needed for local wine grape growers beginning preparations for the next vintage.

“I have concerns we aren’t addressing the issue, and what varieties do the wineries – or our global trading partners want?” he said

“There needs to be more of that information being given to the grower.”

Survey for SA ageing plan

RIVERLANDERS are being invited to complete a survey aiming to help set the priorities for the state’s next ageing plan.

The current 2020-2025 plan is under review and locals aged 50-plus can voice their opinion to help understand how older South Australians are experiencing ageing.

South Australia’s Plan for Ageing Well outlines the state’s vision and priorities that support older people to live happy, connected, and meaningful lives, with the survey exploring housing, social connections and community support through the different stages of retirement.

Minister for Seniors and Ageing Well Nat Cook said “there are many factors that impact how we age, including gender, culture, disability and location, with some experiencing ageing better than others”.

“This is why we want to hear from South Australians aged 50-plus on what ageing well means to them and what issues they are facing,” Ms Cook said.

“By taking a few minutes to complete the survey, people will contribute to shaping policies that directly affect so many of us, help to identify what’s working well and what needs improvement, and ensure their voice is heard in planning for the future of ageing well in South Australia.”

These insights will help ensure that future government policies and initiatives align with the needs and aspirations of South Australia’s diverse ageing population.

Eligible locals can access the survey visiting the website (www.seniorcard.sa.gov.au/weekendplus/news/living-and-ageing-well-community-perception-review-survey) or (www.clearhorizon.checkboxau.com/community-perceptions-survey).

The survey closes on Thursday 31 October, 2024.

Rural ambulance volunteers struggle with birth emergencies

VOLUNTEER ambulance officers (VAOs) are vital to Australia’s healthcare system, particularly in rural and remote communities like the Riverland, however, new research has revealed that many VAOs frequently feel unprepared and under resourced when faced with unplanned out-of-hospital births.

Although unplanned out-of-hospital births are rare (less than one per cent), VAOs must be prepared to provide critical care in these high-risk situations. However, new Edith Cowan University (ECU) research has revealed that many VAOs frequently feel unprepared in such emergencies.

The study, led by ECU PhD Candidate Michella Hill, investigated Australian VAOs’ perceptions of their training, experience and confidence regarding unplanned out-of-hospital births, and planned homebirths with obstetric emergencies where ambulance assistance is required.

“There are more than 7000 volunteer ambulance officers in Australia,” Ms Hill said.

“They are unsung heroes in rural and remote areas providing a vital service, with some communities relying solely on VAOs in medical emergencies.

“However, our research has shown that these volunteers are facing significant challenges when attending unplanned out-of-hospital births.”

The study found many rural VAOs felt anxious and uncomfortable attending unplanned out-of-hospital births and obstetric emergencies, perceiving they may have limited ability to manage complications due to a lack of education, training, exposure to births, and a narrow scope of practice.

VAOs were also concerned about the availability of backup from a registered paramedic, and the reliability of telecommunications in remote areas for online clinical advice and support.

“Given the distances to hospital care in regional Australia, these findings have serious implications for patient safety,” Ms Hill said.

The study identified four areas of concern, including:

- ❑ Confidence and anxiety where a lack of education and exposure to birth resulted in low confidence.
- ❑ Most participants reported significant anxiety attending obstetric callouts and explained under-utilisation of specific obstetric and neonatal skills meant skills decline was an issue.
- ❑ Limitations to scope of practice and medical equipment: All participants described the VAO scope of practice as restricted. If complications occur during childbirth, guidelines specify that VAOs seek assistance from a senior support officer and/or provide rapid transportation to definitive care (hospital). However, there was considerable apprehension regarding availability of senior support officers in rural areas.
- ❑ Logistical and communication difficulties: Long distances to hospital care, potentially limited backup during emergencies and possible unavailability of aeromedical retrieval increased perceived complexity of cases. Telecommunication ‘black holes’ created a sense of further isolation for VAOs requiring support from senior clinicians.
- ❑ Community expectations versus service delivery: There was a perception that many members of the public were unaware VAOs often staffed the local ambulance and expected VAOs to have the same scope of practice as a registered paramedic.

The NEONATE in VR simulation program (Novel Educational Overview of the Neonatal Apgar and Treatment Experience in Virtual Reality) is specifically designed to provide virtual exposure to a neonate born out of hospital.

The training helps refresh essential skills in assessing and managing newborns, including the one-minute Apgar score taken right after birth. It’s designed to strengthen basic knowledge, helping users understand what’s normal, and not normal, for neonates and the clinical management to ensure the best outcomes.

“The VR program offers consistent feedback without needing an educator, making it a flexible tool that can fit into any schedule,” Ms Hill said.

“Given the medical profession has embraced VR for surgical training, it seems timely that paramedicine adopts similar innovations for clinical education.”

The NEONATE in VR simulation program is expected to be available later this year.

Council hears call for extra road funding

SEBASTIAN CALDERON

A RIVERLAND council has been asked to support calls for expanded funding to maintain and upgrade regional roads.

Loxton Waikerie councillors at last week’s general meeting noted a letter received by Wattle Range Council Mayor Des Noll regarding the condition of South Australia’s regional road network.

In the letter, addressed to South Australia Premier Peter Malinauskas and shared with different state councils, Mr Noll explained the current condition and disrepair of several Department of Infrastructure (DIT) roads within his area and urged other councils to support a signed letter, asking the State Government for a DIT maintenance budget increase.

“I am advocating for a significant increase to the Department of Transport’s annual maintenance budget to clear a $1.9b backlog in road maintenance and retaining the department’s ongoing maintenance funding at a sustainable level,” Mr Noll said.

“We are also advocating for the return of suitably qualified and authorised department resources to the regions to oversee the condition of the regional road network and provide greater oversight over private contractor performance.”

Loxton Waikerie council director of infrastructure services Greg Perry, in response to the letter said “most DIT roads in the Loxton Waikerie district are currently in reasonable condition”.

“Road edge maintenance is becoming and will continue to be an issue with the larger heavy vehicles that are now common on most of the DIT roads, and may mean that future road edge sealing is required,” he said.

“The worst DIT road in our council area would be Bookpurnong Road from Loxton to Berri, which is very undulating and rough, particularly across the top of Bookpurnong Hill.

“Council has started some of the road-side preparation for civil works which will begin in the upcoming months

- Greg Perry

“As traffic increases, attention is also needed at a number of intersections that lead on to Bookpurnong Road, close to Loxton.”

Mr Perry said “expenditure and capital work in future years will need to be increased to ensure roads are kept at current levels”.

“The major upgrade this financial year is the last stage of Billiat Road to council’s boundary with Southern Mallee, widening and resealing a 16km section with the assistance of Roads to Recovery component of the Special Local Roads Program federal funding,” he said.

“Council has started some of the roadside preparation for civil works which will begin in the coming months.”

With the upcoming upgrades to different roads across council, approval times between the proposed repairs and the start of civil works, can vary between projects.

“There are many factors to be considered such as current condition, vehicle numbers, types and sizes of vehicles, the purpose of the road (local commuter, tourism, heavy vehicle freight use), overall costs, timing and available funds,” Mr Perry said.

“Generally speaking, projects like this will be considered as part of the budgeting process ahead of each financial year and are endorsed as part of the Annual Business Plan.”

70 years of life and love with Rodney and Pauline

MADISON EASTMOND

TYING the knot 70 years ago, Riverland couple Rodney and Pauline Edmonds are celebrating a platinum union that has truly stood the test of time.

Meeting as teenagers at Renmark High School, the happy couple will celebrate their 70th wedding anniversary today to mark almost a life-time together.

However, Mr and Mrs Edmonds said there was “no secret” to their lasting marriage, only that they have always “worked together, as well as trusted and understood each other”.

Married in 1954 when they were both in their early 20s, the Riverlanders spent their days part of many community groups, working the fruit block, caravanning with their three children — Philip,

Elizabeth, and Louise — and travelling the world.

Close to 35 years ago, Mr and Mrs Edmonds decided to move into Renmark and retire to be around family, which now includes four grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren.

“We are very lucky to have nearly every family member near us — they have always been so good to us,” Mrs Edmonds said.

“It has been a great 70 years and I wouldn’t change a thing.

“We are just so happy to be here, together.”

South Australian driver training set for major overhaul

A MAJOR overhaul of the state’s driver training procedures, covering new Riverland drivers, is part of a new proposed bill to Parliament aiming to improve motorist skills, tackle corruption and predatory behaviour.

Driver training laws are set for a major reform under the proposed bill, which will see practical driving tests for Class C (car) licences start to be carried out by government examiners instead of private operators, with the State Government committing to strengthen industry standards, enhance accountability and improve safety outcomes for new drivers.

The new proposed legislative change include:

- Competency Based Training Assessment (the logbook method) will have a new format, with learner drivers required to pass a practical driving test with a government examiner to obtain their provisional licence.
- Driving instructors will be required to demonstrate good character, provide evidence of medical fitness and will be subject to enhanced practical driving and theory tests to enter the industry and maintain accreditation.

- Industry standards of behaviour will be formalised into a Code of Practice with sanctions for breaches.
- Mandatory cameras and GPS will be required to be installed in all driver training vehicles, providing protection for both the trainer and student.
- Instructors will be required to increase transparency by disclosing information in writing about their payments, fees and services.
- Additional learning resources and consumer information will be developed to help better inform and prepare parents, industry members and the learner driver.

“The changes will create a safer environment for learner drivers and drivers, while cleaning up the corruption, misconduct and low standards in the industry,” said Minister for Infrastructure and Transport Tom Koutsantonis.

“A competent driver training industry will lead to more skilled, competent and safer motorists on our roads, improving safety for everyone.

“Driving students will benefit from more affordable tests and they can have confidence that they will receive higher standards of training for their money.

“The seriousness of the misconduct and corruption in the industry requires practical driving tests to return to government hands,” said Mr Koutsantonis.

Private operators under the current outsourced program will be able to continue delivering driver training, but with new and higher mandatory industry standards.

A recent survey showed the median price for on-road testing was $319, with some instructors and businesses charging in excess of $300 and some charging $400 or more.

The proposed reform would lower the cost of a driving test to a standardised fee of $240.

A two-year transition period with industry engagement is anticipated if legislation is approved and authorised examiners can submit their test and application for a Government Examiner position.

A review into the industry by the Department for Infrastructure and Transport sparked the upcoming reforms, with the department noticing the necessity to strengthen current industry standards and address serious issues of inappropriate and criminal behaviour.

At the moment, South Australia is one of two states that have fully outsourced training and examination functions.

Heavy vehicle training is set to remain within the private sector, adding cameras and GPS tracking with the introduction of a mandatory code of practice.

Exhibition of Riverland talent now on display

MADISON EASTMOND

U3A Riverland is showcasing the work of more than 40 local artists this week to mark the region’s rose celebrations.

The U3A Riverland art group last Friday decorated the walls of the Renmark Paringa Council Chambers exhibition room with a diverse range of creative works.

Aiming to encourage the community to come along and enjoy or purchase the displayed work, the Riverland Rose and Garden Festival event also directed those interested in arts to join the group in their creative endeavours and ongoing efforts to share artistic joy and knowledge in the region.

A non-profit community organisation for those over the age of 50, U3A provides a range of activities that promote mental, social, and physical wellbeing with free classes held in various venues across the Riverland.

“This is a collection pulled from all the hard work of the U3A art group,” U3A Riverland art tutor Kate Yates said.

“We encourage everyone who is interested in art to come and join us — it is such fun... (and) where learning and sharing is encouraged, (along with) developing a supportive friendship group.”

Launching the exhibition, Renmark Paringa Mayor Peter Hunter thanked the U3A art group for “brightening the (exhibition room) ... and the world”.

“I am really keen that (the Renmark Paringa Council) support the arts... and to have this in the council building is just fantastic and I would love to see it continue in the future.

“To see all these works is wonderful... with beauty and memories that can be sparked, it allows a moment and breath to view away from the rush we all have every day.”

The exhibition will be open from 10am to 4pm, until Sunday 27 October.

Nominate now for Australia Day honours

RIVERLANDERS are being encouraged to highlight the community contributions of locals for the annual Citizen of the Year Awards.

Nominations recently opened for the 2025 awards, including for Renmark Paringa Council, District of Loxton Waikerie Council and Berri Barmera Council.

Categories for the awards include Citizen of the Year, Young Citizen of the Year, Community Event of the Year and Award for Active Citizenship.

Renmark man Alan Coulter, who was the 2024 Renmark Paringa Council Citizen of the Year, said receiving the award was a humbling experience.

“It was an honour, and the last thing in the world I expected,” Mr Coulter said.

“But at the same time, basically you’re being awarded for the services you’ve done.

“You’re not looking for payment or pats on the back, but that’s one big pat on the back.”

Mr Coulter said nominating fellow locals for the Australia Day awards was a key way of highlighting positive impacts on their surrounding community.

“There’s a hell of a lot of people in Renmark Paringa for example that should be recognised,” he said.

“There are people out there doing a great job for the community, but until somebody nominates them, we don’t know anything about it.”

Nominations for the Citizen of the Year close on Friday 15 November.

To nominate a worthy recipient from Berri Barmera Council or Renmark Paringa Council visit (www.citizenoftheyear.com.au).

Or to nominate someone for the District Council of Loxton Waikerie awards visit (www.loxtonwaikerie.sa.gov.au/community-information/citizen-of-the-year-awards).

The following two editions of The Murray Pioneer will look at the experiences of former winners from Berri Barmera Council and the District Council of Loxton Waikerie.

Rocktober weekend gets all moving

AFTER much planning and preparation, the eagerly anticipated Rocktober dance weekend, in Berri, was a resounding success.

Organised by the River Rock Dance Club (RRDC), the weekend saw over 120 dancers on Friday and over 160 on the Saturday night.

The ‘Gangsters and Gals’ theme of Saturday encouraged some amazing outfits from both the ladies and gents.

This, combined with the era-specific decorations and the music provided by The Windsor Kids, all added up to a truly fantastic two nights of dancing.

The weekend finished with breakfast at the Berri Marina and then a pizza night at the Berri Caravan park.

The weekend would not have been possible without the backing of the Berri Barmera Council and the many local businesses who generously supported the club’s raffle of over 70 prizes.

The RRDC looks forward to an even more fantastic Rocktober in 2025, which will celebrate the club’s 30 years – with our 25th being cancelled due to Covid-19.

Loxton's High School Ping Pong marathon

SEBASTIAN CALDERON

A LOCAL high school held a special fundraising event aimed to combat human trafficking and the exploitation of young people in South East Asia.

The Loxton High School's Ping Pong-A-Thon was held last weekend, with participants playing table tennis for 24 hours, raising a total of $12,227 in donations from the $15,000 goal.

With almost $300,000 raised in 2024 across different events, Loxton High School teacher Ben Grieger said "it's not just about the money, it's about the awareness and the change in mindset that we are supporting".

"We have had almost 1000 participants over the last 10 years and every single one of them leaves the event with a growing awareness of how they can be difference makers and world changers, that they have the power to literally save the lives of others," Mr Grieger said.

"This is so powerful when it is young people who are stepping up and standing in the gap to help others who can't help themselves and I am so proud of our community.

"It's so cool to know that even here in the Riverland, we can help bring freedom to victims of exploitation overseas."

For information about the events, including how much money has been raised, visit the website (www.pingpongathon.com).

Details about the Ping Pong-A-Thon

❑ The Ping Pong-A-thon is a table tennis marathon to raise money and awareness to help end human trafficking and sexual exploitation around the world.

❑ Has been running nationally since 2011 and has raised over $4m dollars.

❑ Loxton has been involved since 2015, with 2024 being the 10th year supporting the event.

❑ Over the last 10 years, more than $150,000 has been raised in Loxton.

Farmer support brekkie being held in Loxton

A COMMUNITY event will be held in Loxton today, designed to provide community members the opportunity to connect with support services in an informal environment.

Grain Producers SA (GPSA), in partnership with Fat Farmers, have organised the community breakfast in a bid to provide support to grain producers and regional communities who have been affected by current industry challenges.

GPSA chief executive officer Brad Perry said "many South Australian grain producers are facing incredibly challenging times due to the severity of the current drought, with some regions recording record low growing season rainfall this year."

"These events are open to everyone, whether you're a grain producer, a local community member, or part of the broader agriculture industry," Mr Perry said.

"We encourage people to come along, have a chat, and take advantage of the resources and support on offer, with a space for people to take a break, share a bite to eat, and connect with others who are going through similar experiences.

"We are proud to partner with Fat Farmers and other key organisations like the Department of Primary Industries and Regions (PIRSA), ifarmwell and Rural Business Support (RBS) to bring these events to life.

"It's not just about providing a bite to eat – it's about creating a supportive environment where people can come together, talk, and get off farm for a couple of hours.

"In tough times, the strength of our farming communities is remarkable. We're hopeful these barbecues will offer some relief, connection, and support to those who need it most."

Apart from the barbecue, interested people can also participate in a walk, run or light exercise at 8.30am, organised by Fat Farmers.

Fat Farmers chairman Richard Sheppy said "looking out for each other is vital in challenging times".

"We are undoubtedly facing one of the toughest seasons for a long time and community connection has never been more important," Mr Sheppy said.

"At Fat Farmers we encourage connection through exercise and would invite everyone to join us for a walk, jog or some light-hearted activities to kick-start these events.

"Why not leave the work boots at home and pull on the joggers for a couple of hours? We are pretty sure you will feel better for it!"

The event will be held from 8.30am to 10.30am, at Apex Park, in Loxton.

Another steam locomotive for Cobdogla

THE Cobdogla Steam Friends Society took delivery of its latest acquisition on Sunday 6 October with the arrival at their Loveday Workshops of a 1938 Perry Locomotive.

This locomotive was manufactured by Perry Engineering, in Mile End, as the second of a class of 18 locomotives built for the sugar mills in Queensland.

The loco was in service for only 20 years before being retired to a playground. It was then purchased for preservation.

After many years as a static exhibit on a private railway in Junee, NSW, the loco will be the society's third major restoration project.

The first project was the restoration of the big ploughing engine George William, donated to the society by former Barmera identity George Woolmer.

The current project is the soon-to-be-completed steam roller donated to the society by the Adelaide City Council. This project has been underway for a number of years and involved the complete strip down to component parts for rebuilding.

Currently the boiler has been made ready for steam testing, and once this has been completed, the steam roller will be reassembled and ready for a return to the museum when it is reopened.

The Steam Friends have formed a syndicate of members and friends to fund the purchase and restoration of the Perry loco. To date well over half the funds required have been raised, with shares being $250 each. Shares are still available for purchase by friends of the museum.

The Steam Friends have not been idle since SA Water closed the museum due to the flood. Members have been working from their Loveday Workshops on a number of projects, including a contract restoration of a Steam Traction Engine for the Franklin Harbour District Council. This project is also nearly completed.

The members have used the time since the flood to improve the workshops at Loveday and are currently rebuilding a front-end loader that suffered an electrical fire earlier this year.

The workshops are fitted out as a heavy engineering repair depot, with suitable machinery such as a big lathe, milling machine, shaper and surface grinder, 3 ton and 5 ton overhead gantry cranes and other machinery, to enable the members to undertake most of the various jobs needed in restoring heavy machinery. As can be imagined, parts for old machinery are no longer on the shelf, so all this machinery enables members to fabricate or repair whatever is needed for the restorations, and the old-time skills to do this work are kept alive.

The Steam Friends are hoping that the negotiations currently being held between SA Water and the Berri Barmera Council will mean the Crown lease for the museum will be handed to council to manage, with the Steam Friends being the operating body for the museum.

RFDS receives major new investment

RIVERLANDERS needing to be transported to Adelaide in emergency medical situations will benefit from new funding for the Royal Flying Doctor Service.

The State Government last week announced a $500m investment in a new agreement with the Royal Flying Doctor Service (RFDS SA/NT) to significantly boost aircraft services and staff, enabling faster patient transfers.

The new funding will increase RFDS operational capacity to four aircrafts during the daytime and three for overnight flights, including a dedicated emergency response aircraft.

The 10-year contract is part of a government-funded partnership to assist health services around the state.

The funding will also enable patients to be picked up faster, with new KPIs more than halving the target response time of take-off for priority 1 and 2 regional fixed wing retrievals and Inter Hospital Transfers contracted to the RFDS through SA Ambulance Service (SAAS).

Minister for Health and Wellbeing Chris Picton said "this huge new investment means patients in emergencies in our regions will be able to be retrieved for life-saving care faster than ever before".

"We want every South Australian, no matter where they are in the state, to have access to efficient and high-quality health care," Mr Picton said.

The RFDS frontline team will increase by 23.4 FTE staff, including nurses, pilots, engineers, clinical support and operations communications staff. Importantly, two dedicated nurses will be stationed 24/7 at the Adelaide Patient Transfer Facility, ensuring continuous patient care while keeping RFDS flight nurses ready to fly.

Under the new agreement, aircrafts have to be airborne within 20 minutes of being assigned to an emergency, reducing the previous 45-minute target by half, and the updated rapid response capability will allow SAAS to quickly access areas that previously required longer helicopter flights, dramatically enhancing access to critical care.

Royal Flying Doctor Service SA/NT Chairman Peter de Cure AM said "we are honoured to continue what is a remarkable partnership with the South Australian Government,"

"This new agreement will take this partnership to almost 40 years of collaboration and service, and Together, SAAS MedSTAR retrieval teams and RFDS aeromedical teams will deliver exceptional care for thousands of South Australians every year," Mr de Cure said.

Each flight will be staffed with RFDS nurses for inter-hospital urgent transfers or SAAS MedSTAR critical care teams of doctors, nurses and/or paramedics for retrieval cases.

Young talent shines at Bridge Congress

THE Riverland Bridge Club held another extremely successful Congress earlier this month, at The Precinct, in Loxton.

Players from around South Australia, Victoria and New South Wales competed, most notably Amos Capper, 10, from Broken Hill, who impressed everyone with his play, defence and concentration for a full day of bridge.

Amos and his father, Terry Capper, placed third in the East-West Pairs Final on Saturday, with 57.64 Victory Points.

The Congress is a great opportunity for local players to compete with state and Australian Bridge champions in the morning.

In the afternoon the field is split, with the top players competing in the Riverland Congress Finals and the rest playing in the Riverland Congress – Plate.

The visiting players were full of praise for the Congress venue, catering and the relaxed atmosphere.

The Riverland Bridge Club is very grateful for the support it receives from the Loxton Waikerie council, Angoves Family Wines, Loxton Hotel and Almondco.

Clarrie coming to promote dental health

HUGH SCHUITEMAKER

STUDENTS and aged care residents in two Riverland towns will be able to access free dental care through a national initiative. The Australian Dental Foundation (ADFi) will spend three weeks visiting schools and aged care facilities in Berri and Renmark with the dual surgery mobile dental clinic known as 'Clarrie'. ADFi chairman Greg Miller said working with children, aged care residents and vulnerable groups such as those living with homelessness, disability, or in regional areas, was a priority. "Taking dental care to children at their school is the most effective way to make sure our kids get the check-ups and treatment they need and it's also a great way to educate the students and their families about the importance of regular brushing and dental care," Dr Miller said. The mobile clinic will be set up at Our Lady of the River until 25 October, then at Berri Secondary College and Berri Primary School, with portable equipment for out-reach to aged care in Berri and Renmark. South Australia recorded a total of 8446 hospitalisations due to dental conditions in 2022-23. Dr Miller said the rates increased in regional areas. "Almost a quarter of the admissions, about 2000, were for children aged 5 to 9.

I think that would shock most people who would probably expect that older people would be more likely to be admitted for dental conditions," he said. "Last year we visited about 250 schools, childcare centres and kindergartens in SA, in the most disadvantaged areas. We provide checkups and treatments for children at no out-of-pocket expense for families, so we can reach the children who need us, before they end up in hospital."

$48m investment to support disengaged students

WITH the aim to ensure more students with complex needs continue their studies, a $48m state government investment is set to deliver major reform to Riverland public high schools. Funding additional staff, support for students, and ensuring a follow-up monitoring of student engagement and progress of those who have disengaged from school, the investment will develop a state-wide delivery of Tailored Learning, originally a support for students called Flexible Learning Options (FLO) that operated in SA since 2007. Supporting secondary students from years 8 up to the age of 21, the $48.3m initiative will be delivered over three years following successful trials in 12 public high schools, which have seen students receive additional in-school support to help them overcome adversity and re-engage with their education. A 2020 review of suspensions, exclusions and expulsions in South Australian government schools recommended the decommissioning of FLO, finding that, in many cases, it appears to compound student disengagement and segregation. Currently, there are 4360 students that access the FLO program, at 85 schools. The re-designed model gives schools greater oversight of the programs offered, puts more individualised supports in place for each student based on their needs and challenges, and encourages supports to be delivered within the school setting rather than offsite and away from their peers. The resulting learning plan, developed in consultation with the student based on their specific needs, skills and interests, will be delivered through:

- Part-time or full-time school study
- Vocational courses
- Online learning
- Work placement
- Volunteering
- Individual wellbeing and social programs

 "This is an important step forward in supporting some of our most vulnerable students to ensure they continue learning – making sure school works for every young person," Minister for Education, Training, and Skills Blair Boyer said. "We have long recognised that education is not one-size-fits all and this program is about reconnecting young people with their learning in a way that works best for them. "The best place to provide these supports is in a highly inclusive school setting where they can remain connected with their classmates and their teachers."

Grants available to support Youth Week events

GRANTS for Riverland community groups, non-government organisations, and local councils to run events and activities for next year's SA Youth Week are now open for applications. SA Youth Week is the largest annual celebration of young people and youth culture in South Australia and in 2025, SA Youth Week will be held from April 9 to 17. The SA Youth Week Grants provide funding of up to $2500 for organisations across the state to run youth-focused events that encourage 12 to 25 year olds to participate in their local communities. The grants will support young people to be involved in the planning and delivery of activities that celebrate youth culture and provide opportunities for young people to express their ideas and views, showcase their skills and talents, and act on issues that affect their lives. The grants also aim to see the wider community listen to young people, and acknowledge and celebrate the positive contributions that young people make to their communities. Total funding available this year is up to $70,000 – with 60 per cent of the funding being available for events in regional areas of the state. "I encourage grassroots organisations to get on board and apply for these grants which provide an opportunity to put on some innovative events and activities for our young people," Human Services Minister Nat Cook said. "This year the individual funding amount available to organisations for these grants has increased from $2000 to $2500. "Organisations have until late November to apply, and then, for the first time, young people from my Youth Ministerial Advisory Council will form part of the grants assessment panel, meaning young people themselves have a say in the judging process. "I encourage organisations to embrace the opportunity to apply for these grants, join the celebrations and play their part in positively impacting the future of young South Australians." Applications for the grants close at 3pm, on 29 November. For more information about the grants and how to apply, visit the website (www.dhs.sa.gov.au/grants).

C'mon! Celebrate Melbourne Cup day in the Riverland

A BUMPER 2024 spring racing carnival looks likely to continue during Melbourne Cup week, highlighted by Tuesday's "race that stops the nation".

As we approach this year's Melbourne Cup Day, excitement is beginning to build across the country. Fortunately, the Riverland offers some outstanding venues to enjoy the first Tuesday of November, and these are the key ways to get involved, and enjoy the day:

1. DRESS UP, GO TO A RIVERLAND VENUE

There's no need to sit at home and watch the race on TV, or huddle around a TV at work for 10 minutes, then resume duties immediately afterwards. There's nothing more Australian than attending a Melbourne Cup function: sweeps, champagne, fine fashion (for some), socialising – and a flutter on the race that stops a nation. The best advice is to take a few hours off on Tuesday to attend one of these advertised functions, before the race is run at 2pm (SA time).

2. ENTER A SWEEP

There are sweeps all over town, particularly in workplaces and local watering holes. A lot of people are happy to spend between one dollar and five dollars and be drawn a horse – lucky-dip style – in the field of 24 runners. Getting involved this way is an inexpensive, but still fun way to join in the spirit of Melbourne Cup Day.

3. GATHER FRIENDS AND FAMILY

Apart from its sporting significance, Melbourne Cup Day is also a big social event. Many Aussies look forward to inviting their friends and family members to their place to make the event even more attractive. You can also send invitations to others to your place or plan to gather with your loved ones at some other location to view the nail-biting contest as it happens. Other than enjoying the iconic event, do not forget to have some general fun around with your guests, wear special Melbourne Cup dresses, and make your day truly a memorable one.

4. DECORATIONS FOR A MELBOURNE CUP THEME

Deck out your office space with race day party supplies like banners, balloons, and table runners in racing colours. Incorporate the iconic colours of the race, such as green and gold, into your decor. Don't forget to add some elegant touches, like fresh flower arrangements or stylish table centrepieces, to reflect the sophistication of the event. Add some horse-themed decorations, like horseshoe garlands or miniature horse figurines, to emphasise the racing theme. Fake grass or astroturf can create a racetrack vibe, and don't forget racing flags. You could also host a desk decorating competition, where everyone has to decorate their desks with Melbourne Cup accessories, and whoever has the winning look gets a prize.

Driver training laws to receive major change

A MAJOR overhaul of the state’s driver training procedures, covering new Riverland drivers, is part of a new proposed bill to Parliament aiming to improve motorist skills, tackle corruption and predatory behaviour.

Driver training laws are set for a major reform under the proposed bill, which will see practical driving tests for Class C (car) licences will start to be carried out by government examiners instead of private operators, with the State Government committing to strengthen industry standards, enhance accountability and improve safety outcomes for new drivers.

The new proposed legislative change include:

- ❑ Competency Based Training Assessment (the logbook method) will have a new format, with learner drivers required to pass a practical driving test with a government examiner to obtain their provisional licence.
- ❑ Driving instructors will be required to demonstrate good character, provide evidence of medical fitness and will be subject to enhanced practical driving and theory tests to enter the industry and

- maintain ongoing accreditation.
 - ❑ Industry standards of behaviour will be formalised into a Code of Practice with sanctions for breaches.
 - ❑ Mandatory cameras and GPS will be required to be installed in all driver training vehicles, providing protection for both the trainer and student.
 - ❑ Instructors will be required to increase transparency by disclosing information in writing about their payments, fees and services.
 - ❑ Additional learning resources and consumer information will be developed to help better inform and prepare parents, industry members and the learner driver.
- “The changes will create a safer environment for learner drivers and drivers,” Minister for Infrastructure and Transport Tom Koutsantonis said.
- “While (also) cleaning up the corruption, misconduct and low standards in the industry.
- “A competent driver training industry will lead to more skilled, competent and safer motorists on our roads, improving safety for everyone.

“Driving students will benefit from more affordable tests and they can have confidence that they will receive higher standards of training for their money.

“The seriousness of the misconduct and corruption in the industry requires practical driving tests to return to government hands.”

Private operators under the current outsourced program will be able to continue delivering driver training, but with new and higher mandatory industry standards.

A recent survey showed the median price for on-road testing was $319, with some instructors and businesses charging in excess of $300 and some charging $400 or more.

The proposed reform would lower the cost of a driving test to a standardised fee of $240.

A two-year transition period with industry engagement is anticipated if legislation is approved.

Authorised examiners can submit their test and application for a Government Examiner position.

A review into the industry by the Department for Infrastructure and Transport sparked the upcoming reforms, with the department noticing the necessity to strengthen current industry standards and address serious issues of inappropriate and criminal behaviour.

At the moment, South Australia is one of two states that have fully outsourced training and examination functions.

Heavy vehicle training is set to remain within the private sector, adding cameras and GPS tracking with the introduction of a mandatory code of practice.

Public consultation open for review of South Australian environmental policy

THE EPA is proposing important changes to ensure the quality of Riverland water environments in a review of the Environment Protection (Water Quality) Policy 2015, with aims to provide improved protection of groundwater systems against pollution.

The EPA is also proposing to recognise cultural and spiritual values in South Australian waters, with the revamped policy aiming to acknowledge that waters in South Australia have significance to First Nations Peoples that goes beyond primary industry uses, drinking water uses, and aquatic ecosystems.

The consultation, which opened last week, outlines five areas for proposed policy improvement, including:

- ❑ Improved protection of all underground (including saline) waters for future use.
- ❑ Updating the policy to reference the latest Australian and New Zealand Guidelines for Fresh and Marine Water Quality, which includes recognition of cultural and spiritual values of waters.
- ❑ Align the Water Quality Policy with the Planning and Design Code requirements in the Mount Lofty Ranges Water Supply Catchment, allowing the EPA to require that development applications referred to it have a neutral or beneficial effect on water quality.
- ❑ Align the Water Quality Policy with the updated Code of Practice for Vessel and Facility Management (Marine and Inland Waters) 2019 (Vessel Management Code).
- ❑ Updating schedules to ensure best practice, including: schedule two – class one pollutants, schedule three – class two pollutants, and schedule four – codes, standards, guidelines and other documents.

“Water quality in South Australia is protected by the Environment Protection Act 1993 and the environment protection policies made under it,” EPA science services acting director Steven Sergi said.

“The EPA uses the Environment Protection (Water Quality) Policy 2015 as the primary policy to regulate water quality as it provides the most specific and detailed protection of the state’s surface, marine and underground waters.

“The recognition and acknowledgement of cultural and spiritual values will also be reflected in a revised policy following consultation and submissions.

“Climate change is expected to place increased reliance on our groundwater systems for a range of purposes, which places an increasing need for water in those environments to be protected within reasonable and practicable limitations.

“I encourage all interested stakeholders to have their say and participate in the consultation.”

For further details, or to ‘have your say’ by taking a survey or emailing EPA, visit (www.yoursay.sa.gov.au/environment-protection-water-quality-policy-2015-review). The consultation will close on 9 December.

Preventing dog attacks on local posties

THE State Government released a new campaign, aimed to to prevent dog attacks on postal workers, including those in the Riverland.

As part of a joint campaign from Australia Post and the State Government, more than 314,000 registered South Australian dog owners will receive letters including dog bite information and recommendations to prevent further incidents.

The new campaign features Buddy – the dog bite safety educator – who looks to deliver practical safety messages to protect SA’s posties and reduce the overall number of dog bites in the state.

Additionally, free bumper stickers and collectible dog safety leaflets will be available to collect from South Australian post offices, with the letters being delivered free of charge to all registered dog owners.

Deputy Premier Susan Close said “Dogs are loved by most South Australians, but the reality is that hundreds of people are bitten by them each year in our state.”

“Posties do a very important job and they should be safe to do their work,” Dr Close said.

“This campaign is not about demonising or stigmatising any dog, it is about raising awareness on how to keep yourself, other people and our dogs safe.

“We love dogs, and it is important to protect them as well. That’s why some of the safety messaging contains information about what we as humans can do to recognise how we might be in danger of being bitten.”

In the first half of 2024, 114 postal workers were attacked by dogs in South Australia, with 503 people attending public hospitals due to attacks in the last year.

Figures also showed more than 1000 posties are attacked across Australia each year.

According to the State Government, 1200 dog attacks were reported to South Australian councils last year but there are concerns that many more incidents were unreported.

Postal workers have been caring for their safety and according to Australia Post, will avoid delivering to a home or business unless it is safe for them to do so and will stop delivering to an address until there is no more danger.

Any dog-related incidents are reported to local councils to ensure enforcement is actioned.

Three short, animated videos of Buddy demonstrating the warning signs that dogs give before they bite, and explaining reasons why dogs sometimes bite, can be found at the government’s dog bite safety website (www.dogandcatboard.com.au/gooddogsbaddays).

Recognising Riverland war widows on their special day

LAST Saturday 19 October officially marked a special day of dedicated commemoration for the National War Widows Day in South Australia.

It was only last year, in March 2023, that the South Australian Government first declared 19 October as War Widows Day, following strong advocacy from the Australian War Widows (SA) Inc.

The occasion is now commemorated by states and territories nationally each year to recognise and pay tribute to the strength, courage, and unwavering commitment of those who have lost a spouse or partner through service for the Australian Defence Force.

One Riverland war widow, Stella Reinertsen, has a special reason to honour and commemorate War Widows Day 2024, because of the recent recovery of the Vietnam War service and campaign medals earned by her late husband, Christopher, during his deployment to Vietnam as a Royal Australian Regiment infantryman in 1967.

Riverland Vietnam Veterans has been assisting Mrs Reinertsen to be granted a full set of her husband's RAR medals and service awards not yet received from the Department of Defence Directorate of Honours and Awards.

She plans to wear her husband's medals proudly for the first time at the forthcoming Remembrance Day ceremony in Renmark to salute his service and sacrifice, and to urge other war widows to take pride in their strength and resilience despite the challenges.

War Widows Day is an opportunity for the community to remember, reflect, and show appreciation for the sacrifices made by those left behind - widows (and widowers) and their families - when they experience the loss of a loved one in defence of Australia.

New grants available for Riverland clubs

LOCAL clubs can now apply for a new grant aimed to support community members in staying active and boosting physical activity levels.

With round 53 of the State Government's Active Club Program now open, Riverland sporting clubs are being invited to submit applications for a share of $1.3m funding, focused on supporting active recreation, sports and recreational fishing clubs.

Each club is eligible to receive up to $3000 to cover the cost of essential sporting equipment, uniforms, and other resources that will enable participation and allow community members to stay active.

Minister for Recreation, Sport and Racing Katrine Hildyard said "we want clubs across our state to have the equipment they need to include people in sport and programs in place that help them build great cultures that welcome all".

"Through this grant program, we are encouraging clubs to think about actions they can take to break stigma around periods and we are helping make things a bit easier financially for people needing a hand to be involved," Mr Hildyard said.

"I am very pleased to invite the many excellent clubs across our state to apply for these grants that will allow more South Australians to experience the social, health and lifestyle benefits hardworking volunteers ensure are offered."

The program also allows eligible clubs to cover the costs of memberships for community members who are experiencing hardship.

The State Government is also encouraging clubs to utilise funding to help break down barriers that can impact female participation in physical activity.

Within their applications, funding can be allocated for period products, flexible uniform offerings, menstrual health training and menstrual health resources, or through encouraging conversations about menstruation and raising awareness at local clubs.

Applications close on Tuesday 26 November, and for more information on the program, visit the website (www.orsr.sa.gov.au/grants/active-club-program).

Students to learn about dangers of social media

STUDENTS across the Riverland will be taught about online safety and the dangers of social media, as part of state reforms to the child safety curriculum.

South Australian schools will now deliver a program focused on preventing or mitigating issues associated with online safety, cyberbullying, body image, mental health and wellbeing.

The curriculum will have added content on coercive control, strategies for detecting deepfakes, understanding artificial intelligence, and the impact of negative online influencers.

It has also been strengthened and updated around contemporary online issues including recognising and reporting image-based abuse and sextortion, cyberbullying, privacy and understanding how to detect scams and fake news.

Educating students about the risks posed by unsafe or inappropriate online behaviour and engagement will be addressed, along with providing strategies for students to seek support.

The Department for Education has worked closely with the eSafety Commissioner, and the Australian Federal Police (AFP) led Australian Centre to Counter Child Exploitation (ACCCE) in developing the curriculum. The curriculum is mandated in all Education Department and Catholic Education sites and is used by schools from the Association of Independent Schools SA, with the new curriculum also to be taught in those schools.

A recent survey of staff, students, and families conducted in the wake of the first year of a full mobile phone ban found more than three-quarters of 3000 respondents said it was having a positive impact.

When staff were asked what they had observed about different aspects of school life since the ban was introduced, it was found:

More than three-quarters reported the time they spent on asking students to put devices away or following up issues with phones had decreased.

Two-thirds reported that students' focus and engagement during learning time had increased more than 70 per cent.

An increased level of positive break-time activity, such as social interaction, play, physical activity, and interest in lunch-time clubs.

"We must do everything we can to protect our children," Premier Peter Malinauskas said.

"The State Government has already banned mobile phones in schools, we have made significant moves towards banning social media for children, and now we are doing what we can to educate our children about the harms of social media.

"The evidence is clear, social media is causing our children harm. Knowledge is power, and we are taking a proactive approach to ensure our young people are well equipped for the world they are growing up in."

Double the prize money at Waikerie regatta

CHRISTINE WEBSTER

ROWING South Australia's omnium at Waikerie on Saturday will offer $4000 worth of lucrative prize money to be shared among the category winners this year. Waikerie Rowing Club captain/coach Leslie Lennell said doubling the prize money on offer compared to last year would hopefully attract more competitors. It is the only omnium event held in SA and was held for the first time in the Riverland town last year. The 2024 5RM/Magic 93.1 Waikerie Omnium will feature three different distances, a 2000m time trial, 1000m small field race, and 500m sprint. Category winners will be determined by the average prognostic rowing speeds across the three distances. This year, prizes will be awarded to the first, second and third placegetters in the club, masters and school categories, and to the overall winners. The winners will receive $600, runners-up $300, and those in third place will receive $100. Mr Lennell said the Waikerie Rowing Club was grateful to the Loxton Waikerie council for providing a $7000 grant and logistical support for the regatta, and to the Rotary Club of Waikerie for its help. He said local businesses had also provided sponsorship for the event, which had led to the increase in prize money. For the first time, the Flight Lieutenant Douglas Howie Memorial Cup, donated by the Waikerie RSL, will be awarded to the overall winner, and Rivergum Christian College will be donating medals for the winners. Mr Lennell said the late Douglas Howie had been a lifetime member of the Waikerie and Adelaide rowing clubs. Mr Howie served in World War II in the Royal Australian Airforce, and died in 2009. Mr Lennell is hoping this year's Waikerie regatta will attract a range of participants from across SA and interstate. Last year Unley High School won the school girls' eights division, and the club men's open eights with its schoolboys' crew. Mr Lennell is expecting the school to return this year to defend its two titles. The Renmark, Riverside and Torrens rowing clubs are also expected to compete.

Mr Lennell said the Waikerie event was starting to gain momentum and interest. He said the town's close location to Adelaide and its long stretch of riverfront made it ideal for rowing. "There is so much room for spectators, boat trailers, and boats," Mr Lennell said. "It is a nice, straight course. "You can stand at the finish line and see the 2000m start line, so it is great." The omnium on Saturday starts at 9am, and is expected to finish around 4pm.

Help reduce the spread of African lovegrass

RIVERLANDERS are being encouraged to join a program that aims to control weed infestations within their properties. The African lovegrass program is being delivered by the Murraylands and Riverland Landscape Board, in partnership with the Department of Primary Industries and Regions (PIRSA), with the objective to reduce the spread and negative impact of this highly invasive grass within our environment. Murraylands and Riverland Landscape Board district manager Casey Henderson said, "we encourage eligible landholders with suspected African lovegrass outbreaks to register for the program". "We had 61 landholders sign up to the 2023-24 program and now that we've expanded our targeted area, we're hoping to get more on board this year" Mr Henderson said. "African lovegrass is a hard-to-control weed so we encourage all landholders in the area with an incursion to take advantage of this initiative, as with all weeds, control works best if we can co-ordinate neighbouring landholders, so you're encouraged to talk to surrounding landholders and get them on board too". According to the Landscape South Australia Act 2019, landholders are required to control African lovegrass incursions within their terrains. "Participating in this free initiative will help landholders meet their obligations to control the declared weed on their property," Mr Henderson said. Participating landholders are required to provide access for landscape board staff and contractors to monitor treated incursions and undertake follow-up activities to ensure control works are successful. Eligible landowners can register by visiting the website (www.landscape.sa.gov.au/mr/pest-plants-animals/managing-pests/african-lovegrass-targeted-assistance-program) or by calling Russell Norman on 0427 095 313. Funding is limited, and participation is available on a first-come-first-served basis with registrations closing on 8 November.

According to the Landscape South Australia Act 2019, landholders are required to control African lovegrass incursions within their terrains. PHOTO: supplied Riverland-based MLC, and opposition spokesperson for regional South Australia, NICOLA CENTOFANTI, has provided the following speech she gave in Parliament regarding concerns for the listing of the Lower Murray as a threatened ecological community as part of the Environment Protection and Biodiversity Conservation Act 1999...

The right way to achieve our goals?

I RISE today to discuss a pressing issue regarding the Federal Government’s proposal to classify the Lower Murray as a threatened ecological community under the Environment Protection and Biodiversity Conservation Act 1999 (otherwise known as the EPBC Act).

This proposal, while Labor might spruik that it is well intentioned, raises serious concerns that we must address thoroughly.

First and foremost, we must express our concerns as a Liberal opposition about this proposal. The Federal Government seeks to list the Lower Murray, which includes significant riverine and flood plain ecosystems, as a critically endangered ecological community.

While the intent to protect our environment is commendable, we must consider whether this classification will effectively achieve that goal.

The core of our argument lies in the understanding that the species and habitats within the Lower Murray are already protected under existing legislation. This redundancy calls into question the necessity of additional classifications that may not provide any real benefits but instead complicate existing regulatory frameworks.

It is essential to acknowledge the historical context surrounding this proposal. Just prior to the federal election in 2013, the then Labor Federal Government pushed through regulations for the inclusion of the Lower Murray in the EPBC Act.

However, when the Coalition government took office, a disallowance motion was successfully passed, emphasising two key points: the potential for increased bureaucratic hurdles, or ‘red and green tape’, that would impede development in the region; and the existing protections already in place that were deemed sufficient to safeguard the environmental health of the area.

Previous South Australian Labor water ministers have assessed and ultimately rejected similar calls for inclusion in the EPBC Act. In fact, it was Ian Hunter who rejected the proposal back in 2013.

These decisions were based on comprehensive evaluations indicating that the existing protections were adequate for preserving the ecological integrity of the Lower Murray. The arguments presented during that time remain relevant today, and we must carefully consider the implications of this new proposal in light of that history.

It is crucial to remember that the species and habitats along the Lower Murray are already safeguarded under various frameworks, including the Murray-Darling Basin Plan. This plan represents a bipartisan agreement aimed at sustainable management of our nation’s largest river system. It imposes stringent limits on water extraction to protect the vital ecosystems supported by the river and its flood plains.

The recent amendments to the Water Act 2007, collectively known as the Water Amendment (Restoring Our Rivers) Bill 2023, reinforce these protections. This legislative framework not only recognises the ecological significance of the Murray-Darling Basin but also provides for the ongoing health of our water resources.

The Murray-Darling Basin Authority plays a vital role in overseeing this management, ensuring that all stakeholders work collaboratively towards common goals. The upcoming 2025 Basin Plan Evaluation is set to assess our progress and identify further areas for improvement. Any attempt to classify the Lower Murray under the EPBC Act before this comprehensive review is, at best, premature.

One of the most significant concerns around the inclusion of the Lower Murray in the EPBC Act is the anticipated increase in bureaucratic hurdles, often referred to as ‘red and green tape’. This issue is not merely a matter of inconvenience; it has real consequences for the communities that depend on the river for their livelihoods and wellbeing.

Local residents and businesses face a challenging landscape when it comes to obtaining the necessary approvals for development projects. The processes involved in securing EPBC Act approvals can be arduous, time-consuming and financially burdensome.

For example, a recent select committee hearing revealed that SA Water had to abandon plans for a critical desalination plant at Seaford West and one of the reasons was because the EPBC Act approval process was deemed too lengthy and expensive. I will repeat that again: the process of gaining EPBC Act approvals was deemed too arduous for SA Water to deal with, so imagine the implications and barriers for regular residents and businesses.

This situation will create inequities between communities along the river and those in metropolitan areas where development processes are much more straightforward. The imposition of additional regulatory requirements will only exacerbate these disparities, leaving river communities feeling marginalised and frustrated.

Given these concerns, I am calling on the Malinauskas Labor government to follow the precedent set by its predecessors and reject the current push for the Lower Murray to be included in the EPBC Act. We must prioritise solutions that promote environmental protection, while respecting the rights and needs of our local communities. We should advocate for localised approaches to conservation that empower communities rather than impose blanket regulations.

By recognising the unique circumstances of the Lower Murray and leveraging existing frameworks, we can achieve effective environmental stewardship without adding unnecessary layers of bureaucracy. For instance, programs that promote sustainable agricultural practices, water efficiencies and habitat restoration can yield positive outcomes for both the environment and the local economy. Community-led initiatives that foster collaboration between stakeholders, farmers, environmental groups and government agencies can and do ensure that conservation efforts are tailored to the specific needs of the region.

It is also crucial to understand that broader classifications like the EPBC Act can dilute the focus of conservation efforts.

Allow me to set out an example. The Murray cod, one of Australia’s largest freshwater fish, is already classified as a vulnerable species under the EPBC Act. Including the entirety of the Lower Murray in the EPBC framework may hinder targeted conservation strategies for this species by stretching resources too thinly across a larger area.

Conservation efforts should be directed where they can have the most significant impact. By concentrating our resources on specific high-priority areas and species, we can maximise our effectiveness and enhance the resilience of our ecosystems.

In conclusion, while the intention behind the Labor Government’s proposal to include the Lower Murray in the EPBC Act may be rooted in a desire for environmental protection, we must critically evaluate its implications.

The decisions made both in this place and in our federal parliament matter and they matter more than just a newspaper headline. They have real-world implications on people’s lives. The existing protections provided by the Murray-Darling Basin Plan are already substantial and additional classifications may only serve to complicate an already intricate regulatory landscape.

We must heed the lessons from history, recognise the burdens of red and green tape and advocate for policies that empower local communities while safeguarding our natural resources.

So, therefore, I urge the Malinauskas Labor government to reject this proposal and prioritise a more balanced approach to environmental protection, one that acknowledges the unique circumstances of the Lower Murray and respects the rights and the needs of its residents.

Artists and photographers embrace the rose festival

CHRISTINE WEBSTER

ARTISTS and photographers from the Riverland, Barossa and other parts of SA have taken part in the Waikerie Rain Moth Gallery Art and Photographic competition. The contest was held in conjunction with this month’s Riverland Rose and Garden Festival, and the Waikerie and Districts Flower Show. It was centred on the flower show’s theme ‘At the Bottom of the Garden’. An official opening and presentation of awards won in the competition was held last Wednesday at the gallery, and drew a crowd of 100 people. Loxton Waikerie councillor Sonia Fowler announced the winners of the awards. Well-known photographer Italo Vardaro, from the Riverland, was the judge for the photography section and Peterborough artist Hayley O’Shea judged the art section. Waikerie Rain Moth Gallery committee chairperson Karen Richardson said the organisation’s aim was to encourage both adults and children involved in photography and art to exhibit their works. She said it was important to involve children in exhibitions at the gallery. “Every year we like to have an event that sponsors children to come along and show their work,” Ms Richardson said. “It then demonstrates how good their art can look in a frame, when hung in a professional manner,” she said. A viewer’s choice award is also being run for the next two months and people are invited to have a look at the exhibition and cast their votes.

Waikerie's magical flower show

CHRISTINE WEBSTER

THE Waikerie and Districts Community Flower Show's 'At the Bottom of the Garden' theme attracted more than 850 entries from people of all ages.

The displays filled the Waikerie Memorial Institute with colour and consisted of 684 adult entries from 42 individual exhibitors, and 167 children's entries from 121 individual exhibitors.

More than 600 people attended the show over the two days.

The event was part of the Riverland Rose and Garden Festival, which runs to 27 October across the region.

Waikerie and Districts Community Flower Show committee member Georgie Crawford said according to some veterans of the show, the event attracted one of its largest ever number of participants.

"In terms of the number of entries, it was just magnificent," she said.

"We were having to shuffle tables to fit them all in, which was wonderful.

"It was nice to see a lot of new exhibitors this year."

Mrs Crawford said the strong involvement of children appeared to also attract more parents to take part.

Each student from Ramco Primary School submitted an entry, and students from the Waikerie Lutheran, Waikerie and Blanchetown primary schools and Waikerie High Schools also participated.

Pre-schoolers and other children also put in entries.

Year 11 Waikerie High School food and hospitality students from Lauren Bevan and Erin Nettelbeck's class provided morning and afternoon teas on both days.

Mrs Crawford said encouraging children and teenagers to participate would hopefully lead to them developing a future interest in gardening.

She said the two judges, Alethia Quick OAM from Adelaide, and James Argent from Angaston, were impressed with the high standard and number of entries.

The floral art workshop run by Ms Quick on Friday afternoon attracted 20 participants, and children's workshop on Saturday drew 25 attendees, consisting of both boys and girls.

ABC Gardening Australia presenter Sophie Thomson also visited the Waikerie flower show on Saturday and met the committee.

Mrs Crawford said it was exciting to have her attend.

The magical 'At the Bottom of the Garden' display by Riverland West artistic experts Carole Walker, from the Waikerie and Districts Garden Club, and Kathy Elliot, also was a show highlight.

Mrs Crawford said the children loved visiting Rosie and Ryder and their two live fairy friends in their patch of garden, which featured mushrooms that Riverland artist Jarrod Loxton helped paint.

She said Mrs Walker's input was "amazing".

"A lot of hard work went into the display, and it really paid off," Mrs Crawford said.

"The garden scene was a popular place for taking photos.

"I think they are the 'most photographed fairies', which is lovely, and the children were very excited."

Waikerie and Districts Community Flower Show committee president Glennis Crawford and Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone officially opening the event on Friday.

Waikerie and Districts Community Flower Show committee members Georgie Crawford, Lauren Bevan, Barb Hall from the Waikerie and Districts Garden Club, volunteer fairy Olivia Ebert of Waikerie, Chaffey MP Tim Whetstone, volunteer fairy Justice Ebert, Waikerie and Districts Community Flower Show committee members: Amy Thompson, Gill McInness, and Glennis Crawford, and Carole Walker from the Waikerie and Districts Garden Club.

The 'At the Bottom of the Garden' scene created by Riverland artistic experts Carole Walker and Kathy Elliot for the Waikerie flower show.

More than 600 people attended the show on Friday and Saturday and viewed the magnificent exhibits at the Waikerie flower show. PHOTOS: Paul McCormick

MONTHLY column

THE Riverland Crows Supporters Group (RCSG) is now ready to watch the draft process of players for the new AFL season.

Although the Adelaide Football Club players are in recess, upon return there will be changes in all aspects of the club, from the management group, playing group, and coaching staff.

Already there have been new recruits and some departures among the playing group. The outcome so far is something to look forward to in the 2025 season.

The Riverland supporters group will be looking for a better performance on the playing field next season.

Members of the Riverland supporters group attended the Adelaide Football Club's members award presentation night and witnessed the worthy recipients acknowledged for their outstanding efforts during the 2024 season.

The RCSG are expecting the players to perform and win more games, while enjoying the sport, in 2025.

The RCSG is now gearing up for its AGM and annual get together in November, before having a break ahead of members day in early 2025.

The annual Luncheon will again be held, at the Mallee Fowl Restaurant, on November 17, with all members encouraged to attend and to bring a friend who might be interested in joining the group.

In return members have a chance to travel, in 2025, as a group to Adelaide Crows home games, meet and watch games on the big screen while cheering the players on from afar, plus attending bingo nights.

Their membership could give them a pass to a game, allowing them to participate in holding the ropes on the banner the team runs through, standing in the guard of honour before the banner, and other extraordinary events organised by the Adelaide Crows. Some tickets to the game could get you a seat with the cheer squad.

Adelaide Crows players and a club representative visit the Riverland each year. Plus, the Riverland members have a chance to meet players one on one. Mark Bickley has indicated that he will visit the Riverland in November and may attend the annual Luncheon.

The group's role is to raise funds to sponsor the playing team.

Local members are encouraged to contact their local committee member representative for raffle tickets and info on the coming events. The current raffle will be drawn at the luncheon in November.

All the best to the Adelaide Crows squad in 2025.

Inspirational John rides for special cause

LACHLAN DAND

THE Great Cycle Challenge is one of the most inspirational challenges Australians can do, and its reach stretches far and wide.

The challenge focuses around riding a set goal for a kilometre amount in the hopes to end childhood cancer and save lives in the process.

Promoting a never give up attitude, the goal is to raise enough money to help find a cure, and Loxton local John Krause is no different.

Mr Krause no longer rides on the roads of the Riverland, but on a bike in his home, and he said the reason he does it, now in his sixth year, hits home a little harder.

“I came back to the Riverland over six years ago, and I wondered where I could connect with people, so I started riding a push-bike,” he said.

“By getting involved, this challenge came up somewhere, and I thought it could make a difference in someone else’s lives.

“I suppose I related it back to my sister, who passed away 55 years ago, and I thought this was a cancer of the heart and I can make a difference.

“I can shine my sister’s light in other people’s worlds, and I’m still keeping fit and raising some money and awareness in the process.”

Mr Krause has raised more than $7000 across his six years so far, and is currently at $644 just this year.

Having ridden over 4339km in that time, his goal this year is to ride over 400km, riding 100km each week.

Mr Krause’s legacy is undeniable, and with all funds raised supporting the Children’s Medical Research Institute, he said he worked out what is important, which contributes to his motivation.

“I worked in a church community and I looked after welcoming, and for me it was about the children who came through the door,” he said.

“I wanted to make them feel valued, and that impact would then carry through to the parents, and that’s the way I look at it now.

“If I can help a young person and bring joy into their hearts through what I do, it would then be passed on to the wider community.”

While Mr Krause has spent a lot of time on the Riverland roads, he now carries a lot of his journey out on his exercise bike.

“I have a bike in the shed which is connected to my computer, and I can go to any part of the world and ride a course,” he said.

“It features hills so it’s quite simulated, and I started doing this because I worked out I had a heart complication, and that initially took me off the road.

“I thought I can keep doing this from the safety of my own home, and it gives me inspiration along the way.

“I still get off the couch and do what I can to make a difference.”

To donate to Mr Krause, and read more about his story, head to (www.greatcyclechallenge.com.au/riders/JohnKrause).

THE final race of the Riverland Dinghy Club’s season will take place this Saturday afternoon on the Renmark riverfront.

Competitors will hit the water from 10am, departing and finishing at the Jane Eliza Site, with the winner of the season to be decided.

In what is a double-point-round, the winner is set to be crowned on Saturday night at the Renmark Club in what will be the Championship Series trophy presentations evening.

Eagles soar highest in Riverland darts

COBBY Eagles are the latest champions of the Riverland darts association, defeating R C Ones in a thrilling grand final at the Renmark Hotel last week.

With scores level at three apiece at the end of the first singles’ round, R C Ones made a move in the second round to win two of the first three for a 5-3 lead.

However, Eagles responded with a winning last three singles to lead 7-5 prior to the doubles’ games to help set up the victory.

Eagles veterans Darren Parfitt and Jeff Broekers were able to win their doubles to make the score 8-5 and claim the premiership for the Eagles.

In a sixth premiership in a row for the Eagles, Darren Parfitt was the standout, while Darcy Crane fought valiantly for R C Ones.

Berri takes out an opening night thriller

RIVERLAND basketball is back with a bang, and an opening night classic between Berri and Barmera in the men’s division one competition lived up to expectations at the Toyota Arena last Thursday.

Neither side featured in last season’s grand final, however, off-season recruits showed both sides will look to bounce back in 2024/25.

In a tight start to the game, it was Barmera that begun with momentum, racing away to an 11-point advantage at the half time interval.

A massive 27-point third quarter from the Blazers helped see them wrestle back the lead, and leave the Lakers seven points adrift at the final change.

In a close final term, Berri managed to pull away from Barmera by two points to secure a two-point win thanks to a last-gasp winner from Harrison Campbell.

Campbell finished the game with 20 points, and was well supported by Ramone Devlyn and Ethen Blake-Roberts, who scored 16 and 14 respectively.

Dillon Marks made a strong impact for Barmera with 18 points, while Wesley Marks’ 12 points and Harvey Ness’ 10 kept the Lakers in the contest.

Elsewhere, Loxton took the first step to redemption from last season’s heartbreaking grand final loss with a 21-point win over Waikerie.

The Supercats dominated from the get go, storming away to a 20-point half time lead, continuing the onslaught to run out 21-point victors.

Waikerie’s defence had no answers for Jasper Hutchinson, who finished with 23 points, while big man Rogan Kennedy followed closely behind with 17.

Kieran Hahn was the pick for Waikerie with 26 points in a game which featured three triples, while Reily Fridd also finished with 16.

Meanwhile, the two division one women’s grand finalists started strong, each recording comprehensive victories in their respective clashes.

It was double delight for Loxton, which enjoyed a 23-point win over the Warriors on the back of a potent second half.

Just eight points separated the sides at half time, before a 21 to nine third term helped the Supercats launch to victory.

Young prospect Bailey Hahn finished with 16 points in a game which featured two threes, while Kiara Harman’s 12 and Mackella Hogan’s 10 kept the scoreboard ticking over.

Elsewhere, reigning premiers Barmera started the season where it left off, picking up a 20-point win over Berri on the road.

The Lakers raced away to a 12-point quarter time lead, piling in the points, as the margin continued to inflate throughout the night.

Barmera duo Meg Kassulke and Shaya Whitbourne each finished with 13 to help lead the scorers, as the Lakers suffocated Berri’s ball movement.

Blazers debutant Mackenzie Pitt top scored for her side with 14 points, while Bella Gates followed closely with an eight-point effort.

Super Saturday begins with a smash

RIVERLAND tennis roared to life over the weekend, with the resumption of one of the region’s most popular summer sports seeing a bulk of players of all ages take to the court.

After a season of split sides, Cobdogla is once again playing under the one banner, and it started the season with a six-rubber victory over Loxton White.

Shane Nettle and Nigel Battams started the season in perfect form, finishing the day undefeated in both doubles and singles fixtures to help set up victory.

Elsewhere, Berri proved too strong for Renmark on the road, with a four-rubber victory to its name following a strong afternoon.

Star players Cooper Staehr and Paul Reid made light work of the Renmark opposition, finishing the day with strong runs to help set up the victory.

Henry Dring gave Renmark fans something to cheer about during the match, but it was ultimately too far of an uphill battle for the home side to overcome.

Just five teams make up division one Riverland tennis this season, meaning Loxton Yellow begun with a bye.

Division two action saw Cobdogla edge out Loxton, 10 rubbers to nine, while Waikerie squeezed past Barmera by a three-rubber margin.

The closest margin of the weekend came through division three, where Renmark Gold and Berri Grand Slammers had to be separated by games, finishing the match on equal rubbers initially.

Junior tennis will start a week late this season, and is set to get underway this Saturday as the Riverland competitions spark up once again.

Division one action this weekend sees

Berri hold the bye, while Cobdogla welcomes Renmark to town.

Elsewhere, Loxton Yellow will get its season underway against clubmates Loxton White in a battle which sees bragging rights on the line, as White seeks its first win of the season.

Future tennis stars on show in Berri

PRIOR to the commencement of the Riverland tennis season, over 160 youngsters recently flocked to the courts of Berri to take part in the annual State Foundation Cup.

The competition saw regional areas from all over the state showcase their best and brightest up-and-comers.

Thirty Riverland players took to the event, tasting success across the week, with six players making the state sides and players also receiving sportspersons awards.

While the River Murray team was unable to win any age groups, it competed well through the under 10s, under 12s, under 14s, and under 16s.

Coaches for the side were renowned tennis locals John Pick and Georgia Tzanavaras, while Kirby Inglis, Kirsty Barnett, Leigh Kruger, Josh Deren, and Penny Kroehn took on the team manager roles.

Association president Andrew Waters took the coordinator role of the event, and said “Berri did an amazing job in hosting, and were a credit to all volunteers and clubs.”

The six sportsperson award winners, nominated by players from other regions went Eddie Waters (10’s), Shine Ayal (16’s), Laura Geyer (10’s), Sarah Kroehn (14’s), Heidi Brattoli (16’s), Indy Venning (12’s).

State team representatives from the Riverland included Indy Venning (12s), Heidi Brattoli (16s), Sebastiaan Erasmus (14s), Tom Nettle (14s), Will Staehr (12s), and Ashton Kruger (12s).

Nets shatter in Riverland futsal competition

ONE of the most popular summer sports is well and truly underway in the Riverland once again, and the region’s futsal competition continues to live up to the hype.

It was a competitive weekend of action in Berri, with sides finding the back of the net in relatively easy fashion.

FC Espadas continued its perfect start to season 2024 with a comprehensive 9-4 victory, continuing to showcase the ease at which it finds the back of the net.

Andy Son and Crispin Mitchell each scored hat-tricks, while Jay Botten and Mitchell featured among the side’s best.

Un-Athletico Madrid finished with four goals of its own, as Dale Harwood and Geordie Franks were both at the double, giving the team hope throughout the night.

Chicken Tikka Mo Salah also continued an unbeaten start to the season with a dominant performance against ABCDE FC.

Jesse Tsonis helped lead the scorers with two goals, while Darren Vandy controlled possession despite strong pressure from the likes of Kevin Barber and Ryan Verrall.

Mixed action saw Abitsa ease past the Angry Plovers with a mammoth 18-goal victory.

The Plovers were no match, and were unable to keep star player Cooper Ebert, who finished the day with six goals under wraps.

Ebert was well supported by pair Tony Mitchell and Jesse Hammond who each netted four, while Matilda Mitchell showed her class across the night.

The Plovers’ only respite came through Timu King’s strong individual display of five goals, with Roger Cross also fighting hard in defeat.

Elsewhere, Chippy Chips showcased its scoring prowess, easing to a 13-1 victory over G1 Youth.

Jude Bourton was the star of the show with five majors, while Jesse Tsonis and Millie Koumbarakos each recorded hat-tricks.

Women’s action saw M and M’s crushing Pink Storm by a 22-1 score line, in what can only be described as an onslaught.

Macy Bourton found the back of the net a whopping seven times, while Mikayla Rayner followed suit with six of her own.

Other action across the competition saw BS prove too good for Razzmatazz, recording an 8-2 victory.

Baseball sides claim town bragging rights

THE first rivalry round of the Riverland Baseball Association’s season was held on Friday night, with the crowd consistently entertained.

The early game saw a red vs blue showdown from home club Berri at Glassey Park, with runs ticking over throughout the night.

The blues hit the scoreboard first, before excellent outfield catching from reds player Ethan Thomas shutdown early momentum.

Berri Red’s strong pitching allowed the pressure to be taken off, before it ultimately ran away with a three-run win.

Elsewhere, the all-Renmark clash saw Renmark White score a crushing seven-run win over its blue counterpart.

Sam Hollbrook started on the mound and set the tone for white, finishing the match with six strikeouts in the process.

LAKE BONNEY YACHT CLUB

LAKE Bonney Yacht Club held races three and four of the A Series Handicap on Saturday afternoon in near-perfect conditions.

Sailors had a very nice south to south west wind of 8 to 10 knots to sail in, and a triangle, windward return course was set for race three, which started on time.

Good racing conditions made two sides of the windward leg favourable, with competitors splitting either side of the rhumb line, but meeting back again at the weather mark.

The Aero7 and ILCA7 hiking dinghies were having a tight race, with the two contender trapezing dinghies doing the same just ahead.

The rest of the fleet got a bit scattered on the first work to windward and remained the same throughout the race.

Race four’s start signals had confusion among some competitors with three boats failing to start, while other competitors started and finished the course.

The two contenders went on to practice some boat handling skills in preparation for their state title regatta in two weekends’ time.

RESULTS RACE THREE

Aero6 ‘Sea Breeze’ Kirsten Thomas; Contender ‘Pushing Limits’ Geoff Ling; ILCA7 ‘Sheet Happens’ Joel Edson.

Labastida lands with the Demons

AS the washup of season 2024 continues around the Riverland Football League, Berri is wasting no time with its preparations for next year, locking in Henry Labastida as its newest A grade coach.

In a highly contested field, Berri director of football Paul Stewart said the new coach won the position in a field of 16 applicants.

Labastida joined the Demons midway through last year in a playing capacity under Brenton Woolston, before accepting the top job this year.

Labastida brings a rich football history with him to Berri, achieving life membership with St. Mary's in Darwin, and playing in the inaugural NT Thunder team, along with earning a host of league medallions.

The new Demons boss said he was looking forward to the challenge of lifting Berri from back-to-back last-placed finishes.

By LACHLAN DAND
sports@murraypioneer.com.au

"I like being involved with football, and I thought being new to the town, getting involved in a football club is ideal," he said.

"Mainly with meeting people in the area, and it's also great for my kids who also play at the club.

"I love developing the younger kids, and I'm coaching the under 15s as well, and I just started talking to the football club and it just went from there.

"It's about trying to help the club, because they helped me a lot when I moved up here, so I just want to give something back now."

In what was initially his preference, Labastida is set to take charge of the Demons' under 15s outfit in 2025 as well, something he said will help the younger generation at the club for senior football.

"I did the coaching role with a few of my good mates in Darwin, and we as a group spoke about how important it is to have everyone on the same page early so they can make that transition really easily," he said.

"Most of these kids have got those two or three years where they can understand the language of footy terms, and that's what I'm trying to deliver.

"It's about the fundamentals of football and the wording around it, so when they get to under 18s and senior level, they know what they're doing and they feel more comfortable."

Although Berri broke a two-year winless streak, and won the Fisher Cup in 2024, they were its only two wins for the season.

However, the Demons were competitive in a large portion of their games, and that competitiveness is something the 42 year old wants to see from his side once again.

"Setting ourselves with little goals and little wins throughout the year is my first priority," Labastida said.

"We have to be realistic as well about where we're at right at this stage, but of course we want to be really competitive.

"There were games last year, where if we just touched up a few little things that we need to develop and learn.

"It can be little things like hitting easy targets with the ball rather than going for more difficult kicks, and I hope we can practice those things through the pre-season.

"I just want to focus on week by week and trying to help the club get the chemistry and fun playing footy again."

One of the younger sides in the competition, Berri will no doubt face an uphill battle to make the final four, and while Labastida said the Demons will attempt to recruit, the young players at the club will hold Berri in good stead for future years.

"Recruiting is always a difficult task, and back home we would be able to recruit well because it's off-season for other clubs," he said.

"At the same time, you have to look after the guys that live here, especially the under 18s boys who have a lot of years at this club ahead.

"You really want to bleed them and get them a lot of experience at the senior level.

"Recruiting is always something you have to do, and while it's hard to recruit at this stage of the year, we'll go through our list and work from there."

In other news at Berri, A grade star, and runner up best and fairest Shay Hawkins will take charge of the under 18s side.

Footy premiers make coach change

PAUL MITCHELL

MURRAY Valley Football Netball League premier Murrayville will have a new coach in 2025.

After guiding the Blues to a drought-breaking senior flag last month, Mick Durdin has been replaced by premiership team member Keenan Wilksch, who will be a playing coach.

"Keenan joined the Blues in 2024 as a new player from the Riverland..." the Murrayville Football Club said in a social media statement this week.

"Keenan brings his hard work ethic, focus on training and determination to the team, ready to embrace leadership opportunities.

"We look forward to seeing him take on the challenge of building on the 2024 success, with his ideas and commitment to the club."

Durdin wanted to continue as Murrayville coach next year, but was overlooked in favour of Wilksch.

Durdin told The Border Times he was "very disappointed" with the decision, but said he was grateful for those who supported him throughout the successful 2024 season, which culminated with a 82-point grand-final victory over Brown's Well at Cambrai.

"I wish all the under 23 players the best for the future and hope there's more improvement still to come, which we saw happen last season," Durdin said.

Durdin's son, Jake, was a star performer throughout 2024 for the Blues, while his son-in-law Geordie Franks was also a key figure in the premiership.

Durdin also coached East Murray to a long-awaited RFL Independent premiership in 2003.

Wilksch played at RFL club Loxton North before joining Murrayville this year.

In its announcement, Murrayville pointed to new recruits on the horizon.

"Stay tuned as we roll out the announcements of our players for the 2025 season," the club said.

Wilksch's father, Mark, will continue as coach of Wunkar in the MVFL in season 2025.

Schulz is crowned Wunkar's top dog

WUNKAR football superstar Tarquin Schulz capped off an outstanding Murray Valley Football Netball League season with a recent best and fairest win.

Schulz, who took out the league's best and fairest medal, flourished in the midfield under new coach Mark Wilksch.

Wilksch guided the Bulldogs to a fourth-placed finish in a year that saw Mitch Neumann take out the runner-up award, and Brad Stone claim the most consistent.

RSL side takes out local bowls derby

IN an exciting weekend of Riverland bowls, attention turned to Tobruk Terrace where Loxton RSL faced off against Loxton with bragging rights on the line.

The intertown battle lived up to expectations, and the difference in the two sides was separated through one rink.

It was Loxton RSL's team, skippered by Jade Wright, which recorded a 36-shot win over Chris McConnell's side.

While Lewis Westbrook's four defeated Craig Inglis' side, nothing separated Denis Drabsch and Steven Roberts, which allowed RSL to springboard to a 23-shot win.

Elsewhere, Berri got its first win of the season in a strong performance against Barmera at the Lakeside.

The council clash was a comprehensive win for the visiting side, winning two of the three rinks across the match.

Mason Kaufer's side scored a 15-shot win over Ron Reynolds' quartet, helping Berri set up a 19-shot win.

Meanwhile, Waikerie kept its status at the top of the table, winning to the tune of a comprehensive 24 shots against The Lawns.

All three rinks picked up wins for Waikerie, with the biggest victory coming through Grant Frahm's team's 15-shot win over Russell Lawton's side.

Waikerie will now head on the road for a council clash against Loxton this Saturday afternoon, while Renmark welcome Barmera to town.

Elsewhere, Berri takes on Loxton RSL as the season continues to take shape, and the ladder picture becomes clearer.

Graham Elleway releases the ball in Berri's division one victory over Barmera on Saturday afternoon.

Loxton takes out battle of the red

IT was a case of the battle for red in Riverland bowls' midweek triples action last Wednesday, with one town taking bragging rights over another.

Playing at home, it was Loxton Red that revelled in a 23-shot victory over The Lawns Red, with a comprehensive performance showing victories in two of the four rinks.

While nothing separated Graeme Huppatz and Bill Haby's trios, it was the three of Peter Kimber who did the damage, defeating Michael Hudson's team by 13 shots to set up the victory.

Elsewhere, Waikerie continued its unbeaten start to the season with a 12-shot win over Barmera in an intense battle on the road.

The warm conditions saw the visitors take out three of the rinks, as the biggest margin came through Roger Davies' team, who won by nine shots against Kelven Carter.

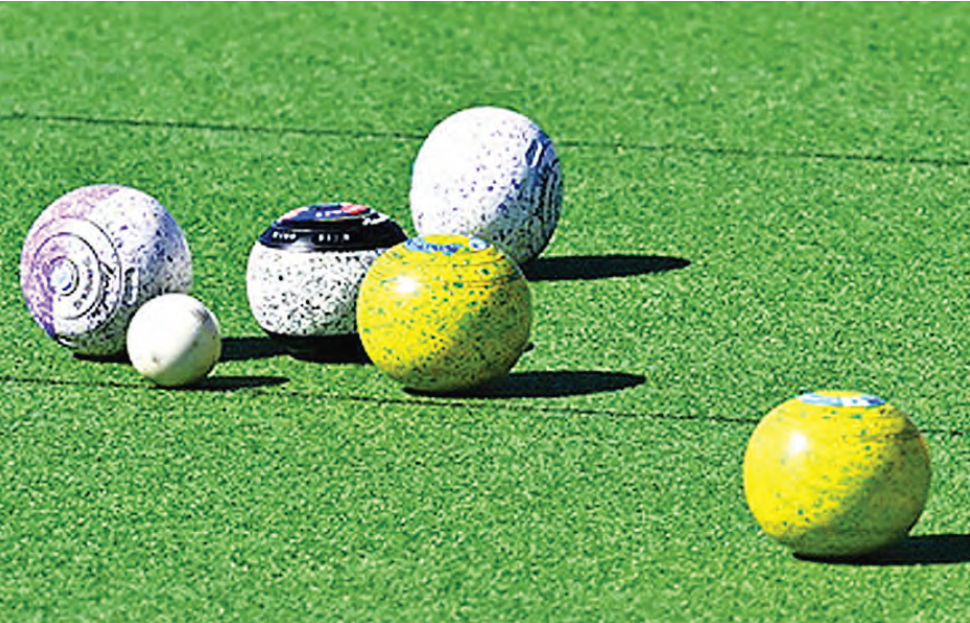

The Lawns follow closely behind Waikerie, continuing its unbeaten start to the season with a 14-shot win over Berri Blue.

Russell Lawton's three dominated Neil Winert's team, winning by 23 shots to help set up the difference in the match.

Meanwhile, Lyrup remains the only winless side after four rounds, following a 24-shot loss to the Barmera Pelicans away from home.

Callan Smart was the key to Barmera's victory, smashing 56 runs as the Pelicans continued a perfect start to the season.

Berri no match for Watson's Bushrangers

A STAR innings from Mallee Bushrangers opener Randall Watson helped set up a massive 142-run win for his side in the Riverland Turf Cricket Association's latest round of A grade action.

Winning the toss and electing to bat, the skipper wasted no time, sending Berri bowlers to all parts in what can only be described as an onslaught.

Watson smashed 86 from just 33 deliveries in an innings that featured 16 boundaries, while Thomas Wurfel (40) and Hayden Beckmann (38) had valuable contributions.

Veteran bowler Wayne Scadden was the pick for Berri with a five-wicket haul, while Brad Oakley and Mitch Cawse each jagged two to help wrestle back scoring momentum.

Chasing a mammoth 293 for victory, Berri steadied after an early wicket of opener Wes Frankel, with Martin Sumner and Nathan Scadden piecing together a 61-run stand.

Scadden top scored for the Reds with 58, but wickets continued to tumble with youngster Archie Peltz's 20 a highlight along the way.

Wurfel's speed was too much for Berri to handle with four wickets, while Thomas Crane also bowled efficiently for his two wickets.

The Bushrangers' win was the only A grade action played for the day, with Renmark's second oval deemed too wet before the start of play after wild weather throughout the region during the week.

Elsewhere, winning ways continued for the newest side in Riverland cricket, as Barmera enjoyed a three-wicket win over Gerard.

Vice-captain Callan Smart dominated with the bat for 56, while Michael Beech's unbeaten score of 27 also did the damage on the scoreboard, as the Pelicans chased down the 152 total with more than four overs to spare.

Timmy Abdulla excited the Gerard fans, ripping through the top order on his way to a four-wicket haul, while George Halls' half century was strong reward for effort.

However, the pick of the bowlers for the day was Barmera young gun Shepherd Humphries, who jagged a staggering 7/23.

Meanwhile, wickets tumbled everywhere at Loxton in a low-scoring affair, as Waikerie recorded its first win of the season.

Dismissing Loxton for just 97, Waikerie chased down the score in 29 overs following a score of 47 from Nathan Salter in the middle order.

Elsewhere, a comprehensive bowling effort from Monash saw it remain at the top of the ladder with an eight-wicket win over Renmark North.

Acting captain Sean Leesue elected to bat, and with wickets tumbling around him, Dean Hill steadied the ship, top scoring with 37.

Jarryd Roberts ripped through the Bluetongues' batting line-up with five wickets, while Ryan Williams also caused headaches with a three-wicket haul.

Chasing 80 in reply, Monash ran into an early stumbling block when star batter Kyle Gillespie was removed by Logan Foley for 12, however, duo Morgan Smith and Adam Ravenscroft each hit 30 to help Monash secure victory.

MURRAY Valley Football League premier Murrayville will have a new coach in 2025.

After guiding the Blues to a drought-breaking senior flag last month, Mick Durdin has been replaced by premiership team member Keenan Wilksch, who will be a playing coach.

“Keenan joined the Blues in 2024 as a new player from the Riverland...” the Murrayville Football Club said in a social media statement this week.

“Keenan brings his hard work ethic, focus on training and determination to the team, ready to embrace leadership opportunities.

Durdin wanted to continue as Murrayville coach next year, but was overlooked in favour of Wilksch. Durdin told The Border Times he was “very disappointed” with the decision, but said he was grateful for those who supported him throughout the successful 2024 season, which culminated with a 82-point grand-final victory over Brown’s Well at Cambrai.

Dish of the day

GOT any dinner reservations lined up for this week? Now you do. In a colourful new nightly cooking show bursting with fresh ingredients, familiar faces and easy, relatable recipes (say goodbye to sous-vide, hibachi grill and quenelled anything), prolific cookbook author and former MasterChef contestant Alice Zaslavsky seeks to inspire confidence in the kitchen.

"Every episode I'll be joined by a special guest and together we'll cook, we'll laugh and best of all, eat!" she exclaims.

Easygoing, excitable and a little bit clumsy, Zaslavsky makes tasty and nutritious cooking a lot of fun, with oodles of tips and tricks to use in your own kitchen. She starts each episode by creating a recipe with her guest in mind. When they arrive with their favourite food, the pair turn it into a dish together and finally, Zaslavsky tries to change her guest's mind about an ingredient or dish that they don't like.

In Monday's premiere, the In Praise of Veg author makes Bircher muesli for professional earlybird, ABC breakfast radio host Sammy J, who sets an avocado challenge, before Zaslavsky tries to break what the comedian terms his "lasagne curse".

Busy tonight? Tune in later this week to break bread with Poh Ling Yeow, Colin Lane, Pia Miranda and Josh Thomas.

Solution No. 501

October 2024: week 4

Horoscopes

ARIES

MAR 21ST - APR 20TH

A powerful aspect to Mercury will help you to be especially logical this week. Think carefully about an issue which has been on your mind recently – the solution may be much simpler than you imagine. Romance. A new admirer will soon have quite a hold on you. Don't be afraid to ask a few searching questions!

TAURUS

APR 21ST - MAY 21ST

Contact with an animal will prove lucky both for you and for the animal concerned. The animal may need comforting: you must do your best to help. Romance. At times your partner may seem to be engaging in a power struggle. You need to find a way to sort out disagreements more amicably.

GEMINI

MAY 22ND - JUN 21ST

A member of your family whom you don't often see will be in touch. You will find that this person has changed for the better recently. Romance. Don't let tension over money affect your relationship. You will both be in a very romantic mood at the moment, and should not let a minor misunderstanding spoil the atmosphere.

CANCER

JUN 22ND - JUL 23RD

So long as you are brave enough to weather a couple of down-turns you will come out on top. Don't accept the first offer you are given. Romance. An emotional outburst may upset you. Calm down before you make your feelings known to your partner, but when you do, don't hold back!

LEO

JUL 24TH - AUG 23RD

You may feel as though everyone is criticising you at the moment. Don't take the comments too much to heart – some of these attacks may be due to jealousy. Romance. A new relationship will finally get off the ground, so long as you are prepared to take the initiative. A passive approach won't help you very much.

VIRGO

AUG 24TH - SEP 23RD

Your relationship with a co-worker will change after a surprise revelation. Make sure you check your facts before you pass them on, however. Romance. A comment from a complete stranger may take you by surprise. If you are prepared to take the next step you won't be disappointed.

LIBRA

SEP 24TH - OCT 23RD

A powerful aspect to Mars will give your energy levels a boost. This will be a good time to push forward with a plan which you have been working on for the past few weeks. Romance. A meeting with a close friend will give you time to talk over an issue which has been troubling you. Take your friend's advice.

SCORPIO

OCT 24TH - NOV 22ND

A windfall will help you to get your finances back on track. Don't spend it all at once: you have major expenses coming up, and will need some money put aside. Romance. A favourable aspect to Mercury will help your powers of communication, especially later in the week.

SAGITTARIUS

NOV 23RD - DEC 21ST

Your friends will be especially open to your input this week. Use this opportunity to get any new ideas off the ground. Romance. Before you make an important decision make sure that you have considered all the angles. You may have forgotten a detail which is not as unimportant as you think.

CAPRICORN

DEC 22ND - JAN 20TH

You need to create a good impression – but if you try too hard, you will get nervous. Just relax and be yourself. Romance. A powerful aspect to Venus will help to give your love-life a boost. You can count on a substantial improvement in your relationship with your partner over the next few weeks.

AQUARIUS

JAN 21ST - FEB 19TH

A short reply to an important message may not be quite what you expect. You may need to make a few enquiries to find out what is really going on. Romance. A disagreement with your partner at the beginning of the week will have repercussions a few days later. Do your best to calm things down as much as possible.

PISCES

FEB 20TH - MAR 20TH

A challenging aspect to Pluto will help to bring a secret out of the bag. When you have digested the news your relationship with the person concerned will improve. Romance. Your energy levels may be a little higher than those of your partner. Your positive attitude will soon have an effect on them, however!
